RUSSIA HAS AGREED

To a Mixed Commission as Proposed by Great Britain.

FAVOR RESUMPTION BY CHINA.

If Indemnity Matter Is Closed Up This Month It Will Save the Chinese $1,000,000 a Day—British Troops Leaving—Two Transports Will Take Them Direct to India.

London, May 30.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Pekin, says:

"M. De Giers has announced that Russia agrees to the formation of a mixed commission such as is provided for in the British proposal. It is expected that Russia will also agree to Great Britain's indemnity proposals.

"Count Von Waldersee has written the Ministers of the powers proposing that the provisional government of Tien Tsin shall continue until the last troops have been withdrawn, but the Ministers are generally in favor of permitting China to resume the Government forthwith."

Washington, May 30.—The Department of State has been informed reliably that the Chinese Government has issued a decree agreeing to pay an indemnity of 450,000,000 taels, equivalent to about $337,000,000 at the present rate of exchange. It is known now that the whole subject of indemnity will be closed up before the end of the present month. If that is not done and evacuation is not under way on a large scale then the Chinese Government must be assessed $1,000,000 each day after June 1 next, to compensate the powers for the maintenance of their military forces in China. Under this whip the Chinese Government has been forced to yield.

All the Powers Have Agreed.

Berlin, May 30.—The correspondent of the Associated Press learns authoritatively that all the powers have accepted Germany's proposition to withdraw Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee from China and surrender the chief command. In accepting the proposition the powers expressed satisfaction at the extremely tactful and skillful manner in which Count Von Waldersee discharged his most difficult duties and at his great courtesy towards the officers.

In German circles the British proposition that China pay the indemnity by issuing bonds, making the interest and sinking fund payments yearly thereon, is now regarded as certain of being accepted. Perhaps the acceptance will be unanimous.

British Troops Leaving.

Tien Tsin, May 29.—Two British transports have arrived at Tong Ku to take troops direct to India. Another transport will arrive to-day to take the Beluchi Regiment to Wei Hai Wei.

Gen. Voyron, the French commander, expects, now that the evacuation has been decided upon, that France will countermand the order holding her troops temporarily in China. He anticipates the early arrival of French transports.

Gen. Lorne Campbell, British commander here, says the international situation at Tien Tsin is better than at any time since the arrival of the troops, though on the departure of the Americans the Russians objected to the British hoisting their flag on a bridge when the American flag was taken down. But Gen. Wogack, the Russian commander, withdrew his objections.

BRITISH KILLED AND WOUNDED.

Col. Blood's Division Had 42 Killed and 101 Wounded.

London, May 30.—Casualty lists issued by the War Office give 42 British killed and 101 wounded. The majority of these casualties occurred from May 22 to May 25, and between Bethel and Standerton, in Eastern Transvaal, where Gen. Blood has been operating.

More Boers Surrendering.

Cape Town, May 29.—Two hundred Boers have surrendered at Palapye, Bechuanaland, and 42 wagon loads of men, women and children have surrendered at Fort Tuli, Rhodesia.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Toronto, May 30.—Fourteen-year-old Louis Wright, who lives at 72 Blair avenue, is in St. Michael's Hospital suffering from a severe bullet wound in his thigh. While playing with a rifle last night in company with a playmate, the weapon accidentally exploded and he received the bullet. To-day the X-rays will be used to locate the bullet.

BUY NICKEL WORKS

THE PURCHASE PRICE £325,000.

The New Concern Has a Capital of £600,000—The Properties That Have Changed Hands Are Situated in the Township of Denison—Dr. Mond's Fears Re Ontario Legislation Proved Groundless.

Ottawa, May 30.—News has reached here that Mr. Ludwig Mond has sold his nickel properties and works in Canada and elsewhere to a company of English capitalists, who will carry on the business of mining and smelting nickel and copper ore and of refining them by the Mond patent process. The purchase price has been fixed at £325,000, payable as to £99,163 in ordinary shares, as to £50,000 in deferred shares and as to the balance in cash. The title of the new concern is the Mond Nickel Company, Limited. It has a capital of £600,000, divided into 50,000 seven per cent. cumulative preference shares of £5 each, and 300,000 ordinary and 50,000 deferred shares of £1 each. The capital to be now issued consists of 25,000 preference, 297,496 ordinary and the whole of the deferred shares. The ordinary shares are entitled to a non-cumulative dividend, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and to one-half of the surplus profits, and the deferred shares are entitled to the other half of all such profits. Subscriptions are called in England for 25,000 preference and 198,331 ordinary shares, and the balance of 25,000 preference shares will be held in reserve. The nickel properties held by Mr. Mond in Canada were acquired by purchase from Mr. Rinaldo McConnell of this city. They are mostly in the Township of Denison, west of the Town of Sudbury, and they have been undergoing development by Dr. Mond during the past two years. He has had two diamond drills in the properties for a good part of this time, and has been sinking a shaft and erecting smelting works. Dr. Mond, it will be seen, will have a substantial interest in the company, which denotes that he has confidence in the future of the Ontario properties. This is interesting, in view of the fact that the Dr. strongly denounced the provisions of the amended mines act passed by the Ontario Legislature a little over a year ago, and asked for the disallowance of the statute. His argument was that the act amounted to confiscation, and would prevent the investment of capital. It is quite evident that the doctor's fears in this regard were groundless.

The "Marine" Blown to Pieces.

Booneville, Mo., May 30.—By the explosion of 1,000 detonating caps, which set off 2,100 pounds of dynamite and 100 kegs of powder, the 14-ton freight boat Marine, plying between this city and Rocheport, on the Missouri River, was blown to pieces last night. Considerable damage was done to property for a mile around. Two laborers who were aboard the boat are missing. The ferry boat Joseph L. Stephens, lying 500 yards above, was considerably damaged, the woodwork of the upper deck and pilot house being torn away. Those aboard the ferry escaped. Three residences, belonging to Joseph Sherrer, Mrs. Sallie H. Johnson and Charles Dunkle, about 600 yards from the disaster, were wrecked.

Wheels Crushed His Head.

Tweed, Ont., May 30.—Peter Lebarge, a foreman for the Rathbun Company, was instantly killed at the company's sawmill here yesterday afternoon. He was moving a railroad car from the mill with a team of horses, when he slipped and fell in front of the car. The wheels passed over his head, killing him instantly. He leaves a widow and large family to mourn his untimely end.

Baron Milner.

London, May 30.—The Official Gazette announces that the title taken by Sir Alfred Milner on his elevation to the peerage is Baron Milner of St. James, in the County of London, and of Cape Town, in the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope.

Another Negro Burned.

Bartow, Fla., May 30.—Fred Rochelle, a negro, 35 years of age, who, at noon Tuesday, criminally assaulted and then murdered Mrs. Rena Taggart, a well-known and respectable white woman of this city, was burned at the stake here early Tuesday evening in the presence of a throng of people. The burning was on the scene of the negro's crime, within 100 yards of the principal thoroughfare of this city. The man's body was charred bones in half an hour.

I know of no other educational work which so happily unites the physical, social and religious instruction for young men, and I believe there is no other single agency that has pursued with such a definate aim the great object of improving the moral tone of the whole community. Where so many temptations are thrust in the way of our young men it is gratifying to find associations like yours supplying their desires for the best kind of entertainment and instruction."

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mrs. John Gall has moved to her pretty little cottage on Tricker ave.

Mr. Sandy Wood met with a serious accident on Monday afternoon. While driving a team of spirited horses attached to a wagon, they became unmanageable. He headed them towards a fence but in crossing a ditch he and his little daughter, who accompanied him, were thrown violently from the seat. His daughter had her thigh broken by the fall, and he sustained a serious injury by alighting on his chest on a stone.

Our young civil engineer, accompanied by two young ladies, ascended the canal for the purpose of renovating their æsthetic feelings by the enchanting beauty of the place, and also of taking some photographic views that might aid at some future time in reviving pleasant memories of the past. While the two young ladies were posing in the canoe, and the civil engineer preparing to secure a beautiful picture on his plate, one of the ladies counterpoised, and in the act was precipitated into the lucid water. At this critical moment the young man's presence of mind did not fail him, but he rushed valiantly into the water, which was almost two feet deep, and heroically rescued them.

OUR LOCAL MARKETS.

The Live Stock Trade Rather Brisk.

Cattle Buyer Argue's Big Shipment to Toronto—The Prices—Hogs Moving.

The local market has this week so far been slightly more brisk than usual, considerable live stock having come in. Monday was rather a heavy day for Market Clerk Hutchinson. Mr. Michael Argue, the well known life stock dealer, shipped two car loads of heavy cattle to Toronto, the price received by the sellers being invariably 4 1-2 cents.

Mr. R. E. McKee sold ten head and Mr. James Davidson sold two very fine export steers. Mr. H. McKee sold 5 steers weighing 5,980 pounds. Mr. John Stothart disposed of 3 head, one bull weighing 1,680 pounds; a heifer weighing 1,380 pounds, and another heifer weighing 1,000 pounds.

James Franks got rid of two well finished steers weighing 2,500 pounds, and in Mr. Argue's shipment to Toronto were ten head sold by Mr. George Webber. They averaged 1200 pounds. Mr. David Johnston of Otonabee, sold 20 head, totalling 22,560 pounds.

The hog market has been particularly active. Mr. John Brandon of Fenelon Falls on Wednesday brought down a double deck car load of hogs, and on the same day Mr. Michael Argue of Lindsay, came down with two double deckers. Mr. Gilbert Kincaid of Manvers, sent in a double decker of hogs on Monday, and another on Tuesday. All of these hogs were bought by the George Matthews Co.

Mr. John A. Stabler has been doing considerable in the hog line this week. He has averaged about 170 hogs a day for this week, paying from 7 to 10 cents for selects. Mr. Stabler anticipates a drop in hogs next week, stating that $6.75 will be the price. He quotes light hogs at 6 cents and sows at 3 1-2. Year old steers are quoted by Mr. Stabler at 3 to 3 1-2 cents, and one year old steers at 2 3-4 to 3 cents.

Mr. William Torpy bought up 74 hogs for Kennedy on Wednesday, paying 7 and 8 cents.

QUEBEC HORSES TURNED DOWN

Quebec, May 30.—Some 307 horses, owned in this city and district, selected for British army purposes in South Africa, were refused by the two inspecting officers yesterday morning, without any satisfactory reason whatever being ascribed for the culling. For a time the aspect of the situation was a most serious one, as the owners of the steeds entertained anything but a friendly feeling toward the strangers who had ignored the many good qualities characteristic of the Canadian horse, and had it not been for the timely interference of a few clear-minded people who perceived what would naturally be the outcome, and so informed Major Gore and Dr. Fraser, there would certainly have been a regrettable sequel to the whole matter.

Dr. Hall, V. S., who had been entrusted with the work of selecting these horses for inspection, states that he considers himself as having been treated in a most scandalous manner by the officers in question. He says that he sometime since received a communication from Col. Dent, British re-mount officer, asking him to select the horses from this district, and have them assembled together yesterday, so that they might be inspected. Since about May 1, Dr. Hall states, he has worked almost incessantly in complying with the instructions received, and in order to do so has been obliged to spend a considerable amount of money in expenses. Yesterday the 307 horses which he had brought to Savard Park, were results of his labors. Two inspecting officers, above named, were present, and ordered the animals to be driven past four at a time. This was accordingly done, and, in fact, was all that was desired, as in each instance the drivers received orders to return the horses, they not being what were required in the opinion of the inspectors.

Needless to say, this action aroused the indignation of the horse owners, who became so menacing that it was necessary to advise the officers to resort to a hasty departure to avoid violence at the hands of the assembled crowd, which they did, allowing the poor owners to return to their homes sadder, if not wiser men, and using language anything but complimentary to those concerned in the purchase, except, of course, Dr. Hall, who was exonerated from all responsibility as regards the action of the inspectors.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Machinists and Their Employers at Chicago Disagree.

SITUATION NOT SO PEACEFUL.

Result May Be That 7,000 Machinists May Walk Out of the Shops There—The Question of Local or National Arbitration of Differences the Immediate Bone of Contention.

Chicago, May 30.—All negotiations for a settlement by arbitration of the differences between the National Metal Trades Association and the International Association of Machinists were called off last night.

Some Particulars.

The Administrative Council of the National Trades' Association at a meeting in the Great Northern Hotel on Tuesday adopted resolutions abrogating the New York agreement with the International Association of Machinists.

The council decided that it would have no national arbitration of the wage question. A committee will be appointed to confer with the local officers of the Machinists' Union to arbitrate wages in Chicago, provided President O'Connell shall appoint a committee from the union for the O'Connell, asking him to appoint a OjConnell, asking him to appoint a committee. The strictest secrecy was maintained.

MACHINISTS ARE DISCOURAGED.

Effect on the Executive of the Bad News From Chicago.

Toronto, May 30.—At the headquarters of the International Association of Machinists, it was not cheering news that was handed out to the press by President O'Connell last night.

Previously, the reports from headquarters showed very satisfactery gains by the striking machinists from all parts of the United States, but word came from Chicago yesterday that the conference held in that city between the National Metal Trades' Association, representing No. 5 District, and the International Association of Machinists, representing No. 8 District, had disagreed on the wage question; and it looks as if the men will go out to enforce their demands. There are about 30 firms in Chicago employing about 5,000 men.

What the firms held out for was to arbitrate the question locally. The machinists wanted them to settle the issue nationally, claiming that it would require too long to settle individual claims; but the policy of the firms was to put off the final issue as long as possible. Failing to come to an agreement on the wage question, the firms abrogated the agreement, and evidently intend to stand out against the men on all the points of the agreement. This may mean that the nine-hour day principle will not be further recognized.

President O'Connell has not received any official notice from the National Metal Trades' Association that they have abrogated the agreement. He considers that if the association has taken such action, it would be discourteous not to notify the Machinists' Association.

Girl Strikers Rampant.

New York, May 30.—The girl strikers at the handkerchief factory of Acheson, Wardern & Co., at Passaic, N. Y., made a demonstration yesterday. One hundred girls reported for duty, and, despite police protection, they were rather roughly handled by the strikers, who afterward stoned the factory, smashing many windows. The police arrested four of the strike leaders, but lost one in a charge from the strikers.

A Strike in Guelph.

Guelph, May 30.—Guelph has a strike. Yesterday morning the corporation hands, some 20 in number, quit. It seems that City Engineer Hutcheson placed William Billings, son of the street foreman, over the men employed laying waterworks pipes. One day's test of the foremanship satisfied the men that Billings was incapable of bossing them, and that he knew little about the business. The men working on the streets joined the other strikers. The men are perfectly satisfied with their wages, $1.35 for nine hours a day.

IMMIGRANTS FROM ITALY.

Circulars of Canadian Agents Denounced as Misleading.

Rome, May 30.—Under Foreign Secretary Martino, in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, replying to a criticism of the treatment of Italian emigrants in Canada, said the present laws left the Government powerless to control emigration. The Italian consul at Montreal had reported that the circulars of the Canadian agents were misleading. Emigrants from the south of Italy would be going to certain ruin and only emigrants with money could benefit under the conditions offered by the Canadian Government.

Signor Martino declared the Government would deal with the matter vigorously. He defended the Canadian Government against all accusations of wittingly attracting immigration under misleading conditions.

CADETS' INSPECTION.

It Will Take Place in the Course of a Week or ten Days.

Lieutenant-Colonel Henning, of Kingston, the new inspector of militia stores for this district, was in town yesterday inspecting the arms and stores of the 57th Regt.

It was Colonel Henning's intention to inspect the Cadet Corps of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, but as the Cadets had no knowledge of this an arrangement was arrived at whereby they will be inspected in the course of a week or ten days.

The idea of having the Cadet Corps inspected at this time of the year, instead of in the autumn as heretofore, is a splendid one, as the boys are always in their best form about this month, and again many of them graduate from the local schools at the end of the June term, and therefore the strength of the Cadets is not as great in September.

MR. STABLER'S WINDFALL.

He May Come Into Possession of About $20,000, From a Rich Uncle.

Mr. William A. Stabler, Peterborough's well-known cattle buyer, is firmly of the opinion that he will very shortly come into possession of the sum of $20,000, being the amount of a legacy said to have been left him by his uncle, Mr. John Stabler, of England.

Mr. Stabler has received a letter or two from an English attorney, stating that John Stabler had died, leaving a portion of his estate to an only daughter, and the remainder, amounting to about $20,000, to James Stabler, of this country. The latter gentleman is dead, and Mr. William Stabler is his son.

NON COMS' EXAMINATION.

The non-commissioned officers class of the 57th Regiment, concluded their examinations last night. A week ago the class was put through a portion of their examination, the examining officer being Major Miller, Major Stevenson and Lieutenant Walker. The examination last night was conducted by Major Miller and the men were put through the firing exercises and drill in extended order, after which an adjournment was made to one of the rooms for a written examination.

The work of the class under Sgt.-Major Brittain was very gratifying to all concerned and the non.-coms. in attendance have reached a high state of efficiency.

WAS FURTHER HONOURED.

Rev. Dr. Andrews of Keene Congregation.

Presented With an Address and a Handsome Gown and Doctor's Hood

The congregation of the Presbyterian church, Keene, held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon. Interesting reports were presented from the various societies. A most interesting event was then engaged in. Mr. A. Shearer read an address to Rev. Dr. Andrews, the esteemed pastor, and presented him with a handsome gown and Doctor's hood. Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, and Rev. J. G. Potter of Peterborough, assisted in this interesting ceremony.

Dr. Andrews made a very touching reply and expressed gratitude at the great honour that had been done him.

Rev. Messrs. Thompson, Potter, McAuley, Dr. Harrison, and Messrs. Taylor and McNeil gave very interesting speeches. After this the ladies provided a sumptuous repast.

The address to Rev. Mr. Andrews was as follows:

Rev. Francis Andrews, D. D.,

Dear Pastor, — We, the officers, members and adherents of your congregation, desire to express our feelings of appreciation of the honour conferred upon you by Queen's College in awarding you the degree of Doctor of Divinity, and beg of you to accept this cloak and hood as a token of the high position in which you have been exalted —the highest in the ministry. We would say that the Senate of the College in honouring you have honoured themselves.

In conclusion, we would earnestly pray that you may long be spared for service in our Master's vineyard.

On behalf of the congregation,—
JAMES McNEIL,
WM. CAMPBELL,
W. SHEARER.

WERE BURNED TO A CINDER.

Both Man and Boy Perish in the Flames.

A METHUEN TP. FATALITY

A Tragedy in a Log House in the Oak Lake Settlement Settlement—A Third Death May Result.

In the Oak Lake settlement in the township of Methuen, 15 miles north of Havelock, a most distressing affair occurred on Saturday night, when Mr. James Post and his little nephew were cremated by the burning of their dwelling house, and Mr. Post's aged mother was so badly burned while making her escape and trying to save her grandson, that grave fears are entertained as to her recovery.

The house which was a two-storey building of hewn logs and frame kitchen, was situated nearly half a mile from the residence of Mr. Robert McCutcheon, the nearest neighbour.

The family consisted of four persons, viz., Mrs. Rinard Post, a woman of 78 years, her son, Mr. Jas. Post, an unmarried man of 52 years, her grandson, Sherwood Jerow, a young man of 22 years, and another grandson, Herbert Kelsh, aged 12 years, son of Mr. Wesley Kelsh, of the Oak Lake settlement. Sherwood Jerow went to Havelock in the morning, and the other three members of the family retired at night at the usual hour, when everything seemed safe about the premises.

About 11 o'clock Mrs. Post was awakened from her sleep by a noise in the kitchen, which she supposed was made by her grandson entering the house. She rose from her bed, and on opening the door which led to the kitchen, was terrified at the sight of the place in flames, and a great volume of fire and smoke burst into the sitting room off which were two bedrooms, one occupied by herself and the little boy Kelsh, and the other by her son James.

According to her account of the terrible affair, which was told while she was in a frightened and dazed condition from excitement and the burns from which she was suffering, she called to her son as soon as she discovered the fire, and heard him reply. She rushed out of the house by the door in the sitting room, and going to the north side of the house, she smashed in the window of her bedroom and threw water into it from three barrels of water which stood near the outside entrance to the kitchen, in a vain endeavour to save the little boy. While doing so she was badly burned in the face, on the back of her head, and on her hip, arm and leg, and in this condition, clad only in a night dress which was soaked with water, she found her way in the darkness along a roadway beside the woods, to the residence of Mr. Robt. McCutcheon, who was at Havelock, and gave the alarm.

A young son of Mr. McCutcheon was the first to reach the scene, he having gone alone, and on his arrival he called loudly for Mr. Post, while he tried to extinguish some of the fire, but received no answer. As soon as the news could be made known several neighbours arrived, but too late, as the fire had done its work of reducing the building and its contents to ashes, and the terrible fact dawned upon their minds that two precious lives had perished in the flames.

In the early light of the morning this proved too true, for in one corner of the site where the building stood were removed from the few remaining embers all that was left of the body of Mr. Post, consisting of a portion of the trunk, the head and shoulders as well as the legs having been destroyed. Near to it, just where the door stood, where found a few bones of the little boy Kelsh. The remains of the two victims were placed in a box together and interred on Sunday.

From the position in which the remains of Mr. Post were found, it seems quite evident that he never left his bed, having been suffocated, and afterwards burned. The little boy, however, seems to have got out of bed and reached the doorway, where he was overcome by the smoke and fell.

Mrs. Post was taken to the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Kelsh, where she is receiving treatment from a Havelock physician, and is being nursed by her daughters and kind friends. She has a robust constitution and was an active woman, although in the 77th year of her age.

James Post, the deceased, was a man well known and highly respected for his great kindness and genial disposition. He was a true friend, and no one ever went away hungry from his door, as scores of person will testify. His name and his kind acts will long be remembered.

The boy was a bright intelligent little fellow whose loss also is very much deplored.

The occurrence has cast a gloom over every one in the settlement and elsewhere where the deceased was known; heartfelt sympathy is felt for the sorrow stricken friends in their bereavement.

A service was held by Rev. Mr. Carson, of Havelock, last night.

OUR BAND.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Our band proposes to wind up the series of indoor concerts by giving the public a rare treat, and it should be the duty as well as the pleasure of all good citizens to show their appreciation by turning out to give them a bumper house.

We have enjoyed a dozen or more first-class concerts during the winter, fo rwhich the band had only asked voluntary contributions, by silver collection. The audiences have numbered from 800 to 1,200 and the receipts have averaged about $40, or from 3 to 5 cents per head of hearers. And as a minority have contributed more than ten cents each, it necessarily follows that many went in dead head.

Many and many a time we have paid from 25 to 50 cents for other and very inferior entertainments, and yet we have a musical organization second to none, and we seem willing to crowd their concerts at from 3 to 5 cents entrance. If the band has been generous enough to give us such splendid music for next to nothing we ought surely to make some sort of recompense when opportunity occurs, as for instance the proposed concert of the 31st inst., at which a general admission fee of 25 cents is asked. The proceeds of these concerts do not go to the bandsmen, but are used for the purchase of new music and instruments, which are very costly and the band is expected to keep up to the times in new music, in which matter all will agree, they have shown great enterprise.

Our band won very high opinions at a recent concert in Lindsay, where the best people of the town gladly paid high prices to hear it, and why should not we do something generous for once, by packing the hall on the night of their next concert.

At the close of the concert in Lindsay, as soon as the National Anthem commenced, the audience stood up and remained standing perfectly still until the last note had been played. How very different it is here where the first note is a signal for a noisy stampede for the doors. This behavious is not only disrespectful but vulgar. I would suggest that the National Anthem be placed first on the programme and any old cake walk at the last, as no one can hear it in the confusion and noise, no matter how much one may desire to.

Let everyone remember how much we are indebted to our band and bring all your family and visitors. Fill the house and do not grumble if you have to stand.

WEAKNESS of MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental wrecks than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee bond to that effect. We would warn you sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.

Don't Let your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. Our New Method Treatment will Stop all Unnatural Losses, Purify the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make a man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure Drains, Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. No cutting or operations. No detention from business. Everything confidential. Consultation Free. Books Free. Question Blank Free for Home Treatment.

DEATH ROLL OF LABOR

13th Annual Report of the Ontario Factory Inspectors.

394 ACCIDENTS, 22 BEING FATAL

Carelessness a Favorite Explanation, But High Pressure Demanding Speed Is Surmised to Be a Much More Potent Cause of Accidents in Factories—Contrast Between Saving Time and Saving Life.

The thirteenth annual report of the Ontario factory inspectors, which covers the year 1900, shows that in spite of a general desire to comply with the law as to the safety of employes there was a record of 394 accidents, of which 22 were fatal. Carelessness is a favorite explanation, but if one looks for the cause of the alleged carelessness it will generally be found in the high pressure that creates a demand for speed in modern industry. The workman is admonished by his foreman or employer to take sufficient time to insure safety, to make everything perfectly secure, and to avoid accidents. At the same time, he is admonished by the very conditions under which he works to sacrifice all things, safety included, to speed; for he knows that sloth is the unpardonable sin, that if his day's work does not show satisfactory results he will be forced into the ranks of the unemployed without further inquiry. Modern machinery, with its irresistible strength and unimaginable speed, is responsible for a long record of maiming and death. One victim was drawn against a mill saw by the carriage that conveys the logs, and died from his injuries. Another was caught by the casting on the moving bed of a metal planer, and was killed by being drawn under the stationary rest that holds the cutting tool. Both these accidents occurred with slowly moving machinery. Uncovered tanks of boiling water were responsible for two deaths, and another was due to scalding through disconnecting a live steam pipe. Three deaths resulted from unprotected gearing, but in one case the injury was comparatively slight, the fatal termination being due to blood-poisoning.

The danger of shafting has been emphasized by a record of four victims. One was oiling it while in motion, another was putting on a belt, a third was crawling under a shaft in a forbidden place, and the fourth was caught by a sheepskin that fell accidentally on a shaft and tightened about his hand as it was wound up. Two men were killed by coming accidentally into contact with circular saws, and one death resulted from a wound inflicted by a piece of lumber thrown from a saw in motion. Two other saw mill hands met with fatal accidents, one having been crushed by a falling log and the other killed by a blow from the lever of a saw carriage. A bursting grindstone caused one fatal accident, and the record of the power hoist includes one death coming under the cognizance of factory legislation. One accidental death is recorded as due to the falling of a lumber pile. A boiler explosion resulted in one fatality, and one death was caused by the explosion of a secret compound used in making fireworks. This is the record of deaths which come within the purview of the factory act, and of the long array of lesser accidents many were of a serious nature, resulting in permanent injury. As a general rule reasonable care has been exercised to prevent needless danger, but human ingenuity is not directed toward devising safeguards. A fortune awaits the man who will devise some means of cutting a few minutes off the time required to do the work, but he who devises a scheme for securing the safety of the worker must be content with the satisfaction of knowing that he has enlarged the scope of factory legislation.

The Bull and the Ribbon.

An extraordinary incident was reported on Tuesday at the premises of a draper in the New cross-road. It appears that whilst a drove of cattle were passing the shop a bull evidently took a fancy to some scarlet ribbon, and endeavored to gratify his personal vanity. Finding the doorway too small for his admittance, the animal opened a way for himself by smashing up three large plate-glass windows, 12 feet by 12 feet, and entering the establishment. Then ensued a most exciting scene. Women screamed, two ladies in the shop fainted, and men shouted. The bull in the meantime, was the centre of attraction, being actually on show in the big window. Eventually he was enticed out, badly cut, and was led away.—Lloyd's Weekly.

The total number of fur seals taken by Canadian sealers during the year 1900 was 35,523.

The lobster plant alone is estimated to be worth $1,334,180. It comprises 858 canneries, dispersed on the seaboard of the maritime provinces.

The sealing fleet last year numbered 37 vessels, an increase of 11 over the previous year, and representing an aggregate of 2,641 tons' register.

The salmon-preserving industry of British Columbia, comprising 69 canneries and representing a capital of $1,380,000, gives employment to 18,977 hands.

No less than 79,863 men were occupied in 1900 in exploiting the waters of Canada, using 5,506,760 fathoms of nets and other fishing gear, representing a capital of $10,000,000.

The total catch of fish in Canada for the year 1899, as reported by the fisheries department, amounted to $21,891,706, being an increase of $2,250,000 over the yield of the previous year.

STAGE DRIVER STATES HIS CASE

Experience of Both His Wife and Himself.

Each Has Tested the Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills—Each Has Achieved the Same Result—Dodd's Kidney Pills have Cured Them Both.

Dromore, Ont., May 29, (Special).—Mr. George Sackett drives the stage between Dromore and Holstein. That he is known throughout the country side goes without saying. When he was in trouble a short while ago he had the sympathy therefore of more than the few immediate friends and neighbours a man in another walk would have.

Mr. Sackett thought at one time he would have to give up the stage. Sitting up on the driver's seat day in and day out, rain or shine, hot or cold, he contracted a serious disorder. His kidneys became weakened from the continual exposure. They gradually gave him more and more trouble. He felt that he couldn't keep up much longer.

It is nine miles from Dromore to Holstein. That means a round trip of eighteen miles. Two trips a day would make thirty-six miles of driving. Imagine this in a wet driving snow storm of March or February to a man in a delicate state of health.

Mr. Sackett did not give up driving the stage. Instead he sought the help of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Did he find help? Read his own letter, a letter which tells also that his wife proved the truth of the saying "Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend."

"Having used other largely advertised remedies and all the medicines recommended to me by my friends for kidney trouble and excruciating backache without the slightest relief I was in despair. In the nick of time I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and can never be too thankful for the advice which prompted me to do so. They simply took hold of my trouble and lifted it off me. I never heard of anything which gives such instant relief.

"My wife owes even more to Dodd's Kidney Pills than I do. Her case was worse than mine. Mrs. Sackett would not be alive today only for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Both my wife and myself can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for they do what they are claimed to do."

PRECIOUS STONES.

The Methods by Which They Are Tested by Experts.

In a lecture on precious stones recently delivered before the Industrial association of Berlin, Dr. Immanuel Friedlaender said that the testing of diamonds is comparatively simple. The common test for hardness suffices. If the stone resists strong attacks, it is certain to be genuine; if it does not, the damage is insignificant, as only an imitation has been destroyed. This test, however, is doubtful with rubies. If a ruby can be affected by a steel file or by quartz, it is surely not genuine, but such a test with a topaz is liable to injure a valuable stone.

The test for hardness is of no avail with emeralds, as this stone is not much harder than quartz and in addition possesses the quality of cracking easily.

For examining rubies and emeralds the optical test is best. A glass magnifying about 100 times suffices. Every expert knows that almost all precious stones have little flaws. Nearly every ruby and all emeralds have many defects, which are so characteristic that the genuineness of the stones is readily established. Such a test is very necessary with rubies, because the imitations are very deceiving. Their color is absolutely durable and often much finer than that of the genuine, although it may be stated that a somewhat yellowish tint is always suspicious.

The only reliable way in which genuine rubies can be told from imitations is by the minute air bubbles of the latter, which become clearly visible under the magnifying glass. These are not to be found in the natural gem. On the other hand, the imitations lack certain defects characteristic of genuine rubies—certain vacuums, whose outlines are much more indistinct than those of the air bubbles in imitations.

True emeralds have similar characteristic defects, such as inclosures of liquids and curious dendrites. Sapphires also show peculiar netlike formations.

Bronchitis is now Epidemic.

Bronchitis is becoming very prevalent, but is not now incurable for Catarrhozone cures even the worst cases. Catarrhozone Inhaler sends the healing medicated air into every air passage in head, bronchial tubes and lungs; it reaches the germs and destroys them. Catarrhozone soothes and cures the dry cough and feverishness, and the laborious breathing and soreness in the wind-pipe are relieved at once. When Catarrhozone is inhaled, Bronchitis is cured in one to five days. It has been extensively used, and never once failed. Even cases of 5, 10 and 20 years standing that have baffelled the skill of the best physicians, have been cured by Catarrhozone. Your doctor can tell you that Catarrhozone is one of the grandest discoveries of the century, and that he always prescribes it for Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. Get it to-day and be cured. Price $1.00; small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Regnish Ravens.

The raven of southern Europe is a bold fellow—not unlike his cousin, the crow. Some notices of the bird, given by an English traveler in Corsica, offer amusing proof of this.

A youth whom I employed to carry my camera could never look on ravens with any equanimity, for he had suffered much from their thievish impudence when sent to the bush to gather firewood.

On one occasion he lost his dinner, a loaf of bread wrapped in a napkin, although he was working close to the spot where he had laid it and had turned his back for only a minute.

But the most unpardonable insult he had ever received happened on a day when he was out gathering wood. As he was stooping down to bind a bundle of fagots a raven suddenly swooped from behind, lifted the cap from his head and flew away with it to a lofty crag, from which she uttered croaks of triumph.

Starving Children.

Thousands of well fed children are starving, simply because their food is not of the right kind. They are thin, pale and delicate. Scott's Emulsion will change all this. It gives vim and vigour, flesh and force.

The Immensity of Space.

A photographic plate exposed to the heavens in a large telescope for any considerable length of time shows nothing but a continuous blur of light, indicating that the photographic eye sees beyond the reach of human vision such a multitude of suns that every part of space is filled. One may gain some inkling of the immensity of space by supposing the photographic plate exposed upon the remotest star it now records and looking out still farther to find the heavens still crowded with millions of millions of suns, each possibly having its quota of planets.

The Retort Courteous.

"No, I have nothing for you," said the housekeeper sternly. "And don't you come here after dinner again."

"Beg pardon, lady," replied Hungry Hawkes, "but I didn't suppose you'd have dinner over dis early in de day. You ain't very stylish, are you?"

It Saved His Leg.

P. A. Danforth, of LaGrange, Ga., suffered for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg; but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in five days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Piles, it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by Jas. Lynch.

BIG NICKEL PURCHASE.

The Nickel-Copper Company of Hamilton have purchased the McConnell properties in what is called the Northern Nickel Range. These are supposed to be the largest nickel and copper bearing properties in the entire Sudbury district, and were under option to the Nickel-Copper Company for some time, but that company had not evidently succeeded in its refining process until lately, as they allowed the option to lapse. By their action in purchasing these properties for over $300,000 they must have become satisfied that the Frasch system of reducing ores is a thorough success. From a conversation with one of the largest shareholders it was learned that the company will begin extensive developments at once. Any doubts as to the Frasch process which those interested might previously have entertained have, by the action of the company's purchase of these properties, been removed, and the development of the Nickel-Copper Company's entire properties in the Sudbury district will, it is expected, follow.

QUAINT WAYS IN RIO.

TO DISPUTE A BILL IS TO MAKE ONESELF AN OUTCAST.

The Brazilian Capital Is the Easiest Place In the World to Get Credit and the Hardest Place In Which to Dodge a Debt.

"Rio is the easiest city in the world to get credit in," said a New Orleans man who lived for awhile at the Brazilian capital, "but it's the worst place in the world in which to dodge a debt. All business there is done on the semi-annual account system, and you can get anything you want and have it charged without difficulty, but the end of every six months is settlement day, and if you are not on hand with the cash—well, I'll give you a little experience of my own to show you what happens.

"I went to the city as the representative of a well known American house, and at the outset I was surprised to find that it was practically impossible for me to pay for anything. 'Don't bother about that, senhor,' the storekeeper would say. 'I will make an account of it.' Of course my American friends soon explained the system to me, and, while I didn't like it, I thought best to conform to the custom of the country without rendering myself disagreeable by kicking.

"About two months after my arrival I went to a native shoemaker's one day, ordered a pair of English riding boots, and, as I had been used to wearing ready made footgear, I mentioned, incidentally, that my number was 8½. The shoemaker gravely made a note of the fact and promised to send around the boots as soon as they were done. Several weeks elapsed, when, one morning, a porter came staggering into the office almost buried under an enormous load of English top boots. To be exact, he had 17. I was thunderstruck, but as he could give me no explanation except that they were mine I rushed immediately to the shop, where the proprietor received me blandly and insisted that he had merely sent what I had ordered. 'You said that you desired them to the number of eight and a half,' he added, 'and I accordingly made you eight pairs and one boot, a right, which, if you desire, I will exchange for a left.' 'But, good heavens,' I protested, 'you ought to have known there was some mistake! Why on earth should I order half a pair of boots?' He shrugged his shoulders. 'That was not for me to inquire,' he said.

"I realized that the fatal reputation for eccentricity which Americans enjoy the world over was partly responsible for the muddle. Still it was an inexcusably stupid blunder, and, after vainly arguing for an hour, I put him on notice that I would only accept one pair. When I returned, I sent back the other 15 and considered the incident closed. I heard no more about it, in fact, until exactly six months later, when I received a bill for 8½ pairs of riding boots at $15 each—total, $127.50 gold—and a polite notification that 7½ pairs awaited my pleasure at the shop.

"That made me furious. I sent the man my check for $15 and told his messenger to sue me and be hanged. But he didn't sue me. They have a much more effective method down there.

"Within a week every tradesman with whom I did business advised me courteously that he had closed my account—meaning that my future custom was not desired. Moreover, the foreign colony all gave me the cold shoulder, and when I dropped in at the club the frost was something awful.

"At last I sent for a particular friend. 'Look here,' I said, 'I want you to tell me frankly why I am getting this taboo.' 'Because you haven't paid for your boots,' he replied. 'But this is monstrous!' said I. 'You know very well that I never ordered 8½ pairs of boots.' 'Of course not,' said he, 'but you'd best pay for 'em all the same. It ruins a man here,' he went on to explain, 'if he allows any bill to pass settlement day. No explanation is permitted, and everybody joins in cutting him. It seems hard, but we have to do it to sustain this credit system. If we didn't, we'd all be ruined by bad accounts.'

"I groaned in spirit, but I sent the shoemaker $112.50 and told him to let me have the rest of my boots. I was so mad I could have worn out the whole 17 on his anatomy, but I preserved my outward calm and was promptly reinstated socially and financially throughout the town. Later on I used seven pairs of boots as Christmas presents to friends and gave the one odd one to a one legged beggar on the plaza."

THE FASHION PLATE CHILD.

I'm a poor little fashion plate child,
And my manners are gentle and mild,
But the trials I endure, and the fun I abjure
Would set any other child wild.

All my frocks are quite fetching and smart,
But great rage fills my poor little heart
When I foolishly stand with a purse in my hand
In a pose quite approved by Delsarte.

An umbrella I have, though 'tis plain
There is not the least chance of a rain,
For my shoes and my hat are not fitted for that;
My hair would be curled all in vain.

Little girls must all hate me, I fear,
For on Sundays and afternoons clear
They are dressed just like me for the public to see,
And their comments are caustic, I hear.

How I wish I could wear an old dress
Made of gingham, and then I just guess
I would make some mud pies that would open your eyes,
Though my pose might not be a success.

TRICKS OF WATCHES.

Little Things That May Make Our Timepieces Fail.

Watches often suffer from changes of temperature. After a watch has been worn next to a warm body all day it should not be left overnight on cold marble or near an open window. The cold is likely to contract the metal pivots and, however slightly, tighten up the works. The next morning, for no apparent reason, one's watch will be found to be losing time.

It frequently happens that watches are slightly magnetized by static electricity given off by the human body. It has been found that dark people are more likely to exert this influence over their watches. This influence is, besides, more common among women than with men. Persons of this sort can never hope to carry the correct time unless they carry their watches in rubber or steel cases.

Never lay your watch down for the night in a horizontal position. It should always be hung vertically, as it is carried during the day. If the pivot of the balance wheel be in the least worn, this change of position tends to loosen the "cap jewel."

Every one has had a watch suddenly stop for no apparent reason and go on again when slightly shaken. This may not happen once in a year, but all watches are liable to such an accident. This is due usually to the catching of the delicate hairspring. It is caused by some sudden movement such as jumping on or off a car. The jolt must come at the exact fraction of a second when the spring is in position to catch, so that the chances of such an accident are rare. A watch should be oiled every 18 months. The oil dries up in this time, as a rule, and if the mechanism be run with the oil dry it quickly wears out.

In examining a watch all jewelers follow the same plan. They first look to see if the hands are caught. If the fault lies deeper, they next take out the balance wheel and examine the pin and pivots. Next they let down the mainspring and examine the wheels. It sometimes happens that a jeweler will not find the cause of the trouble for days. The most difficult disorder to locate is a slight bur on one of the wheels.

Many jewelers have collected fees for repairing watches when the watches refuse to go merely because they have run down. Women are said to be the best customers of the watch doctor, since they seldom wind their watches regularly. A watch should be wound early in the day, and not, as is the common practice, at bedtime. The reason for this is that the spring is then tightest during the day while the watch is being carried and is less sensitive.

Peace With Honor.

An old Indian, says Joaquin Miller in his "True Bear Stories," was terribly frightened by an old monster grizzly and her half grown cub one autumn while out gathering manzanita berries, but, badly as he was frightened, he was not even scratched.

It seems that while he had his head raised and was busy gathering and eating berries he almost stumbled over a bear and her cub. They had eaten their fill and had fallen asleep in the trail on the wooded hillside. The old Indian had only time to turn on his heel and throw himself headlong into the large end of a hollow log, which luckily lay at hand.

This was only a temporary refuge, but he soon saw, to his delight, that the log was open at the other end, and corkscrewing his way along toward the farther end he was about to emerge when he saw the old mother sitting down, quietly awaiting for him.

After recovering his breath, he elbowed and corkscrewed himself back to the place at which he first entered. But lo, the bear was there, sitting down, half smiling and waiting to receive him.

This, the old Indian said, was repeated time after time, till he had no longer strength to struggle. He turned on his face, whereupon the bear thrust her head in, touched the top of his head gently with her nose and then drew back, took her cub with her and shuffled away.

Mr. Miller went to the spot with the Indian a day or two after and was convinced that his story was exactly true, and when you understand that the bear could easily have entered the hollow log and killed the Indian at any time you will see that it must have been a sense of humor which caused her to play the cat and mouse game with him.

A Sympathetic Thief.

Sympathy for her sick and bedridden mistress has transformed Flox, the pet cat of a woman who keeps a Philadelphia boarding house, into a confirmed thief. Flox has not hesitated to purloin choice tidbits from the table, and these she has carried carefully to the sickroom, but the height of her thieving propensities developed the other day when a young woman who boards in the house brought in a bunch of roses. Flox sniffed the flowers and liked them. Then she followed their owner to her room, and when she went down to dinner the cat clutched the flowers in her teeth from the vase in which they were placed and carried them down to the floor below, where her mistress was in bed. There they were found a couple of hours later. The sick woman was asleep, but the stolen flowers lay on the covers of the bed, and the feline thief stood guard over her fragrant spoils.

There will be another car. But the man can't wait. He chases the car and swings on, panting and hot, but satisfied. He keeps this gait up all day. He works that way, he lunches that way. He continues this until his stomach "breaks down" and nature compels him to "go slow."

Business men who have impaired their digestion by hasty eating will find in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a cure for dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It does not give mere temporary relief, but it effects a radical cure. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves and purifies the blood.

"For six long years I suffered with my liver, kidneys, and with indigestion, which baffled the best doctors in our country," writes E. L. Ransell, Esq., of Woolsey, Prince William Co., Va. "I suffered with my stomach and back for a long time, and after taking a 'cart-load' of medicine from three doctors, I grew so bad I could hardly do a day's work. Would have death-like pains in the side, and blind spells, and thought life was hardly worth living. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' as advised. Before I had taken half of the second bottle I began to feel relieved. I got six bottles and used them, and am happy to say I owe my life to Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

BATTLE FOR THE SABBATH.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, — Many things have occurred in recent years tending to make serious inroads on the weekly rest day in Canada. Contractors on public works have not infrequently insisted upon working seven days a week. The majority of the mines of British Columbia are open continuously. Not a few factories in different parts even of Ontario have claimed the right of running for at least a part of Sunday under the plea of the pressure of business. It is a matter of common complaint that the law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday is freely, if secretly, disregarded in many places. Sunday excursions, band concerts and the like, have appeared in some of our larger centres. The Sunday car, where it exists, is exerting a strong influence towards making Sunday a holiday, destroying the sense of reverence with which the Sabbath has in the past been regarded by the majority of Canadians.

These things have for long been a subject of concern to church leaders, but it is only in recent years that the people generally have come to give serious attention to the subject. The Lord's Day Alliance was called into being as a Christian citizens' movement for the defence of the Canadian Sunday, and a little over a year ago induced Rev. J. G. Shearer, a minister of the City of Hamilton, to give all his time to the reaching of public opinion, and the marshalling of the Sabbath-loving forces in opposition to these tendencies. Having recently completed his first tour of the main centres throughout Canada from Sydney, C. B., to Victoria, B. C., he has made a report of a number of things that will be of interest no doubt to a number of your readers, and which seem to indicate that the prevailing sentiment in Canada is being aroused in favour of calling a halt in the trend towards the introduction in Canada of the American or European Sunday, with its industrial bondage for many and other attendant evils. He reports that fully 90 per cent. of the newspapers of Ontario in places where the Alliance is established, have declared themselves in favour of standing by the Canadian Sabbath; that outstanding laymen in all the churches, and in all walks of life, are in increasing numbers identifying themselves with the movement, and cordially giving it their support. The attitude of the Members of the Legislative Assembly, as indicated in its recent session, would seem to be more favourable than two or three years ago towards the protection of the weekly rest day. The request of the barbers to have the Sunday barber shop prohibited by law, met with no opposition in the House. Though there were several applications by electric railways for special permission to operate on Sunday, every such was refused by almost a unanimous vote, whereas two or three years ago some similar applications were very favourably entertained. Even in Montreal the sentiment has shown itself surprisingly strong in favour of resisting further encroachments on the Sabbath. The attempt to legalize athletic sports in that metropolis failed. The theatres that were open on Sunday entertaining crowds twice on the day have been closed by action of the police authorities. Barber shops also in that city have been closed by municipal enactment at the request of the barbers.

A notable feature in this campaign in Montreal is the prominent stand taken by the Roman Catholic Church represented by Archbishop Bruchesi. He wrote in the columns of the "Montreal Herald," among other things, "I cannot favour any public amusement that would lead to the desecration of the Lord's Day and I see great danger of this in the authorization of athletic games in our great cities. They are, I am convinced, the cause of many people staying away from church and in addition are a fruitful cause of intemperance, because, where held, the public houses are open for the sale of drink in violation of the liquor laws. Just as I am opposed to the opening of museums and theatres on Sundays, so am I opposed to these games on the Lord's Day, for it is the Lord's Day. Moreover, once you begin to authorize games, it will lead to all kinds of Sabbath breaking and Sabbath labour and you will have the Sunday here just as it is spent in many cities in Europe. I am certainly strongly opposed to such a movement."

Another notable feature of this movement is the general co-operation of organized workingmen with the Lord's Day Alliance in seeking to preserve intact the Weekly Rest Day. The Trades and Labour Councils of Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton have appointed committees specially authorized to co-operate with the executive committees of the Alliances. The Labour Men of British Columbia, who are said to be above the average in intelligence, have taken a vigorous hold of the same movement and it is expected that the mines and other forms of labour in that Province will ere long be asked to close on Sunday. Mr. Ralph Smith, M.P., President of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, is an officer of the Lord's Day Alliance, of that Province, and a strong advocate of the protection of the Sabbath. With this combination of the religious and labour forces of the country, it is not too much to anticipate ultimate success as far as the protection of the integrity of the Workingman's Rest Day is concerned, at least.

The question as to whether the various provinces have constitutional authority to deal with Sabbath legislation is now before the Courts. The Supreme Court of Canada having recently dismissed an appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, sustaining the constitutionality of the Lord's Day Act of that Province, and the Court of Appeal of Ontario is expected presently to give its judgment upon the same question.

So long as the Christian people do not seek to use legislative power towards forcing people to observe the Sabbath in a religious sense, but only to secure to all the opportunity so to do, there is little doubt that the public opinion of Canada will sustain them in carefully protecting the Canadian Sunday against needless encroachments of greed of money or of passion for pleasure and sport.—CONTRIBUTOR.

G. T. R. PROGRESSIVENESS.

Working in Conjunction With Ontario Government, Re-stocking Ontario Lakes.

Owing to the thousands of tourists and anglers who each year make the districts in Northern Ontario their summer resort, the fish in several of the lakes have suffered to some extent; and to obviate any depletion or extermination the Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway, has formulated a scheme for re-stocking many of the waters in the highlands of Ontario, not by depositing eggs, fry, or fingerlings, but by transplanting the parent fish early in the spring, in time to take advantage of the spawning season. With this end in view, the Grand Trunk Railway system had built in its shops at Point St. Charles a special car for the transportation of these fish from the place of their capture to the different lakes which are being stocked.

Heretofore the stocking of lakes has been hampered for the want of the proper means for the transportation of the fish. Young fish, fry, and fingerlings were carried by messengers in baggage cars on regular passenger trains. This method was inadequate, and the Grand Trunk recognized the fact that a fish car would have to be put into service to transport fish in large numbers. A car was therefore constructed specially adapted for the distribution of live fish, the requirements of such a car being compartments for carrying fish in which an even temperature could be maintained, proper circulation of water and air in the tanks containing the fish and sleeping and living accommodation for the attendants. The interior of the car is arranged with a series of galvanized iron tanks to hold from 1,000 to 1,500 fish. At one end of the car is an upper and lower berth, like those in a pulman car, to accommodate two men. The ice for keeping the water at a certain temperature is carried in two compartments built for this purpose and holding about one ton each. Arrangements have been made for replenishing the water in the tanks, en route, which will be done by attaching a hose, provided with a coupling, to any of the hydrants at stations on the Grand Trunk.

The Ontario Government has already contracted for 10,000 parent bass. The first shipment has been planted in the water known as the "Lake of Bays," situated in Northern Ontario, about 145 miles from Toronto. The fish now being transplanted are what are known as the small mouthed black bass, one of the gamiest species of the finny kingdom, and are being caught at St. Williams on Lake Erie. Those which have been captured and transplanted are considered by experts as an exceptionally fine lot of fish, not one out of all that were loaded on the first shipment being less than a foot in length and many weighing three to four pounds. Another car load has been forwarded to the Muskoka Lakes, and the fish have been deposited in Lake Rosseau. This work will be continued until the lakes in the northern districts are thoroughly stocked.

The other lakes which will be restocked are Lakes Joseph, Muskoka, Couchiching, Simcoe, and the Kawartha Lakes. Though the fishing in all these waters has been good in the past, the lover of the rod and the amateur angler will be assured now of unlimited sport in any of these districts.

We know not what may be on the morrow.—James iv, 14.

What sad event? We cannot say;
We may not lift the veil,
We cannot close the coming page
Of life's close-lettered tale;
We know not if the sun will shine,
Or with it bitter blast,
Our hopes, like fruit by autumn wind
Shall to the ground be cast.

What next the duty to our hand?
That, too, we may not know,
We have our plans, but one may choose
Those plans to overthrow.
Our rest remains within this fact
That children of the King
Need never doubt that "all is well,"
Whate'er the future bring.

What next the step that we shall take
On some perplexing road?
We cannot tell, but we can turn
For answer to our God—
And when at length our feet shall stand
On time's lowshelving shore,
We know the step we next shall take
Means Home for every more.

PARK STREET MISSION.

The Annual Meeting of the Circle was Held on Tuesday Night.

The annual meeting of the Park Street Baptist Mission Circle was held Tuesday evening. Although the weather was not the most favourable the attendance was good. After the opening exercises and the reading of the annual report, Miss Lena Mowry sang very sweetly "Is there room for Mary there."

Miss Kitchon, of Belleville, was present and gave a very interesting and practical address on "Witnessing." Her remarks were based upon our Saviours last words to his deciples, in Acts, I. Chapter, 8th verse. The speaker told from her own experience many touching incidents of faithful witnessing by those in great sorrow. Speaking of foreign missions in China, with a population of four hundred and four millions, she asked "What can we do?" There are three ways Christians can witness—"Go, give, pray." after speaking of Africa's and India's needs, the speaker read a letter written by Mrs. A. H. Water, who was massacred during the recent outbreak in China. The letter was most pathetic.

Rev. J. H. Hanna, B.A., who has assumed the pastorate of the church, made a short and earnest address, after which Rev. O. C. Elliott, who is leaving for Belleville, addressed the meeting, speaking of the need of martyrs or living sacrifices for Christ. If Christians were in earnest it would be possible to give the present generation the Gospel.

After closing exercises, refreshments were served and a pleasant social time enjoyed. The offering taken at the door amounted to $6.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY.

Will be Held in the Y.M.C.A., To-morrow Commencing at 2.30 O'clock.

The Sunday School Rally will be held to-morrow at 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. in the Y.M.C.A. At 4.15 there will be a mass meeting of children, when Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto, will give a very interesting object lesson on "Ships Signals." Parents and teachers should not fail to be present and to interest the children so that they may take advantage of what has proved a delight and blessing to children.

In the evening addresses will be given by Mr. Yellowlees and the Rev. W. W. MacCuaig, of Port Hope.

All are invited and it is hoped that there will be a general interest among all Christian workers. A collection will be taken for the necessary expenses of the convention.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

The Golf Club Tea will be held to-morrow, weather permitting, instead of this afternoon.

The time for the first round of the Ladies' Tournament has been extended from June 5th to Saturday June 8th, on account of the bad weather. The time limit for the first draw of the Stratton Trophy will also doubtless be extended another week.

LACROSSE.

On account of the inclement state of the weather the lacrosse match scheduled to be played between the Vaticans and the Y.M.C.A. has been postponed. The game will probably take place on Saturday.

BASEBALL.

Eckhart, the crack south paw twirler of Toronto, will pitch for the Varsity nine against the local team Saturday afternoon, and will keep the locals guessing surely. He held the Port Hope team down to 2 hits on Victoria Day, and has won four other games this season. The local players are doing a lot of batting in practice, so as to connect with some of his twisters. McCabe and Kehoe are shooting a large assortment of benders across the plate these days, and will make the Toronto team use their think tanks to connect with the ball. The local team are doing some nice fielding and base running, and a fast game is promised.

The baseball boys are very anxious to see the end of the present wet spell so that the game on Saturday between Varsity and the locals will not be interfered with. Let there be a good turn out of citizens to the P. A.A.A. grounds on Saturday afternoon to cheer the boys on to victory.

CARRIED OVER A DAM.

Seven Persons Drowned in the Schuylkill River.

SIX GIRLS AND ONE BOY DEAD.

Another Boy Rescued After an Exciting Time—They Belonged to the Elm Social Club of Philadelphia, and Were Out on a Picnic —How the Tragedy Occurred.

Philadelphia, May 31.—A rowboat containing a merry party of eight young people was swept over Flat Rock dam in the Schoylkill River yesterday afternoon and seven of them — six girls gnd one boy—wore drowned. The victims, all of whom were Philadelphians, were: Mamie Connora, aged 17 years; Sallie Cantrell, aged 17 years; Massie Kennedy, aged 18 years; Maud Rutter, aged 19 years; Mamie Sullivan, aged 21 years; Florence Bond, aged 21 years; Bertram Osmond, aged 19 years.

The party was composed of members of the Elm Social Club, one of the numerous associations in this city organized for the promotion of picnics and other social functions. The aboved named persons, with a large number of others, organized a picnic for yesterday. Following their usual custom, the party split up after dinner for a row on the river, and those above mentioned decided to go in one boat.

All the girls were huddled in the stern, one of the boys was rowing and the other was sitting on the bow of the boat. After getting in the middle of the river, and finding the current too swift for comfort, the boat was rowed in toward shore. During this time it was being carried slowly down the stream. The boy doing the rowing decided to go through the locks. As he approached the dam he was hailed by the lockkeeper, not to approach any closer. The warning was not heeded, and the young oarsman kept on rowing until he found that the lock was closed. He attempted to turn the boat, which was then about 50 feet from the dam and 25 feet from the shore, but he turned the wrong way. A moment later, and the boat was in the swiftly-moving current. Realizing then for the first time that they were in danger, the girls began screaming, and the oarsman lost control of the boat. Swiftly it was carried toward the brink of the falling waters, and, just as it reached the breast of the dam, over which 30 inches of water was passing, the entire party stood up, and the boat went over stern first.

The drop to the rocks below was approximately 12 feet. The boat struck the water bottom up, and, as it disappeared, the whole party was under it. Nothing more was seen by the few persons who saw the accident for almost a minute, when the boat reappeared, with one boy clinging to its keel. Then the second man was seen to come up to the surface and make a frantic effort to reach the shore by swimming. The six girls never rose to the surface.

The boy who was swimming, and who proved to be Osmond, became exhausted and sank before he could be rescued.

Moore, the other boy, who was clinging to the boat, floated fully half a mile down the river, and his rescuer had an exciting time before they landed in another boat. He they landed him in another boat. He was greatly exhausted, and was slightly injured by the falling of the boat. Up to a late hour last night, none of the bodies of the victims had been recovered.

The King at the Tiller.

New York, May 31.—The Herald prints a story to the effect that a private cablegram received in the city yesterday reported upon reliable information that King Edward was steering the Shamrock II. when she was struck by the squall that made her a partial wreck. If this is so, and the King was at the tiller of the challenger, rather than standing in the companionway, as has been announced, it shows that he was in greater peril than has been previously understood by the reports received on this side of the ocean.

Drowned Her Babies.

York, Eng., May 31.—A shocking crime occurred near here yesterday. Mrs. Simson, the wife of a country miller, placed her three children in a washtub full of water and held them under until they were drowned. Mrs. Simson has been arrested.

A COMBINE IN SALT.

Canadian Salt Co. Formed With a Capital of $8,000,000.

LORD STRATHCONA PRESIDENT.

Four Other Wealthy Canadians Are on the Board of Directors—The Amalgamation Was Brought About by the Windsor Salt Co. Selling Out to the Canadian Salt Co.—Montreal Headquarters.

Buffalo, May 31.—A deal of great importance to the Dominion of Canada was consummated yesterday, when Frank S. McGraw of this city consolidated all the salt interests in the British provinces in a Canadian salt trust capitalized at $8,000,000. Sir Donald Smith (Lord Strathcona) president of the Bank of Montreal, has been elected president of the trust.

The Board of Directors is composed of Sir William Van Horne, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Canadian Pacific Railway; T. G. Shaughnessy, president of the same road; Arthur D. Bissell, vice-president of the People's Bank of this city; Frank S. McGraw, the local capitalists; George R. R. Cockburn, president of the Bank of Ontario, and Thomas Tait, manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The agreement between the two companies was effected in this city a few days ago. By its terms the Windsor Salt Company, in which the Buffalo men are interested, together with Sir William C. Van Horne and President Shaughnessy of the Canadian Pacific Railway, sells its entire properties in Canada to the Canadian Salt Company for $800,000 in cash, and in addition those gentlemen become stockholders in the new company.

It is generally believed that the Windsor Salt Company's representatives have large holdings in the new company, though no positive assertion to this effect could be secured. The directors of the company, however, are found on the list of directors of the new trust.

The capital stock of the Canadian Salt Company has been increased to $8,000,000, a large part of it being held in this city. The headquarters of the new trust will be at Montreal. The Windsor headquarters will be abandoned, but it has not been entirely decided whether or not the plant in the Ontario city will be operated.

KRITZINGER MASSING TROOPS.

Town of Bailey Is Menaced by Boers, and Guards Are on Full Duty.

Queenstown, Cape Colony, May 30.—The Boers are massing under Commandant Kritzinger to the northward of Bailey. There is much local apprehension, and the town guard remains all night in the trenches. Passenger traffic to the north is suspended, and freight is proceeding under an armed escort. The banks closed at noon.

Trooper McArthur Returns Home.

London, Ont., May 31.—Trooper McArthur of the Strathcona Horse, son of Mr. James McArthur of Lobo Township, arrived in this city from South Africa Wednesday afternoon. The trooper had his leg broken when taking part in a charge upon the enemy, and was laid up in the hospital at Johannesburg for several months, and his parents had almost begun to believe that he was dead.

The Pay of Canadians Stopped.

Ottawa, May 31.—Payment by the Imperial authorities of the special war gratuity to Canadians who served in South Africa stopped some months ago, and has not since been resumed. At that time only about 400 had received the gratuity, out of about 3,000 who were entitled to it. A couple of cablegrams were sent to ascertain the cause of the delay, but without results. It is thought the explanation of the delay is that the War Office officials got mixed up in the multiplicity of accounts, and have been trying to restore order out of chaos. Not a few Canadians are still entitled to arrears of Imperial pay. There are men who took sick and were sent to hospital. Their Imperial pay stopped when this occurred, and many of them have not received a cent of money since.

They Honored Old Glory.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 31.—As the Duke of Cornwall and York, in the royal barge, crossed the harbor yesterday to inspect the naval depot at Garden Island, all the British warships were flying the United States flag, out of compliment to the United States transport Glacier, which was moored in the stream.

Accident at a Barn Raising.

Milford, Ont., May 31.—Three men were badly hurt yesterday afternoon at a barn raising on Lewis Minaker's place, South Bay. A bent fell and crushed Andrew A. Clark's shoulder, smashed Nathaniel Cole's leg badly, and wounded D. Jarvis in the head.

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1901.

AN AUSTRALIAN VISITOR.

Chief Mechanical Engineer of Government Railways There in Toronto.

Toronto, May 31.—Mr. Thomas Roberts of Adelaide, chief mechanical engineer of the South Australia Government railways, having control of the locomotive engines, rolling stock and machinery, is stopping at the Queen's. He has been in Canada eight days, but has been six months away from home, touring Europe, where he inspected the leading railways, and is on a similar errand to Canada and the United States. He has been in Montreal and Ottawa inspecting the electric railway systems, and since he has been in Toronto he has been in conference with E. H. Keating, manager of the Street Railway, gathering information about the system. In Adelaide there are 70 miles of horse tramways and the public have been clamoring for their conversion into electric railways to be taken over and operated by the Government. With this contingency in view, Mr. Roberts was instructed by the Cabinet of South Australia to look into the best systems of Europe and America, paying special attention to the most modern electric railways. From here he goes to Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago, and will join the C.P.R. at Winnipeg to proceed to Vancouver, thence to Australia.

In an interview last night Mr. Roberts said he regarded government ownership of railways in Australia as a great success, because it was the means of opening up and developing new country which would not be developed if it depended on private enterprise to do it. In several of the Australian colonies, notably New South Wales and South Australia, the railways pay interest on the bonded capital and cost of maintenance, and frequently have handed over to the treasurers of those colonies a handsome surplus at the end of their financial year.

Old Soldier's Experience.

M. M. Austin, a civil war veteran, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "My wife was sick a long time in spite of good doctor's treatment, but was wholly cured by Dr King's New Life Pills, which worked wonders for her health. They always do. Try them. Only 25 cents at Jas. Lynch's drug store

Sugar Beets May Be Injured.

Guelph, May 31.—Dr. Shuttleworth of the O. A. C. fears that the sugar-beet crop has been affected by the recent rains. Many other crops are similarily affected. Down in the corn country the green blades are turning yellow. Warm weather, without much wind, will be all right, but a cold dry wind will increase the damage.

Sleeping For Eight Days.

Montreal, May 31.—Miss Eliza Duquette of Lacolle, Que., has been asleep at the Hotel Dieu for the last eight days, and her case is a puzzle to the medical men of the institution. There are as yet no signs of her awakening.

Sprains There is many a dollar lost in wages by persons having a sprain, besides the pain they suffer. What a pity these people don't go and get a bottle of Griffiths' Menthol Liniment when the accident happens. It takes out all the pain, swelling, and soreness in just a few minutes, and there won't be any more suffering. Try

FREE MONTREAL PORT

Hon. Mr. Tarte Attends a Meeting of Harbor Commissioners

G. T. R. WILL YET COME BACK.

Montreal Will Be the Cheapest Port—The Minister Spoke About the Necessity of Making It a Free Port—The Real National Policy Pointed Out—Spending the Million.

Montreal, May 31.—Before starting on their trip to Duluth and other western centres of the grain trade, the Harbor Commissioners met representatives of the Board of Trade, Corn Exchange, Chambre de Commerce and shipping interests to obtain their views about the elevators to be built out of the special loan of $1,000,000 made by the Government. The business men were unanimously of opinion that two elevators should be erected in the centre of the harbor between the three piers after a plan submitted by Mr. J. A. Jamieson, the well-known elevator builder; that the elevators should be operated under the control of the commissioners, and that no portion of the harbor should be alienated from the absolute control of the commission. Two elevators were necessary, because one could not supply all the steamers likely to require grain every day, and they could be worked in conjunction with each other. They would be absolutely fireproof, and the cost, according to Mr. Jamieson, would not exceed $1,000,000. Senator Mackay, the Chairman of the board, in thanking the business men for their advice, said no plans had been considered seriously yet, it being useless to do so until the money had been voted. The delay would not prove disadvantageous, for the city would now get better elevators than if there had been no delay. The Chairman concluded by expressing a hope that it would not be long before the Government assumed the harbor debt.

Mr. Tarte's Views.

Hon. J. Israel Tarte made an interesting address upon the subject, but did not commit himself to any plan, though he seemed to be opposed to the idea of two elevators at present. He hoped not many years would elapse before there were dozens. When the shortest route was made the best, trade would come this way, and then elevators would spring up as in Buffalo. Mr. Tarte spoke of the works under way at Port Colborne and the Welland Canal entrance, at Parry Sound and on French River. He thought three million dollars would accomplish the improvement of the latter, between Georgian Bay and North Bay. When the Port Colborne and Welland works were completed it would be asked where the boats were, there not being Canadian vessels enough to handle the trade which was expected. It was for Canadians, therefore, to provide not only elevators, and terminal facilities, but fleets of boats. The commissioners had had an offer from Capt. Wolvin, and while he did not know whether it would materialize he agreed that no part of the harbor must be alienated for any length of time. He would like to ask the advice of the business men when the time came as to the policy of allowing American vessels to bring down grain while touching at intermediate American ports. He was of the opinion that the Grand Trunk Railway would be compelled to come back to Montreal, for the reason that the port would be the cheapest. Mr. Tarte spoke about the necessity for this being made a free port, about the dredging and lighting of the channel, and the improvement in the pilotage system. For himself he declared that the real national policy upon which all men should unite was to free the canals and ports so as to divert as much trade as possible to the St. Lawrence route. Speaking of the channel, Mr. Tarte stated that he would not allow the next session to pass without asking for money to build a dry-dock here, and Parliament would be quite willing to vote it. Referring to the site of the proposed elevators, Mr. Tarte said that the Great Northern Railway people had waited upon him in Ottawa yesterday to ask for the construction of an elevator in the eastern part of the harbor. Having built to Quebec, the company intended to build a line from Joliette to Montreal, in order to bring here a large portion of the grain which the Booth system carries down from Parry Sound. Therefore the business men should not insist on the position of the two elevators.

The Minister's Work Appreciated.

Mr. Crathern, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Tarte, described him as a loyal Minister of the Crown and a loyal citizen of Montreal. There was no doubt that during his occupancy of the Department of Public Works the interests of the city would be duly considered. Mr. Torrance declared that Mr. Tarte had done more for the port than any previous Minister. His speech had the right ring about it.

Two Boats in Trouble.

Buffalo, May 31.—The low water in Lake Erie caused two accidents yesterday. The lumber barge William Jones lies in the middle of Niagara River, with only her cabin showing above water, and another barge, the Moquebay, loaded with 1,080,000 feet of lumber, is hard ashore on the Canadian side, near the ferry landing. Their towing steamers lost control with these results.

THE BILLIARD TABLE

ORIGINALLY, IT WAS A SOMEWHAT QUEER ARRANGEMENT.

It Was Square In Shape and Had Three Pockets, All on One Side—The Primitive Game Was Played With Two Balls, Both White.

There were days in the dark ages when even the best appointed of country houses had to do without its billiard table. In those melancholy times our nobility and gentry had to employ their all too numerous leisure hours in the domestic pastime of shovelboard—or shuffleboard—to give it its more correct designation. This was a table of varying length, the longer the better, generally about three feet or a trifle more in width, and the game consisted in "shuffling" flat disks of metal along it, with the object of leaving them as near the farther edge as possible. If the luck or skill of the performer left his disk overhanging the edge, he scored three, if between the edge and a line three or four inches of it two, and he marked one for a shuffle that left him between that line and one considerably closer to him.

The game does not sound wildly exciting, but it was popular enough, and great care was expended in the construction of the tables. "It is remarkable," says one Dr. Plott, quoted in Strutt, "that in the hall at Chartley the shuffleboard table, though ten yards one foot and an inch long, is made up of about 260 pieces, which are generally about 18 inches long, some few only excepted, that are scarce a foot, which, being laid on longer boards for support underneath, are so accurately joined and glued together that no shuffleboard whatever is freer from rubs or casting."

The original billiard table, according to Strutt, was square and had only three pockets, all on one side. "About the middle of the table was placed a small arch of iron and in a right line at a little distance from it an upright cone called the king." At certain times, he goes on to explain (with a delightful vagueness), it was necessary for the ball to be driven through the one and round the other without knocking either of them down. Of the method of scoring he is silent. Mississippi (which he prefers to spell with one "p") appears from his description to have been a kind of bridge bagatelle, while the rocks of Scilly was the picturesque name given to that form of bagatelle where the board is studded with pins to guard the several holes. But these have little to do with the real game. It is interesting to notice that in the reign of George II billiards were under the ban of the law, £10 being the statutable fine for any public housekeeper convicted of keeping a table on his premises.

In "The Game of Billiards, Scientifically Explained and Practically Set Forth in a Series of Novel and Extraordinary Stories, Etc."—for those were the days of lengthy title pages—there is a certain amount of information to be gleaned as to the early game. This work was published in 1839 and written by Edward Kentfield of Brighton, a player of no small importance in the old days. On the strength of Shakespeare's well known line in "Antony and Cleopatra" this ingenious writer assigns to the game an antiquity at least as old as the battle of Actium (31 B. C.), "unless," he remarks with a charming simplicity, "we are to accuse Shakespeare of a gross anachronism."

In 1580, however, occurs the first specific mention of a table existing in Europe. France claims the credit. The early tables, like those for shovelboard, had beds of wood, oak for choice. Marble was occasionally used in the halls of the great. Slate beds made their appearance for the first time in 1827. So, too, the original pockets were wooden boxes, and the cues were innocent of leather tips, so that side or draw were out of the question. The cushions were originally stuffed with flock, subsequently made of list or felt. The rubber cushion arrived at the same epoch as the slate bed.

"About 50 years ago," writes Kentfield, which would bring us to the date of the French revolution, "it was discovered that if a cue were cut obliquely at the point or rounded a little on one side, so as to present a broader surface to the ball, it might be struck below the middle, and this strange instrument was then adopted for occasional strokes and obtained the name of 'Jeffery,' presumably from its inventor. It was not until some 20 years later that leathern tips began to come into fashion, and even then it took some considerable time to discover the virtues of chalk."

The modern game developed as slowly as the apparatus it required. Originally there were only two white balls, and the sole object of the player was to pocket his opponent while keeping himself out. It was in fact pool reduced to the simplest possible form. Twelve up was the customary game. On the introduction of the red ball it was felt that the game would go too fast, so the "winning" game was introduced, in which the players struck alternately, irrespective of success. Afterward came the "winning and following game," in which the player followed his stroke after a winning hazard. But in both of these games the pocketing of his own ball counted against the player, which, by the way, is the origin of the term "losing hazard."

The ordinary game, cannons and pockets, appears to have developed itself soon after the introduction of the red ball. It was originally called "carombole," and the red ball was known (probably through a corruption of this word) as the "carom ball." In America a cannon is still called a carom. Etymologists differ as to whether our expression is a still further corruption. Cannons and losing hazards once established in popular favor, the game soon assumed a sufficiently modern complexion. The frontispiece in Kentfield's folio volume, except for the cut of the players' clothes, might almost represent a game in progress today.

More Cautious Now.

"Yes," said the popular actor, "I had to refuse the part; it was beyond my powers."

"That's strange," replied his friend. "There was a time when you would undertake any part."

"Ah, yes! That was when I was an amateur, and amateurs, you know, will attempt anything."—Exchange.

Descriptive.

"This story of yours," said the editor, "I would call 'A Poor Relation.'"

"But," said the author, "there is no such character in it."

"No; but that's the character of the story itself."

Flattery From the Mirror.

Does your mirror do you justice? You may think not. Or perhaps you would like it to flatter you just a little. If so, you can arrange it so the glass will reflect in a more complimentary manner than usual. If you do, you only have to know the milliner's oldest secret, and the thing is done.

Did you ever notice the softest drapery of pure white hung about a mirror? That is the trick. After your mirror of faultless glass is thoroughly polished frame it in pure white gauze, with the material gathered in the center at the top and falling wavelike on either side. Then notice the effect. The true tints of the complexion will be there a little emphasized. The expression of the countenance, the light of the eye, the color of the hair, will be accurately reflected, all softened and made more harmonious than your mirror showed them before the gauze was used. You may believe that that subtle bit of white materially makes the glass tell nearer the truth than it did without it.

Thoughts on Marriage.

A little girl in Ireland was asked what was the sacrament of matrimony. She said, "It's a state of torment into which souls enter to prepare them for another and a better world." "That," said the curate, "is purgatory. Put her down to the bottom of the class." "Leave her alone," said the parish priest. "For anything you or I know to the contrary, she may be perfectly right."

"Courting," said an Irishman, "is like dying. Sure, a man must do it for himself."—E. J. Hardy's "Concerning Marriage."

Varicose Veins.

An exchange gives the following cure for varicose veins, contributed by a person who was cured by it in less than three weeks: Peel a potato; grate it fine; place it on a white cloth long enough to well cover the ulcer. Warm it a little and apply in the morning. Renew at noon; also at night before retiring. Let it remain all night. Put on threo new poultices next day just the same and continue to do so until the ulcer is entirely healed. Wash the ulcer every time the poultice is renewed.

Juvenile Discouragement.

Mamma—Well, a widow is supposed to be skillful in catching a husband.

Elsie—Gracious! I wonder if I'll have to be a widow before I can get married.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock was not as large as was expected, but seemingly plenty to supply the demand. There were 54 car loads, composed of 1047 cattle, 600 hogs, 127 sheep and lambs and 56 calves.

Trade was good, but not as brisk as it has been for several markets, but for the best shipping and butchers' cattle prices were as firm as ever, and the quotations given on Tuesday were well maintained.

BRITISH SUSTAIN HEAVY LOSSES.

Col. Dickson Attacked by Delarey Yesterday.

CASUALTIES WERE SEVERE.

Thirty-Five Boers Killed and 174 British Killed and Wounded at Vlakfontein.

(Special to the Examiner.)

London, May 31.—Lord Kitchener reports to the War Office as follows: Col. Dickson's force, at Vlakfontein, was attacked yesterday by a force of Boers, under Commandant Delarey. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving thirty-five dead on the ground. I regret to say that our casualties were also severe. The killed and wounded numbered 174, among whom were Captain Armstrong and Lieutenants Noke, Campion and MacDougall, killed. Vlakfontein is in the extreme south of the Transvaal, about sixty miles south-east of Johannesburg.

HORSES GET MIXED UP.

Mr. D. J. Lundy's Driver Tried to Jump in Mr. Jas. Connal's Buggy.

Mr. D. J. Lundy's horse was badly cut up yesterday in a mix-up, which occurred on the George street bridge crossing the creek at Spaulding's Bay. The animal was being driven closely behind Mr. James Connal's buggy at the funeral, and when the latter's horse stopped and backed up suddenly owing to a stoppage of the rigs in front, Mr. Lundy's mare reared up, and threw both front feet through the cover of Mr. Connal's buggy, and became entangled in the rear axle. Mr. Connal's horse took fright, and kept on backing, with the result that Mr. Lundy's mare was thrown off her feet, and horses and rigs got jammed in a general mix-up.

Fortunately no serious damage was done before the horses were caught by the heads and disentangled.

The morning train for Toronto leaves at 8.20 instead of 8.10 a.m., making close connection at Toronto for Buffalo. Lakefield trains will leave at 8.25 a.m., and 12.15 p.m.

LAID AT REST.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. John Cameron Largely Attended.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John A. Cameron took place yesterday from the family residence, Stewart street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. Dr. Torrance, assisted by Rev. Mr. Yule. Among the many beautiful floral tributes were offerings from the Thistle Curling Club, Messrs. Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., and from many personal friends.

The pall bearers were Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, Robt. Fair, W. H. Meldrum, James Edgcumbe, Robert Innis and Alex. Gibson.

The remains were conveyed to the Little Lake Cemetery, followed by a large number of sorrowing friends.

BAND HEARD FROM.

They do not Want to Play in Central Park.

The band of the 57th Regiment has at last been heard from regarding the advisability of playing in Central Park this season. Whilst speaking individually the members of the band have never failed to express their disapproval of being forced to play in Central Park, still, as an organization, no definite action has until the present been taken. However, at the last meeting of the band it was decided to send a deputation to the Council on Monday night to urge upon that body to re-consider the matter. It is therefore likely that the subject will receive considerable discussion and will be finally disposed of.

TICKET CONTEST

At the Lakefield Pic-nic was Won by Miss McFarlane of Young's Point.

At a recent picnic in Lakefield, May 24th, the ticket contest between Miss Vernie McFarlane, of Young's Point, and Miss Josie Kenneally, of Keene, resulted in a victory for Miss McFarlane, though closely pressed by Miss Kenneally. Both young ladies worked hard and deserve great praise for their substantial aid to the church funds. Miss McFarlane is now the proud possessor of a very handsome gold watch. The five dollar gold piece was won by Clarence Hynes, of Chandos. The silver cake fork, presented by Miss Gertrude Gordon, of Peterborough, was won by Mr. P. Doherty, of Hastings. The clock, the gift of Misses Buckley, of Lakefield, was won by Mrs. F. T. Tate, of Lakefield. The umbrella, presented by Miss Rudkins, now belongs to Mr. Edmund Foley, of Keene, the winning ticket being sold by Miss Lottie Kearney. The cake, presented by Miss Harrigan, was won by Mr. T. Kennedy, of Lakefield.

Father Fitzpatrick desires to thank publicly all those who so kindly assisted in making the picnic such a success. Had the day been favourable the picnic at Lakefield this year would have been a record breaker, as nothing had been left undone and no expense saved that amusement might be provided for all.

EXCURSION TO TOWN.

The Canadian Order of Foresters of Toronto Here on June 20th.

Three representatives of the various Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters of Toronto, visited Peterborough yesterday evening for the purpose of seeing what arrangements could be made for their annual excursion, which it is proposed to run to Peterborough on June 20th.

Mr. R. A. W. Hay, secretary of the Peterborough Baseball Club, was in consultation with them regarding a game of baseball for the above date between the Park Nine of Toronto, and the locals. The Park Nine are a swift aggregation.

Mayor Denne assured them that they could have the use of the parks and in the event of rain the Market Hall will be placed at their disposal. A large excursion will likely come down.

WILL MR. MACMILLAN GO?

A Wealthy Church in Halifax has Called the Pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Lindsay.

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder has the following to say concerning Rev. J. W. MacMillan, who is well known to the people of this district:

"A few Sundays ago three strangers from Halifax attended divine service at St. Andrew's. They made that more than 1000 mile journey to go to church there. In the morning the pastor, Rev. J. W. Macmillan preached. He knew they were in the congregation and that they had come all that way to hear how he could preach and that upon the way he preached depended whether he should get a call to a church in the Nova Scotia capital at $2,500 a year or not. Yet he preached in the same simple, rugged way that he usually does. In the evening another minister preached. Next day the visitors went away and in last week's issue our readers read the comments of one of them on the town and how the bullfrogs announced the town limits to strangers. These gentlemen went back to Canaan and reported to their people at Fort Massey Church, Halifax. On Victoria Day the presbytery of Halifax met and a very few days afterwards it was given out that Rev. Mr. Macmillan had received a call to Halifax.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASS'N.

Plan For Extending the Area of It's Usefulness.

A REVIEW OF THE WORK.

The Boarding Home to be Retained—Additional Quarters for Reading Room, Parlour, Gymnasium and Class Rooms—The Liberal Offer of Hon. Senator Cox.

This is an age of organized activity; individual effort and independent action do not meet the requirements which our complex civilization and changed social conditions demand. Associations and organizations to answer the condition which the interests concerned create are the rule. The function which the Young Men's Christian Association performs in the social and moral economy is so apparently beneficent and so indispensable that it is impossible to imagine a town of the importance and size of Peterborough without a branch of it. The Young Woman's Christian Association, though of more recent organization, is equally indicated and equally indispensable. This has been shown by the work the Peterborough branch has done since its establishment here, about ten years ago, though the lack of funds has prevented the demonstration of the full measure of its usefulness. It is not surprising, therefore, that an organized and concerted effort in on foot in Peterborough to place the Young Women's Christian Association upon a standing which will, approximately at least, realize the full extent of its usefulness, or place it in a position to give grounds for reasonable hope of a realization of this ambition.

The present boarding home on Brock street is admirably adapted for the purposes of the Association so far as it goes, but it falls considerably short of what is desirable.

It does not, owing to restricted room, afford general education, social moral and physical advantages, such as are provided in a properly and adequately equipped Association building. There are required a reading room, gymnasium and hall or parlour for social or musical entertainments and classrooms for the imparting of instruction in various simple branches of knowledge.

Additional Premises Offered.

Through the timely liberality of Hon. Senator Cox, the premises recently occupied as the temporary offices of the Examiner, No. 411, George street, have been placed at the disposal of the authorities of the Y.W.C.A., free of rent. This condition holds good for one year, by the end of which time it is felt that more effective results from the work of the Association may enlist the sympathy and practical co-operation of those interested to a degree which will insure its being placed on a basis more financially independent of individual generosity.

This building will be a very desirable annex to the boarding home on Brock street, which will continue to present or rather, it is to be hoped, more advantageously, in connection with the new George street premises. These will afford on the ground floor a large reading room in front, with the rear half devoted to a well-equipped gymnasium. Upon the second story is space for a parlour for social intercourse or for more ambitious entertainments of a musical and literary character. Space will also be found here for classrooms for instruction in choral singing, plain sewing, and the elements of ordinary English instruction, and possibly cookery.

It is the intention of the management to employ a permanent secretary efficiently trained and experienced to give a more permanent and useful character to the work of the Association. This is, of course, largely contingent upon the liberality of the public providing the necessary funds. Funds will be required for this purpose and also for furnishing the rooms, which, by the terms of Hon. Mr. Cox's generous offer, will be put in good repair, and will need furnishing in a way to give them a homelike and attractive appearance.

Public Co-operation Invited.

Those actively interested in the promotion of the Association's success will at once begin a canvas of the town, and it is hoped that a liberal response will be made to their solicitations. The cause is one that appeals to all who have an interest in the welfare, moral safety, comfort and general well-being of our girls. It is perhaps not generally known that there are in this town a thousand women and girls who are dependent upon their own efforts for a livelihood. It needs few words to show how much those who are deprived of the comforts and shelter of a comfortable and virtuous home and the love and care of relatives and friends, stand in need of the friendship, comfort and protection which a properly equipped and conducted Young Women's Christian Association can give. The work of the Association, which is to provide a home or rather home influences, advantages and comforts to homeless young women, is one that appeals strongly to those who have daughters and sisters. Though now these are tenderly cared for and sheltered in virtuous and comfortable homes in "the chances and changes of this mortal life" there may be some who do not know how soon their homes may be desolated by death or broken up by some financial or other calamity, and it is possible that some of those now tenderly cared for, with every want provided that love can suggest or means procure, may be thrown orphaned and penniless upon the chill charity of the world and compelled to fight the battle of life alone and struggle unaided and unadvised with the temptations and pitfalls that beset every girl's life. It is the object of the Association to stand in the place of parents, friends and protectors to girls who need them, therefore the co-operation and substantial assistance of those who can aid is indicated and urgently solicited.

BASEBALL.

Port Hope Guide.—"Many matches are lost through poor base running. In the game here last Friday, dumb base running was conspicuous, and on several occasions blocked Port Hope's chance of winning, much to the disgust of the spectators. When a player lands on first base safely he should exercise every scheme to outwit the battery and beat the ball to second; watch a runner ahead of you (if there should be one) and don't run him off. When you make up your mind to "steal a base" and have a fair start, never look back, but run hard and always slide to the bag, take no chances as to your safety. Don't fall "asleep," keep working, and victory will more often crown your efforts. Peterborough was given a ten-inning here last season was given a ten-innings victory here last season through "dumb base running."

To-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, the Peterboroughs will run up against the fast Varsity team of Toronto, and a good game is expected. Last year the locals were champions of the Midland League, and during the season beat a couple of the senior League teams of Toronto. The Varsity team beat several of the same teams, and the game to-morrow should be hot from start to finish. The team to-morrow will be: McCabe and Kehoe, p.; Connors, 1b.; Scott, 2b.; Sheridan, 3b.; Parnell, ss.; Grady, lf.; Earls, cf.; Craig, rf.; Graham, c.

Should it rain there will be no game to-morrow.

Should the weather prove at all favourable to-morrow there will likely be a large attendance at the P.A.A.A. grounds to witness the match between the Varsity nine of Toronto, and the locals. The Varsity team are a strong combination and should make the locals hustle to win from them.

CRICKET.

Providing the weather is favourable the Colt's Cricket Club will go to Port Hope to-morrow to play the Trinity College School team.

TENNIS.

On account of the wet weather, the opening of the new grounds of the Peterborough Lawn Tennis Club, have been postponed until a week from to-morrow.

KAWARTHA LAKES.

The following paragraph, taken from the Buffalo Illustrated Express, shows how popular the lakes are becoming:

"Before deciding on a place at which to spend your vacation this summer, it is well to take into consideration the many advantages of the Kawartha Lakes region of Ontario, Canada. As a place for camping the region has no superior. For the most part the shores of the lakes are untouched by man. Nature is seen in all her grand disorder, there being nowhere that artificiality which, to the true lover of nature, often spoils a landscape. Pure air and water, each of which is an important factor in the choosing of the summering place, are assured in that region. Transportation on the lakes is also amply provided by a steamboat line plying between Lakefield and Coboconk, a distance of seventy miles. There is an additional attraction for the angler, as the fishing in the lakes is very good. The gamey muscalonge and black bass are there to reward the sportsman. Two weeks spent in the Kawartha Lakes region are better than a doctor's bill."

The number of tourists visiting our lakes this season promises to be a record breaker.

FACTS.

It is a well known fact that most patent medicine "ads" are fakes, but since introducing

DR. HALL'S RHEUMATIC CURE the proprietors have adhered strictly to the rule of publishing none but genuine testimonials.

MR. CHAS. SUDDS. "You are at perfect liberty to use my name it it will be of any benefit to rheumatic sufferers," writes Mr. Charles Sudds (farmer), Simcoe Island. Mr. Sudds says that he suffered untold agony with rheumatism for eight years. The disease affected him in the back, hip, and down the sciatic nerve. The pain and loss of sleep he experienced made life not worth the living He might as well have taken so much water as the various other rheumatic remedies he tried. The truthful aspect of the testimonials in favor of DR. HALL'S RHEUMATIC CURE induced him to try a bottle, and he felt the effects of the first dose. He used half a bottle, and has not had a pain or ache since, although he had been a sufferer for eight years.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

WEST DURHAM PROTEST.

Particulars of the Charges Upon Which Mr. Beith Claims the Seat—Names of Alleged Corrupt Agents.

Toronto, May 30.—The particulars of the charges against Mr. Charles J. Thornton in the petition claiming the seat for West Durham in the House of Commons for Mr. Robt. Beith, ex-M. P. were filed yesterday by Kerr, Davidson, Paterson & Grant. The grounds upon which the petitioner contends that the seat should be given to Mr. Beith are set forth in the usual phraseology, and embrace the offering or promising of money, merchandise or other valuable consideration and corruptly furnishing drink or other refreshments to induce certain electors to vote for the respondent, Mr. Thornton, who is not, however, charged personally with these offences. Those who are charged with corruption as agents are David F. Walsh of Orono, James Brown of the Township of Clarke, A. J. Staples, Wm. Gorrie, Angus Stalker, John Davey, Geo. Davidson, Wm. Gerris, all of Clarke Township, James McLaughlin, of Darlington Township; Dr. S. C. Hillier, of Bowmanville, Charles Heal of Bowmanville and A. F. Scobell of Bowmanville. One of the charges is that an alleged agent gave or promised to give a quantity of oats to Thomas Goodman of Darlington Township to induce him to vote for the respondent.

The concluding charge alleges that a wholly corrupt bargain was made by the agents of Mr. Thornton with his knowledge and consent in connection with the local election in 1898 by which in consideration of the independents supporting the Conservative candidate, W. H. Reid, for the Legislature, the Conservative party would give an organized support to a representative from the party of the independents at the Dominion election.

UTTERLY FALSE REPORTS.

Despatch Printed in London Standard Calls Forth a Query From Lord Strathcona and a Strong Denial.

Ottawa, May 30.—The following cablegram has been received by Sir Louis Davies from Lord Strathcona:

"Cable to Standard through Laffan's agency, New York, states in effect Legislature British Columbia authorizes seizure Provincial fisheries from Dominion officers. Latter already issued 1,200 licenses and have requisitioned two warships, which now under orders to disperse Provincial licenses, numbering 5,000. Feared cause serious complications between Canada and Provincial Government. Cable re alleged fishery disputes between Dominion and British Columbia."

In reply to the foregoing message the Minister of Marine cabled: "Whole story is a pure fabrication."

It is quite true that the British Columbia Legislature passed an Act assuming control of the fisheries, but the idea was to bring the matter promptly before the courts in order to have it tested in whom the jurisdiction lies.

Mr. William McInnes, M. P., who was in town yesterday, gave an emphatic denial to the story that there was any fear of a clash botween the two Governments, and said that the matter would be settled in a peaceable and quiet fashion through the courts.

Clergue to Have a Fleet.

Montreal, May 30.—Mr. F. W. Clergue of Sault Ste. Marie, has been in Quebec for a few days, and his visit has given rise to many rumors. L'Evenement says that he intends to establish a fleet of six ocean steamers, with Quebec as the terminus, and that they will be strong enough to use that port for ten months in the year. That is to say, they will start early in March and run until late in December. It is also reported that this enterprise will be undertaken by the new Franco-Canadian syndicate. The freight would come, to a large extent, from Mr. Clergue's enterprises at the Soo, instead of going, as now, through the United States.

Mr. Borden at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, May 30.—Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition in the Dominion House, last night addressed a well-attended meeting, held under the auspices of the Borden Club of Niagara Falls in the Town Hall. He was accompanied by Messrs. Lancaster, E. D. Smith and Wm. McCreary, but all of the speeches were curtailed, as a banquet was to be held after the meeting. Some very nice things were said about Mr. Borden, among others, the Chairman's statement that he is a man of superb Imperialistic ideas and a reputation as pure as a star. Mr. Borden followed closely the line of his speech in Massey Hall.

Death of Mrs. Oronhyatekha.

Toronto, May 30.—The many friends of Dr. Oronhyatekha, Supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, will learn with sincere and heartfelt regret of the death of his estimable wife, which took place on Tuesday night at the family residence, near Deseronto, after a painful illness of several months' duration. The deceased was a great-granddaughter of the celebrated Captain Joseph Brant ("Thayendinegea") whose name is indissolubly linked with Canadian history.

STAGE DRIVER STATES HIS CASE

Experience of Both His Wife and Himself.

Each Has Tested the Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills—Each Has Achieved the Same Result — Dodd's Kidney Pills have Cured Them Both.

Dromore, Ont., May 29, (Special).—Mr. George Sackett drives the stage between Dromore and Holstein. That he is known throughout the country side goes without saying. When he was in trouble a short while ago he had the sympathy therefore of more than the few immediate friends and neighbours a man in another walk would have.

Mr. Sackett thought at one time he would have to give up the stage. Sitting up on the driver's seat day in and day out, rain or shine, hot or cold, he contracted a serious disorder. His kidneys became weakened from the continual exposure. They gradually gave him more and more trouble. He felt that he couldn't keep up much longer.

It is nine miles from Dromore to Holstein. That means a round trip of eighteen miles. Two trips a day would make thirty-six miles of driving. Imagine this in a wet driving snow storm of March or February to a man in a delicate state of health.

Mr. Sackett did not give up driving the stage. Instead he sought the help of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Did he find help? Read his own letter, a letter which tells also that his wife proved the truth of the saying "Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend."

"Having used other largely advertised remedies and all the medicines recommended to me by my friends for kidney trouble and excruciating backache without the slightest relief I was in despair. In the nick of time I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and can never be too thankful for the advice which prompted me to do so. They simply took hold of my trouble and lifted it off me. I never heard of anything which gives such instant relief.

"My wife owes even more to Dodd's Kidney Pills than I do. Her case was worse than mine. Mrs. Sackett would not be alive today only for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Both my wife and myself can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for they do what they are claimed to do."

Death of Mr. Geo. Mesnerieff.

London, May 30.—Mr. George Mesnerieff, K. C., ex-M. P. for West Lambton, died at St. Joseph's Hospital here Tuesday night about 9.30 o'clock. The fact that deceased was ill was generally known, but that his life hung in the balance was not supposed. On Saturday morning in an effort to save his life, five doctors performed an operation. Nearly 30 years ago deceased left his native city of London for Petrolea. Again and again he was Mayor of Petrolea, then he became candidate of the Conservative party in West Lambton for the Dominion House, and was elected. The remains were taken to Petrolea, where interment will take place. The deceased was 59 years of age.

A Feast.

An old darky who lives in the thickets across the river came to Memphis one day to get his pension check cashed. After receiving his money, which amounted to $11, the old ex-slave sauntered down Front street to a produce house and bought three crates of cabbages. When they were delivered at the wharf late that afternoon, the old man was there and received them with a mouth watering in anticipation of the good time ahead.

"Whut yer gwine ter do wid dem cabbages?" inquired the negro drayman who delivered them.

"Eat 'em," was the quick response. "I'ze bin free 40 years, and dis is de first time I'ze had de money to buy 'nuff cabbage. I'ze gwine ter eat cabbage till I furgit de way ter my mouf."

Nor that poor knight who went where Venus smiled
And strove, by after suffering beguiled,
To sing the meaning of its mystery;
Nor can he tell whom love hath crowned or he
From very pain of love undone made wild.
Not the wan nun who at the white Christ's feet
Offers the world as one poor sacrifice
Nor the sad tide that follows where the sweet,
Swift moon allures it from the circling skies.
Nay, not from time or joy or suffering
Is knowledge brought that we may know this thing.

—Theodosia Pickering Garrison in "Brown Book of Boston."

IN LOVE'S CONFESSIONAL.

To you, whose every word and deed and thought
Rings true and honest as thrice tested gold,
The tale of my shortcomings I have brought;
Now you have given the pardon I besought
Forgive the little sins I have not told!

The foolish, petty faults I scarce can name;
So mean and paltry are they that I fear
You would not think them worth a word of blame;
You would but pity and—despise them, dear.
And since I love you so in woman's wise
Nor am from woman's curse of pride exempt
I would far rather read within your eyes
Hatred, my best beloved, than contempt!

Wherefore, to you, whose every deed and thought
Is crystal clear—you, whom I loved too well—
The tale of my shortcomings I have brought,
And you have given the pardon I besought;
Forgive the little sins I cannot tell!

—Aileen Heath in Smart Set.

A DRAMATIC FINISH.

...By M. Quad...

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

To belong to the Pace club was to be known as a sporty young man, even a reckless young man. We drank, gambled and wagered, and there were wine suppers to actresses and borrowing money of Shylocks. It was by long odds the fastest club in fast London, and that it did not have the entire approval of solicitous mothers and staid fathers goes without saying. Our smartness, however, should not be confounded with anything dishonorable. There were no card sharpers or debt shirkers among us. When a member could no longer go "the pace" financially as well as socially, he had the good taste to absent himself and drop out of sight until things bettered themselves.

Archibald Queen, a bachelor and a man of 40, had been a member for three years when I was elected. He was the leader of the fastest, and probably flung away twice as much money as any other individual. He was the eldest son of a "sir" and had been left a good bit of money, and the way he made ducks and drakes of it was a caution. About the time I came into the club he had run his race and was tangled up with the note shavers. Six months later he was known to be flat broke. The man had a keen sense of humor, though obstinate as a mule about taking advice, and it was doubtless his desperation that drove him into cheating at cards. The incident did not happen at our club, but at another, though we were speedily in possession of the proofs. It meant his doom. Even if he had not been down to his last dollar he would have been tabooed everywhere. As it was, with no hope for the financial future, he had only to sit down and plan how he should disappear from the sight of men.

Queen had been a hot favorite in the club, and many of us hoped he might bring forward a good defense, but as a matter of fact he made none. There was no other way than compulsion, and while some of the voters thought he might drift out to the colonies and make a new start others were confident that a man of his temperament would not try to outlive the disgrace. About a week after Queen had been officially notified of his expulsion he met a member of the club on the street and through him extended an invitation to five or six others of us to partake of a little farewell dinner with him, as he was on the eve of going away. It seemed a queer move on his part, and you may think it queer in our accepting the invitation, but we who had been most chummy with him could find excuses for him. It was decided to drop in on him as individuals and in no way binding the club, and when the evening came around five of us were on hand. Queen had spacious apartments in a fashionable thoroughfare, and he welcomed us with the utmost heartiness. The five of us went in together, and we found ourselves the only guests. On arriving we were ushered into his sitting room, from which most of the furniture had been removed. It was being packed for storage during his absence, he said, but we knew that it had gone to the auction rooms instead. Had there been a suspicious man among us he would have wondered that no odors came from the kitchen or noise from the dining room, and he would have noticed that Queen seemed a bit nervous and uneasy and was doing his best to appear serene. We had gone in a friendly spirit for a pleasant hour, and why should we feel suspicions of our host?

We were offered cigars as soon as we got seated, and as we smoked and waited for the dinner Queen was bright and chatty and something like his old time self. He had said that he was going away, but he did not give further particulars, and of course no one asked him. We somehow gathered the idea, however, that he was going out to South Africa. Dinner seemed a long time in coming, when Queen himself brought in wine and glasses and explained that he wished us to drink to a toast he would give. It struck us as strange, but he had always been a queer fellow. We sat in a half circle about the table, and as the glasses were filled and we waited for the signal to rise to our feet the man, glass in hand, stepped back until he could lean his elbow on the mantel and then quietly said:

"Gentlemen, keep your seats. I have nothing to say regarding the action of the Pace club or any other club, and I am proud of the fact that a few of you are here to see me off. It was kind of you to come, and rest assured that I fully appreciate it. The toast I propose is rather odd perhaps, but everything goes, you know. Let us drink—let us drink to the—to the late deceased!"

Queen was a left handed man. He held the glass in his right hand, and as he hesitated over his words his left went back to his hip pocket, and out came a pistol. We realized in a flash what he meant to do, but it came so suddenly that no one could put forth a hand. There was a grim smile on his face as he placed the muzzle of the weapon to his temple, but he did not pull the trigger. Outside a thunderstorm had been working up over the greatcity. We had heard the low rumble of thunder and caught a flash or two of lightning through the windows. As the pistol went up to the man's temple there came a tremendous crash, followed by what seemed to be balls of fire floating around the room, and all of us were knocked about and more or less stunned. As we recovered ourselves and relighted the gas we found Queen lying on his back on the floor, with the pistol clutched in his hand. The weapon had not been fired, and yet he was dead. A thunderbolt had struck the chimney, followed it down to the second floor and then, tearing its way out, had struck our host as he leaned on the mantel. Two or three men ran for doctors, while the others chafed the man's limbs, and it was a quarter of an hour before we were sure that he was dead. A search for wine to aid in reviving him proved that the bedroom, pantry, dining room and kitchen were dismantled and that no dinner for us had been prepared. He had simply invited us there to witness his death and a dramatic finish to a wasted life, but at the last instant had been saved from self murder and the curtain rung down by the hand of fate.

The Nose For News.

A young man who goes into journalism intent on making a reputation and being something more than a mere amanuensis or copyist must have a prompting love for his work, a quick perception of what is to be seized on in passing events and the ability accurately to narrate or describe on paper that which he has seen or which has been told him.

But these three essentials are not provided by any college course. Any editor can tell true stories of men from the best eastern universities, men with trained minds and well stocked vocabularies and a vast assortment of general knowledge, who were of no value in a newspaper office because they were not able to identify a piece of news even when it was lying in front of them and beckoning to them, or perhaps because a critical self consciousness prevented them from writing a simple impersonal account of an everyday happening. It cannot be said that such men are "inferior" to the other men who fill the paper with valuable and entertaining matter. All we can say is that they are not adapted to this peculiar grind. They were not "cut out" to be newspaper men. The sooner they get out of the work the better.

Fortunately getting out is not usually delayed. The ease with which a young man bursts into journalism is only equaled by the superb ease with which he is sent through the street door if he fails to show a quick and enthusiastic grasp of the requirements. Many are called, and few are chosen. It is truly a survival of the fittest—not necessarily of the best, or the brightest.—George Old in Saturday Evening Post.

Grins, but No Tips.

"No, sir," remarked the waitress in the quick lunch restaurant as she slipped a dime into her apron pocket and gave the donor a smile in return, "we don't get many tips nor half as many as the men that work here nights after we've gone home, though they don't wait on half as many customers as we do in the daytime. It isn't right, either, because their wages are higher than ours, and we can find just as good use for a dime as they can—better, I say.

"But that's just the way it runs. A man gives you all sorts of trouble getting what he wants and getting it in a hurry, and then he gives you a grin, as much as to say, 'You're a real nice girl,' when you hand him his check, and he seems to think you ought to think yourself well repaid. If you were a man, he'd turn up something much more valuable. Grins are cheap and don't go for car fare."—New York Sun.

How many mothers realize that when the baby's advent is expected they need strength for two instead of one. Women, weak, nervous, "just able to drag around," find themselves confronted with coming maternity. They have not strength enough for themselves, how can they have strength to give a child? We don't look for the birth of strong ideas from a weak mind. Why should we expect the birth of strong children from weak mothers?

The way to ensure health and strength to mother and child is to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a preparative for motherhood. It brings the mother's strength up to the requirements of nature, so that she has strength to give her child. It nourishes the nerves and so quiets them. It encourages a natural appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I wish to let you know the great benefit my wife derived through taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. Robert Harden, of Brandon, Manitoba, Box 235. "It was when her baby came. We had heard so much of your medicine that my wife decided to try it (I may say my wife's age was thirty-three and this was her first child). She commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' five months before her child was born. We have a fine healthy girl, and we believe that this was mainly owing to the 'Favorite Prescription,' taken faithfully according to directions. We shall certainly recommend it wherever we can."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

(American Exchange.)

Few of the many million visitors the Pan-American Exhibition will bring to Buffalo this year are aware of the grand lessons that will be spread before them, of an ethnic and anthropological value.

In two assemblies of an exhibitory nature provided by Col. H. W. McConnell, Americans will have an opportunity of studying some of the latest acquisitions by way of conquest that our country, already polyglot in nature, has acquired in the new races of the Polynesians, the Hawaiians and Filipinos.

From the eight islands which constitute the Hawaiian group, have been brought some hundreds of this delightful and picturesque race, whose friendship for us has made it possible for them to receive the benign protection of our great republic without the carnage and decimation of a bloody conquest.

Interesting to a high degree, because of solemn rites and uncanny religious beliefs, their study in propera persona gives unbounded delight.

Representing as they do, a relic of cannibalism, the transforming power of Christianity has not wholly obliterated from the islanders all of their weird rites and none of their picturesque costumes, which are so delightful to the eye. Comment, upon their condition is needless until the emissaries of our own Christian State can be restrained from viciousness. Never was race more innocently and joyously happy, more delightfully pleasing, more dainty in tastes, than these guileless Kanakas. As a race, physically, they tower head and front over all the rest of the peoples that inhabit the limitless Pacific.

Col. McConnell, in order to make his Hawaiian Village of ethnic value has not confined himself to recruiting its denizens from the half civilized towns and cities, but has had his trusty helpers invade even the half populated and wilder islands, visiting tribes, many of whom have no knowledge of the sovereignty of the United States in order to procure those models who would add to his exhibitions the novelty of true barbaric splendor and sport, and further, a study of anthropological research.

The village will convey, consequently, an adequate idea of the barbarian's nature, his sports, pastimes, methods of warfare and his really beautiful music; also the way they build their houses, examples of their weaving of fabrics, personal adornment and conduct of household.

The theatre will show the Islanders in native dramas, musical plays and the national Hula Hula dances, the dances which require only a sight of their beautiful motion pictures to arouse absolute enthusiasm.

The native orchestra will provide music that has been universally conceded to have a rhythm and harmony of superior quality, so much so, that two of their airs are now on a wave of popularity, thinly disguised as the work of American composers.

The planning of the Hawaiian Village shows consummate skill on the part of its builders. The streets run irregular, with many quaint angles and nooks, and are animated and full of dash and vivacity of movement; unlike the stolid Oriental, all is life; gay and very gay.

Ontario Northern Spies Attracting Considerable Attention.

In connection withthe fruit exhibit at the Pan-American, the Department of Agriculture has learned that the opinion is very freely expressed that the display of Northern Spy apples from Ontario was exceptionally fine, and admitted by all to be the best in the horticultural department. The importance of this success lies in the fact that the central western States, especially those dependent upon Chicago markets, have ever since the World's Fair there been great purchasers of our Spies.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS' SUIT.

In Ottawa some of the enumerators have put a claim for legal action in the hands of Mr. W. D. Hogg, K.C., instructing him to sue for them at the rate of $3 a day for the time they were employed in census work. These gentlemen have also withheld the delivery of their schedules. In this connection the Minister says that under the statute it would be unlawful to pay enumerators before their work has been turned into the department, and that any attempt to hold the Government up by such procedure is likely to prove entirely futile.—Globe.

SMALLPOX ABATING.

Only One Additional Case of a Very Mild Type.

(Campbellford Herald.)

Since our last issue one additional case of smallpox has developed, that of Miss Hubble, a young woman who was employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. J. P. Hume.

The Board of Health have had a temporary hospital erected for the treatment of smallpox patients, in a pleasant locality, on the farm of Mr. John Oliver, outside the corporation, and in this Miss Hubble is receiving the necessary medical attendance from the local physicians, and is being nursed by Mrs. John Moir, of Campbellford, who volunteered her services.

Miss Hubble is what we might be pardoned for saying, only comfortably ill, the disease being of the lightest form possible, so mild in into character, indeed, that some people are disposed to think it is not a case of smallpox.

It was reported that a little girl of a family named Sharpe, residing on the corner of Booth and Bridge streets, was affected with the disease; but this is untrue, as Dr. Scherk and Dr. Carlaw, who were sent by the Board of Health to look into the case, pronounced it after a careful diagnosis, one only of chicken-pox.

The little girl in the Homes family reported last week, is progressing favourably, and this too, was of a light character. She has not been removed to the temporary hospital, because the doctors thought it not advisable, the disease having nearly run its course.

To avoid contagion the Board of Health has ordered the schools closed for a few days, until it is seen that no new cases are developing.

If the disease does not appear in a more virulent form, there will be little fear of it; in fact there seems to be no fear whatever among a great number of our citizens, who even joke about it. However, the Board of Health is to be commended for its prompt and continuous action in guarding against an outbreak.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The convention of the Woman's Missionary Society, which was held in the Methodist Church on May 22nd, was a great success. By the good representation at all the meetings, it did not appear as if the bad weather had prevented many from attending.

Ladies of the auxiliary and the forenoon and afternoon sessions were both very interesting, being addressed by Mrs. Morrow, besides other business matters.

In the evening a lengthy programme was given, the chair being occupied by Mrs. Kendry, of Peterborough.

Solos were rendered by Miss Bickell, of Lakefield, and Mrs. Dr. Morgan. The choir also favoured with a suitable selection, also a recitation by Mrs. Moore, of Peterborough, besides the two beautiful addresses given by Miss Munroe, returned missionary from China and Miss Brooks, who has been in Tokio, Japan. The meeting was brought to a close by singing the doxology.

Mr. Boyd's boat, "The Calumet," of Bobcaygeon, is engaged in bringing down timber for the pier.

On Sunday evening, June 2nd, Rev. Mr. Nickle will preach a sermon to the Canadian Order of Foresters in the Methodist Church, commencing at the usual hour.

Mrs. Geo. Ritchie and two daughters, of Peterborough, spent Sunday at Mr. Wm. Mann's.

If it is asthma, bronchitis, croup, or any such trouble, use Vapo-Cresolene. All Druggists.

THE HELMET OF NAVARRE.

(The Copp Clark Publishing Co.)

This is the title of a new book that has taken the reading public by storm; and there is reason for its immense popularity. It is a tale from French history at the time when the French throne was a subject of faction contest, and the stirring and thrilling incident of the story vividly reproduces the intrigue, flattery and counterplotting that accompanied the struggle. The fight for the hand of a fair woman, which is interwoven in the narrative, is told in as stirring a way as the fight for the throne. There's not a slow or dull page in the whole book—no strained and drawn out descriptions or moralisings, but life, action, combat and brisk movement, keep the reader's attention so chained down, that he or she who takes up "Henry of Navarre" to read, should make sure of a few uninterrupted hours, for it will be found most difficult to lay aside the book without finishing it at a sitting. In spite of a few anachronisms, slip-shod literary work, rather depressing literary mannerisms, Miss Runkle has in her first book, given the reading world, which prefers rather to be interested and entertained than edified, a story that has achieved, with the very large class to which it appeals, a remarkable and well deserved popularity. To the Canadian public the Copp Clark Company, Toronto, has given a fine specimen of the bookmaker's art in illustration, printing and binding.

LASSWADE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mrs. C. N. Dingman of Lasswade, has been very sick. Dr. Bell of Apsley, formerly of Lakefield, is treating her. We are glad to know that she is getting better.

We have been having some rainy weather for some time; crops are looking fine.

Mr. W. Bound of Lasswade, has been laid up with the rheumatism for some time. He is now getting better.

The widow Smith, sister of Peter Ruesaw, of Chandos, was united in marriage to Jared Dingman, of Lasswade on the 27th of April last.

Mr. Arthur Woodbeck, of Chandos, has a job peeling tan bark for the Rathbun Co. We wish him good luck.

It is said that the drives have gone through much earlier this season than last. It is owing to there being lots of water.

Miss Maggie Ratcliff of Lasswade, is teaching school near Rose Island this year, and her sister, Miss Bessie Ratcliff, is teaching school at Foster's school, No. 4, Chandos. She is getting along finely.

Mr. Ratcliff's sawmill at McFadden's Corners, is running full blast, and turning out lumber of first class quality.

Miss Bertha Hales of Apsley, is teaching school at Hoff's school, No. 5, Chandos.

The Methodist church at McFadden's Corners has lately been grained and painted by Mr. T. McIlmoyle.

Mr. T. J. Wilson, of Apsley, has been sick for some time. We are glad to see him able to be around again.

Mrs. William Snelgrove, of Lasswade, is able to be around again after having been sick for some time.

Gladstone's Advice to Young Men.

Be sure that every one of you has his place and vocation on this earth, and that it rests with himself to find it. Do not believe those who lightly say: "Nothing succeeds like success." Effort, honest, manful, humble effort, succeeds by its reflected action, especially in youth, better than success, which, indeed, too easily and too early gained, not seldom serves, like winning the throw of the dice, to blind and stupefy. Get knowledge, all you can. Be thorough in all you do, and remember that though ignorance often may be innocent, pretension is always despicable. But you, like men, be strong and exercise your strength. Work onward and upward, and may the blessing of the Most High soothe your cares, clear your vision, and crown your labors with reward.

SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experiences, many men do not seem to realise this, but go about complaining of the heat, in underclothes that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, waistcoats, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

WANT SHORTER HOURS

Trouble Imminent Between New York R.R. and Machinists.

BUFFALO AND DEPEW AROUSED.

If a Strike Occurs in One Shop the Whole System, According to the Men's Constitution, Must Be Affected—The Situation So Far as the Canadian Railways Are Concerned.

Toronto, June 1.—The most important information that was received by President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists yesterday told of a probable strike on the New York Central system. In the shops of the railway at Depew a demand has been made by the machinists for a nine-hour day and a 10 per cent. increase in wages. The men request an answer by 9 o'clock this morning, which probably means, if the concessions are not granted, that the men will march out. No word has been received at the headquarters of the association in respect to other shops of the system, but the constitution of the union does not permit of a strike unless it is general and unless it is authorized by the association. So that if a strike occurs to-day it will affect the whole system.

The situation on the Canadian railway systems is also demanding considerable attention. The machinists on the Canadian Pacific, from Fort William to Vancouver, have an agreement which went into effect a year ago, but the agreement does not say anything about the question of hours. On the eastern system of the C. P. R. and on the G. T. R. the machinists have no agreement, and for some time past the men employed on these railways have been perfecting an organization, which, no doubt, means that they will win the proper time make a demand for hours and other points not at present recognized. This matter will be discussed at the convention next week.

"We Go Out To-Morrow."

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—A meeting of the machinists employed by the New York Central Railroad was held last night to consider the offer made by the railroad to the demands of the men for an increase of 10 per cent. in wages. A few minutes before the meeting broke up, a New York Central employe rushed out exclaiming: "We go out to-morrow." A strike of the 400 machinists will involve about 1,200 men in dependent departments.

Builders Will Not Give It.

Halifax, June 1.—The master builders, at a meeting to-night, decided not to grant the demand of the carpenters for an increase of seven cents per hour on the present rate of wages.

Canadian Pacific Trackmen.

Montreal, June 1.—The Canadian Pacific trackmen are still pressing their demands on the company, and several conferences were held yesterday between General Manager McNicol and the committee representing the trackmen. The superintendents of the different divisions have also been called into consultation.

Ottawa Labor Troubles.

Ottawa, June 1.—The Plasterers' Union have made a demand on the contractors for a half-holiday Saturday, and have threatened to strike if it is not granted. The men ask for the holiday to take effect June 1, and another strike may result on Monday.

The woodworkers of the city may strike to-day if the employers still refuse to grant them the increase of 25 per cent, and one hour a day less work, which has been demanded.

The New Ottawa Observatory.

Ottawa, June 1.—The new Observatory, for which a vote was passed last session, will be located at or near where the summer house now stands, in the rear of the Parliament Buildings, overlooking the Ottawa River and Chaudiere Falls. Mr. Ewart, Chief Dominion Architect, has prepared plans, which show that the building will, when completed, surpass anything of the kind in Canada. The Mackenzie Statue will be in the rear of the new building.

The Royal Mint, which will cost, with equipment, about $300,000, is to be located on Nepean Point.

The Museum Building, costing over three-quarters of a million dollars, will be near the Printing Bureau.

The First Blasts Fired.

Niagara Falls, June 1.—Yesterday morning the first signal guns of the big power development on the Canadian side of the Niagara boomed forth in the shape of two heavy blasts, let off almost simultaneously and announcing to the world that a new era of industry has commenced. Drilling operations were started Thursday, more to test the machinery and appliances than anything else, and after that the holes were charged, which were fired yesterday.

The Montreal Conference.

Pembroke, June 1.—at the opening of the Montreal General Conference of the Methodist Church here yesterday, about 150 ministers and 50 laymen were present. Rev. Dr. Rose was elected president of the conference.

A BRITISH REVERSE.

Kitchener Writes "I Regret" in Reporting a Boer Attack.

KILLED AND WOUNDED ARE 174.

Battle of Vladfontein the Most Serious South African Engagement for the British Since Magalliesburg — Four Officers Were Among the British Killed—Boers Left 35 Dead on the Field.

London, June 1.—On the anniversary of Lord Roberts' entry into Johannesburg, there came the news yesterday of severe fighting and heavy losses within 40 miles of the Gold Reef City. The battle at Vladfontein on the Durban-Johannesburg Railroad, reported by Lord Kitchener yesterday, is the most severe engagement since Gen. Clements' reverse at Magalliesburg. The garrison at Vladfontein, apparently largely composed of Yeomanry, had 174 men put out of action. That their assailants came to close quarters and suffered heavily is shown by the number of dead left on the field.

"Gen. Dixon's force at Vladfontein was attacked yesterday by Delarey's forces, and there was severe fighting. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving 35 dead. I regret that our casualties also were severe. The killed and wounded numbered 174. Four officers were killed."

Ottawa, June 1.—A gazette was issued yesterday containing the promotion of many officers to brevet rank in recognition of active service in South Africa.

A FATAL TROLLEY SMASH.

One Man Cut in Two and a Score More Injured at Wilmington.

Wilmington, Del., June 1.—Joshua Gilman, aged 26 years, was killed and about a score of people were injured, some probably fatally, in a trolley accident in this city early yesterday morning.

The accident occurred on the Sixth street line of the People's Railway Company. The large cars, Nos. 5 and 16, which were crowded with passengers returning from Brandywine Springs' Park, were descending the steep hill from Franklin to Monroe street. Car No. 16 was in the lead, and as car No. 5 began to descend the steep incline, the air brakes refused to work. Motorman Benson reversed the current, and this caused the motor to burn out. For some reason the ratchet brake refused to work and the car started on a wild dash down the hill. In a moment it crashed into car No. 16, which was only a short distance ahead and sent the latter spinning down the hill.

All efforts of Motorman Kraus to check the speed of the first car were unavailing and both cars dashed down the hill, bumping into each other at frequent intervals. The passengers became frightened and jumped from the cars, which accounts for the great number injured. Only two or three of those who remained in the cars were hurt. Gillman, the only passenger who was instantly killed, jumped out of a car window and, falling under the wheels, was cut in two.

The two large cars were going at such a great speed that when they reached the base of the incline they were carried some distance up the hill towards Madison street, where they crashed into a summer car, which was coming in an opposite direction and several persons in the third car were seriously injured.

A BANKER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Richard Davidson Shot Himself Dead on the Train.

St. Catharines, Ont., June 1.—Richard Davidson committed suicide on the mail train yesterday afternoon, between Grimsby and St. Catharines. He was the manager of the Imperial Bank at Prince Albert, N. W. T., and, in consequence of mental depression, he went to the Homewood Retreat at Guelph nine weeks ago, for treatment. He was discharged from that institution yesterday, apparently cured, and was going to St. Catharines to see his wife, who is, at present, visiting with Mrs. J. H. Ingersoll. After the train left Grimsby, he went into the closet of the smoking car, and, in a few minutes, the report of a pistol was heard. On forcing open the door, it was found that he had shot himself in the temple. The body was taken to St. Catharines. He leaves a wife and one child. His mother lives at Winnipeg, Man.

At Halifax, Sept. 14.

Halifax, N.S., June 1.—A private despatch received here yesterday from a most trustworthy source announces that the Ophir will call at Halifax Sept. 14 to coal. The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York therefore will be here on that date for several hours, though the official landing in Canada will be at Quebec.

Alleged Embezzler Arrested.

Winnipeg, Man., June 1.—J. Leithner was arrested here last night charged with embezzling $1,200 funds of the Northern Pacific at Victoria, B. C., where he was agent.

Railway Lines Handed Over to Canadian Northern Company.

Winnipeg, June 1.—Speaking of the application made to the Attorney-General for suit against the Canadian Northern Railway contract, Premier Roblin said that he did not intend to grant permission for the suit to proceed.

At midnight the Northern Pacific Railway lines in Manitoba were handed over by the Government to the Canadian Northern Railway. D. D. Mann has announced the appointment of George H. Shaw, at present assistant general freight and passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, to the position of traffic manager of the Canadian Northern system. Other appointments are: C. E. Friend, auditor; James Abbott, chief train despatcher; W. Shanks, roadmaster.

ON A CHARGE OF BIGAMY.

Frank Myers Alleged to Have One Wife More Than the Law Allows.

Chatham, Ont., June 1.—Frank Myers of Dover was yesterday taken to the County Jail to await his trial on a charge of bigamy. Myers is a Frenchman, who does not understand the English language as well as he might. Some 13 years ago he married Susan Foster of Big Point. Of late years these two failed to agree, and on Jan. 25, 1901, they signed an agreement of separation before the Wallaceburg Magistrate. Myers claims that he understood, and was told that the paper he and his wife signed was a divorce, and he understood that he was free to marry again. And he did, a few months ago. No. 2 wife was Miss Mary Tebo of Chatham. The ceremony was performed in this city, and he took his bride to his home.

GREAT BRAVERY OF A FIREMAN.

At Imminent Risk He Saved Lives of Three Men on Atikokan River.

Winnipeg, June 1.—Fireman McKenzie of the Canadian Northern Railway at Port Arthur, saved the lives of three men in the Atikokan River. They were going fishing, and took three sticks of dynamite with them to throw into the river. One stick had been thrown out, when one of them got frightened and upset the canoe. Fireman McKenzie jumped into a canoe and went after them. The three sticks of dynamite were now in the water, and liable to explode any minute. McKenzie managed to get two ashore, and rescued the third man as he was sinking. He got half way back to shore when the three sticks of dynamite exploded all at once, and upset the canoe Water was shot up in the air for 40 feet.

The Acceptance Unacceptable.

Washington, June 1.—The Administration has decided that the action of the Cuban Constitutional Convention, in accepting the terms of the Platt amendment, with modifications and interpretations of their own, was not "substantial" compliance with our terms, within the meaning of the agreement, and Secretary Root will convey this intelligence to the convention. The decision was reached at the Cabinet meeting yesterday. Secretary Root took the position that the interpretation of the Platt amendment contained in the constitution adopted by the convention, and the whereases appended to it, went outside of a fair interpretation of its meaning, and was unacceptable. In this view the Cabinet concurred.

The Belgian Guards Mutiny.

Brussels, June 1.—An extraordinary scene occurred in Antwerp on Thursday, when mutinous civic guardsmen paraded the streets singing the "Marseillaise," while the police had to be called in to protect the officers from the revolting troops. There has been friction for some time. While drilling yesterday a guardsman in the ranks lit a pipe, and, when reprimanded for so doing, insulted the officer who administered the reprimand. The guardsman was arrested, whereupon his comrades broke ranks, hooted at their officers and proceeded to demolish property on the parade grounds with the butt ends of their rifles. Subsequently they paraded the streets singing.

Edward Daily Is Dead.

Stratford, June 1.—Edward Daily, the victim of the shooting accident which occurred on the Pan-American circus train, between Parkhill and Stratford on Wednesday morning, died at the City Hospital here Thursday night. The bullet had passed through the unfortunate man's lungs, making a painful wound, and would have been difficult for him to communicate any information regarding himself had he been willing to do so. It was gathered, however, that his mother lives in Pottersville, Pa. Daily said that he considered the shooting was purely accidental.

Dr. Stewart Chosen.

Drayton, Ont., June 1.—In convention here yesterday, the West Wellington Liberals selected Dr. Stewart of Palmerston as their standard bearer in the coming Ontario elections. The doctor accepted. The following were balloted for in addition to Dr. Stewart: J. McEwing, Drayton; Dr. Henry, Harriston; R. Holton, Harriston; J. M. Roach, Arthur; D. Wallace, Alma; W. J. Malloy, Peel.

Veterinary Surgeon Arrested.

Ottawa, June 1.—Wilfrid Fortier, a veterinary surgeon, was arrested at Joliette yesterday by Sheriff Wright of Hull, on a charge of breaking into the store of A. D. Cameron at Buckingham last December and stealing $400 worth of goods. Fortier appeared in Hull yesterday and pleaded not guilty to the charge. He will come up for

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

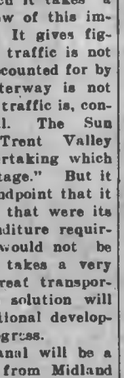
The Farmer's Sun has in its last issue an article upon the Trent Valley Waterway, in which it takes a very narrow-guage view of this important undertaking. It gives figures to show that the traffic is not very great. This is accounted for by the fact that the waterway is not yet completed, and the traffic is, consequently, merely local. The Sun concedes that the Trent Valley Waterway is "an undertaking which is of some local advantage." But it is not from a local standpoint that it is to be regarded. If that were its only feature the expenditure required for its completion would not be justifiable. The Sun takes a very limited view of the great transportation problem, whose solution will furnish the key to national development and national progress.

The Trent Valley Canal will be a land-locked waterway from Midland to Montreal and Quebec, available for use during the whole season of navigation, and avoiding the storm perils of lake navigation, and as such it will occupy a very important place in a national system of transportation. It is, therefore, from its intrinsic importance, worth completion, apart from the consideration that the large expenditure already made will be largely wasted from any point of view, and quite wasted from a national point of view, unless the work is finished from Midland to Trenton—from the Georgian Bay to the Bay of Quinte. The necessity of the Trent Valley Waterway in relation to transportation, cannot be denied. Has the Farmer's Sun ever reflected that when the boundless wheat fields of the Northwest are developed to their full capacity, all the transportation routes, rail and water, in existence and contemplated, will be inadequate to move one half of a season's crop with the necessary expedition which market exigencies may demand? When that time comes, or even approaches, the Trent Valley Waterway will have its share of the work of transportation cut out for it, and like other transportation routes, will be taxed beyond its capacity. The time will come, and doubtless early in this century, when additional transportation facilities will have to be provided.

When completed, the Trent Valley Waterway will be the shortest route for the conveyance of the unlimited iron ores, and iron and other metallic products of New Ontario, now in the initial stages of development, to the smelters of Deseronto and Hamilton, and to manufacturing centres like Toronto, Kingston and Montreal, and will be part of the shortest water route for the conveyance of coal and coke from the Maritime Provinces, or the Pennsylvania coal fields, to the north country for smelting purposes. With these facts in view, it is impossible to understand how the Sun can say that "the more money we spend on the scheme the more we throw away." The fact is the money we have spent will, from our point of view, be thrown away unless enough more be spent to bring the work to completion. The days of the narrow guage railway are past, but the narrow guage pessimist is still with us, and if his counsels prevail, Canada will never achieve the inevitable destiny of greatness to which our unbounded resources, adequately developed, point the way.

CATARRH

Suppose you catch a cold. It settles in the head. The lining of the air passage becomes raw and sore. You have to use a handkerchief all the time. Your head aches in behind the eyes, and you feel miserable. But after a time you get over it. Still your head is not perfectly clear yet. You still have to use a handkerchief. Your head feels stuffed up, especially in the morning. Do you know what is the matter? You have Catarrh. That's the way it comes. The cold inflames the membrane of the nose and throat and simply invites Catarrh.



Now, Japanese Catarrh Cure is the only remedy which acts directly on the inflamed, ulcerated, catarrh-eaten membranes, kills the germ, soothes, cleanses, heals the tissues. Thousands and thousands of times has it been proved—the one safe, sure, for-all-time cure for Catarrh is

JAPANESE CATARRH CURE

"I feel that I cannot say too much in favour of Japanese Catarrh Cure. I have suffered from Catarrh of a most disagreeable type for seven years. I at last tried Japanese Catarrh Cure, and from the very first day's use my condition showed a marked improvement, until now, I am pleased to say, I am entirely free from that loathsome and disagreeable disease. I feel it my duty to attest my appreciation of anything so worthy."—Mr. John Sloan, 78 McGill street, Toronto.

THE CODLIN MOTH.

This is the season when farmers and other fruit growers must be on the alert to counteract the operations and stay the ravages of the codlin moth. That they may do this intelligently and to advantage the following article from the Globe, dealing with this destructive pest, and the best way of fighting the moth, is submitted:

The moth, an insignificant-looking insect that could be covered by a ten cent piece, is now busy laying eggs on the apple blossoms. As soon as the fruit is formed the larva hatches out and bores into it. There it feeds until it reaches maturity, a white, fat worm, about seven-eighths of an inch long. If the apple falls the larva comes out and enters the ground, where it goes into the inert pupa state, to sleep out the winter and come forth a moth, to sow destruction next season's fruit. The ravages of the pest can be greatly lessened by the immediate use or destruction of apples that fall from the trees, and hogs in an orchard are perhaps the best known preventive. When the apple remains on the tree the mature worm comes forth and seeks a suitable crevice in the bark in which to spend the long, inert winter. Many of them can be intercepted by tying a coarse cloth about each tree below the lowest branches. The larvae will find in the bandages comfortable recesses in which to pupate, and that will make their destruction easy.

The Ontario Government has issued an order-in-council, requiring that all the loose and rough bark on apple trees be scraped away and all trees be girdled with coarse cloth not later than June 10. It is also ordered that from June 20 to September 20 the larvae accumulating in the bandages be destroyed every twelve days. The same bandages may be put on the trees again after the destruction of the larvae. Some of the worms that come from the apples drop to the ground and go into the pupa state. These cannot be intercepted by any inexpensive method, and they will generally be sufficient to make the pest a serious menace to fruitgrowers. There are about 7,000,000 apple trees bearing fruit in Ontario, and these should yield annually about 83 each. It has been estimated that from 20 to 30 per cent. of this crop is lost every year by "windfalls" and by the direct inroads of the apple worm. Even if the percentage of loss is exaggerated the problem is of sufficient importance to warrant greater attention from all who are interested in fruit growing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If the Council discusses the matter of the location of the band stand at Monday evening's session, the question should be well weighed before a decision is given in the matter, as a great many of the citizens are keenly interested in the matter of the proposed change of site.

A writer to the Belleville Sun urges that the new sidewalks be laid outside the trees, and the roadways thereby narrowed to twenty-five feet. It is pointed out that a great saving is thus accomplished, through the smaller amount of roadwork requiring to be done. Belleville, however, had better go slow in the matter of narrowing the streets, as on account of Peterborough's streets being cut down in width we cannot pass a wide-tire bylaw, the wagons being unable to turn around in so small a space.

VACCINATION

Proof of Its Efficacy in Smallpox Cases

Even in these enlightened days we find people avowing their belief that vaccination is not a preventive of smallpox, in fact a warm controversy is at present raging in Kingston on the subject. The following facts, collected by the Chicago Record-Herald, furnish a strong argument in favour of vaccination. Such figures it may be noted, dispose of the theories of the anti-vaccinationists very effectively:

Out of the total of 171 cases of smallpox found in Chicago between November 30, 1900, and April 10, 1901—the period of the present epidemic—140 had never been vaccinated.

Of the remaining 31 cases, 29 were adults showing faint, poor, or irregular scars, claimed to be evidence of attempted vaccination in infancy or early childhood, the most recent being 23 years old.

Only two out of the 171 cases exhibited [illegible] scars. All of these one was 35 years old—vaccinated when a child, — re-vaccination attempted three years ago without result; vaccine lymph probably inert. The other was 40 years old, also successfully vaccinated in childhood, but never re-vaccinated.

These are the only two cases out of the total 171 upon whom vaccination was ever successfully attempted and the most recent of these was more than thirty years ago.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, May 31.—Cattle—The total offerings were 18 loads. The market was in fair position on the strictly local sales, which were four loads. Calves were in good supply—about 150 head—and tops were $5.05; choice to extra, $5.50 to $5.65; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Offerings were excessive for the state of the demand, there being 60 loads, including 11 loads left over from yesterday. The basis was steers and trade very dull and dragged. Strictly dry-fed lambs, choice to extra, best hours of the day, at $5.50 to $5.60; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50; common to fair, $4.25 to $5; sheep, choice to extra, $4.25 to $4.50; common to fair, $3 to $4; light trade on heavy lambs, and the basis was $6.35 on the close; a good supply offered at that figure. YOU CANNOT CURE PILES

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected, and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly, just where it is needed, and where it will do the most good. Not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor the harsh barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct application to the seat of the disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything then no sufferer has any excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so the Pyramid Pile Cure will have made one more friend, the best possible advertisement we can have. The chief advantages of the remedy are: It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and, lastly, it is the quickest and cheapest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

PREFER TO REMAIN SLAVES.

Natives of Zanzibar and Pemba Decline to Accept Freedom.

London, May 31.—Ninety-eight per cent. of the slaves of Zanzibar and Pemba prefer to remain slaves, according to correspondence issued by the Foreign Office concerning the working of the decrees freeing slaves. Fewer slaves applied for freedom in 1900 than in 1899, because the British Commissioners avers most of the slaves know that they are not likely to gain much present advantage, seeing that those who are thrown on their own resources have a difficult time to make a living. The masters have been kinder since the slave legislation was enacted, and seek to make their service more attractive.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD PRISONER.

A Little Britisher Who Won the Admiration of the Boers.

Trim and military looking is this lad, the youngest prisoner of war taken by the Boers. The subject of the picture is the 7-year-old son of H. J. Roberts of Dreifontein Farm, who with his wife, two daughters and the boy was captured by the Boers after his farm was raided. Mr. Roberts was in bed with rheumatic fever at the time, but he was made to get up and was placed in a cart, while his wife and children were compelled to walk. They started at 4 in the afternoon and walked twelve miles before they halted for the night.

The lad was equipped with a complete army outfit and looked forward longingly to the day when he might have a chance to prove his valor in it; but when the day came the odds were too great—one little boy and a sick man against a big band of rough-riding Boers. These latter were highly amused at the soldierly equipment and bearing of their wee prisoner, and his pluck won him kindlier treatment than might otherwise have been given.

Miss Amelia Feeley, who heads the list of great lady riders with Ringling Brothers' famous World's Greatest Show this season, is declared by the most experienced experts of Europe and America to be the greatest equestrienne the world has ever produced.

Restocking the Lakes.

Mr. Bastedo, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, has recently superintended the transportation of parent bass from Lake Erie to the lakes of the Muskoka District. Three or four car loads a week were shipped. Each car contained about 1,000 fish. The extent of the work is shown by the fact that, as a starter, one car load of fish was put in Lake St. Joseph, one in Lake Rosseau, and one in Lake Muskoka, to be followed by others throughout the season, while a number of streams in which no fish have appeared for years will be restocked.

National Park for Canada.

The Ontario Government has reserved 1,400,000 acres of wild land near Lake Temagami, a great lake lying west of Lake Temiscaming, on the upper Ottawa. This will be used as a national park, where the timber will be preserved and the game will be allowed to increase. The number of beavers and deer is increasing.

Bronchitis is now Epidemic.

Bronchitis is becoming very prevalent, but is not now incurable for Catarrhozone cures even the worst cases. Catarrhozone Inhaler sends the healing medicated air into every air passage in head, bronchial tubes and lungs; it reaches the germs and destroys them. Catarrhozone soothes and cures the dry cough and feverishness, and the laborious breathing and soreness in the wind-pipe are relieved at once. When Catarrhozone is inhaled, Bronchitis is cured in one to five days. It has been extensively used, and never once failed. Even cases of 5, 10 and 20 years standing that have baffelled the skill of the best physicians, have been cured by Catarrhozone. Your doctor can tell you that Catarrhozone is one of the grandest discoveries of the century, and that he always prescribes it for Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. Get it to-day and be cured. NEW ONTARIO LAND SEEKERS

Attractions of the Temiscaming Region Pourtrayed.

EASTERN END OF THE CLAY BELT

A Splendid Farming Country—15,000,000 Acres of Land Almost for the Asking—Something About the 1,500,000 Acres of the Temiscaming Valley—A Well-Watered Country—Large Influx of Settlers.

The present season is likely to witness a considerably greater influx of land-seekers into New Ontario than has hitherto taken place, as the great advantages offered by this important section of our own province become better understood. Of all the districts now open for settlement the Temiscaming appears to present the greatest attractions as a purely agricultural district to settlers from Eastern Ontario on account of its advantages in the way of water communication and the prospects of close connection with the leading markets of Ontario by rail in the near future. It possesses the largest continuous area of first-class agricultural land, the group of townships of rich level land now surveyed and open for settlement lying to the west and north of Lake Temiscaming being merely the eastern extremity of the great clay belt comprising about fifteen and a half millions of acres, which, with a slight break at the Height of Land, stretches across the districts of Nipissing and Algoma into the northeast portion of Thunder Bay.

Fine Fertile Soil.

About one-half of the 1,500,000 acres comprised in the Temiscaming Valley has been surveyed and laid out in townships. The land, which rises abruptly from the lake shore to a height of about 50 feet, slopes gradually toward the Height of Land, which is about 50 miles distant from the lake. The soil is fully equal in fertility to that of any portion of Southern Ontario, being a rich clay with a surface of black vegetable mould. There is very little rock or loose stone, some townships being without stone of any sort. The settlement is well watered by a number of streams and rivers flowing into Lake Temiscaming from the north and northwest. This provides the settler with a ready means of marketing the timber and cordwood cut from their lands in clearing, for which good prices can be obtained on delivery on the bank of the nearest favorable stream.

Crops mature very rapidly. Settlers have in some cases taken up land in May, made a small clearance and harvested a crop the same year. Oats sown in June have been reaped in a fully ripened condition in time to be exhibited at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition on Sept. 20th. The district is destined to become a great stock-raising and dairying country, as it possesses all the requisites for the establishment of these important branches of industry, more especially in the excellence of the pasturage furnished by the luxuriant growth of grass and natural vegetation, the plentiful supply of pure water and the cheapness of land and building material.

Growth of Population.

The present population of the district is estimated at about 2,000, and is rapidly increasing. The progress of settlement has been considerably stimulated by the construction of colonization roads by the Government, the sum of $8,000 being appropriated for that purpose in 1900 and a similar amount in 1901. There are two villages in the district — Thomloe, the larger of the two, is situated at the head of navigation on the Ontario side of the lake, and Haileybury, also on the lake shore, further to the south.

Northward, Ho!

A great deal of interest is being taken in the land-seekers' excursion, which has been arranged by the Provincial Government by way of the C. P. R. to Temiscaming station and thence by steamer to Thomloe and Haileybury. The rates have been put at a low figure and many workingmen from Toronto and other places, as well as large numbers from the country, are preparing to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded of seeing the country. The excursion starts on the 28th, and the land-seekers will have fifteen days, giving ample opportunity for a close inspection of the locality. Mr. Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization, will accompany the excursion. The result of the new departure in promoting settlement in Ontario will be watched with interest. Many have already gone in since the opening of navigation in order to have an earlier choice of lots.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N.Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50c. and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Jas. Lynch. Trial bottles free.

Laughter.

Laughter is a positive sweetness of life; but, like good coffee, it should be well cleared of deleterious substance before use. Ill will and malice and the desire to wound are worse than chicory. Between a laugh and a giggle there is the width of the horizons. I could sit all day and listen to the hearty and heartsome ha, ha, of a lot of bright and jolly people, but would rather be shot than be forced to stay within earshot of a couple of silly gossips. Cultivate that part of your nature that is quick to see the mirthful side of things, so you shall be enabled to shed many of life's troubles, as the plumage of the bird sheds the rain. But discourage all tendencies to seek your amusement at the expense of another's feelings or in aught that is impure. It was Goethe who said, "Tell me what a man laughs at and I will read you his character."

SITUATION SATISFACTORY.

President O'Connell of the Machinists Was in a Hopeful Mood.

Toronto, May 31. — President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists reported late last night that a number of firms had signed agreements during the day and the general situation was quite satisfactory to the union.

One of the features of the day's news was the announcement that 700 machinists on the Southern Railway system had quit work. The Wabash Railway, however, granted the concessions asked, and the men have returned to work.

The latest report from Chicago was to the effect that a strike had been ordered by the Executive Board of the local lodge, in the shops of the National Metal Trades Association, and the men will not be at work today. The disagreement was over the increase in wages, the association having previously signed an agreement for a nine-hour day. The arbitrators failed to agree, the most the Metal Trades Association agreed to give being an increase of 5 per cent. Over 5,000 men will be affected in Chicago, but President O'Connell says the machinists are in a good position to fight the employers, and he is hopeful of the result. The machinists claim that the Metal Trades Association violated the agreement, while the latter contend that the machinists were the transgressors.

More Than Half on Strike.

Washington, May 31.—Reports received yesterday by the Southern Railway show that more than half of the machinists employed at the Southern's shops in Charleston, Atlanta, Knoxville, Selma, Columbia, Spencer, Manchester and Birmingham are out on strike.

The Guelph Strike.

Guelph, May 31.—Regarding the strike of the waterworks and corporation men on Tuesday, the City Engineer arrived home last evening, and, it is understood, the differences will be amicably settled, though it is also understood Foreman Billings' services will be retained.

Will Settle by Arbitration.

Toronto, May 31.—The boilermakers' and shipbuilders' helpers', who were recently out on strike, and the masters affected, have selected their representatives to consider the grievances. Hon. William Harty, J. P. Northey and Walter Lourie will act for the employers, and T. H. Hartnett, Richard Woodward and D. A. Carey will represent the men. The foregoing board will discuss the question of wages, and if an agreement can not be entered into then an umpire will be chosen to settle the trouble.

Unparalleled in the History of Medicine

THE DEMAND FOR

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

THROUGHOUT CANADA IS TRULY WONDERFUL.

A great and unparalleled demand has arisen in Canada and the United States for Paine's Celery Compound, that marvellous medical prescription of Professor Phelps, M.D., its success and high standing can only be attributed to its virtues and wonderful cures, and its triumphs in thousands of cases where other medicines have failed.

The young and old have found in Paine's Celery Compound new and lasting strength. Men and women tired out, run down, despondent, sick, sleepless, rheumatic, and those afflicted with blood diseases and liver and kidney troubles, have regained health, strength and buoyancy of spirits through the use of the great medicine.

Thousands of unsolicited letters of testimony have poured in from those who have been made well and strong. The wealthy and poor, the famous and those in humble circumstances have willingly testified in favour of Paine's Celery Compound. Mr. J. Ralston of Nixon, Ont., writes as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony to the ever increasing popularity of your preparation known as Paine's Celery Compound. It is now a year since I had a severe attack of nervous prostration caused by chronic dyspepsia, and for a year I could not sleep at night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors of the country and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to do me any good. Having been persuaded to read your books, I thought I would try your Paine's Celery Compound; and after I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me, and I have done more work since than for years past. I now enjoy excellent health and consider myself completely cured. I have highly recommended your Paine's Celery Compound to others, and I know of several persons who are now using it."

LABOURERS' UNION.

One is About to be Organised in Peterborough—The Membership.

This is a time of union organization amongst the employees of various lines of industries, and Peterborough can boast of several unions now in a rather flourishing condition. There is shortly to be another formed whose membership will very likely exceed in numbers anything of the kind in town. An organizer of the labourers union was in town a few days ago confering with the local day labourers regarding organization work. The result is that a meeting has been called for Friday night next in the Sons of England Hall, where the union will be fully established in Peterborough.

The local labourers are quite enthusiastic over the project and say that they will enroll a membership of three hundred without any difficulty.

LAST NIGHT'S BAND CONCERT

Large and Representative Gathering Last Night.

A Delightfully Rendered Programme in the Market Hall—The Last of a Series by the 57th Band.

The last of a delightful series of band concerts took place in the Market Hall last night, and considering the presence of the rain, which has been most plentiful of late, the attendance was quite up to the expectations of the band management, while the quality of the music rendered was quite up to the expectations of those who had the privilege of taking in the event.

The 57th Regimental Band have given numerous concerts but it is doubtful if they ever put on so rare a treat in the form of a programme as was given last night. It was the first concert to which the band has ever asked an admission fee, and it was therefore especially interesting because it offered an exemplification of how highly the efforts of the local musical organization are appreciated. As to this expression of opinion there can be no doubt, as the gathering was large and representative, and the various numbers were greeted with demonstrative expressions of approval.

The programme opened with the march, "Under dem Sieges Banner," by Von Blon. It was a rousing selection, and proved to be a most appropriate opening number. The overture, "Nabucodonosor" followed, the rendering of which completely captivated the audience. The number gave great scope for showing the well-directed study the musicians evidently gave to the selection, and the work of the various softer instruments was characterized by a brilliant technique and musical observance of the fine points of interpretation.

Mr. George McGuire in his clarionette solos with a soft and carefully balanced band accompaniment demonstrated to the audience the sweetness of music possible for an accomplished artist to produce from an instrument of this kind. His "Sonnambula," by Donnizetti, and "Granville," a familiar air, with Mr. McGuire's own arrangement, were produced in a sweet and pathetic manner, showing delicate technique in the most difficult variations.

One of the most delightfully rendered numbers was "Reminiscences of Scotland," which was introduced by a thrilling roll of the kettle drums, followed by the rendering of striking Scotch airs, with that richness of harmonious flavour so characteristic of Scotch music. "Scots Wa' Hae," "Robin Gray," "The Campbells are Comin,'" "Annie Laurie," etc., were amongst the make up of the "Reminiscences," the solo parts being taken at times by either the clarionette, the baritone, or the cornet.

The "Forge in the Forest" was a highly descriptive selection in which the several features were brought out with a marked degree of realism. The medly "Grand Stand," by Mackie was followed by a slight deviation in the form of programme.

Mr. Halpany sang in his well known dramatic style the ever inspiring selection "Strike up the Band," for which he was warmly applauded and compelled to respond again.

Numbers eight and nine of the programme, "Misquitoes Parade" and sextette from Lucia were rendered in the same apparently faultless manner as the preceding numbers and the programme closed with a burlesque "The Village Band," the synopsis of which was as follows,—The Bangtown Crossroads Band, after practicing hard all winter, decided to give a concert—The eventful evening arrives—Every member feels himself an artist and determines to be heard—Result, a howling success (?)

The number proved to be very laughable and was put on by the members of the band, admirably. Altogether the concert was a huge success.

THE LATE MISS SPENCE.

Demise of a Young Lady Well Known Here.

The Peterborough public will be grieved to learn of the demise of Miss Frankie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Spence, which sad event occurred on Friday at the home of her parents, at Manchester, Ontario. The deceased young lady was 27 years of age, and was well-known to the people of this town, having held the position of teacher of Modern Languages in the Collegiate Institute a few years ago. She was an exceptionally brilliant young student, with an apparently bright future, and by her cheerful disposition she won many true and valued friends. Her clever paper before the Fortnightly Club a few seasons ago, will be well remembered, as well as her general performance in literary work.

Miss Spence was a victim of that dread disease, consumption, which eventually took her to her eternal rest.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Sunday at 2 p.m., to the Pine Grove Cemetery.

RE JUPITER PLUVIUS.

Amount of Rainfall During May Almost Unprecedented.

Enquiries have been made of the Examiner as to whether the present rainfall is not one of extraordinary duration. Investigation proves that for persistency the present wet spell has seldom been equalled. During the month of May we had rain on 18 days. The first half of the month was comparatively dry, but from the 17th to the present date there has been rain every day, with the exception of the 21st and 27th. The total amount for the month was 50 per cent. greater than usual, and was 4.51 inches. A comparison with other years will prove of interest. During May, of last year, the amount that fell was 1.21, on 7 days; May of 1899, had a total of 4.18, falling on 14 days; May of 1898, had rain to the depth of 2.75, on 12 days; and the corresponding month of 1897 gave 3.67, falling on 20 days.

The warmest day was the 5th with a temperature of 80 degrees. The lowest temperature was 30 degrees on the 15th.

WILL HAVE RAILWAY GATES.

Final Order by the Railway Committee.

The Grand Trunk Must Erect and Maintain Gates at Charlotte and Simcoe Streets.

His Worship Mayor Deane received a certified copy of the order by the Railway Committee of the Canadian Privy Council, directing the Grand Trunk Railway, of Canada, to erect and maintain railway gates at the Charlotte street and Simcoe street crossings in the Town of Peterborough.

It is important that the citizens of the town should realize the grand battle the council has won in this matter against a wealthy corporation. The Railway Company has urged every conceivable plea to evade its responsibility in this regard, but will in future be at an expense of about $1,500 yearly. As will be seen by the provisions of the appended order, the company will have to pay for the maintenance of a day and night watch at both of the above mentioned crossings. The order reads as follows:

"The corporation of the Town of Peterborough having applied to the Privy Council, of Canada, for an order directing that the Grand Trunk Railway Company, of Canada, shall provide and maintain gates and watchmen at the crossings of Charlotte and Simcoe streets in the said town, as shown on the plan subscribed and filed under No. 9,126.

The said committee having on the 21st day of December, 1900, heard counsel for the railway company and the said corporation, respectively, and having duly considered the evidence submitted, hereby orders and directs that the said railway company shall provide and maintain gates and day and night watchmen at the said crossings, the cost of providing such gates and the maintenance thereof, and the wages of the said watchmen, to be borne by the said railway company. The said gates to be placed or established to the satisfaction of the Government Chief Engineer of the Railways and Canals.

Signed,
A. G. BLAIR,
Chairman.

EFFECT OF THE RAIN.

The Bicycle Men are Complaining of Injury to Trade.

The wet weather of the past three weeks has played havoc amongst one class of business men in particular, and that is the bicycle dealers. Each day's rain brings a more disgusting look upon the faces of the local agents and some of them have about lost all hope of seeing a revival of wheeling this summer. A local dealer said to-day that in all his experience with the trade he never saw such a dull period for this time of the year as has existed during the past three weeks or more. There have been few, if any sales, whilst the repair work has been so slack that some of the shops are idle for something to do. Unless the present weather ceases the bicycle men will have to go into the canoe business or cater in some other manner to climatic changes.

Ringling Brothers have added several elephants to their herd this season, and thirty big and little elephants are now exhibited with the show. This is more than half of the entire number of elephants in the Western Hemisphere, and many more than have ever before been seen with a circus.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

A Successful Convention Held Yesterday.

Mr. T. W. Robinson Was Elected President—Mr. Yellowlees, of Toronto, Speaks—Other Business.

The annual convention of the Town Sabbath School Union was in session yesterday afternoon and evening. The attendance, considering the weather, was quite large and interesting meetings was the result. The afternoon session was devoted chiefly to routine work and a lecture to the children by Mr. Yellowlees, of Toronto. In the evening the attendance was much larger than in the afternoon.

The newly elected president occupied the chair. After singing and scripture reading Rev. D. O. Crossly led in prayer. The president, Mr. T. W. Robinson, in a few suitable words, thanked the union for the honour conferred upon him. He assured the meeting that success depends a great deal upon the active work of pupils and teachers. If all take an interest success is assured.

Rev. W. W. McQuaig, of Port Hope, gave a short address, taking as his text, Acts, 8th verse,—"Personal Responsibilities of Teachers." He said that teachers had as much responsibility as the minister. Philip was an ideal teacher. He was a God-sent messenger, he had personal contact with Jesus Christ and without this one cannot be a successful teacher. A teacher should be able to say to the scholar, come with me to Jesus. Three rules for successful fishing—keep yourself out of sight; keep further out of sight; further still. Christ should always be in the front. The simpler the teaching, the better. Philip was an earnest energetic teacher, he went after his scholars. We want consecrated zeal. Philip though a man of simple training, knew that there was only one way to win men and he stuck to the old gospel of Jesus Christ. This is the key to success in Sunday school work. The zeal, energy, and consistency of Philip should be ours to follow.

Mrs. J. W. Garvin, superintendent of primary work in the county, said that a teacher must know what to teach and how to teach to help this work. She has secured the use in the schools of works on this line, which which will be of profit if properly used. Some of the schools take more interest in this work than others. If all did so it would be of great advantage to the schools in the future. She recommended along with the books already in use, Halleck's Psychology, Froebel's Educational Laws, edited by J. L. Hughes, Toronto, and Children's Rights, by Miss Wiggins.

Mr. Yellowlees, of Toronto, the Provincial Secretary, explained the objects of the Provincial Association, which were to encourage and uplift the workers and work. There were discouragements in Sunday school work but we should not weary in well doing. We do not know the possibilities and the future of our scholars; but let us do our best to help them and lead them in their youth to Christ. He said that the Provincial work is first, and is one of the most promising features of Sunday school work. He also spoke of the cradle roll, a work that is now being introduced in Ontario; by the babe you often reach the heart of the parent. The Home Department should be more earnestly taken up. We want those of the church who cannot come to Sunday school to be at heart in sympathy by a regular study of the lesson in the home. House to house visitation should be taken up to find out where the people belong, and strive to follow it up by bringing some of the careless ones back to the church. All the churches should go hand in hand in this work. Normal work, the study of the Book, is of the greatest importance. We want to know more of the Bible, and can do by proper and systematic study of this great book. We want better teaching in our Sabbath schools. What are we teaching? What is our influence on the young hearts in our class? "Every one in my class for Christ," should be the motto of every Sunday school teacher. All should do the best they can in Christ's work. This was illustrated by the usefulness in their various spheres of the sun, electric light, gas jet and candle, all doing their best where they had been placed.

Rev. J. G. Potter voiced the feelings of all Christian people, and especially the Sunday school workers in their loss by the removal of Rev. Dr. Symonds from our midst. He moved a vote of the hearty appreciation of the Sunday School Union in the work done for them by Rev. Dr. Symonds.

This was seconded by Rev. J. G. Wilson.

Rev. Dr. Symonds said that during the nine years of his life in Peterborough he had tried to do his duty. When one looks back over the past it brings up feelings of pain as well as of pleasure. Separation here is the natural result in our life but the greater question is are we doing right in our life? His connection with S. S. work had been a help to him. He then gave a few farewell words to Sunday school workers. The essentials of Christian work must be grasped — simplicity is not shallow but deep and clear. We want to be constantly going on, learning all the time to make clearer the truth; never stand still. The Doctor supported the idea of house to house visitation very strongly. The joining of hands in Christian work is what we want. He spoke of the need of patience in Sunday school work; if we look at our work in piece-meal we will get discouraged; look at it in a larger view. Do not always be looking for results, but go on, even in the face of every difficulty. Christ Himself had these difficulties; even His disciples forsook Him, but His work was not a failure. Apparent failure is sometimes a proof of success. Let us do our duty where we are placed, so that we can hear the words, like the woman of old, "she hath done what she could."

The following officers were elected:

Pres.—T. W. Robinson.

Sec-Treas.—A. J. Johnston.

These officers and the Superintendent of each school to form the executive of the Sunday school Union.

Rev. J. G. Potter, County President, reported the work being done in the country.

After singing, prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Symonds.

Rev. J. G. Potter will take charge of the Sunday School lesson at the teachers' meeting next Friday night, and Mr. Jeffries will continue the discussion of the question, "Teachers, and their Qualifications." At the close of that meeting the new executive will meet for the purpose of appointing committees, etc.

WORLD'S GREATEST RIDERS.

Famous Equestrians With Ringling Bros.' Popular Big Circus This Season.

The thousands who attend Ringling Brothers' Circus when it exhibits in Peterborough, on Friday, June 14th, will not only see the most numerous company of high-class equestrians ever brought together under one management, but also the greatest lady rider that the world has ever produced. Miss Amelia Feeley, who has been especially imported by Ringling Brothers for their grand equestrian conclave this season, has never before appeared in this country, but in England and upon the continent she has taken the public by storm. Even in France and Germany, noted for their great riders, she easily surpassed all rivals, and was universally crowned "Queen of the Arena." Petite, pretty, graceful, and admirably fitted by nature for the difficult role she essays, she is the very embodiment of skilful, high class equestrianism. She is as much at home upon the back of a swiftly moving horse as the most graceful dancer upon the stage. She poses and pirouettes, trips with dainty feet the most intricate figures of the dance, executes difficult manoeuvers in horsemanship, leaps upright upon the back of her superb, blooded horse, while speeding around the ring at breakneck speed, and in a thousand other ways demonstrates her surpassing skill as the world's leading horsewoman. Miss Feeley is in admirable company for she is surrounded by an absolutely unequalled congress of high-salaried riders. John Rooney, who heads the list of male riders, is the undisputed champion of the world, and has no successful rivals, either in this country or in Europe. His riding is the acme of grace, daring and agility. He has been well called Ireland's hero horseman. The long list of other riders, every one of whom is a high-class, high-salaried artist, includes the famous Spanish rider Senorita Julia Lowande; the beautiful and graceful German equestrienne, Miss Augusta Fredericks; the Great Millers, whose whirlwind double jockey act has created a sensation; the dainty and versatile Lizzie Rooney, William de Van, Dan Leon, and not least, Albert Crandall, the clown rider, whose burlesque riding act upon the back of a mule, adds an element of fun as well as novelty to the display of equestrian cleverness. This company of great riders represents a fortune in salaries, but nothing is too expensive for Ringling Brothers when the entertainment of the public is concerned. This is evidenced by the hundreds of other star features presented in the great three ring circus performance, which introduces an army of acrobats and aerialists, forty merry making clowns, colossal displays of trained animal intelligence, including a new great elephant act, in which 20 of these great animals perform together at one time in one ring, and a magnificent sixty-one horse act; and and more other new, novel and original features than all other shows combined could offer. The only girraffe on exhibition is with this show.

MILITARY MATTERS.

Need of More Signal Corps—Loads for Cavalry Horses too Heavy.

A fairly large number of soldiers went out to the ranges this afternoon the six companies of the 57th Regiment being well represented. Every Saturday afternoon the ranges are well patronized and there is no doubt that this important feature of military training has been gone into very enthusiastically this year. Lieut. Cameron has been appointed instructor in Musketry and has been most attentive at the ranges each Saturday.

The cadets of the Collegiate Institute are drilling very diligently these days in anticipation of their annual inspection, which will take place in the course of a week or ten days. The cadets, while up very well in their work, are not quite up to the standard of last year's corps. This is owing to the fact that each year the size of boys that attend the Collegiate Institute appears to be getting smaller and at the present time the cadets do not possess the stalwart youths that were a prominent characteristic of last year's soldier boys of the Collegiate. The class will drill under Instructor A. W. McPherson on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings after school. The officers of the cadets are as follows,—Captain Percy Campbell, 1st Lieutenant Hamilton Munro, 2nd Lieutenant Bert Leahy. The Sergeants are Messrs. Norman Cameron, Peter Sweeney and Claud Rogers. The class has a parade state of about 25.

Sergeant-Major Brittain, the very efficient non.-com. of the 57th Regiment, has been again asked to accept a position on the staff of the 5th Brigade Camp at Kingston, commencing June 18th. Sergeant Major Brittain intends accepting the offer and there is every reason to believe that he will fulfill his duties in the same competent manner as he has heretofore done.

Captain Ronald A. Cockburn, for several years adjutant of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, and who about a year ago left this country to accept a commission in the Western African Constabulary, has left his post for England, and it is said intends returning to Canada.

It is reported that Lieutenant-Colonel H. S. Greenwood, commanding officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, has forwarded his resignation to the Militia Department at Ottawa, and that the announcement of his retirement and the promotion of Major Sulton, of Millbrook, to the command of the regiment may be looked for any day. Lieut.-Colonel Greenwood intends permanently residing in South Africa.

Mr. G. H. Williamson, local general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., will again along with Mr. Wilkie, have charge of the Y.M.C.A. tent at the Military Camp which opens in Kingston on Tuesday, June 18th. As a rule the Y.M.C.A. quarters do not open up until the military men have settled down for a day or two. It is, however, Mr. Williamson's intention to be on the ground at the start this year. Those having any letter writing to do or those desiring to spend a pleasant evening while at camp can find no better place than at the Y. M. C. A. tent. Mr. Williamson became exceedingly popular with Tommy Atkins last summer all of whom will be pleased to know that he is going down again.

Some years ago, says the Canadian Military Gazette, there were quite a number of signal corps in connection with the different regiments, but for some reason unknown they appear to have dropped out, and now the corps with signallers can easily be counted on the fingers of both hands. The subject is one of much moment—especially so in view of its extremely useful aid to the forces in South Africa—and should be adopted into the Canadian militia without undue delay. There are many things, certainly that our volunteer force still lacks before it reaches the self-contained stage where it could take the field complete in every detail. Bearer companies, engineer companies, army service details—all are in the embryonic stage. True, these latter have been authorized by Parliament, and are now in progress of organization, but considerable time must elapse before these units can be available for army purposes. In the meantime signalling is looming large as a military requisite. Its utility and worth in the Cape campaign cannot be overestimated. No army is fit to take the field without its complement of signallers, and therefore the first arm of Canada's defence should have them on the establishment. It takes time, of course, to train the signaller, and for that reason, the quicker it is introduced the better for the force and country.

Capt. Bruce Carruthers in a lecture before the R. M. C. Club at Kingston, said: To visual signalling is given the burden of the work of providing an army with a means of receiving and conveying intelligence and orders under varying circumstances as it fulfills the most important conditions, and for that reason I lay particular stress on it. Never has greater use been made of this system than during the war in South Africa, and I quote some remarks of our Brigadier-General Smith-Dorrien, whose opinion all military men are bound to respect, in order to impress on you the value of the art of signalling. My first experience with the Brigadier was on the march from Graspan to Paardeberg. I was attached to his staff on one particular day in charge of signallers, when two of our company under Lieut.-Col. Buchan were ordered to search some kopjes on the left bank where the enemy were reported to be. The General at once asked me, "Are there signallers with those companies?" I replied, "Yes Sir." "Good!" he said. "I lay it down as a principle that whenever a body of troops is detached from the main column, either on the move or on the halt, signallers should always accompany them in order that instant communication may be established." He then continued. "I never tire out the horses of my staff in conveying orders and collecting reports when signallers can be used. Now Sergeant, do not forget this." I can assure you, gentlemen, I did not forget these instructions, difficult as it was at times to provide trained men, for our numbers were few. I found the same value was attached to signalling by other generals throughout the country. No matter how large or how small were the detached bodies it was insisted upon that signalling communications should be established with headquarters."

Many months ago when the present war in South Africa was still young, says the United Service Gazette, we called attention to the grevious overburdening of the British troop horse, and pointed out the necessity of lightening the load carried, if our cavalry was to render adequate service as cavalry during the campaign. The events of the war have shown that our predictions, that, unless the evils we mentioned was remedied, our cavalry would prove practically useless in the phases the campaign was then entering upon, were but too well founded. Other causes, to which we may refer later on, have doubtless contribute to the ineffectiveness of the British cavalry in South Africa, but none perhaps in so great a degree as the excessive overloading of the horses. From a contribution to the Times, by a cavalry officer, who, after being several days on the move treking after DeWet, had carefully weighed up a saddle and everything a man carries, we now learn that; without including three days food at 8 lbs. per horse per day, and the grocery and biscuit rations for the men, which were frequently also carried, and assuming the weight of the man dressed in khaki with boots and spurs to be 11st. 12lbs., the British cavalry horse in South Africa has to carry no less than 20st. 11lb. and 1 oz. As the average load on the horses in DeWet's commando was something but very slightly over 12st. it is no small wonder that we have not yet caught the Boer leader.

"Had we had," the same writer continues, "a lightly equipped cavalry force mounted on horses that were in condition to gallop, the end of the war would be in sight." But as a matter of fact, not only have our horses been overburdened, but for the most part they have certainly not been in galloping condition. When our cavalry regiments arrived in South Africa with their horses suffering from the results of a month's confinement on board ship, they were hurried up to the front, while remounts arriving at Cape Town were similarly sent forward, or, if left at the depots, were put on short rations of corn, etc., because they were not in full work. Can it then be a mater for surprise that horses in no sort of condition, carrying 20st., or when ration were taken some couple of stone more, have not been able to catch DeWet, nor in the earlier part of the war to take advantage of the many golden opportunities which have offered themselves for the effective action of efficient cavalry."

SAD STORY OF THE FIRST SOUTHERN GIRL TO WED ROYALTY.

By Judson Carlisle.

At this period, when so many alliances are projected between the daughters of America's financial nabobs and the scions of European royalty, the mind naturally reverts to possibly the first, and undoubtedly the most famous and romantic, marriage of this character that the social annals of this country records.

Just a century ago lacking two years Jerome Bonaparte, the brother of the great Napoleon, was on a pleasure tour in America. A dashing captain of the French navy, bearing a name surrounded by a halo of witchery which was then exciting the interest and awe of the political world, young Jerome was necessarily a social lion. While his emperor brother was planning military and diplomatic enterprises which were destined to change the political geography of the world this unsophisticated youth was unwittingly succumbing to the winsome wiles of a brilliant and ambitious American girl soon to become his estranged wife—a woman who, it has been bravely asserted, would have changed the fortunes of France had she been the consort of the emperor himself. This girl was Elizabeth Patterson, the daughter of William Patterson, of Baltimore, one of the wealthiest citizens of this continent. Vivacious, beautiful, accomplished, ambitious, headstrong, she was accorded the foremost place among all the belles who graced the many social functions at the national capital and other centers in that historic period.

Mutual admiration was the result of the first meeting of Jerome and Miss Patterson. Soon the courtship excited the attention of the young lady's family, and her father emphasized his disapproval by sending her away. Separation did not prevent frequent communication between the lovers, and the determined young woman made known her purposes to her irate father by stating, "I love Jerome Bonaparte, and I would rather be his wife if only for one day than make the happiest marriage in the world." She soon returned to Baltimore, and within four months after they first saw each other, on Dec. 23, 1803, the youthful lovers were married by the Catholic bishop of Baltimore.

The wedding was an international sensation and was followed by festivities and hospitalities planned on a royal scale. An extensive tour for those days through the New England and middle states was signalized by unexampled ovations in the fashionable world. In the glamour and enthusiasm of democratic festivities the eventuality of royal disfavor was sadly discounted.

The father of the bride had already received warnings that the marriage would not meet with Napoleon's sanction and that his approval would be necessary to any happy or peaceful alliance.

The brother of the bride was immediately dispatched to London and Paris armed with necessary credentials from Washington to invoke the aid of our representatives abroad to effect a conciliation with Emperor Napoleon. James Monroe, the minister at the court of St. James, and Livingston at Paris exhausted the agencies of diplomacy in their efforts, but to no avail. Proposals were made to the emperor that a munificent bounty would be provided for Jerome. Finally a promised reconciliation was secured from Jerome's mother and all the family except that most important personage, the emperor, who remained ominously silent. This silence was painfully broken in about four months when the emperor sent peremptory orders to the French consul general in America to withhold Jerome's supplies and prohibiting all French vessels from receiving on board the "young person" with whom Jerome was consorting. He sent word to Jerome that if he would return to France without Miss Patterson "the error of the moment" would be overlooked.

In the meantime the brother, Robert Patterson, wrote home and warned Elizabeth against coming to France, as the wrath of Napoleon was very bitter. Before the warning was received the young couple had already sailed for Portugal. French and English vessels, which had for weeks watched for every ship which might possibly have the young couple on board, were fortunately evaded.

Jerome left his young bride at Lisbon and proceeded to Paris alone. History merely conjectured as to how he was received. Very soon the young wife left Lisbon under advice from Jerome and sailed for Amsterdam in the same vessel in which she left America. Her vessel, the Erin, was not allowed to land. After a week's waiting the Erin sailed for England, and the fair but disconsolate bride was landed at Dover. From thence she went to London, and on July 7, 1805, she gave birth to a son. After many months of harrowing suspense she began to realize the treachery of her husband.

Napoleon absolutely refused to acknowledge the marriage as valid and offered a pension of 60,000 francs a year for the support of "Miss Patterson," as he called her, if Jerome would persuade her to return to America and abandon the name of Bonaparte.

The emperor had already requested the pope to publish a bull annulling Jerome's marriage. This the pope refused to do. Immediately Napoleon had the imperial council pass a decree of divorce. Jerome was created a prince of the empire and advanced to the rank of admiral. Efforts were made to marry him to a European princess.

As late as October, 1805, Jerome still continued to write to his bride, avowing his unchangeable love, but events disproved his loyalty, for in less than four years after his nuptials in Baltimore his final abandonment of his faithful American bride was confirmed by his marriage to Princess Catherine of Wurttemberg. The marriage was celebrated with great pomp and the approval of the emperor. The newly married couple immediately proceeded to Westphalia, of which Jerome had only recently been made king.

The disconsolate bride and her infant son had returned to Baltimore. Her life imbittered and her spirit envenomed, she found no satisfaction in living except in ambitious hope for the offspring of her treacherous royal husband.

Her love for Jerome was transformed into hate and contempt. Jerome offered her a title as princess and a dower of 200,000 francs, which she refused. When he learned that she had accepted a smaller pension from the emperor and rejected one from him so much larger, he requested a reason for her doing so. She replied sarcastically, "I prefer to hide under the wing of an eagle rather than hang from the neck of a gosling." Again Jerome advised her that she might have a home in Westphalia. She sent him the reply, "Your kingdom may be large, but it is not large enough for two queens."

Her fame for wit and repartee was international. There were a cutting vein of sarcasm and a pithiness of humor that made her conversation interesting by its brilliant and reckless maliciousness. When she was ruthlessly shut out from the regal circles to which her husband belonged, it imbittered her against the democratic herd. Nevertheless when she visited Europe she was the toast of the salons and the center of attraction in court and diplomatic circles.

She never saw her husband but once after he left her at Lisbon. Years afterward Jerome was in the gallery of the Pitti palace, in Florence, when Mme. Bonaparte was also a visitor. Jerome recognized her as she silently walked by, and he whispered to his other wife, Catherine, "That lady is my former wife." The recognition was mutual, but no words were interchanged, and they never saw each other again.

Her son developed a wonderful likeness to his famous uncle, the emperor, and she lived in the hope that the revival of the empire would reinstate the Napoleonic dynasty and that her son would be accorded his just position in the royal household. When the republic was overthrown in 1852 and the empire re-established, she made a desperate effort to secure the recognition of the validity of her marriage and the legitimacy of her son. Jerome entered a plea to the council of state demanding that "Jerome Patterson" should be prohibited from using the name of Bonaparte. The council decided that he was a legitimate child and entitled to the name, but did not recognize him as a member of the royal family.

Mme. Bonaparte lived to the ripe old age of 94, and her latter years were characterized by eccentricities innumerable. By parsimonious economy she accumulated a large estate, but her vitriolic temperament held at a distance many who admired her beauty, virtue and even her vaulting ambition.

I stood beside her grave only a few hours after she was laid to rest, and I could not help contrasting her madly romantic mesalliance with a royal traitor with the sweet love matches that have made the happy homes of a great republic.—Sunny South.

Yet She Was Popular In Her Day.

Mr. Augustine Birrell once incautiously purchased the works of Hannah More, 19 fat volumes of them, for something like $2.25. They became a nuisance, and he was puzzled as to how to get rid of them. "As for selling them, it is not so easy to sell 19 volumes of a stone dead author, particularly if you live three miles from a railway station and do not keep a trap."

Mr. Birrell resorted to a desperate expedient: "I had to do something, and quickly, too, for sorely needed was Miss More's shelf. So I buried the 19 volumes in the back garden. 'Out of sight, out of mind,' said I cheerfully, stamping them down." He will not dig them up again. "I shall leave them where they are, buried in a cliff facing due north, with nothing between them and the pole but leagues upon leagues of a hungry ocean."—New York Tribune.

Maddened by Solitude.

The Canadian northwest is a probationary haven for wealthy young Englishmen of nomadic instincts. Numbers of them annually purchase hunting and camping outfits from the Hudson Bay company and strike into the barren lands to prospect for minerals or take up land on the prairies. But most often they return to the civilization of the towns with nothing but hard words for the wilderness.

The construction of the Temiscaming railroad induced the younger son of one wealthy English family to take a trip into that outlandish district. He returned to Ottawa a disappointed man. "It's the most desolate country you can imagine," he said to his friends. "I have been out prospecting sometimes for a whole day without seeing a sign of animal life. Once the only living thing I came across was a bird, and it was so disgusted that it was trying to knock its brains out against a tree."

He had seen a woodpecker.

Old Gooseberry For New Ships.

It may be ungenerous to dispel a popular delusion, but there is no one among the thousands who witness a ship launch who does not believe that the beautifully garlanded bottle of wine broken against the stem of a ship is anything but the choicest brand of champagne drawn from the admiral's cellar. Whenever a ship is launched in a dockyard, the admiralty generously allow £40 as the cost of the jubilation, and included in this sum of £40 is the item of 3 shillings for wine. Hence it follows that not only is the wine not drawn from the admiral's cellar, but it certainly is not champagne of foreign vintage.—English Navy and Military Record.

He Was Cautious.

Wederly—The doctor says I must take more exercise. Do you think I ought to begin with dumbbells?

Mrs. Wederly—Suppose for a starter you come out with me this afternoon and wheel the baby carriage?

Wederly—I—er—really, Mary, I couldn't think of it. I don't want to overdo the thing the first day.—Chicago News.

SNAKE, EGGS AND A JUG.

A Moccasin's Appetite and Lack of Sense Led to His Death.

A party of Jacksonville mechanics were at work on the Matanzas river raising a sunken dredgeboat. They lived on board of the big lighter on which they worked in a small house on the deck. One noon their bill of fare was somewhat strengthened by some wild turkey eggs which had been found by some of the party while hunting on shore. After the hungry engineers had destroyed a heavy dinner they left their dining room and returned to work. The doors and windows were all open, and the cook did not clear off the table for some time.

In this interval a large water moccasin of near six feet crawled on board the lighter and wriggled into the dining room through the open door. In his prospecting tour he climbed the table leg, and here, with a snake's fondness for eggs, he went in for a feast. One of the turkey eggs lay alone by a plate, and the rest were in a dish on the other side of the table. In the center stood a large water jug, and right here the wily serpent slipped up. After swallowing the lonesome egg, he started for the main supper and in his artless manner crawled through the handle of the jug. It was a rather tight fit, and he had to stop about half way through on account of the egg, which enlarged him somewhat. So, stretching forward, he bolted another egg and thereby fastened himself.

On each side of the jug handle was an egg on his inside, and he could move neither backward nor forward, practically riveted in position. He was soon found in this peculiar situation by the cook, who speedily killed him.

The reporter was shown the skin of the snake with a crease still in the middle from the tremendous pressure, and he was also permitted to gaze on the jug whose handle proved so fatal.

BACK TO HEALTH.

THROUGH THE KINDNESS AND PERSISTANCE OF A FRIEND.

An Every-day Story That Will Bring Health and Happiness to Young Girls Who Act Upon the Advice Given.

From the Sun, Orangeville, Ont.

In every part of Canada are to be found grateful people who cheerfully acknowledge that the good health they enjoy is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the town of Orangeville there are many such people, among them being Miss Lizzie Collins, an estimable young lady who resides with her mother in the east ward. Miss Collins' cure through the use of this medicine, was recently brought to the attention of the Sun, and a reporter was sent to get the facts from the young lady. Miss Collins cheerfully accorded the interview and her statement is given practically in her own words: "Two years ago," said she, "I became so weak that I was forced to take to bed. The illness came on gradually; I found myself much run down, suffered from headaches, and was as pale as it was possible for a living person to be. I used several medicines, but they did not help me. Then I consulted a doctor and he said that I had scarcely any blood, and that my condition was one of danger. Medicine did not seem to do me any good and I found myself growing weaker. I reached the stage where my heart kept palpitating violently all the time. The headaches became continuous, and my condition one which words can scarcely describe. I really despaired of getting better, and loathed the sight of medicine. I had been confined to bed for about two months when one day a friend called and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I told her I had lost faith in all medicines, but she was apparently determined I should try the pills for she brought me about half a box she had been using herself. I could not do less than try the pills, and when they were used, while I cannot say that I felt much better, I had more confidence in the pills, and got half a dozen boxes. Before these were gone there was no doubt that they were rapidly restoring me to my old time health, as I was soon able to sit up and then be around and out. I used in all eight or nine boxes and before these were gone I felt as though I had never had an ache or pain in my life. That is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me, and I think I would be very ungrateful if I did not add my testimony for the benefit it may be to some other young girl."

Miss Collins' story should bring hope to many thousands of other young girls, who suffer as she did. Those who are pale, lack appetite, suffer from headaches, and palpitation of the heart, dizziness, or a feeling of constant weariness, will find renewed health and strength in the use of a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers, or sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Powley's Liquified Ozone Saves the Life of Mrs. Sampson's Baby.

"I had given up hope of raising my darling, but through Ozone she is healthy."—Mrs. Sampson, 391 Church St., Toronto.

"My baby was nearly a skeleton from indigestion, and I could not get anything to stay on her stomach, and I had given up hope of raising my darling, when by merest chance I was advised to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I had not given her the Ozone for two days when all vomiting ceased, and in one month I scarcely knew my child, so great was the change. It is now two months since I first started giving her the Ozone, and her picture is proof of the work it has done. Mothers who desire their babies to live would profit by giving them Ozone. Any mother wishing to verify this can do so by calling or writing to my address, 391 Church street, Toronto, and find living proof.

You should be so careful of your child's health. You can easily make or mar its future happiness. Don't give drugs or medicines when the little one is sick. They are not the natural way to treat disease. Their action is to either stunt or deform. Now Nature's health-giving element is oxygen. There's not much oxygen in the city air—too many factories belching up carbonic acid gas for that, so you will have to resort to artificial oxygen. This you will get in Powley's Liquified Ozone—the new system of curing disease.

If you want our literature or any information, write the Ozone Company, of Toronto, Limited, 43 Colborne Street, Toronto.

USE YOUR OWN IDEAS

LEARN A LESSON FROM THE WISDOM OF NAPOLEON.

The Fear of Critics Did Not Disturb That Hard Headed Man, and He Accomplished Things That Others Declared to Be Impossible.

If you suggest a new and a good idea to ten men, this will happen:

Five of the ten will reject the idea—first, because it is new, and, second, because they themselves did not think of it.

The next three will consider the suggestion vaguely, be faintly impressed with it, but reject it. They will say that they think the idea not feasible. In reality they will be incapable of the mental effort necessary to grasp fresh mental processes.

The ninth—very probably—will tell you that some one else tried the idea before. That "some one else" failed. Therefore you will fail, and he will waste no time on what has been tried vainly.

If your tenth man happens to be a strong man, he will make as much of the idea as circumstances will permit.

If he has Napoleon's character, he will realize the scheme despite circumstances, for this was one of his true sayings: "Circumstances—I make circumstances."

He did not boast when he said things of that sort. There was no "boast" in him. He said what was true.

You think of Napoleon as a flashing, flaming genius. In reality he was first of all a man of common sense. He saw things in their true proportions.

Mme. d'Houdetot said of him, "He contracts history and expands imagination." And Lord Dudley said: "He has thrown a doubt on all past glory. He has made all future renown impossible."

It is difficult, either with cold detailing of facts or wildest indulgence in hyperbole, to magnify Napoleon's material achievements.

But remember that his greatness, best understood by himself, is attributed by him—first, to his common sense, and, second, to the fact that he refuses to consider another's failure any proof that he must fail.

Read Napoleon's campaigns. Napoleon won all his battles as, if you win, you will win yours. He won his victories by studying his adversaries. He prepared for victory by ignoring the fears and doubts of others, relying on his own courage and common sense.

You know that Napoleon crossed the Alps with an army in the dead of winter. You have seen pictures of him absurdly posed in a snowstorm on the edge of a precipice on a draggle tailed horse, an eagle flying overhead. But he did not pose. If there was a precipice, he kept away from it, and he took his achievement calmly.

Many of the ablest military writers had said and proved to the satisfaction of all but Napoleon that the Alps could not be crossed in winter. Had not those Alps kept back the savage hordes through centuries of winter?

Napoleon, perfectly well knowing that he was the greatest of men in military wisdom, rejected all talk and studied the case for himself. Then he crossed the Alps quite easily as he had mapped out the work. And when it was done he talked of it in common sense fashion.

"The winter," says Napoleon, "is not the most unfavorable season for the passage of lofty mountains. The snow is then firm, the weather settled, and there is nothing to fear from avalanches, the real and only danger to be apprehended in the Alps. On those high mountains there are often very fine days in December, of a dry cold, with extreme calmness in the air."

Quite simple it was, you see, and Napoleon did it quite simply.

When Napoleon appeared, if anything was settled in the minds of men and especially of fighters it was this: That nothing new remained to be discovered in war. Napoleon, just for a change, did everything new.

The general who tried to get hold of him felt as this humble writer once felt when he tried to catch a lobster under a shelving rock in the English channel and caught by mistake a middle sized devilfish that had gone in after the lobster ahead.

A little training will teach you to seize a lobster before he can seize you. But such training is useless when you surprise a devilfish. The men of war who dealt with Napoleon went lobster hunting and found a devilfish.

Other generals, for instance, were guided, terrified and controlled by their commissaries. Napoleon ignored his in his usual calm way. He says:

"What creates great difficulty in the profession of the land commander is the necessity of feeding so many men and animals. If he allows himself to be guided by the commissaries, he will never stir."

Our doubts and fears and mental timidity are the "commissaries" that keep so many of us from stirring or winning.

Let Napoleon teach you to form your own conclusions, work out your own problems and not tremble before that old bugaboo "impossible." Only the man who tries new things adds new things to the world's wealth and knowledge. Be, like Napoleon, among those who try. Emerson wrote:

"We cannot in the universal imbecility, indecision and indolence of men sufficiently congratulate ourselves on this strong and ready actor who took occasion by the beard and showed us how much may be accomplished by the mere force of such virtues as all men possess in less degrees—namely, by punctuality, by personal attention, by courage and thoroughness."

A TORONTO CASE.

In Which Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills Cured Lame Back.

Mr. P. Sheridan was the Sufferer—Doctors Failed to Help Him—Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills Cured Him Permanently

We are all liable to meet with an accident any day, and the most dangerous consequences are apt to follow even a slight injury, especially to the back. A case in point is that of Mr. Peter Sheridan, 218 Richmond street west, Toronto. Had it not been for Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills Mr. Sheridan might have been permanently crippled. Read his story:

"Six years ago I sustained a severe injury to my back through a fall. I could not lift the least weight without pain, and my back ached all the time. Several physicians treated me, but as soon as I quit taking their medicine I would be as bad as ever. I also used various patent medicines, "kidney cures," oils, liniments, etc., without the least benefit. I wore a truss for months, but it did no good. Three months ago I was told of Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills, and purchased a box, which did me more genuine good than all the medicines I had previously taken. I have used in all five large boxes, and they have cured me absolutely. My back is as strong as ever, and I am in perfect health. I shall gladly answer all questions regarding my case. A trial will convince."

Beating the Mails.

"The cheapest man I ever knew?" said the postman. "His name was John Smith, and he was cheaper than pins on bargain day. He used to get letters from his brother-in-law and would open the envelope by holding it over a teakettle. Then he would take out the letter and read it, write an answer, put the answer in the same old envelope and seal it up again. This done, he would take it to the postoffice, explain that the letter couldn't possibly belong to him, and he didn't want to open another man's mail. Of course as his brother-in-law's five day return card was on the envelope the postoffice officials would send it back."

Fish and the Alphabet.

Perhaps the funniest thing to be told respecting the antiquity of fishing relates to the holy wars which were waged in ancient Egypt over the finny denizens of the water, the conflicts arising from the circumstance that, as often happened, one tribe would insist with the utmost irreverence upon eating up the fishes which the inhabitants of an adjoining territory held in divine adoration.

The child of today, in learning his alphabet, calls the letters by their names simply because the ancient Phœnicians were pleased to make similar figures the symbols of certain sounds, and it is thought very likely that the Phœnicians have been driven to invent that alphabet by the necessity of corresponding with peoples of various tongues incidentally to the great commerce which grew out of the fishery.

LAND OF THE MAPLE.

ONE-THIRD OF DOMINION OF CANADA PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN.

Offers Golden Opportunities for the Seeker After Adventure in New Lands—Contents of the Last Report of the Director of Geological Survey of the Dominion Government.

Explorers need not go far from home to find a field for the plying of their vocation. The wilds of Africa, the interior of China, the mountain fastnesses of South America, the ice-clad fields of Greenland are all as well known as is a vast portion of Canada, if one is to judge from the report of the Director of the Geological Survey of the Dominion Government. In his last report he says:

"There are more than 1,250,000 square miles of unexplored lands in Canada. The entire area of the Dominion is computed at 3,450,257 square miles, consequently one-third of this country has yet been untraveled by the explorer. Exclusive of the inhospitable detached Arctic portions, 954,000 square miles is for all practical purpose entirely unknown."

The same report gives a careful analysis of this broad statement and proves the truth of it. The director begins at the far northwestern point of the British possessions in America and outlines the unexplored portions of the country from there to the Labrador peninsula. To the geographical student the report contains some startling and interesting statements. For instance, it is said that there is a vast tract of land lying to the south and east of James Bay of which practically nothing is known. That territory is within a radius of 500 miles of Toronto; it is not as far north as is Prince Albert and Edmunton, in the Western Provinces of the Dominion, where agriculture flourishes, and yet white men have scarcely penetrated its dense timber, and virtually nothing is known of its resources.

MAP OF A PORTION OF CANADA.
The shaded parts represent unexplored territory.

Beginning at the extreme northwest of the Dominion, the first of the unexplored areas is noted as being between the eastern boundary of Alaska, the Porcupine river and the Arctic coast, about 9,500 square miles in extent, or somewhat smaller than Belgium, and lying entirely within the Arctic Circle.

The next is west of the Lewes and Yukon rivers and extends to the boundary of Alaska. Until last year 32,000 square miles in this area was unexplored, but a part has since been traveled.

A third area of 27,00 square miles—nearly twice as large as Scotland—lies between the Lewes, Pelly and Stikine rivers. Between the Pelly and Mackenzie rivers is another large tract of 100,000 square miles, or about double the size of England. It includes nearly 600 miles of the main Rocky Mountain range.

An unexplored area of 50,000 square miles is found between Great Bear Lake and the Arctic coast, being nearly all to the north of the Arctic Circle. Nearly as large as Portugal is another tract between Great Bear Lake, the Mackenzie river and the western part of Great Slave Lake, in all 35,000 square miles. Lying between Stikine and Laird rivers to the north of the Skeena and Peace rivers to the south is an area of 81,000 square miles, which, except for a recent visit by a field party, is quite unexplored.

Of the 35,000 square miles southeast of Athabasca Lake, little is known, except that it has been crossed by a field party en route to Fort Churchill. East of the Coppermine river and west of Bathurst inlet lies 7,500 miles of unexplored land, which may be compared to half the size of Switzerland. Eastward from this, lying between the Arctic coast and Black's river, is an area of 31,000 square miles, or about equal to Ireland.

Much larger than Great Britain and Ireland, and embracing 178,000 square miles, is the region bounded by Black's River, Great Slave Lake, Athabasca Lake, Hatchet and Reindeer Lakes, Churchill River and the west coast of Hudson Bay. This country includes the barren grounds of the continent. Mr. J. B. Tyrell recently struck through it on his trip to Fort Churchill, on the Churchill River, but could only make a preliminary exploration. On the south coast of Hudson Bay, between the Severn and Attawapishkat Rivers, is an area 32,000 square miles in extent, or larger than Nova Scotia; and lying between Trout Lake and Lac Seul and the Albany River is another 15,000 square miles of unexplored land.

South and east of James Bay and nearer to large centres of population than any other unexplored region is a tract of 35,000 square miles, which may be compared in size to Portugal.

The most easterly area is the greatest of all. It comprises almost the entire interior of Labrador peninsula, in all 289,000 square miles, or more than twice as much as Great Britain and Ireland. Two or three years ago Mr. A. P. Lowe made a line of exploration and survey into the interior of this vast region, and the same gentleman also traveled inland up the Hamilton River, but with these exceptions the country may be regarded as practically unexplored.

It is hard to realize that these figures, representing immense tracts of virgin land that have never been explored or "prospected" by white men, mean. It is also hard to realize the truth of them. That a tract containing 7,000 square miles of territory could lie within comparatively a few miles of the city of Winnipeg, and with a great railroad running almost along its borders for a number of years, and yet be untouched by white men seems almost impossible. Trappers have probably been through much of this unexplored territory in the days when the Hudson Bay company was pursuing an active commercial campaign in the great territory deeded to them by the English crown. But they were seeking only for furs, and cared but little for the other resources of the land in which they were laboring. For that reason what they contain in natural resources is as yet a secret, but it will not long remain so. The government explorer and prospector is gradually pushing his way into these unknown lands, and the railroad is following the explorer.

The Government is offering liberal inducements for the construction of new roads that will help to open up these unexplored lands. Millions of acres of land are being given away to companies willing to risk a venture in railroad construction into the unexplored lands, and the indications are that during the next five years at least 5,000 miles of new railroad will be completed throughout the Dominion, most of which will run through the unexplored wilderness.

The mineral wealth of this unknown region is undoubtedly immense, and perhaps almost inexhaustible; while the dense forests of hardwood, now of so little value, will, when brought to the markets of the world, become a source of large profit.

"I did not sleep a night for seven long weeks."

That prolonged period of sleeplessness is most expressive of the pain and suffering caused by womanly diseases. It is pleasant to contrast the medical inefficiency which said "I could not be cured" with the prompt and permanent cure effected by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This great medicine for women establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr Pierce's medicines to other suffering women," writes Mrs. Mary Adams, of Grassycreek, Ashe Co., N. C. "I had internal trouble very badly until it resulted in ulcers of the uterus. I was troubled with it so that I did not sleep a night for seven long weeks. The doctors said I could not be cured, but I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets.' After taking two bottles I could sleep all night, and after taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of 'Pleasant Pellets' my case was cured. I had told my husband that I would have to die, as it seemed I could not live. He told me to put faith in Dr. Pierce's medicines, for it had cured others and would cure me. So it did, and I thank God and your medicine for saving my life."

Ambrosia, the God Food, Never Equalled MALT BREAKFAST FOOD.

Ambrosia, described as the food of the gods, never equalled Malt Breakfast Food in delicacy of flavour, deliciousness and appetising qualities. Malt Breakfast Food is specially recommended as a hot weather food. It does not heat the blood or cause eruptions of the skin as result from oatmeal and other foods. It agrees with the weakest stomachs of old and young. At all grocers.

Were There No Celts?

Anthropologists are pretty well agreed that there is not and probably never was a Celtic variety of man. "There is neither a Celtic type nor a Celtic race," says Deniker in his work, which is the latest word on the subject. There is a language which has come to be called Celtic by scholars, but a language may be spoken by any race that acquires it, and how or where Celtic originated is a mystery. There are some millions of people in Brittany and the British isles who still speak this tongue, but they all differ from each other in race, presenting the very extremes of the European peoples, and to call them Celts as if they belonged to one race, with the like physical and moral characters, is perniciously misleading and false.—London Globe.

What is a "Lich Gate?"

A lich gate is a shed, generally of oak, over the entrance of a churchyard, beneath which the bearers paused when bringing a body for interment.

Here the clergyman met the body and read the introductory part of the burial service as he preceded the funeral train into the church. Examples of old lich gates are still to be seen in many country churchyards. In Wales they are more modern and are usually built of stone.

Some of the old lich gates are formed with one wide door turning on a central pivot and self closing by means of a rude pulley wheel in the roof and a stone weight inclosed in an iron frame, a primitive but effective piece of machinery.

In Herefordshire they are also called "scallage," or "scallenge gates." "Lich gate" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon lich, a corpse; hence the north country "lich wake."—London Answers.

Children's Colds What's the use of dosing your child's stomach with all sorts of mixtures when it gets a cold; the trouble is not there at all. If you would just rub its little chest, throat, and back between the shoulders with Griffiths' Menthol Liniment you would cure it quicker. It penetrates and goes directly to where all the inflammation is.

Slaughter of the Innocents.

London, May 31.—A sensation has been caused at Birmingham by the discovery of thirty-one bodies of infants in a cellar beneath an undertaker's establishment. The bodies were in various stages of decomposition, and huddled together in soap boxes. The establishment was conducted by a widow, who, yesterday, was charged with causing the infants' deaths. The prisoner was remanded.

FOR THE CAMERA FIENDS.

A Writer in "Rod and Gun" Devotes Space to Peterborough.

Some Pretty Spots in the Vicinity Which Catch the Eye of the Amateur Photographer.

The May issue of Rod and Gun contains a sketch of Peterborough and vicinity from the amateur photographer's standpoint, from the pen of Percy S. Thornton. Rod and Gun is a Montreal publication, and has amongst its contributors some of Canada's most interesting writers. The sketch referred to is as appended:

Peterborough and the surrounding country offers many and varied opportunities for the camera enthusiast. In Jackson Park to the north-west of the town he will find many charming nooks. The Japanese bridge may be taken from several positions, giving an entirely different picture in each case. Then if he passes over the bridge, walking in a westerly direction, he will come to another bridge, and by crossing it and turning to his left, he will eventually come to a slight up-grade and will see, on looking back, the little bridge he has just crossed, with the road leading to it. This, with the stream and stone embankment on one side, with the dark pines filling in the picture to the left, and also forming part of the background, makes a very pretty view, and is well worth taking a shot at. There are many other views to be had in the park, but space will not permit of mentioning each one in particular.

A very fine bird's eye view of the park may be obtained by walking west along the railway track about an eighth of a mile and climbing the hill to the right.

After he has finished with Jackson Park and vicinity he will find many a fine bit of scenery along the Otonabee River. If he has a wheel the best thing to do is to go straight out Water street until he comes to Nassau, and on crossing the bridge there he will find a road running along the east side of the river. The road is nothing to brag about for wheeling—or anything else—but the views along it are of a wild and unsettled nature. The river itself is about as wild a stream as he could wish to see, but is somewhat spoiled from an artistic point of view by dams which have been placed at intervals across it, forming part of the Trent Valley Canal System. Continuing along this road he will eventually come to Lakefield, a village situated about twelve miles north of Peterborough, where he may take a steamer and sail up the river to its source.

The passage through the locks is quite interesting for one who has not had the experience before.

He will find the country getting wilder and wilder the farther north he travels. The steamer touches at a number of points in Stony Lake, which is studded with small islands, many of them being mere rocks jutting out of the water. A person unacquainted with these waters might easily get lost among the numerous channels separating the different islands. On the steamer's return to Lakefield he may take a train to Peterborough, or he may wheel back along a different road to that which he took on the trip up.

At Peterborough, if he cares for architectural subjects, he should pay his respects to St. John's Episcopal Church. A fine edifice, situated on the top of a hill, with ivy growing over its walls and tower. Being a Clergy Reserve Church it is of historical interest as well.

Crossing over to Ashburnham, then south around the eastern end of the lake, he will find a number of pretty little streams with clumps of woods along the banks. He may make a circuit of the lake by continuing south to the railway track, and crossing back to the Peterborough side, and will doubtless find some views which he will consider worth taking. The lake itself is quite picturesque, and if he watches his opportunity he may get some magnificent sunset views over it.

While in Peterborough he should not fail to take a trip to Chemong Lake, which is situated about seven miles to the northwest, and to which there is a stage running, if he should prefer it to wheeling. The road is fair for wheeling but somewhat hilly. He will find a park there in connection with an hotel, which is free to the public, and may if he wishes, refresh himself by taking a plunge in the lake—not to mention the hotel.

Speaking of wheels I might as well state that he can hire one in Peterborough for twenty-five cents for an afternoon, so it would not be necessary for him to take his own along if he did not wish to be bothered with it.

I would caution him to unscrew his lenses from the shutter and carry them in a case in his pocket as there is some danger of them unscrewing and getting spoiled. This of course refers to folding cameras having Unicum or similar shutters. I had an unpleasant experience in this way myself last summer. After wheeling about fifty miles I found I was unable to take a picture after all the trouble of taking the camera there, with the prospect of carrying it back the next day. Quite a lot of trouble for nothing, was it not?

There is also a steamer running down the river to Rice Lake, which I believe makes a very pleasant day's outing, although I cannot say from personal experience as I was unable to make the trip during my stay in Peterborough.

I must not close this article without mentioning the canoe industry. Some of the finest canoes in America are turned out there. They may be seen dotting the waters of Stony Lake, also the river below the city and add greatly to the interest of some of the views.

A person should be prepared to spend at least a week there, and I do not think he will regret having chosen a visit to Peterborough for his summer vacation.

RETURNING TO CANADA TO LIVE.

Hundreds Remove From New England Owing to Changed Conditions.

The return of French-Canadians from the manufacturing centres of the United States to the Province of Quebec is assuming very large proportions this spring. All the railways running from the New England states northward report a remarkable increase in this class of travel. It is not unusual nowadays for trains passing through Sherbrooke on their way from the south of the International boundary line to the French parishes of this Province to carry from 100 to 200 French-Canadians, who expatriated themselves some time ago, and who are now returning to the land of their birth.

Among the principal causes of this repatriation movement are the improved condition of things in the agricultural districts of Quebec, due to the better quality and higher prices in England of Canadian dairy produce, the inducements in the shape of free grants of land to the returning Canadians, offered by the Government of Quebec, the great demand for labor by the many new pulp and paper mills going up in all parts of the country and the depressed condition of the cotton market, which has thrown many operatives out of work in the manufacturing towns of the New England states. Several of the returning factory hands complain also that wages have fallen very considerably in Lawrence, Mass., and other New England towns on account of the competition offered by foreigners, who are described as literally swarming there, and who work for such low wages and under such conditions that even the comparatively cheap and easily satisfied French-Canadian operatives cannot afford to compete with them.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Mrs. McKinley is not yet out of danger, but improvement is looked for.

Another negro, Wiley Kirk, of Baltimore County, Md., was hanged on Friday for an assault.

Mrs. John Raferty, the wife of a farmer living near Wichita, Kan., sneezed herself to death on Friday.

Railway conductors have been ordered to prevent shantymen from the Quebec woods from boarding trains. This is to prevent the spread of smallpox.

A Harwich farmer named Snyder was seriously injured by a colt on Friday. The animal jumped at him, breaking his nose and some other bones in his face.

The French explorers, Mm. Reveaux and Lemonier, have been assassinated by an Italian named Gianone, in the Valley of Convencion, Peru. Gianone was afterwards killed by savage Indians.

Fred Williams, a colored youth, 16 years of age, gained an entrance to the G. T. R. Wabash ticket office in Chatham, Ont., on Thursday night and stole a quantity of railway tickets. He was caught in the act and promptly arrested.

At Lookout, Modoc County, Cal., Calvin Hall, his three sons and a young man living with Hall, were arrested for horse stealing. Friday night the five men were taken from custody by a mob of about 50 persons, and all were hanged.

The bodies of the three men who were drowned in Doe Lake, near Burk's Falls, have been recovered. Turner's body was found last week. Since then the bodies of both McFadyen and Blair have been found. All of them were in a badly decomposed state, but were recognizable.

The Exhibition and Waterworks bylaws were completely snowed under by the ratepayers of Toronto on Friday. For the Exhibition bylaw a total of 1,602 votes were cast, 505 for and 1,097 against. The number of votes cast for the Waterworks bylaw was 1,599, and of this number 438 were in favor of its passage and 1,161 against.

40 Strikers Were Killed.

London, June 1.—According to a despatch received from St. Petersburg yesterday, it appears that the conflict at Alexandrovsky, in the vicinity of St. Petersburg, between the strikers at the Obuchoff Iron Works and the authorities, May 20, when about 3,500 rioters attacked the police, had much more serious results than were contained in the police report of the affair, issued May 21. It was then said that, after 12 of the police had been injured, they were reinforced by soldiers, who fired three volleys, killing two men and wounding seven. The relatives of the strikers declare that 40 men were killed, and that 150 others were wounded.

The First Millionaire.

Who was the first millionaire? Solomon? But come down to earth in modern times. Solomon's wealth was fiction, like that of Croesus, Midas and the rest. Perhaps you remember Pope's lines—

When Hopkins dies, a thousand lights attend
The wretch who, living, saved a candle end.

John Hopkins was generally known as "Vulture" Hopkins from his rapacious method of acquiring money. He was the architect of his own fortune, dying worth $1,500,000 in 1732.

Willing to Hear of It.

A Methodist critic, wishing to put his bishop "in a hole," or, as Dr. William Everett would say, "to deposit him in a cavity," asked in open meeting whether or not the bishop came to the conference in a Pullman car.

"Yes," the bishop cheerfully replied. "Do you know any easier way?"—Boston Christian Register.

Unappreciated Efforts.

Unselfish goodness is seldom appreciated in this world of ours. There was that man in the electric car, for instance. Having rung up three fares in his efforts to stop the car for the lady that sat on the opposite side, he tossed after her the umbrella that belonged to the little gray whiskered man on his right. Neither the gray whiskered man nor the conductor liked the thoughtful Samaritan for his altruistic efforts.

School Teacher Administered Cream of Tartar and Warm Water.

New York, June 1.—Miss Margaret Rae, a school teacher, who withheld from the authorities information concerning the affliction of her parents with smallpox, whom she secretly nursed through the most severe part of the disease, at their home, No. 316 East 150th street, has been summoned by the Board of Health to explain her conduct.

"It is untrue that we had any physician," said Miss Rae last night. "I am not shielding any one. The treatment which brought about the recovery of my parents was very simple. It was simply a mixture of cream of tartar and warm water, and every day they received a sponge bath."

ROBBERY IN TORONTO.

Stylishly Dressed Women and an Eaton Employe Arrested.

Toronto, June 1.—As a sequel to the arrest of Fred Kennedy, employed in the transfer department of the Eaton store here the other day, Mack Morden, another employe of the company, was arrested yesterday for pilfering. And still another sequel was the arrest last night of three stylishly dressed young women, Mrs. Coulson, Rose McNichol and Mrs. Curtis, in the house of the first-named on Duchess street. The police made a five-hours' search of the house and were rewarded by finding a wagon load of costly furs, silks and other dress goods. Other arrests may follow.

STAGE DRIVER STATES HIS CASE

Experience of Both His Wife and Himself.

Each Has Tested the Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills—Each Has Achieved the Same Result—Dodd's Kidney Pills have Cured Them Both.

Dromore, Ont., May 29, (Special).—Mr. George Sackett drives the stage between Dromore and Holstein. That he is known throughout the country side goes without saying. When he was in trouble a short while ago he had the sympathy therefore of more than the few immediate friends and neighbours a man in another walk would have.

Mr. Sackett thought at one time he would have to give up the stage. Sitting up on the driver's seat day in and day out, rain or shine, hot or cold, he contracted a serious disorder. His kidneys became weakened from the continual exposure. They gradually gave him more and more trouble. He felt that he couldn't keep up much longer.

It is nine miles from Dromore to Holstein. That means a round trip of eighteen miles. Two trips a day would make thirty-six miles of driving. Imagine this in a wet driving snow storm of March or February to a man in a delicate state of health.

Mr. Sackett did not give up driving the stage. Instead he sought the help of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Did he find help? Read his own letter, a letter which tells also that his wife proved the truth of the saying "Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend."

"Having used other largely advertised remedies and all the medicines recommended to me by my friends for kidney trouble and excruciating backache without the slightest relief I was in despair. In the nick of time I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and can never be too thankful for the advice which prompted me to do so. They simply took hold of my trouble and lifted it off me. I never heard of anything which gives such instant relief.

"My wife owes even more to Dodd's Kidney Pills than I do. Her case was worse than mine. Mrs. Sackett would not be alive today only for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Both my wife and myself can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for they do what they are claimed to do."

SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experience, many men do not seem to realize this, but go about complaining of the heat, in underclothes that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, suspenders, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

A BITTER CONFLICT.

Machinists and Their Employers Now in Open Defiance.

ALL AGREEMENTS ABROGATED.

Administrative Council of National Metal Trades' Association, Employing 60,000 Workmen, Cancel Working Arrangements With International Association of Machinists—Latter's Convention in Toronto.

New York, June 3.—It is war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt, between the members of the National Metal Trades' Association and the machinists they employ—60,000 of the 150,000 men who are engaged in this industry in the country. Since the strike of the workmen began, weeks ago, the employers have been considering what course to pursue? They have now reached a decision, and they have announced it.

In its broadest sense it is bold defiance of every principle for which the International Association of Machinists, as the workers' organization is named, has stood. It abruptly abrogates every agreement which was in force between the employers and the workmen, it defines a line of action the submitting of which will mean that the workmen's association is an nonentity.

Without a waste of words, its results will be that a bitter war will be waged, that employer and workman cannot meet on the same plane hereafter; that one or the other must be victorious and survive, while the defeated must perish.

It was estimated that 40,000 men quit work on May 20, when the International Association began its fight for a nine-hour work day, with the same wages as had been paid for ten hours' work. The reports given out by the strikers were to the effect that many of the employers had acceded to their demands, and this cheered the non-union men, many of whom had stopped work when the order came to their fellows.

A Fruitless Conference.

After a few days, the employers asked for a conference, and this was held in the Astor House. To the men a proposition was made that they should return to work, after which other differences should be submitted to arbitration. The men refused to agree to this, and they were as far apart as ever from their employers. On Tuesday last the Administrative Council of the National Metal Trades' Association met in Chicago, and the result of that deliberation has just been made public by Henry T. Devens, the secretary.

It was a most radical action, especially when it is considered that the machinists had evinced their strength by closing some of the largest establishments in the country. It declares that the employers will not consider any previous agreement with the men binding hereafter, and that they will not recognize the union, but will deny the right of its officials to represent the employes in any matter under dispute.

To all conversant with the dispute, this means a battle which will not end until one side or the other has acknowledged defeat. There can be no compromise, if the employers refuse to accede. What the workers will do will not be known until today, when, in Toronto, the annual convention of the International Association of Machinists is held.

The strike and the defiance of the employers will be the principal topic of discussion, and upon the action of the convention will depend whether there shall be a long, bitter quarrel—with the result that a large proportion of the machinists in the country will be idle for months—or whether the men will acknowledge that they would prefer to return to work, in accordance with the terms stipulated by the employers. To take whatever further action may be necessary, a meeting of the employers will be held in the Gilsey House a week from next Tuesday.

THE MACHINISTS' ANSWER.

President O'Connell Says They Are Ready for the Fight.

Toronto, June 3.—At 10 o'clock this morning the annual convention of the International Association of Machinists will open in St. Andrew's Hall, and continue for 10 days. It is expected that from 350 to 400 delegates from all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico will be in attendance, and the business transacted will have an important bearing on the machinists' strike.

Out of 75,000 men who went on strike on May 20, settlements have been effected covering 50,000. Since May 20 there have been additional strikes affecting 10,000 men, and of these about 6,000 have returned to work.

The settlements made give the nine-hour working day to something like 110,000 men, in many cases the benefits for which the machinists contended being extended to all men in the shops.

Up to date 2,200 firms have signed satisfactory agreements.

Of the trouble in Chicago Mr. O'Connell said last night: The strike affects all the firms that haven't signed, whether they are members of the National Metal Trades' Association or not. One of the best features of the situation there is the fact that seven firms, employing 400 machinists, have signed, and some of these firms are members of N.M.T.A. This shows that the association is not united in a determination to oppose the demands of the machinists.

"We have absolutely no fear of their declaration of war upon our association, as we feel perfectly confident that we are capable of looking after our side of the fight. We are prepared to do battle with them. One of the principles of their 'declaration' is for a return to the ten-hour day, and as long as they adhere to that principle there will be trouble. The machinists have declared for a nine-hour working day, and until that is conceded there will be no peace between the employer and the employe. If necessary, we will put our whole forces in North America against the forces who combine against us. Two million organized workers in North America have pledged us their support in the successful inauguration of this movement."

RECEIVED BY THE KING.

Twenty-Two Wealthy Yankees Visit His Majesty in His Castle.

Windsor, Eng., June 3.—Twenty-two American gentlemen, dressed in the deep black of British court mourning, representing many millions of money and vast commercial interests, were the guests of King Edward on Saturday at Windsor. They were the delegates of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

After an inspection of the grounds, the delegates were taken to the East Terrace, where they were received by the King. They were surprised to find the Queen was also present, for her appearance was quite unexpected. With the King and Queen were the Princess Victoria and the children of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. Each delegate was formally presented to both the King and Queen, shaking their hands.

This ceremony over, the King asked the American visitors to replace their hats on their heads, and both he and the Queen then commenced to chat in the most friendly way with the little group.

Duke Takes Precedence.

Ottawa, June 3.—By special instructions of King Edward, in order that there may be no doubt in the matter of precedence as between the Duke of York and the Governor-General, when the former arrives in Canada, it is decreed that the Heir-Apparent, at all state functions, will be senior to Lord Minto. Without this order, the Governor-General, as the King's representative in Canada, would, by virtue of his office, take premier position.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says: "Hon. Mr. Stratton being a newspaper man, is a strong believer in publicity, and takes every opportunity to let the people know what the Provincial Government has done, and is doing. The extent of Ontario is not sufficiently understood, and Mr. Stratton is doing a valuable service in directing attention to this point. The general idea confines Ontario to the portion south of the Ottawa and Parry Sound Railway, whereas that portion could be dumped into either the Algoma or Temiscamingue District and be lost. Mr. Stratton will do much to broaden the views of Ontarians, and arouse them to the necessity of the work before them."

THE SANITARY PRODUCTION OF MILK.

The sanitary production of milk commences with healthy cows. This would seem to be a natural inference, and still it is surprising how little attention is given by even the more intelligent of our people to the health of their dairy cattle. This may be explained by the fact that an animal may be affected by several serious maladies whose presence cannot be readily detected by mere external examination. It is doubtless true, however, that very little thought has ever been given to this subject, and it has rarely occurred to many people that the milk of unhealthy animals could be vitiated by the forms of disease that might be present in the system. As a matter of fact, tuberculosis often conceals itself in an apparently healthy animal, and is credited with producing one death in every seven.

It should not be inferred from this that tuberculosis, as a disease, has been transmitted to the human family with such deadly effect, but in a good many well authenticated cases, and especially in those where the udder is affected, the cow has been directly responsible for the destruction of many human lives. It is important that more attention should be paid to questions concerning the health of dairy cattle, especially as tuberculosis is readily transmitted to infants, who are often fed on cow's milk of doubtful quality.

Food plays an important part in the production of milk. This would naturally be so, and still it is perfectly amazing to see the forms of mouldy, musty, hay, spoiled ensilage and weevil-eaten meal fed to dairy cows by people who should have better judgment. Many people seem to have the impression that the cow has a constitution of iron, and so long as she will continue to eat such food, it is all right to feed it. This system is entirely wrong, and the thoughtful dairyman can no more afford to feed his cows poor food than he could to use it in his own stable. Even granting that he is too dishonourable to appreciate the rights of others, he cannot follow this method without incurring heavy financial losses in his own business, as the continued use of such food will produce ill-health and the ultimate death of the cattle.

For example, feeding decayed ensilage has been known to produce chronic intestinal catarrh, for which there is no remedy. Various foods of this character upset the whole organism, and are often responsible for the development of latent inherited diseases that otherwise would have remained inactive in the system. The cow, as well as any other animal, must receive good, pure, wholesome food in abundance, and these must be properly adapted to her particular needs, if she is expected to produce good milk.

Stables are a serious menace to the production of healthy cows. These often remain uncleaned for days, and in many instances were never known to be disinfected. Many are low, practically devoid of sunlight, and are the home of molds and innumerable forms of bacteria, which have been multiplying with incredible rapidity for years past. The filthy, slimy conditions and the reeking odors emanating from such pestholes are almost enough to destroy confidence in humanity, and to make one seriously ponder on the marvellous vitality of a class of animals that can withstand exposure to such abnormal conditions.

There is no excuse for such a condition as this. Stables can be easily cleaned, and disinfectants are remarkably cheap. The use of lime alone would effect wonders under such circumstances, and at little cost. At least sufficient windows can be put in to let in sunshine, nature's most powerful disinfectant and 'destroyer of germ life. The decaying and germ infested mangers can easily be scoured out and sweetened and the stables supplied with fresh bedding. In this way the cows can be kept under wholesome conditions with a reasonable expenditure of muscular energy. If the dairyman, whose herd inhabits such a place, could realize the economy of better treatment for his animals marvellous changes would doubtless be wrought in short order.

Another frequent source of contamination of milk is pure water. Many people have the idea that if water comes from a spring it is of necessity pure, but do not stop to consider that this spring may have its source away back under the centre of a town whose drainage find its outlet through this channel. But this is no worse than allowing cows to drink from the filthy little streams around towns and cities whose waters are polluted with sewage, dyes and waste products from numerous factories. Nor is the condition much better in the country, where cows are forced to drink from the slimy waters of some stagnant pools within whose recesses the germs of diphtheria, typhoid and scarlet fever, frequently find a lurking place.

Since milk contains 87 per cent. of water, one can readily understand the large quantity necessary to the cow to supply the vital needs of her organization. It is a fact that many epidemics of scarlet and typhoid fever and diphtheria have been traced directly to the milk supply. This is a striking evidence of the criminal neglect of cattle owners who fail to furnish their animals with a pure and abundant water supply. It is quite brutal enought to expect the cow to live and thrive under such conditions without endangering the lives of a community by such unwarranted neglect.

If greater care was exercised in the washing and proper cleaning of dairy utensils, a frequent source of bad milk would be destroyed. In the first place many of these utensils are faulty in construction; they have angles and corners which are almost impossible to clean and many of the seams in them are not smooth soldered, and in these the milk accumulates and undergoes fermentation, thus insuring a constant source of infection, so long as this particular utensil is used. All milk vessels should have the fewest possible seams and should be so constructed as to be easily reached with a good, strong brush.

In cleansing them they should first be rinsed with cold water, then with lukewarm water, and finally scrubbed vigorously with hot water. Following this they should be thoroughly scalded and sterilized with steam and placed in the air and sun to dry. This method of treatment will prevent them from rusting and will not only insure clean utensils, but will make it possible to avoid that greasy condition so often found owing to the fact that the utensils are first plunged into hot water, which has the effect of setting the milk on the outside.

Then, greater care should be exercised in handling the milk in the stable. High ceiling with ample light should be the first characteristics sought in a stable. If possible, cement floors and iron stanchions should be used, but if wooden feeding troughs and racks are used they should be occasionally whitewashed, and above everything else, good ventilation should be provided so that a fresh draught of air will be constantly entering the room, and the foul odors escaping.

The cows should be carefully brushed off before milking. This not only aids circulation and benefits the animal's health and increases the milk flow, but it removes all the dirt and loose hairs which are often a source of contamination to the milk supply. The udder should be carefully wiped off and the milkers should be neat about their own persons. If the feeding is to be done before milking and a dry food such as shredded fodder to be used, it should be first moistened to prevent clouds of dust arising to settle later in the milk pail. The milk should be drawn into covered pails through a fine meshed strainer. A milk room separated from the stable should be provided and the milk immediately removed to that place, where it should run over a cooler to drive off the animal odors and to reduce the temperature.

Milk should receive careful handling because it is such a general and ideal food for all forms of animal life and especially so for the human being. In its pure form it is well adapted to the nourishment of young and old alike, and furnishes strength and nutrition to the healthy man and gives new life and vigor to the invalid. It is one of the few forms of food so concentrated and yet so easily digested that it can alone sustain human life for some length of time. It is an admirable brain food, and in many forms of disease is the only thing the afflicted one can partake of.—Andrew M. Soule in Hoard's Dairyman.

MR. GRAHAM AGAIN.

Brockville Liberals Choose Their Old Member.

A UNANIMOUS CONVENTION.

Mr. Graham the Only Candidate Mentioned—A Complete Answer to Conservative Press Yarns—Resolutions Enthusiastically Carried—Good Speeches for Good Government—A Brief Review.

Brockville, June 3.—The complete answer to the yarns that have been circulated by the Conservative press was given on Saturday by one of the largest Liberal conventions held in this vicinity, when Mr. Geo. P. Graham, M. P. P., was unanimously chosen to again contest the riding, there being no other name mentioned.

The following resolutions were passed:

Moved by Dr. Derbyshire, seconded by W. H. McNish: That the Liberals of Brockville riding, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirm our confidence in the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Government, being wise, progressive and economical. We find their policy exactly suited to the requirements of this young and growing country, and we hereby pledge ourselves anew and promise them our loyal support.

Moved by W. A. Lewis, seconded by D. D. Tennant: That the Liberals of the Brockville riding, in convention assembled, beg to express their confidence in the Administration of the Hon. Geo. W. Ross and his colleagues. We express our appreciation of the able manner in which they have managed the affairs of the Province, and the energetic steps they are taking to develop the resources and encourage the industries of our noble Province. We pledge our unanimous support to Mr. Ross and his colleagues, and our hearty determination to use every effort to maintain them in power.

These were carried with enthusiasm.

Short and good speeches were made by D. Derbyshire and W. A. Lewis, Neilson's Grove. Lyn was fixed on as the place for the Liberal meeting in June, and the next order of business was the nomination of candidates.

Mr. D. W. Downey, ex-Mayor of Brockville, spoke in very eulogistic terms of the present member, Mr. Graham, and moved that he be the candidate. His motion was seconded by Mr. W. G. Parish of Athens, who said no man could poll as large a vote in the rear of the riding as Mr. Graham. The President asked for further nominations, but received none, the reply being cheers for the present member, and he was declared the unanimous choice of the convention.

Mr. Graham thanked the Liberals warmly for their renewed confidence and gave a brief review of the work of the past session, after which one of the best conventions ever held in the riding closed with cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Geo. W. Ross and the candidate.

Stratford, Ont., June 3. — Frank Vernnett, the man who was arrested at Shakespeare some days ago on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy, the horse from the stable of C. J. Denied in Windsor.

Windsor, June 3.—On Saturday, referring to the Buffalo despatch announcing the consolidation of the Canada Salt Company and the Windsor Salt Company, President Henderson of the latter company said:

"I know nothing of the reported consolidation. The Canadian Salt Company secured a charter, I believe, and they may have elected officers in Buffalo, but that is rather improbable, as most of the directors reside in Montreal. Again, the capital of the Canadian Salt Company is only $800,000, not $8,000,000, as stated in the despatch. I certainly think I would know something about the consolidation if it had occurred."

"MACKAY DEAD."

Demise of the Most Illustrious Canadian Missionary at Formosa—Sketch of His Career.

Toronto, June 3.—"Mackay dead" was the cablegram received yesterday, proclaiming the death of the most illustrious Canadain missionary, recognized throughout the Christian world as one of the most prominent foreign missionaries of the past century.

Rev. G. L. Mackay, then a young Canadian Presbyterian minister of 28, left Canada for Formosa, a land of savages, 30 years ago. A native of East Zorra, Oxford County, he was noted for physical courage and an intense nature, qualifying him to arouse enthusiasm in any course he adopted. He was the first missionary to set foot in Formosa, where, as the fruit of his pioneer efforts, there are now 60 flourishing churches, 54 native preachers, 1,900 natives in full church membership, an hospital, a college for the training of native preachers, as well as a ladies' college for the training of Chinese girls.

During this remarkable career of 30 years' foreign mission service, Rev. Dr. Mackay only made two visits home. Those visits are said to have done more in Canada to inspire interest in foreign mission work in the home church than the efforts of any other man.

Until a few months ago Dr. Mackay was in the enjoyment of excellent health. At that time symptoms of cancer of the throat developed, from which he died.

He married a Chinese lady, and leaves two daughters, who are married to Chinese preachers. His son has begun to follow in his father's footsteps in the mission work.

The renowned missionary has two brothers living in East Zorra.

The cablegram announcing Dr. Mackay's death was signed "Gould." It was dated Tamsui, and was from Rev. Mr. Gould, who was sent out by the Canadian Presbyterian Board seven years ago as associate missionary.

The cablegram was received at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. McKay, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Committee.

Rev. Mr. Gould will now superintend the mission matters in Formosa. The Executive Committee here will shortly send out an assistant missionary.

FORMER BISHOP DEAD.

Right Rev. Isaac Hellmuth Dies at Weston-Super-Mare, England.

London, June 3.—The Right Rev. Isaac Hellmuth, formerly Bishop of Huron, Canada, died on Thursday at Weston-super-Mare. He was 71 years of age.

Rev. Isaac Hellmuth was the son of Jewish parents, and was born near Warsaw, Poland. He was educated at Breslau University, and in 1841 made a public profession of conversion in England. He came to Canada in 1844. For some years he was professor in the university at Lennoxville, and rector of St. Peter's, Sherbrooke. He was subsequently created archdeacon of the Huron diocese, and was sent to England to collect funds for a theological college in the diocese, of which he became principal. His next charge was as dean and rector of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ontario, where he established Western University, to which he contributed $10,000, and the two Hellmuth cottages. In 1871 he was appointed coadjutor bishop to Bishop Cronyn, and on the latter's death succeeded him as Bishop of Huron. In 1883 he was appointed Coadjutor Bishop of Ripon, England, where he remained until 1896, when he resigned and became rector of Bridlington, in Yorkshire.

NOTED FOR LONGEVITY.

Ages of Eleven Residents of Lansdowne Street.

A resident of Lansdowne street on Saturday brought to the Examiner office a little slip of paper on which were the ages of eleven of the residents. It's a remarkable fact that the combined ages of these eleven people give an average to each of over 72 years; the total ages number 797 years. Since the Examiner's informant reckoned up the ages, one of the parties has died in the person of James Reid, who was the oldest, being 87 years of age. The oldest persons residing on the street are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sproule, who are both 85 years of age.

Lansdowne street is a short street but has a record for the longevity of its residents. Here are the eleven ages: 75, 72, 87, 70, 65, 70, 69, 62, 85, 85, 63.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Jimmie Mulligan left this morning to accept a situation in Toronto.

Mr. George L. Gowland leaves to-morrow on a trip to the Pan-American.

Mr. George Lytle, of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder, gave the Examiner a call to-day.

Mr. Sam Reid, formerly local manager of the Rathbun Co., is in town to-day in the interests of his firm.

Miss Way, graduate of Toronto General Hospital Training School for Nurses, is a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lyle, 205 Park street.

The many friends of Mr. W. A. Fife, of No. 97 Hunter street, will regret to learn that he has been called to his former home in Windermere, Muskoka, through the death of his father.

Mr. Danny Simons is over from the Pan-American Exhibition visiting his parents for a few days, and is as jovial and good looking as ever, also carrying with him an air of prosperity which argues that he and the world are agreeing well together. A very fine photogravure of Dan appears in Saturday's Utica Globe, and a brief sketch of his successful career on the stage is attached thereto, in which Oswego claims him as a native of that city. Oswego may have turned out some clever people in its time, but Peterborough claims the credit of being Danny's birthplace, and Oswego will have to take a back seat this time. Dan has just signed a contract with the Bennett-Moulton Company for the fourth consecutive year.

CEREAL COMPANY NEWS.

Tenders Asked for the Construction of the Buildings Required.

As will be seen by reference to another column, tenders have been asked for the erection of the various buildings required by the American Cereal Company for carrying on their work in the new Canadian branch which is to be erected here.

Much time has been needed in the preparation of the plans and specifications, as the works are to be of so stupendous a nature that more than ordinary care has had to be exercised in deciding the location of the first lot of buildings to be erected.

The fact that tenders are now asked for will be a most pleasing item of news to the public in general, as all are anxious for the day to arrive when the first brick will be laid in the construction of the buildings for the new industry, which is expected to give Peterborough such a boom.

CONVOCATION DAY.

The University of Toronto Convocation Day is fixed for Friday, June 7, and the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association have decided to hold the various events occurring at the time of Convocation on that day, in order to allow members to attend with the least possible sacrifice of time.

Reduced railway fares have been secured and all graduates and undergraduates wishing to attend should purchase regular first-class tickets to Toronto, at the same time getting standard railway certificates.

At the annual dinner to be held in the gymnasium at 8 p.m., Sir Wm. Meredith, Hon. Richard Harcourt and Doctor Louis Frechette, C. M. G., will speak. It is hoped that as many of the Alumni and Alumnae as possible will be present.

ONE PAGE ONE YEAR.

A Philadelphia Firm Pays a News paper $112,500.

John Wanamaker had a contract with the Philadelphia Record to insert a page advertisement every day but Sunday (John does not advertise on Sundays), for which he paid $87,500. When the contract was about to expire the Record people demanded for renewal an increase in the price of $25,000, or $112,500 yearly. Wanamaker declined to pay, thinking no other firm would take the page vacated by him at any such figure. He was mistaken. One of the progressive retail institutions in Philadelphia is composed of two bright, energetic, pleasant young men, whose firm name is Lit Brothers. They were offered the page at the price mentioned and they did not hesitate one second in their acceptance. Now Wanamaker is sorry, for the page is the Record's last page, and there is only one last page to any newspaper.

THE LATE REV. MR. CAMPBELL.

His Demise Occurred on Saturday Near Mount Forest.

The Toronto Globe of to-day says: "Rev. Alexander R. Campbell of Peterborough, a retired Methodist clergyman, died on Saturday afternoon at the residence of his brother, near Mount Forest. He had been visiting there and was stricken with paralysis on Wednesday. His wife and only daughter were summoned by telegraph and arrived before his death. Rev. Mr. Campbell was about 68 years of age at the time of his death."

The news of the death of Rev. Mr. Campbell will be received with great sorrow by his many friends in Peterborough. He came to Peterborough about one year ago from Hastings and has since resided at the corner of Union and Dublin streets. He has been superannuated by the Methodist Church for some years, but was always ready and willing to conduct services or take part in the same when called upon to do so. During his residence in Peterborough he became well known to a large circle of friends.

The remains will arrive at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon per G. T. R., but as yet nothing has been made public regarding the funeral arrangements.

NEW PASTOR AT PARK STREET

Large Congregation at the South End Baptist Church.

Rev. Mr. Hanna Occupied the Pulpit at Both Morning and Evening Service.

Although Baptists are quoted as having a partiality for water, yet the members of the Park Street Church might even then have been excused for being undesirous of facing the downpour yesterday and not attending Divine worship, but the rain was faced and large congregations assemled at both the morning and evening services to greet the new pastor, Rev. J. H. Hanna.

Judging by the interest displayed by those present and the hearty manner in which the congregation united in the service, all are well satisfied with the choice made in the selection of Mr. Hanna to fill the pulpit. He is a very earnest speaker and gives the impression of speaking with the strength of deep conviction, easily holding the attention of his hearers. He also possesses a fund of anecdotes which he drew upon liberally in illustrating his points and conveying the lesson which he wished his congregation to derive from his remarks. The new pastor is evidently a believer in short sermons, as his evening discourse lasted only twenty-four minutes. He took for his text the words, "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord: Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool," Isaiah, I Chap., 18th verse. Speaking of man's heritage of sin, Mr. Hanna, referred to it as a misunderstanding existing between man and his Creator, in which, though the former was at fault, yet it was the latter who was anxious for a reconciliation and advanced the request couched in the words of the text. In temporal matters men were as a rule anxious to clear up misunderstandings which existed and ascertain the exact position in which they stood, but in spiritual affairs they appeared backward and did not seek to ascertain a definition of their exact position. It would be an act of grace in the Saviour to receive a sinner who sought Him, but was it not surpassing grace for the Almight to stoop and follow the sinner up and offer pardon. The trouble seemed to lie in the fact that in the rush of everyday life men do not stop to reflect. If they would but pause for a moment and think, they would throw themselves at the feet of Jesus. In life there is but two roads to follow—the broad and the narrow one. They grow wider and wider apart until the point has been passed where it is possible to cross over from the broad path to the narrow one which leads upward.

The speaker gave his attention for some moments, before concluding, to dilating upon the necessity for pausing before this point was reached and laid stress on the full and free pardon which awaited the sinner who turned to Christ before it was too late. The pardon was no uncertain one, as in the concluding words of the text it was stated that "though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow." There was no half promise meant to be conveyed in the word "shall" and all were earnestly exhorted to remember the glad and glorious fact that Jesus Christ could triumph over sin.

FLANEUR'S MISTAKE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, — I see by to-day's Mail that from a letter which I wrote to Flaneur, he has made the astounding deduction that his correspondent advocates the erection of a monument on Canadian soil to General Montgomery.

While one's individual opinions on this subject are of no interest to the public, yet as I have the honour to be an officer of the local Historical Society, and as the sentiment above referred to is incompatible with the honourable holding of such a position, I am taking the liberty of asking you to publish a copy of the letter which I have to-day written to Flaneur, by way of correction of his statement.

Thanking you kindly in anticipation, I remain, Mr. Editor, sincerely yours,

M. M. WILSON.

Peterborough, June 1st, 1901.

"Flaneur,"

Dear Sir, — In your page of to-day's issue I am amazed to notice that you attribute to me the wish to see a monument erected in Quebec to General Montgomery.

I fear me greatly, dear sir, that you have skipped half of my letter, for in it I spoke distinctly against "a project so ill advised as to be impertinent," these being the very words used.

But I did suggest that Canadians are not treating Montgomery, the man, squarely, viz., every time this monument scheme is referred to, turning and rending him, instead of the promoters of the plan.

I distinctly disapprove of the erection on Canadian soil of a memorial to Gen. Montgomery, but I disbelieve the accusation that he betrayed the plan of the fortifications of Quebec, and I venture to say so in justice to the memory of a man who is dead, and who has left behind him no descendent to protect his fair name.

By making the above correction you will greatly oblige,

MAUD MILLER WILSON.

735 Miles in 735 Minutes.

Lightning speed was made by the St. Louis world's fair special over the Wabash to Buffalo on May 19th. The special was made up of seven Pullmans, one baggage, one dining car. On board was vice-president Ramsay and directors of Louisana purchase exposition. The 735 miles between St. Louis and Buffalo was covered in less than 735 minutes. The special raced over some portions of the road at seventy-five and eighty miles an hour between Windsor and Buffalo, 252 miles being made in 252 minutes. This includes a stop of fifteen minutes at St. Thomas, and loss of time by slow down from Black Rock to Buffalo. For such a long run this breaks the world's record for fast time.

PREACHED TO FORESTERS.

Rev. J. Bastow at Murray Street Baptist Church.

About Two Hundred Members of the Canadian Order of Foresters Attended in a Body.

The annual church parade of the Canadian Order of Foresters took place last night to the Murray street Baptist church, when between 150 and 200 members of Juvenile Court, and Courts Peterborough, Littlejohn and Langton attended divine worship in a body, notwithstanding the threatening weather. The Foresters occupied the centre pews of the church.

In his opening remarks, Rev. Mr. Bastow said that he was sure that he was voicing the feelings of the church, and of his own heart, when he extended to the Canadian Order of Foresters of the town a hearty welcome to the service. He had no doubt that the most of them were business men, and, therefore, knew how to put up with disadvantages that from time to time arise, so he asked them not to take into consideration the present unsightly condition of the church, which was undergoing alterations. When the improvements were completed he hoped that they would visit them again. He was pleased to have a visit from those of other denominations, and if there were any who were not connected with any congregation of the town, he extended to them a hearty invitation to join his church.

Continuing with his discourse, he took for his text the words—"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

Mr. Bastow began, by saying that we were all made for society; we could not live alone. Recluses and hermits are contrary to nature, and not of any use to society. When one is shut off from society, he withers, just as a plant that is shut off from the rays of the sun, and while there may be circumstances which warrant one being alone for a time, it is only for a very brief time. Solitary confinement is the worst punishment that can be inflicted on anyone. Birds fly in flocks, said the speaker, beasts feed in herds, bees travel in swarms, and trees grow more quickly in the forests.

One wheel of a watch is of very little value without the remaining wheels, and so also every organ of the body contributes towards the body's strength. Likewise we ourselves should give and receive something, for we have many things in common—one Saviour, for instance—and it is for us to have one common destiny.

The speaker here went on further to show that we were dependent one on another, and our text is therefore founded on nature as well as Scripture.

Speaking of how far the Canadian Order of Foresters were carrying out this idea, Rev. Mr. Bastow spoke in explicit terms of the sick benefits the members receive while laid low through illness, and that although the Order has been in existence only one quarter of a century, it has accumulated a very large sum of money for the protection of its members, giving them therefore a feeling of confidence. He referred to the comfort that they had brought to many homes doing the time of their distress. However, they could not be looked upon as a substitute for the church, but rather as an auxiliary, working in harmony with the Church of God. So far as they go, they fill their mission admirably, but the Church goes farther, and endeavours to provide not only for body, but for soul as well, and not only during the present time but for eternity.

Being burden bearers it is possible to make our lives happier by being mutual burden bearers, so that our text comes home to us and teaches us an important lesson. Continuing, he spoke of in what manner we could be burden bearers. One way was by not unloading on to some one else our own burden. But there is a large number that will actually require our assistance; these that are born to disadvantage, and therefore are not capable of looking after themselves; those that have fallen below the standard of morality; and those that have perhaps failed in business life. The manner in which we could assist them in getting freed from these burdens is by teaching them how to get rid of sin, for sin is the cause of all trouble, and if we would only cast our burdens on the Lord Jesus Christ He would bear them for us. Then sobriety, purity of heart and propriety would all come of a true Christian spirit. We would be fulfilling the law of Christ, which is to love another.

Special music was provided for the occasion, which was very effectively rendered, the members of the choir being in excellent voice. A handsome display of floral decorations was neatly arranged in front of the pulpit.

At the close of the services the Foresters reformed in procession and marched back to the hall, where District Deputy Bro. Walter Hooper took the chair, having on his right Past High Chief Ranger Bro. F. J. Jameson. Suitable resolutions of thanks were then passed and appropriate addresses delivered by several members.

Moved by Bro. W. S. Robinson, Past District Deputy, seconded by Bro. J. Sims,—That the united thanks of the four courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters in Peterborough, here represented, be tendered to Rev. Mr. Bastow, pastor of the Baptist Church, for the very appropriate and impressive sermon delivered to the brethern this evening, and especially for the helpful administrations imparted to the members of our Order.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

It was also moved and seconded by the same brethern.—That the hearty thanks of the Canadian Order of Foresters in Peterborough, be conveyed to the officials of the Baptist Church for the use of their church on the occasion of our annual sermon, and to the members of the choir for the excellent music prepared for the special services.—Carried.

VETERANS WERE AT CHURCH.

Rev. J. C. Davidson's Interesting Discourse.

He Reviewed the Early History of Our Town—An Appropriate Service.

The Veterans of 1866 of the Town of Peterborough held their church parade last night, when a splendid turn out of the members assembled at the drill shed of the 57th Regt. and marched in a body to St. John's church. It was a very interesting occasion and drew forth from Rev. J. C. Davidson a review of the early history of the town.

After remarking upon the importance of the study of history, especially of our own town, country and empire, and urging upon his hearers to support the Historical Society in its efforts to collect material, Rev. Mr. Davidson briefly explained as the words of his text, Psalm xliv, 1, "We have heard with our ears of God, our fathers have told us, what thou didst in their days, in the times of old."

He then proceeded to deal with a few manifestations of public feeling which had occurred in our town, showing the sympathy and determination of the people. First, he pictured the stirring times of '37, when in answer to the reading of the proclamation of Sir Alfred Bond Head no less than 200 men left for the front under Lieut.-Col. McDonald, the military pioneer of Peterborough. These were followed by 350 men picked from the surrounding townships, who marched for Toronto under Col. Brown. The speaker then referred to the excitement of 1866, when three full companies proceeded to the front under Capt. Poole, Capt. Kennedy, and Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers. In both these engagements the enthusiasm and sympathy of the citizens was not wanting. If, said the speaker, we continue to follow the lead given by the early citizens Peterborough will be distinguished by a healthy military spirit, and a wide and enthusiastic loyalty. Speaking of the temperance campaigns of by-gone days, which had caused much excitement, he said that in early times the whiskey flowed with destructive freedom and was a great cause of trouble. To combat these gigantic evils a temperance crusade was instituted, which resulted in the adoption of the Dunkin Act and Scott Act, both afterwards repealed. We are indebted to these temperance workers for their education of public sentiment in this matter, which has so largely changed.

It would seem from present appearances that we are threatened with a recurrence of this evil and he suggested that further action be taken in this regard and he urged all to join the Peterborough Common Weal Society, whatever else they might do.

The preacher went on to observe the propriateness of these events being recalled within the walls which had looked down upon them all and others since 1835. Built in the infancy of Peterborough by the towns pioneers. St. John's should be regarded as something more than a church of a particular congregation. All citizens should feel that they have a place and welcome within its walls by own rights as citizens and it was for the clergy and members of the church who had already shown their determination to work for no narrow sectarian ends, but for the community which he trusted would always be the case.

Rev. Mr. Davidson brought his interesting narrative to a close by referring to the names of many of the early pioneers and urging their successors now to put forth equal or greater devotion in public affairs. It was for us all as citizens to find out God's design for the further development of our town and give our selves up to be his agents in carrying it out. Thus would all be able to pass on to our church the message received from our fathers of the mighty doings of God in our times, as in theirs.

The service concluded with appropriate prayers on behalf of the town.

TOOK HIS FATHER'S ADVICE.

IT is not at all surprising that many sufferers from rheumatism have very little faith in patent medicines. The public have been gulled for years by unscrupulous manufacturers who care little who they kill or cure. It is quite different with the proprietors of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. They have a reputation at stake, worth a great deal more than a little money to be made from a temporary, fake; temporary because all medicines that do not do as advertised are soon found out and discarded. Manufacturers of proprietary medicines have an intelligent people to deal with in the present age, and deception is sure to be discovered in short order. The reliable testimonials being daily received by the Dr. Hall Medicine Company are the best proofs that any firm can wish to show. John Clark, a young farmer of Pittsburg township, saved himself a lot of suffering by accepting the advice of his father, who told him he would be cured if he gave Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. One bottle cured him completely. He suffered with terrible pains in his legs and hips. The numerous other remedies he tried had no effect whatever. Mr. Clark now adds his recommendation to the many others continually coming in.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

IN BRITISH HANDS.

This picture gives you an idea of the courtesy which is half Great Britain's strength in dealing with her "new-caught, sullen peoples"—the other half being characteristic British readiness to fight at any time and under any circumstances. The little boy in the picture is the present kahaba, or hereditary ruler of the African Kingdom of Uganda. The lad is the grandson of the celebrated Mutesa and the descendant of a long line of kings. The tribes that acknowledge his right to rule them comprise between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 individuals, now mostly professing Christians. The boy King is about 5 years of age. He will attain his majority when he is 18. He is accorded by the British Government the title of "highness." Hitherto he had never traveled beyond the place of his birth, Mengo, the native capital of Uganda, but being invited by the special commissioner to spend New Year's Day at Entebbe, the headquarters of the administration (about twenty miles from Mengo), he went there, accompanied by three regents and a large retinue of native chiefs. The illustration, which shows the little King holding Sir Harry Johnston's hand, is from a photograph by W. G. Doggett, the naturalist and photographer attached to Sir Harry Johnston's special commission.

Value of Weeds.

The dandelion isn't the only weed eaten by people who know what's good to eat, says The Industrial Journal. Take wild chicory, the plague of the farmer. It makes one of the finest salads served—piquant, tender and wholesome. Charlock, or wild mustard, is another bane of the farmer. He doesn't know that as a pot herb it can give a delightful flavor. The dockweeds—how annoying the whole family are! Yet the broad leaf variety and the curly leaf are used all over Europe as table vegetables. There's pokeweed, commonest of them all. In France it is cultivated. It takes the place of sage, thyme, parsley and bay leaves as a flavoring for soup. Everybody in Canada hates a nettle and can't see what use it is. In Scotland, Poland and Germany tender young nettle leaves are used as greens. The Germans boil them with other vegetables to give them a piquant flavor. Purslane is another weed that can be treated in the same way. Most people think milkweed poisonous. It is a medicinal vegetable, with a delightful flavor of its own. The young leaves, when they are just in the right condition, are a cross between spinach and asparagus and in a salad are delicious. Sorrell, fetticus and chevril are looked on as field pests by 99 out of 100 farmers. The hundredth one picks the choicest leaves from these weeds and sends them to market, where they find a ready sale for salads to be eaten with game and for flavoring herbs, for herbs they are and not weeds.

CHASED THE SUPER.

The Exciting Race Between Kean and the Stage Hand.

Some strange tales have been told by old timers in the stage business about the Keans, both the elder and the last to be seen on the American stage. Some have said that hard study made them a little wrong at times, and some of the things they did certainly looked queer.

It is told by an old New Orleans horseman, who is here from the Crescent City, that when Kean the younger was playing there he nearly scared a super to death and came near "pinking" him.

It was in "Richard III." in the scene where he sees the ghosts. The stage manager was a bit the worse for drink and determined to have some fun. He did not like Kean, as he was a hard man behind the scenes. Among the supers was a raw Irish lad who had never seen a stage before. The manager told this fellow that if he would run across the stage when he gave him the tip he would stand to earn $2. The poor fellow was broke, and a two spot looked to him like a national bank. He agreed, and the stage manager gave him a gaudy oilcloth banner bearing these words, "Smoke General Jackson Cigars."

It was nearly a panic that this Irish lad started. He ran across the stage, and when Kean saw him he was furious. He made a lunge at the unfortunate super with his sword, and, as the "rag" came whizzing down to a hurry call, he chased the poor standard bearer off the stage, down the passage and to the street. For two blocks he followed him in his Richard costume, and finally the super escaped down a dark alley.

What effect it had upon the show the turfman does not say, but certainly it was only the super's agility of foot that saved him.

AN EDITOR'S ADVICE.

Article in a Quebec Paper That Everybody Should Read—Recommends Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to Dyspeptic Sufferers.

Dyspepsia is the common evil of the times. Indigestion and Stomach Troubles are the afflictions of every class.

Brain workers, who from lack of exercise and nervous strain are peculiarly liable to Dyspepsia, cannot do better than take Editor Caron's advice.

He advises Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a reputation on three continents as an absolute safe and certain cure for Dyspepsia in all its forms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will quickly and permanently cure Indigestion, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Acidity, Nervousness, Anaemia, or poorness of the blood and every other indication that the stomach is not doing its work and properly assimilating its food.

Alphonse Caron is the Editor of the Echo of Montmagny, Que. Recently he felt so impressed with the value of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, that he published the article in the paper from which the following is taken:

"To Dyspeptics — Do you know Dyspepsia Tablets are the best things for Dyspepsia to be had on the market. I, the undersigned, do, for I have tested the matter for myself.

"Every person suffering from any form of Dyspepsia may rely on Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. As a former sufferer from that terrible malady myself, I am only too glad to show others the way out of their troubles as publicly as lies in my power.

"I was cured by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They alone of all the remedies I used were of any benefit. I am sure if others suffering with Dyspepsia would try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets they will be satisfied with them as I am. — Alphonse Caron."

And they are but fifty cents a box all over the world.

HIS DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

A Pompous Reception That Amused President Grevy.

M. Severiaro de Heredia, the minister of public works in the Rouvier cabinet during the presidency of M. Grevy, belonged to the famous naturalized Cuban family, of which another member, the Comte de Heredia, is one of the immortal 40 of the French academy. Most of the family have dark spins, suspiciously mulatto, and other negro characteristics. This has, however, in nowise interfered with their standing in Paris, where several of the family have long been prominent. The former minister had also been president of the municipal council of Paris and a deputy from a Paris arrondissement.

His dark skin led to a curious mistake at the Elysee the day after he had been appointed a member of the Rouvier cabinet. According to immemorial custom the new ministers called singly on President Grevy to pay their respects. On the same day, as it happened, an official visit was expected from the president of the republic of Haiti, who was to present his letters to the president. When M. de Heredia arrived in the court of the palace, the minor officials stationed there, who were not familiar with the new minister's features, judged from his complexion that he was the Haitian dignitary. The courtyard became very animated with guards hurrying to and fro to their places, while one of the officers of the president's military household went to inform M. Grevy of the distinguished visitor's arrival.

M. de Heredia received all this with dignified composure, for, never having been a minister before this, he thought this ceremonial was probably the usual one. Finally, with the beating of drums, he was ushered into the reception room, where the chief executive stood ready to receive him. "What," cried he, "it's only you, Heredia!" "Why, yes, M. le President," replied the puzzled minister. Grevy began to laugh. "Well," he cried, "you have been minister only 24 hours and have succeeded in turning my house upside down. What will you do later on?",

Wrote Sermons In His Sleep.

Narrating "Some Remarkable Cases of Double Personality," Dr. B. Osgood Mason cites in The Ladies' Home Journal the case of a "young ecclesiastic in the seminary with the Archbishop —— of Bordeaux, France, who was in the habit of getting up at night in a condition of somnambulism, going to his study and composing and writing his sermons in the dark. When he had finished one page, he read it over and properly corrected it. A broad piece of cardboard interposed between his eyes, and his writing made no difference to him. He wrote, read and corrected just the same as if there had been no obstruction. Having completed his work to his satisfaction, he returned to bed, and in the morning he had not the slightest idea of what he had done in the night and had no knowledge of it until he saw the manuscript in his own handwriting."

Delicacies Out of Season.

Old Moneybags was tired of hearing all this stuff and nonsense about the poor. Some one had called his attention to his own way of living, with delicacies out of season on his groaning table and—

"Delicacies out of season!" he thundered. "What if I do get to use ice in the summer time? Don't the poor get to use it in the winter, when it's fresh, and I have to put up with the cold storage stuff? B-r-r-r-r!"

Chinese Awful Famine.

Reports of the famine in Shensi, China, discloses conditions quite as terrible as those which have drawn the charity of the world to India during the last two years. No crops can be expected this year because the time, man and women fall in the fields and are devoured by wild beasts; and while China faces the penalties of the outrages committed by the Boxers against the foreigners, the only hands stretched out to help those starving peasants in Shensi are the hands of foreign missionaries.

SMILES AND TEARS.

Dearest, when you stand and smile
You are all a woman's wife,
With a woman's wit and wile,
With a woman's mouth and eyes.

Then I love you as my own,
Calm and level eyed, serene,
With a passion sober grown,
As my lady and my queen.

Ah, but dearest, when you weep,
All the woman and the years
Slip away and go to sleep,
And the child wakes up in tears.

Then, sweetheart, I see but this:
Just a small, bright head to feel
'Neath my cheek, my child to kiss
With a little heart to heal.

How Littlepage Took Care of Her.

Littlepage was a typical southern gentleman. A young man, he belonged to the old school. His family was one of the few in Alabama which were wealthy after the war had closed. He had been brought up in the good old way. He had a quick temper, a ready revolver and what most people would say was an exaggerated idea of courtesy and chivalry to women. He went through college and then through a technical school, coming out with a degree as electrical engineer. Then he came north to take a position with a large manufacturing corporation. Within a few months he had made many warm friends who admired him both for his ability and for his courtly manners.

Finally he was ordered by his company to go east to look over an electrical invention which they were thinking about buying. The train left at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was delayed in reaching the station, and it was within a few minutes of traintime when he clambered on the rear end of the sleeping car. As he mounted the steps a man opened the car door and came out. It was Larsen, a young lawyer, with whom he was well acquainted in a business way.

"Why, hello, Littlepage," said the lawyer. "Where are you going?"

"New York," said Littlepage.

"Great luck," Larsen answered. "Just got time to go back and introduce you to my wife. She's called to New York by her mother's illness. I couldn't go with her, and I've been worried about letting her make the trip alone. I know you'll be glad to look out for her and see that she gets through all right."

"It will be a great pleasure to me," said Littlepage, with one of his best bows.

Mrs. Larsen was a pretty woman. After Littlepage had been presented her husband had just time to get off the car before the train started. Littlepage sat down in the seat with her and soon found that she was as pleasant and entertaining as she was good looking. It was really a great piece of luck for him. It promised to make a tiresome trip rather pleasant than otherwise. Mrs. Larsen had often heard her husband speak of him. He was from Alabama? He had fought a duel or two? Was it true that he had actually shot a man? Did he always carry a revolver?

Littlepage tried to explain his delicate ideas of honor and the proper way to protect it. She seemed to be half afraid of him, and as Littlepage was a young man that did not detract from her charm.

Half way across the state, at a little way station, a fat man with a big black mustache and a huge diamond stud got on the car and sat down across the aisle in a seat where he could stare Mrs. Larsen full in the face. At the first glance Littlepage disliked him. He looked impertinent. His appearance put Littlepage almost into a rage. He had an insolent stare, and it seemed that he could hardly keep his eyes off pretty Mrs. Larsen. Half a dozen times Littlepage glanced up only to catch his bold, black eyes staring across the aisle. He wondered if Mrs. Larsen had noticed it. Finally he spoke to her.

"That man across the aisle is looking at you in an impertinent way," he said. "If you'll allow me, I'll go over and make him stop it."

Mrs. Larsen begged that he would do nothing of the kind. She had not noticed that he was staring at her. At any rate, she was sure there was no occasion to make a scene.

Littlepage assured her that he was not in the habit of making scenes which could be embarrassing to women. When he spoke to impertinent people, they obeyed him without making any loud objections. That was one reason why a gentleman should always carry a revolver.

Presently the fat man got up and went out into the dining car. A few minutes later Littlepage asked Mrs. Larsen if she was ready to dine. She explained that she had eaten luncheon just before taking the train and did not care for dinner. So Littlepage went into the dining car by himself. He debated whether he should accost the fat man and hold him to account for his impertinences, but finally concluded that he would hardly be justified under the circumstances.

While Littlepage was drinking his coffee the fat man got up and walked out of the dining car into the sleeper. Ten minutes later Littlepage followed.

As he stepped into the sleeper he stooped suddenly as if paralyzed by what he saw. Up at the other end of the car, where he had left Mrs. Larsen, she was still sitting, and in the same seat with her was the fat man. It took Littlepage but a second to decide on a plan of action. The impertinent wretch had evidently taken advantage of his absence to go over and sit down by Mrs. Larsen. She was only waiting for him to return and relieve her of the man. Whatever he did must be done quietly and without making a scene of any kind. He took his revolver from his hip pocket and put it in the side pocket of his coat. Then he walked as quietly as possible up the aisle.

Just as he reached them Mrs. Larsen looked up. Littlepage recognized an appealing look in her eyes.

"Oh, Mr. Littlepage!" she cried in an excited tone. All Littlepage's hot southern blood was on fire in a moment. He drew out his revolver and put the end of it under the fat man's nose.

"Don't worry, Mrs. Larsen," he said at the same moment. "I'll take care of him."

Mrs. Larsen glanced at the revolver and promptly fainted away. The fat man turned a ghastly gray shade and attempted to remonstrate.

"Don't say a word to me," whispered Littlepage in a low voice. "Come right along with me. If you open your mouth, I'll blow your head off."

In perfect silence and without attracting the attention of anybody in the almost empty car Littlepage led his captive to the vestibule at the nearest end of the car. There, still keeping silence, he opened the door leading to the steps and pushed the fat man down on the lowest step.

"Now jump," said Littlepage.

It happened that the train was slowing up for a crossing, and the fat man had comparatively little difficulty in getting off. He landed on his feet, rolled over once or twice and finally got up again before the train got out of sight.

Then Littlepage went back to the aid of beauty in distress. She was still lying back in a dead faint. With the assistance of the conductor the distracted Littlepage finally succeeded in bringing her back to her senses. She looked up at Littlepage and shuddered.

"Did you kill Cousin George?" were the first words she said.

"What do you mean?" asked the astonished Littlepage.

"I saw you draw your revolver on him just before I fainted," she explained. "I hadn't seen him before for ten years. He thought he recognized me when he first came into the car, and that was why he looked at me so closely. When he came back from the dining car, he got a good look at me and made up his mind that he could not be mistaken. So he stopped and asked if I was not Angie Matthews. That was my maiden name, and of course I knew he must be somebody who knew me. I explained, and he told me his name. He is my cousin, George Elliot. What did you do with him?"

"He got off the train a few miles down the road," Littlepage stammered.

"Why, he told me he was going through to New York. I believe you shot him and threw his body off the car."

"No," said Littlepage; "he got off without making any explanation. If you're worried about him, I'll get off at the next station and see what's the matter. I guess perhaps I'd better do that anyway."—Chicago Tribune.

Observed by a Street Car Conductor.

"There are lots of things about women that can't be explained, and in our business we can't help noticing them," said the communicative conductor. "For instance, nine women out of ten will invariably take a seat on the right hand side of a car if the car is not crowded. I have often wondered at this, and at last I think I have the correct solution. I started out from the barn with an empty car the other day, and in five blocks I had picked up seven women, and they all sat in a row on the right hand side of the car. It was just about the hour in the morning when the women come down town to do their shopping. Three men got on, and they sat on the left hand side.

"A couple of blocks farther down I picked up another woman, and, instead of taking a vacant seat near the door on the side the other women were sitting, as I thought she would do, she walked the entire length of the car and sat down beside one of the men. This bit of eccentricity puzzled me until I went to collect her fare, and then I discovered that she was left handed. See? All the other women were right handed. Yes, it does look like rain, doesn't it?"—Philadelphia Record.

Thomas Lincoln's Story.

Thomas Lincoln, the father of Abraham Lincoln, was a great story teller, and one yarn that he never tired of rehearsing was a blood curdling Indian tale. One day, when he was about 7 or 8 years old and living in Kentucky, he was sitting on a fence, watching his father and older brothers at work in the field. Without a moment's warning a small band of Indians came rushing by on horseback. One of them with a sweep of his long arm seized the lad and galloped off. Little Tommy Lincoln looked up into the red warrior's face and said: "Don't kill me! Take me a prisoner!"

The Indian smiled. Just then a rifle cracked. Indian and boy tumbled off the horse, the Indian dead, with a bullet in his brain. Tommy Lincoln's brother had come to the rescue.

FATE.

It is very convenient to attribute the disasters which overtake us to fate. But for the most part man is the arbiter of his own fortunes. Business men are struck down suddenly as by lightning. The verdict is generally "heart failure." "His heart was weak. It was fate for him to meet this end." But if we went behind the "weak" heart we should find a "weak" stomach, probably, and back of the weak stomach is careless eating at irregular hours.

When the stomach is diseased the organs depending on the stomach for nutrition are starved. Starvation means weakness of the body and its organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When these organs are cured, diseases of heart, liver, lungs and kidneys, caused by the diseased stomach, are cured also.

"In the fall of 1897 I was taken with smothering spells, palpitation of the heart, and a distressed feeling in my stomach," writes Mr. H. W. Kinney, of Knight, Doddridge Co., West Va. "I consulted a doctor and he said I had organic heart trouble. He gave me some medicine, but it did me no good. I then tried different kinds of patent medicines, but they only helped me a little. I then sent and got five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before the first bottle was gone I felt a change. When the five bottles were gone I began to work. I had not worked any for a year before.

"I am well and can eat anything now with the exception of pork and greasy food."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

FROM THE SUNNY SOUTH.

Mr. R. H. Bradburn Writes From Southern California.

His Clever Pen Yields Some Beautiful Word Pictures of Los Angeles and Vicinity.

The appended exceedingly interesting letter relative to the beauties of Southern California has been received from Mr. Rupert Bradburn, and is published with pleasure by the Examiner:

Long Beach, South California, U.S.A.
May 25th, 1901.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Having resided in Los Angeles and vicinity for some time, and having visited many points of interest, I will attempt to give you a small account of some of the beauties of Southern California.

One can hardly cross this continent of ours without gaining a new idea of the immense historical significance of the westward desire of the Saxon, who in two and a half centuries, has marched from Plymouth Rock to the sun set sea, and has subordinated every other people in his path from shore to shore. The Spaniard was a world-conqueror in his day and master of California, and at present the names of the towns and cities are still retained in Spanish. In 1781 they named Los Angeles, Pueblo de la Rima de los Angelos (Town of the Queen of the Angels). The Saxon has retained only the last two words of this name and very little remains of the original old Spanish town. The existance of many Spanish descendants and missions still remain and add much to the charm of Los Angeles.

In these modern times it is a really great city, surrounded by hundreds of cultivated farms. It is well paved, well lighted, and abundantly served by railways. It has parks of extraordinary beauty, and avenues shaded by the eucalyptus and the pepper, that most esthetic of trees. Outside the immediate thoroughfares of trade, the streets are bordered by attractive homes, fronted by grounds set with palm and orange and cypress and blooming with flowers throughout the year. It is backed by the mountains that are always present in a California landscape, and fifteen miles away lies a vista of the sea, dotted with island peaks.

Just outside the limits of Los Angeles, intimately connected by railway and street car lines, is Pasadena, the Indian name, Crown of the Valley, and the Spanish Paso de Eden, (Threshold of Eden.) It is in any event the crown of that Eden, which nestles in its orange groves and rose bowers below lofty mountain peaks tipped with snow. Here a large number of easterners have made their home. Every fruit and flower and ornamental tree and shrub known to Southern California is represented in the elaborate grounds of their little realm. The extensive Baldwin Ranch lies near at hand with its great vineyards, orchards, wineries, and horse-training grounds.

Some distance from Los Angeles is Riverside, a locality renowned for oranges and oranges, and still more oranges, white and odorous with the bloom of them, yellow with the sheen of them, and rich with the gains of them; culminating in a busy little city overhung by the accustomed mountains and pendant to a glorious avenue many miles in length, lined with tall eucalyptus, drooping pepper and aprightly magnolia trees in straight lines far as eye can see, and broken only by short laferal driveways through palm, orange and cypress trees to mansion homes.

Long Beach and Santa Monica are two popular beaches near Los Angeles, to both of which frequent trains are run daily. They are the Brighton and Manchester beaches of this coast, enhanced by verdure and a softer clime, and a picturesque shore.

Thirty miles off the coast rises Santa Catalina Island, from the sea, a many-peaked mountain cap, varying in width from half a mile to nine miles, and more than twenty long. In midsummer the hotels are filled to overflowing, and in the hundreds of tents clustered by the water's edge, thousands of pleasure seekers gather. The waters here are very wonderful, blue as the sky above and astonishingly clear. So clear is the water here that climbing the overhanging cliffs and looking down half a thousand feet upon the fisherman in his boat, the bright hued fishes can be seen flashing far beneath him. In the glass-bottomed boats you may gaze down through hundreds of feet of transparency to where emerald weeds wave and myriad fishes, blue and brown and flaming red, swim over pabble and shell. Notable fishing is to be had here. The barracada is plentiful, likewise the yellow tail or sea-salmon also generally taken by trolling, and often tipping a truthful scale at fifty pounds. Sea bass fishing is the most famous sport here and probably the most exciting known anywhere to the hand-fisherman. This fish is commonly taken, and in weight ranges from two hundred to four hundred pounds. The fisherman who hooks one is frequently dragged in his skiff for several miles and finds himself nearly as much exhausted as the fish when it finally comes to the gaff.

Perhaps the greatest novelty of a trip to Santa Catalina, is the great number of flying fish that inhabit its water. At only a few miles' distance from the mainland they begin to leap from beneath the bows of the steamer, singly, by twos, and by half-dozens, until one wearies of counting them. Often they remain above the waves until the eye can no longer distinguish their course in the distance.

There are numerous other places of interest to write about, but space will not permit more. Trusting that this will interest you and the readers of the Examiner, I am,

Yours sincerely,
R. H. BRADBURN.

CHURCH CHIMES.

At St. Paul's church yesterday evening, the choir sang, unaccompanied, the anthem, "Yea, Though I Walk."

Prayers were offered in the Cathedral yesterday at the various services for good weather.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was in Campbellford yesterday administering the sacrament of confirmation to a large number of children.

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

There was, as is usually the case at the monthy song service, an exceptionally large congregation at Charlotte Street Methodist Church last night and the service was of a very interesting kind. The subject of Rev. Mr. Crossley's sermon was "Songs and Sentiments Dear to Christian Hearts." The anthem was "Jubilate Deo," the bass solo being ably taken by Mr. Walter Stocker and the trio by Misses Stephens and Pedlar and Mr. S. Mitchell.

Mr. A. L. Davis rendered the solo "The Sweet Song," in a very pleasing manner and the quartette "Take My Hand," by Messrs. Crossley, Davis, Stephenson and Parks, was delightfully given. Miss Hendren sang "No More Goodbys," and Mr. Parks sang "What Will the First Greeting be?" A quartette by Misses Hendren and Stephens and Messrs. Davis and Skitch was rendered quite acceptably.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

The anthem last evening in George Street Church was "God is Love." The solo was sung by Mr. Mulligan.

During offertory last evening Messrs. Goldie, McGuire, Frank Turner and F. Walden sang a setting of "Rock of Ages" in splendid harmony.

At morning service two anthems were sung "Oh there, Who has Prepared," by Gaul, and "Heaven is my Home."

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The Lord Bishop of the Diocese will hold a confirmation service in St. Luke's Church next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

On Tuesday evening a short service will be held in St. Luke's Church at 7.45 with an address for all confirmation candidates.

A congregational meeting of St. Luke's Church will be held in the schoolhouse at 8.30 p.m. on Tuesday next. The church wardens hope every member will be present.

Next Sunday there will be two celebrations of the Holy Communion in St. Luke's Church at 8.00 a.m. and at the close of morning prayer, respectively. The rector, Rev. H. Symonds hopes that all communicants will attend one or other of these services.

Beginning on Sunday evening next, Rev. H. Symonds will preach three special sermons on—1. God; 2. Jesus Christ; 3. The Holy Spirit.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The Trinity Sunday Anthem "I am Alpha and Onego," by Stainer, was given in All Saints' Church last evening. The solo was well taken by Mr. Jos. Legg, whose voice is rounding out into a most pleasing tenor.

Two new hymn boards have been placed in All Saints'. They are most convenient, having at the top the date and the church calendar Sunday.

LONDON SUN'S STARTLING TALE.

Ten Thousand Zulus on the Warpath—The Black Men Incensed Over Boer Raids Into Zululand—Reticence of the Government Over the Battle of Viakfontein Causing Anxiety.

London, June 3.—The Sun on Saturday published a sensational story to the effect that General Botha has arrived at Standerton and is communicating by telegraph with Mr. Kruger, through the Netherlands Government, appealing to Mr. Kruger to sue for peace. Lord Kitchener is said to have given Botha permission to adopt this course.

The Sun further hears that 10,000 Zulus have gone on the warpath owing to Boer raids in Zululand.

Gen. Tobias Smit, and Dewet, secretary to Gen. Louis Botha, arrived there on the morning of June 1. Their mission is not explained.

The Government's Reticence.

London, June 3.—The reticence of the Government regarding the battle at Vlakfontein and other military events of some importance which have recently occurred at widely separated points in South Africa has led to considerable anxiety. This is in no way allayed by the answer of the War Office on Saturday to a question regarding the accuracy or otherwise of the recent Boer report that the British were severely defeated near Pretoria May 2, losing 42 killed, 80 wounded, 600 prisoners and six guns. The reply which the War Office vouchsafed, "We have no official information," has aroused some misgivings.

The End of the War.

New York, June 3.—The Tribune's correspondent writes: General Smith-Dorrien, who has been welcomed home at Berk Hamstead, reports that while the war may be ended by September, the bulk of the army will be needed in South Africa for twelve months.

The guard was called out to arrest the leaders, and shots were fired by the Fusiliers, who met the reinforced guard with a volley of ball cartridges and bayonets. Two men of the guard were seriously injured by bayonet thrusts. The riot lasted two hours.

Pekin, June 2.—At a meeting of the generals of the allied troops today, it was decided to transfer the administration of the City of Pekin to the Chinese officials gradually during June.

Count Von Waldersee, accompanied by his staff, will leave Pekin to-morrow. Two special trains will run all week, taking troops to Taku. The Baluchi Regiment left this morning and all the other British troops with their bands and every American officer in Pekin was present.

His Every Bone Broken.

Buffalo, June 3.—James W. Lynch was drawn through a leg 145 feet long at the Niagara elevator shortly before noon Saturday morning and when he was finally tossed into a grain hopper at the top every bone in his body had been broken and the head had almost been severed from it. Lynch, it is supposed, was walking on one of the lower floors of the elevator when he stepped on what is called a conveyor belt, which takes the grain to the revolving buckets, carries it through a leg and deposits it in the hopper above.

SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experiences, many men do not seem to realize this, but go about complaining of the heat, in underclothes that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, suspenders, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

I. A. OF M. CONVENTION

Biennial Gathering of This Organization of Workmen.

WELCOMED TO THE QUEEN CITY.

President O'Connell in His Report Deals With the Admission of Canada Into the Grand Lodge of Machinists—There Were Sixty-six Strikes Last Year—Monday's Strike News.

Toronto, June 4.—The biennial convention of the International Association of Machinists is in full swing, having been opened in St. Andrew's Hall yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock. The platform of the hall was decorated with Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, in keeping with the international character of the proceedings, and when President James O'Connell of Washington, D. C., called the convention to order there were about 250 delegates who had presented their credentials and received badges entitling them to take part in the proceedings.

Before the association settled down to business, there was a flood of welcoming oratory. A. W. Holmes of Toronto presided. After prayer had been offered by Rev. S. S. Craig, the Mayor was introduced, and gave the delegates a hearty welcome to Toronto. Ald. Woods and Cox also delivered welcoming addresses, on behalf of the city, and President Wilson of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council welcomed the delegates on behalf of organized labor.

President O'Connell replied, referring to the conditions which met the machinists at the present time.

D. D. Wilson, International Vice-President, George Preston, International Secretary, Hugh Doran of Chicago and Peter Conlin of Sioux City also replied in a felicitous manner to the addresses of welcome.

The President's Report.

President O'Connell then presented his fourth biennial report, that part referring to Canada being as follows:

"As an evidence of the oft-repeated statement that the trade union movement knows no geographical lines, and in appreciation of the splendid progress made by our Canadian brothers, in behalf of our fellow-craftsmen, we meet in convention for the first time in the Dominion of Canada, where trades unionism is as old as the Dominion itself, and hospitality knows no limit.

"At the Pittsburg convention in 1891, our name was changed from National to International Association of Machinists, in order that we might join forces with our brother machinists in Canada, for the general elevation of our craft in North America. The wisdom of this action is proven by the number of Canadian delegates elected to this convention, and the unquestionable fraternal relationship now existing between the machinists of Canada and the United States."

President O'Connell then referred to various other matters. Said he: "During the past term, the judicial officers have approved of 66 strikes, involving approximately 9,650 machinists. As several of these strikes involved all of the shops in certain cities, therefore 365 firms were implicated in the 66 strikes. The result of the above number of strikes is as follows: Forty-one were won and settled with full credit to the members involved; 10 were settled upon a compromise; 10 were lost, and five are now pending, as follows: Bridgeton, N. J., Milwaukee, Wis., Cedar Rapids, Ia., Anaconda, Mont., and Jackson, Tenn."

In referring to the reason why strikes are lost, Mr. O'Connell said that nine-tenths of the strikes that are lost, or even compromised, can be credited to the fact that our local lodges take it upon themselves to order strikes without even notifying the Grand Lodge prior to the strike the Grand Lodge prior to the strikes taking place.

After dealing with the agreement entered into the International Association of Machinists and the National Metal Trades' Association, in May, 1900, which has recently been abrogated by the latter body, Mr. O'Connell closed as follows: "I am firmly convinced that our 9-hour movement on May 20 will result in reducing the hours of labor for 150,000 machinists, thus giving them 150,000 hours of golden leisure for enjoyment and opportunity for study."

The floor was then given to the Law Committee, and, realizing the condition of affairs throughout the country, and the necessity of getting down to business early, the delegates at once proceeded to discuss the Grand Lodge constitution. There was a general feeling that the organization should adopt a broader platform, and include all men working at the machinists' trade. Heretofore only skilled workmen were eligible for membership, and it is probable the constitution will be amended in this direction.

Monday's Strike News.

The strike news continues to be of an encouraging nature. President O'Connell reports that the Providence Engine Works have made a settlement with their 300 employes, and in Philadelphia three more firms, and in Plainfield, N. J., one firm have signed satisfactory agreements.

A telegram was received yesterday that 3,000 men employed in the Newport News, Va., shipyards, went out to enforce their demand for a nine-hour day, and ten hours' pay.

The Crocker-Wheeler Electric Company of Newark, N. J., resumed business yesterday with non-union men in the place of the machinists who are on strike. There was a big crowd of strikers at the works, but no disorder of any kind was reported.

Ottawa, June 4.—The striking machine-workers are determined to stay out until their demands are granted. They particularly desire the recognition of their union.

The plasterers of the city have been granted an increase in wages from 27 to 30 cents an hour, nine hours to constitute a day's work.

Saginaw, Mich., June 4. — All the machinists on the Pere Marquette Railroad system went on strike yesterday, because the road refused them a nine-hour day with 10 hours' pay.

Chicago, June 4.—The manufacturers and the 1,600 striking machinists in this city apparently settled down yesterday for a siege. The strikers put out pickets.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 4. — The National Tube Company of the United States Steel Corporation yesterday voluntarily advanced the wages of the 425 workers in the Youngstown plant an average of 17½ cents per day.

Hartford, Conn., June 4.—Eighteen hundred of the men who have been on strike here returned to work in six machine shops yesterday, the companies having granted the demands for a nine-hour day with 10 hours' pay, while agreeing to recognize local shop committees, but not the union committees.

Strike on at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 4.—Yesterday the carpenters, the woodworkers, plumbers and tinsmiths of Ottawa, to the number of some thousand employes, ceased work, and their demands for increased pay have not been acceded to by the masters. The woodworkers' strike has caused the closing of Thackray's, Storey's, Shore's and other mills. In most cases it is probable that conferences will take place with a view to settlement.

Strike Down by Sea.

Halifax, N. S., June 4.—There is no change in the position of the carpenters who are on strike. Yesterday the men working on the steamer Olivette were called out. Later on the agent of the steamer made an arrangement with the union to have the men return to work, independent of their employers.

The latest reports from Sydney show that the masons, bricklayers and painters are determined to hold out. Rhodes Curry and Co. and some of the other firms have granted the nine-hour system. The steel company is still holding out against the union.

CONTROL OF THE FISHERIES.

Difference in Jurisdiction Between Inland and Sea Coast Fisheries.

Ottawa, June 4.—The Government of British Columbia has telegraphed to the authorities here stating that it is willing to assume the duties entrusted to it in regard to the fisheries by the judgment of the Privy Council, and is bringing into force the act passed at the recent session of the Legislature. It asked whether an amicable understanding could not be reached in regard to so important an industry. The Minister of Marine has replied that the Government here is quite willing for the British Columbia Government to assume the powers conferred upon Provincial Governments with respect to the inland fisheries. Touching the sea coast fisheries, it is a different matter. A test case has been agreed upon between the Dominion and Quebec to decide who has control, and he wants to know if similar procedure will prove satisfactory to British Columbia. In the meantime he suggests that the control remain in the hands of the Dominion, and if the decision is against the Federal authorities, they will refund the revenue taken, less the expenses of administration.

The Ministers' Trip.

Ottawa, June 4.—Hon. David Mills, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. J. D. Clarke, left at 4.20 yesterday afternoon for Portland, from which point he sails on Wednesday morning. Sir Louis Davies, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. A. G. Blair have booked passage by the same steamer for England, but they do not go from here until 4.20 to-day. The three last named Ministers are taking a short vacation and will probably be back from England early in July. Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick expects to cross the Atlantic later in the summer.

Mr. Moses Snider Killed.

Berlin, Ont., June 4.—Moses L. Snider and wife of Wilmot Township were leaving for their home, and when at Albert street crossing a C. P. R. train came along and struck them. The unfortunate couple were upwards of 70 years old. Mr. Snider has since died, and Mrs. Snider has her arms and ribs broken and is likely to die. The horse was carried on the cow-catcher over 50 feet, then hurled towards the fence.

Railway Men and Mr. Blair.

Ottawa, June 4. — D. Pottinger, general manager of the Intercolonial Railway; E. G. Russell, manager; E. Tiffin, traffic manager; E. T. Thorne, assistant to the manager; E. S. Smiley and D. M. Condon of Moncton, and H. G. Flood, St. John, are in the city, to have a conference with Mr. Blair before the Minister of Railways leaves for England.

Struck by a Stone.

London, June 4. — H. Langhan of Sarnia, fireman on the Grand Trunk Railway, Sunday evening while crossing the Wharncliffe overhead bridge with Engineer Gray, on the freight train running from Sarnia to Fort Erie, was struck under the right eye with a stone, inflicting a bad cut, and breaking the principal bone of the nose. The high rate of speed at which the train was running made the injuries much more severe than if the train had been slowing up.

COMPETITION AND THE PANAMA CANAL QUESTION.

The power of competition has ever been one of the forces, if not the supreme influence in the sphere of commerce, as it has also in diplomacy and in international relations. Many wars attributed to dynastic and political causes, if more closely studied, would prove to have had their origion in trade competition which gave rise to the dynastic and political quarrels that resulted in war. Professor Stubbs, late Bishop of Oxford, said "Wars in old times were for rights; in modern times they are for interests." This general principle is illustrated by the conflicts which for over a century made Europe resound with the clash of arms up to the close of the Napoleonic wars. Napoleon's ambition was to destroy the commercial power of England. He sneered at British devotion of trade, just as the fox disparaged the grapes it coveted, but could not reach. Competition in tariff set in motion the hugest and most aggressive military expedition on record. Competition is just now showing its power over international affairs by the attitude which is being assumed by leading American journals in regard to the projected canal across the isthmus of Panama. This enterprise was undertaken "hotfoot" by the States, the selected route being across Nicaragua from Greytown on the east coast to Brito on the Pacific. The difficulties of a treaty and political character in that scheme were sought to be removed by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. The Nicaragua canal could not have been constructed as first proposed, that is as a strictly American channel, as practically a section of the United States and under the absolute control and protection of that country, without the assent of Great Britain and other European powers whose treaty rights, such an American canal would have violated, and whose commercial interests it would have endangered. The Senate of the United States refused to sanction the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, under which the canal would have been neutralized and practically placed under the protection of England as well as the States. A movement has since been initiated to revive the original Panama Canal, upon which most costly work was done under Lesseps, which was abandoned. Were this completed it would be so formidable a competitor of the one by the Nicaragua route as to render that enterprise of little value, and hopeless from a revenue earning standpoint. The Panama channel is shorter by a day and a half, its navigation would be far easier, its terminal, and its harbours are safer and more commodious than those proposed to be constructed at the mouths of the Nicaragua canal. The spectre of competition is showing on the horizon, alarming the American people by the prospect of their pet scheme being financially killed by a rival. The right of a foreign power or foreign capitalists to build the Panama canal cannot now be disputed by the States, so the wisest course for the Washington government would be to formally abandon the Nicaragua project and give aid to the revived movement for connecting the Atlantic and Pacific by the route selected by the distinguished but unfortunate French engineer Dr. Lesseps.—The Chronicle.

AURORA CASES COMMENCED.

Rutledge, Rice and Jones on Their Trial For Robbery.

Toronto, June 4.—Shortly two hours were occupied in the Criminal Sessions yesterday in selecting a jury to hear the case of Rutledge, Rice and Jones, charged with robbing the postoffice at Aurora on the night of May 22, 1900.

When the court resumed in the afternoon, Mr. Dewart presented to the jury the case for the Crown, after which Mr. Hume Proctor, postmaster at Aurora, was called. He described the condition of the postoffice when he left it on the night of May 22, and how he found it on the morning of May 23, with safe shattered and premises injured. The stamps taken were 100 half-cent, 3,500 ones, 2,970 twos, 1,300 old purple twos, 650 threes, maple leaf 80 surcharged threes, two twos, 170 fives, 7 ten cent immediate delivery, all worth $152.35. Many certificates of stock in various mining companies were also stolen, and $55 in cash. Stamps found on the prisoners when arrested were produced by the Crown, and Mr. Proctor said that they were similar to those stolen. Mr. Proctor also identified a large blacksmith's sledge hammer and a brace which were discovered at the postoffice the morning after the robbery. The pieces of the combination safe which had been shattered by an explosion were also shown to the jury.

Mrs. Proctor and Miss Violet Sheppard, who assisted at the postoffice, corroborated the evidence given by Mr. Proctor. Mr. J. L. Miller, blacksmith, at Aurora, identified the sledge hammer and the brace as having been stolen from his shop on the night of the robbery.

Evidence was then adduced to prove that Rice, Rutledge and Jones were in the town of Aurora on the night of the robbery. Mr. S. T. De Ville, Mayor of Aurora, Eli Braund, Samuel Hewitt, George Lemon, Dr. Stevenson, Mrs. Mary Scanlon and Joseph Arlman, all testified to having seen one or other of the prisoners in Aurora up to the day before the robbery.

The court adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

Scarecrows.

The term is almost a misnomer, nowadays. For the "century-living crow" has been schooled by experience. The scarecrow dosn't scare him. Investigating ornithologists say that he can tell a gun from a stick and can count up to seven. Evidently the crow has progressed from the ignorance of his ancestry.

The crow is in some things in advance of the human family. There are scarecrows which scared our grandfathers, and which are just as fearsome to us. In spite of the fact that some scientific investigators say, "There's nothing to be afraid of. A scarecrow can't hurt you," the bulk of men and women still believe the scarecrow is a powerful and destroying fetish.

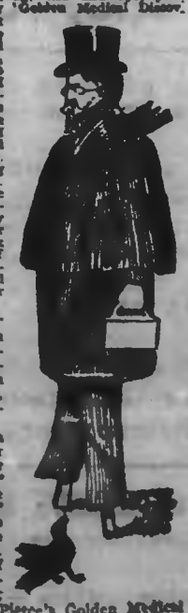
This attitude is most marked in relation to certain forms of disease. In diseases of the lungs and respiratory organs, for instance, it is the custom to assume that there is no cure for the cough, no help for the hemorrhage, no healing for the lungs. The scarecrow, Consumption, is set up, often taking the form of some inexperienced and unskillful practitioner who denies hope or help to the victim of disease.

Yet the records go to show that stubborn coughs have been cured, that persistent hemorrhages have been stopped, and that weak lungs have been made strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

TESTIMONY TALKS.

All the claims in the world for the curative virtues of a medicine will not equal one testimony to the actual fact of cure. Thousands of testimonials like the following have been received from persons cured of lung "troubles," bronchitis, hemorrhage, obstinate coughs, etc., by "Golden Medical Discovery:"

"I was very sick indeed," writes Mrs. Mollie Jacobs, of Felton, Kent Co., Delaware, "and our family doctor said I had consumption. I thought I must die soon, for I felt so awfully bad. Had a bad cough, spit blood, was very short of breath; in fact, could hardly get my breath at all sometimes. I had pains in my chest and right lung, also had dyspepsia. Before I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' I was so weak I could not sweep a room, and now I can do a small washing. I worked in the canning factory this fall, and I feel like a new person. I thank the good Lord, and also Dr. Pierce for making this good medicine. I believe that the Lord and your medicine have saved my life. I was sick over two years. I took thirteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of Doctor Pierce's Pellets."



There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Sometimes a dealer will offer a substitute for the "Discovery," claiming it to be "just as good." The substitute pays him more profit, that's why. Protect yourself from unscrupulous dealers by insisting on Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

31 CENTS' WORTH!

Of knowledge wouldn't amount to much, you'd think. But for just 31 cents invested in one-cent stamps (to pay expense of mailing only), you can obtain knowledge which it has taken hundreds of years and millions of money to acquire. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser covers the field of medicine and hygiene from the day of Galen to the present hour. The 1008 pages of this great work are full of facts vital to human health and happiness. The book is given away, being sent entirely free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers or 50 stamps for the cloth bound book. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ONTARIO'S REVENUE GROWS.

The Crown Lands Increase $40,000 So Far This Year.

Toronto, June 4.—The revenue of the Crown Lands Department for the first five months of the year shows a considerable increase over the same period of last year. The total, so far for 1901, is $546,168, compared with $506,870 in 1900, an increase of $39,293. The following are the figures in the three branches:

	Land.	Timber.	Mines.
1900	$25,846	$435,470	$45,002
1901	28,293	482,597	35,085
Increase	$ 2,447	$ 47,127	*$ 9,971

*Decrease.

An analysis of the accounts shows that of the revenue for the first five months of 1900, $246,282 was from timber bonuses, or money paid by lumbermen for the licensing of timber berths. This year only $39,480 was contributed in this way, so that the revenue received this year outside bonuses, was nearly a quarter of a million larger than last year. This is made up very largely of timber dues, the money paid by lumbermen on the timber cut, per thousand feet. The largely increased cut of pine is partly responsible for the increase, while the fact remains also that a considerable amount of dues payable last year was not paid in until this year.

FOUND IN MADRID.

Mexican Priest With a Girl and $60,000 of Other People's Money Placed.

Madrid, June 4.—The Mexican Ambassador here received recently a cable despatch from his government requesting him to look out for Jesu Esparza, a priest, 52 years old, who had absconded from Guadalajara with Maria Padilla, a beautiful 17-year-old girl, and $60,000 belonging to the archbishop and clergy of Guadalajara, for whom Esparza had acted as treasurer.

The priest presented himself at the ambassador's home yesterday and asked him to attest the signature of four bills of $10,000 each on a firm of well-known Madrid bankers. He was induced by the ambassador to leave his certificate of identity.

Later the police, who had been notified, went to the Hotel Oriente with a warrant and found Esparza and the girl taking a siesta after lunch. Their luggage was searched, and over $60,000 was found in bills, notes and Mexican and English and Spanish gold. Both were lodged in jail. They showed stolid unconcern over their arrest.

THE DEER'S HORNS.

Why and how is the deer so peculiarly unlike any other of the bovine race, the horn differing so materially from all the horned cattle in its composition, growth, maturity and decline? It presents all the phenomena of animal and vegetable growth. It sprouts from the brain without any prolongation of the frontal bone. It rises and breaks through the sinews and takes root on the bone, growing the same as a vegetable. It is nourished by and secretes albumen upon the surface and disposes of the fibrine the same as an animal.

It is clothed with a skin and hairy coat very different from that on the rest of the body. This covering and hair possess a property unknown in other animal bodies—that of being a styptic to stanch its own blood when wounded. It carries marks of the age on the buck by putting out an extra branch each year, which shows an additional power each year to produce them. And this power does not exist in the female. So this difference is more distinctly marked than in any other class of animals. Again, the horn possesses properties unknown in any other animal matter. It is entirely inodorous, capable of resisting putrefaction and almost impervious to the effects of the atmosphere.

And still water at 300 degrees F. will dissolve these horns readily, even though they are not soluble in alcohol and resist the action of acids and alkalies. It is the only vegeto animal substance that we know of that does not perpetuate itself by procreation.

The male and the female are sustained by the same nutrition and elements, and the male only produces horns. This phenomenon is quite as much of a curiosity as the absence of the horn in the buck after shedding.

The Dramatic in Life.

The undying interest which is taken in the theater is explained by the very profound line with which Shakespeare began a very silly speech, "All the world's a stage." People as a rule take no interest in anything that is not dramatically (or, as in the case of politics, melodramatically) formulated. Any creed to be popular must be dramatically stated. Therefore the gospels are preferred to the epistles. Æsop's fables are remembered because they are the truth about things stated dramatically and morally.—F. G. Bernard Shaw.

An Armless Wonder.

Bulwer in his "Artificial Changeling" makes mention of one John Simons, a native of Berkshire, England, born without arms or hands, who could write with his mouth, thread a needle, tie a knot, shuffle, cut and deal a pack of cards, etc. This wonderful personage was exhibited in London in 1653.

Quite a Relief.

Wife—No; but I can think with all my might and main what a perfectly horrid, mean, inconsiderate, selfish brute you are not to drive the nails yourself.

A Girl's Good Recipe.

There was a modicum of sense in the response to a request made by a young lady as to what would keep her hands white and soft, "Soak your hands three times daily in dishwater while mother rests on the sofa."

The water boundaries of France are as follows: Mediterranean sea coast, 395 miles; North sea, strait of Dover and English channel, 572 miles; Atlantic ocean, 584 miles.

Don't neglect yourself to do work for others that is ineffective and only a bother to them.

CLASH OF THE ALLIES.

British Fusiliers Fire and Killed a Frenchman.

FIRST ATTACKED AT TIEN TSIN.

Bayonets and Bricks Were Used—Germans Aided the French Disturbers of the Peace—Several Fusiliers and Germans Were Wounded—Departure of Count Von Waldersee From Pekin.

Tien Tsin, June 3.—There was a serious affray yesterday between international troops. Some British Fusiliers, who were acting as police here, and preventing French soldiers from housebreaking, were attacked with bayonets and bricks. The Fusiliers responded by firing into the air. This brought a number of Germans to the aid of the Frenchmen. They numbered together 200 men. Five Fusiliers fired again, this time killing a Frenchman and wounding three others. In subsequent fighting four Fusiliers, five Germans and one Japanese were wounded. The arrival of a German officer and a strong guard ended the fray.

Departure of Von Waldersee.

Pekin, June 3.—The departure of Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee from Pekin to-day was marked by a great military display by the allied troops, the booming of artillery and the playing of bands. The entire diplomatic body escorted the Field Marshal to the depot.

Von Rauch, the aide-de-camp, and nephew of Count Von Waldersee, will remain here to escort Prince Chun, the Emperor's brother, to Berlin, where he will formally apologize in behalf of China for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler.

Ferrozone quickly makes blood, strengthens the nervous system, strengthens the digestive organs and presto! the nervous disturbance disappears. Sold by Ormond and Walsh.

Three Kings Before Victoria.

Victoria ascended the throne at an inauspicious moment. Kingship had fallen into a miserable disrepute. The last three monarchs who had sat upon our throne had done little to make their office easy or glorious. George III had obscured whatever virtues were his by an obstinacy of opinion which cost us a vast colony and which might well have enslaved us to a foreign power.

George IV had died unwept and unpitied. As he had made his distinguished office a scandal, as he had made his throne ridiculous by a deplorable levity of taste and conduct, so he had forfeited the affection of his people and alienated their sympathy long before death overtook him. "There never was an individual," proclaimed The Times but a few weeks after his death, "less regretted by his fellow creatures than this deceased king. What eye has wept for him? What heart has heaved one throb of unnecessary sorrow?" And The Times expressed in those bitter words nothing less than the popular judgment.

Nor can it be said that William IV graced the throne of Britain. Loved for his homely virtues, he raised a smile of kindly contempt by his lack of dignity and his frank misunderstanding of kingly ceremonial. On the day of his accession he escaped from his council and was found throwing shillings to a noisy crowd in a back street, and never did he acquire the rudiments of tact which should be the first wisdom of kings.

Kitchener's Report of the Vlakfontein Fight.

SENDING REINFORCEMENTS.

Boers Captured British Guns, but Were Driven off With Heavy Loss and the Guns Retaken.

(Special to the Examiner.)

London, June 4.—Lord Kitchener in a despatch from Pretoria dated June 4th, says Dixon's report of the fighting at Vlakfontein on May 29, just received. On our side 1,450 men with seven guns were engaged. The force was returning to camp at Vlakfontein, when the enemy, under cover of a veldt fire, rushed the rear guard, consisting of two guns of the 28th Battery and 330 men of the Derbyshire and Yeomanry. They temporarily captured the two guns. When the remainder of the force came into action the Boers were driven off, the guns recaptured and the Boer position was occupied.

Our casualties were six officers and 51 men killed, six officers and 115 men wounded and one officer and seven men missing. One officer and four men have since died of wounds.

Forty-one Boers were killed on the ground. The further Boer casualties are not known. Reinforcements are being sent.

VETERANS' SMOKER.

The Boys of '66 had a Big Time Last Night—Speeches Songs etc.

The Veterans' Association of the Town of Peterborough celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of Ridgeway in a very happy manner last night. After the Veterans had concluded their important business at Victoria Museum, they marched down town to the Sons of England Hall, where a delightful smoker was held for the members. A very pleasant social time was enjoyed and stories, songs and speech-making wiled away the evening.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, K. C., gave a very interesting account of the Battle of Ridgeway, at which he was present, having at that time been a ber of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Lieut. Col. H. C. Rogers reviewed the events in connection with the formation of the three companies which left Peterborough and Ashburnham, and Rev. J. C. Davidson made a short but spirited address to the gathering.

Mr. Walter Stocker sang several selections, among which were "A Greeting to the King," and "The Boys of the White and Blue."

Refreshments were served by Long Bros.

OBITUARY.

Demise of Rev. A. R. Campbell, Whose Interment Took Place This Afternoon.

The remains arrived in Peterborough last evening of Rev. A. R. Campbell, whose death at Mount Forest was recorded in last evening's Examiner.

The deceased, who was a superannuated Methodist minister, had only resided in town for a year, but his many sterling qualities of character had already gained for him many friends and admirers in the town. He had been for over forty years actively engaged in the Methodist ministry, from which he retired about seven years ago to live at Hastings. His appointments of recent years have been at Atherly, Hastings, Northport, Wellington, Oakwood, Mount Forest and Sault Ste. Marie. At the latter point he was chairman of the District for three years.

A widow and one daughter survive to mourn his loss, the latter being Mrs. (Rev.) J. G. Lewis, of Newtonville. Another daughter deceased in 1892, was the wife of Major Fowlds, of Hastings, and a son, Hunter, died in 1882, after being in the ministry for one year.

The funeral took place this afternoon at five o'clock from the family residence, corner of Union and Edinburgh streets, interment being in the Little Lake Cemetery. The service was taken by Rev. Mr. Kilgour and Rev. C. L. Thompson, and the pallbearers were chosen from the members of the George street Church Board. Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Hastings, was also in attendance.

FOR STONY LAKE.

Between Seven and Eight Hundred Bass to be Let Loose There.

Through the efforts of several prominent local sportsmen, assisted by Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, between seven and eight hundred Lake Erie bass will be deposited in Stony Lake this week. The fish are each between two and three pounds in weight, and are of course a very superior variety. They will arrive here this week in large tanks containing 100 fish each. It had been thought at one time that it would be wise to deposit the bass in Gull Lake and other waters in that section of the country, but the fact that there are not any bass of any variety in those waters, led those who had made a study of the matter to believe that the waters of Gull Lake are not suited for fish of this variety.

A peculiarity of all bass, a local gentleman pointed out to-day, is that they stay with their young fish for a considerable length of time, and until they are able to take care of themselves.

LACROSSE.

That lacrosse is not by any means dead in Peterborough was proven last evening on the P. A. A. A. Grounds, when the players of the town divided themselves into two teams as representing the Vaticans and the Y. M. C. A. and gave a number of spectators an opportunity of seeing some good fast lacrosse playing. Old patrons of the game who were present were delighted with the showing made by the younger players who were steadied down in their game by some of the old seniors.

No goals were scored in the first half, but in the last half the Vaticans ran through four to their opponents one.

The teams were comprised as follows:

BASEBALL.

Arrangements have been made with the Heintzman baseball team to play on the P. A. A. A. Grounds on Saturday afternoon.

CRICKET.

Owing to the unfavourable weather the Colts did not go to Port Hope on Saturday. However, they will go down to play Trinity College School on Saturday next.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

The tennis tournament which is to take place at the Y.M.C.A. commencing Monday next, promises to be very interesting. There will be three classes to play, which will give the most novice player a chance. As the weather has been so unfavourable to those playing, this week has yet been granted for practice. The draw will be made at the latter end of the week and will be published in Saturday's issue of this paper. Let all interested players get in some hard practice.

On Saturday morning next at 9.15 the members of the Boy's Gymnasium Class will leave the Y.M.C.A. for a cross-country jaunt under the leadership of H. E. Ayers. All boys desiring the outing will be at the building sharp on time.

THE WHEEL.

It is understood that a five mile bicycle race has been arranged for a sum of money between Mr. J. W. Koster and Mr. Wade Garbutt, the race to take place on the Nicholls oval track at an early date.

GOLF.

The Golf Club tea, which was to have been held last Thursday will be held this coming Thursday.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. J. Sinclair Robertson of Toronto has returned from Egypt, and in his "Remarks on the Side," in Saturday's Telegram, gets off the following "hot stuff:" "Veterans of '66 and and the late war are being given by by the Ontario Government a land grant of 160 acres, and now Walter Phelan is protesting. He says he is not a veteran of '66, neither did he fight in the Transvaal, but he did carry hay for the colonel's horse at the Niagara camp two years ago, and thinks that alone entitles him to recognition."

ACROSS THE RIVER.

Ashburnham Grocers Agree to Close Their Places of Business Early.

Ashburnham is falling into line. They evidently believe in the old saw, "Early to bed, early to rise," etc., as certain of the shop keepers have resolved to not keep open too late these fine summer evenings.

The grocers have agreed amongst themselves to close their places of business at seven o'clock in the evening during the summer months, excepting on Saturday evenings, and evenings preceding public holidays. This move on the part of the Ashburnham grocers is deserving of much commendation.

You can get all sizes of boys' and men's balbriggan shirts and drawers at the Port Hope Knitting Works for 25c. Also an excellent choice of other qualities. Call and look them over. Double Trading Stamps all this week.

VETS PRESENT THEIR PICTURE

To the Peterborough Historical Society.

AN INTERESTING CEREMONY

An Address That was Read by Mr. A. P. Poussette and Replied to by Mr. T. A. S. Hay.

A very interesting event in connection with the Peterborough Town and County Historical Society took place last night at Victoria Museum, and it at the same time proved to be an event of much interest to the Veterans of '66, who were out in large numbers. The occasion was the presentation to the museum of a beautiful large picture of the local veterans of 1866. The ceremony was quite formal while it lasted, but it was characterized by its brevity. It had been arranged of course, that the presentation last night should take place shortly after seven o'clock and there was quite a number of members of the society and others present to witness the event. The quaint looking old structure has of late been undergoing extensive and much needed repairs, both interior and exterior and these were viewed with much satisfaction by all to say nothing of the curios, etc., on exhibition.

Amongst the visitors and members present were,—Miss Helen Hayes, H.T. Strickland, Geo. Burnham, M. D., Warden G.W.Fitzgerald,Richard Hall, Mrs. Birdsall, E. Hickey, Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, Mrs. W. Miller, T. A. S. Hay.

The veterans met at the drill shed and marched in a body to the museum. After registering, they filed into the lecture hall, in which the visitors and members were seated and the ceremony was proceeded with.

The Veterans present were,—John Irwin, Wm. Logan, J B McWilliams, Fred McCorry, J W Miller, Peter Gifford, Geo. Stenton, J Gray, E Green, Geo. Brown, F J R Mitchell, W F C Anthony, H Rush, J D Collins, H Nesbitt, H I Holmes, G S Kingdom, Ed. Green, J Green, J I Davidson, J McKeller, A P Pousette, H C Rogers.

The meeting was called to order by Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, President of the Historical Society, who without any preliminaries called upon Mr. Poussette, President of the Veterans' Association, to make a few remarks. He read the following address and at the same time the picture was unveiled by Mr. J. B. McWilliams:

To the Peterborough Historical Society:

One of the historic events of this Town and County which may be appropriately recorded among the archives of your Society is the call to arms of the volunteers on the first of June, 1866, to repel a threatened invasion by the Fenians, then gathered in large numbers upon our borders. At that time a very healthy military spirit pervaded this community, as evidenced by the fact that although the population of the town and the adjoining village together numbered scarcely 4,000, there were no less than three full companies organized, thoroughly equipped and well drilled, ready to respond at a moment's notice to the call which they then received. These companies consisted of the Peterborough Rifles, commanded by the late Captain (afterwards Lt.-Colonel) Poole, with Lieut. (now Lieut.-Col.) H. C. Rogers. The Peterborough Infantry Company, commanded by Capt., (afterwards Lieut.-Col.) the late John Kennedy and the Ashburnham Light Infantry Company, commanded by Capt. (afterwards Lieut.-Col.) J. Z. Rogers. These three commpanies were all ordered to the front; the two Infantry Companies, together with the Lakefield Infantry Company formed part of a Provisional Battalion under the command of the late Lieut. Col. A. T. H. Williams, the Rifle Company forming part of a Rifle Battalion under command of the late Lieut.-Col. A. M. Smith. The Battalions were moved from place to place during the three weeks of threatened danger, being stationed at Toronto, Cobourg and Kingston. While these battalions had not the good fortune to meet the enemy, it is well remembered that among their officers, non-commissioned officers and men, there was all that old time eagerness for the fray which has ever characterized the British soldier, more particularly when called upon to defend hearth and home.

Within recent years the men who took part in the events referred to have thought fit to form themselves into Associations for the purpose of keeping alive the memory of that period, and with the further object of obtaining some recognition of the services performed. The combined efforts of these Associations resulted in her late Most Gracious Majesty conferring upon all who actually served at that time, and later a medal commemorative of the Fenian Raid, not only of 1866, but also of 1870, and the Red River campaign of 1870; besides which there may be attributed to their agitation, the recent Act of the Ontario Legislature by virtue of which the Govenment of the Province has been graciously pleased to obtain authority to grant to each volunteer serving in the campaigns referred to, as well as in the war against the Boers in South Africa, 160 acres of land in New Ontario.

Taking these circumstances into consideration, the Peterborough Veterans of 1866 Association at their last annual meeting resolved to ask your Society to accept from them a gift of a picture, containing portraits of many of the survivors of the old Peterborough and Ashburnham companies, as well as of others who served in other corps, and of some who have departed this life. The Association therefore now beg your acceptance of this picture to be hung on the wall of the Victoria Museum, together with a list of those whose portraits are represented, showing the rank they respectively held in 1866, and that subsequently acquired.

On behalf of the Peterborough Veterans of 1866 Association.

A. P. POUSSETTE,
President.
J. D. COLLINS,
Secretary.

Peterborough, June 3rd, 1901.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay on behalf of the Historical Society, read the following in reply:

Mr. President and Veterans,—

On behalf of the Peterborough Historical Society, I accept the picture with thanks, and with the assurance that it will be fully appreciated and highly prized, not only as an ornament to the walls of our building but also as a reminder of the men who rushed to the defence of our beloved country in time of danger.

This act also enrolls you all as supporters of this museum, and we want the help of you all in this work we have undertaken. In fact we want every citizen to take an interest in this work and to feel that this museum belongs to him, and to lend us his aid in preparing for posterity a creditable assortment of curios and relics not the least interesting of which will be the Veterans of '66.

(Signed) GEO. BURNHAM, M.D.,
Chairman of Museum Committee of the Peterborough Historical Society.

Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, President of the Society, then spoke a few words concerning the objects of the society. He believed there was hardly a home that did not contain something of value to the museum, yet it is no doubt stored away where no one can see it. They would be much better in the care of the society, which merely borrows them and gives a receipt for the same so that the ownership of the articles never changes. He was glad to see the visitors present and he asked them to take an interest in the business of the society. The rooms would, in a very short while become very valuable and will be of interest not only to posterity, but to the people of the present time. He closed by referring to the number of curios that had from time to time been presented to the society, not a few of which were obtained through the efforts of Mr. J. B. McWilliams.

The meeting closed by singing God Save the King.

The following are the names of the Veterans in the picture,—H Nesbitt, J Collins, A P Pousette, Col. H C Rogers, Sidney Smith, R H Lithgow, J B McWilliams, D Kennedy, R M Roy, B Shortly, H Rush, A Bell, J Alexander, P Kennedy, W Johnston, T Rutherford, Geo. May, Colonel Poole, Col. Dr. R W Bell, J Haggart, H McNeil, Col. R D Rogers, J Gow, G Brown, D Low, G Stenton, J Mowry, J Holmes, J Cookson, J Craig, R Thompson, J Irwin, W Miller, A J Scholfield, W Langford, T J Nichol, W Dudman, R Wright, E Walton, S Montgomery, F R Yokome, J Craig, D Breeze, L McCorry, M McCue, E Green, J Gray, J Sawers, Geo. W Kennedy, J Smith, W J Lundy, J I Davidson, C Phillips, R Tivey, J Green, W Scollie, W Logan, H C Strickland, J Kennedy, W H Hill, D Campbell, G Kingdom, R M Sheppard, R B Rogers.

At a meeting of the Historical Society held immediately afterwards, Messrs. E. H. D. Hall and Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers were appointed delegates to the Provincial Association meeting, which takes place to-morrow and Thursday in Belleville.

The sum of $5 was voted to Mrs. Howland in recognition of the voluntary services she has rendered the Society in connection with the Museum.

The president, Lt.-Col. Rogers, spoke very enthusiastically of the very generous manner in which Mr. Hall had repaired the Museum building.

The meeting then adjourned.

WHEN IS A MAN DRUNK?

An Ancient Test Which a Modern Court Refused to Uphold.

The late Major James Brown of Taunton was not only a brilliant lawyer in his day, but considerable of a wit, with a memory well stocked with quaint and curious precedents and traditions in legal lore. He had carried a case in which his client had been convicted on the charge of being an habitual drunkard up to the supreme court on the point of law involving the issue of what a state of intoxication was as a legal proposition. This he proceeded to argue to the court.

It was evident that the gallant major was conducting a forlorn hope. Of that nobody was more fully aware than himself. But his client, the dissolute heir of a prominent Bristol county family, was wealthy as well as dissolute, full of fight and ready to pay whatever fee his lawyer would demand. Brown, on his part, was equally willing to do all he could to earn it. Finally, after permitting the lawyer to argue along for some time in a way that was delightfully entertaining, since he entered very minutely into a discourse on the various phases and degrees of intoxication, drawing on personal reminiscences, humorous anecdotes, old saws and some legal authorities to point his argument, the presiding justice courteously intimated that, while much of what the major was submitting was highly interesting, still it wasn't law. He suggested that Brown should state specifically, if he could, what actually constituted a condition of unquestionable intoxication and cite some authority worthy the profound consideration of the court, whereupon the lawyer remarked that he was prepared to do that, although he would have to go back into the realm of English jurisprudence to a period long antedating the era of Blackstone.

In those ancient days under the common law, he said, it is written that the determination of the question of whether a man was drunk or not was settled by the following test, which was accepted by the experts, legal and other, as infallible:

Not drunk is he who from the floor
Can rise again and drink once more,
But drunk is he who prostrate lies
And cannot either drink or rise.

The gravity of the court was somewhat upset by the citation which Brown delivered with mock seriousness and elocutionary effect, but the judges were evidently not convinced that the precedent was sufficiently sound and reputable to deserve affirmation by the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, inasmuch as a decision was forthwith handed down overruling the contentions of Major Brown

HUMAN FINGER PRINTS.

Possible Drawbacks to Their Value in Identification.

The constancy of human finger prints has chiefly been discussed in connection with the identification of criminals. Assuming that the evidence of finger prints is to be admissible in criminal proceedings, it will be not only necessary to prove that in the case of the same man the finger prints remain unaltered, but that no two persons have identical finger prints. Where is the evidence of this?

There are probably 1,500,000,000 men and women on the earth. Can we suppose that no two of these have identical finger prints? Nor indeed is this all. We may be comparing the finger prints of a living man with those of one who has been dead for years past, and the doctrine of heredity might lead us to expect to find similar finger prints in the case of parents and children and of different children of the same parents. It is at all events certain that if this finger print system were once introduced into our courts of justice there would be any amount of wrangling as to whether they were identical or only similar, experts contradicting each other and involving the whole subject in confusion.

Moreover, professional criminals would probably soon find some mode of altering their finger prints. No doubt if the person who committed a crime—a murder, for example—has left the imprint of his fingers on anything it may prove an important clew, but the same thing may be said of the imprint of his boots or shoes. But a clew is one thing and a proof is another thing.

Let me point out another difficulty. In a country where there are a large number of criminals whose finger prints are collected the number of these will soon be very large. How long would it take to examine this collection in order to find out whether any of them corresponded accurately with the finger prints of the man who is now accused? The task would, I think, be a hopeless one.

That finger prints may be important in the detection of crime whenever the criminal has left the print of his fingers behind him I do not dispute, but without much stronger evidence than we now possess that no two persons have undistinguishable finger prints such evidence ought never to be permitted to outweigh what appeared to be a tolerably satisfactory alibi.—Knowledge.

Buckingham Palace.

Buckingham palace stands on the site of pleasure grounds known in the days of Evelyn and Pepys and frequently mentioned in their diaries as the Mulberry gardens. The property was eventually bought by the Duke of Buckingham, who erected the first house, which, however, was not large or handsome, notwithstanding that it was even then called Buckingham palace. George III purchased it from the dowager Duchess of Buckingham as a residence for Queen Charlotte, whose palace, Somerset House, in the Strand, was required for public purposes. After much haggling with his majesty's agent the duchess parted with it for £60,000. It was not greatly altered till 1824, when it was enlarged and almost rebuilt after designs by Joseph Nash for the London residence of the royal family.—London Chronicle.

A Careless Remark.

"I am really afraid you hurt that actor's feelings," said Miss Cayenne.

"In what way?"

"You said he played his part very well. You know he is very sensitive, and by using the word 'part' he may have thought you were trying to imply that he is not the whole show."

His Vocation.

Visitor—Can I have a few words with you, sir?

Busy Man—A very few. What are you—a book solicitor?

Visitor—Quite the contrary. I am a book dispenser. It is money that I solicit.

ON FIRE.

An exploding lamp; the clothing in a blaze; a paragraph in the paper telling of horrible suffering from burns. Tragedy in this form moves a man to tears. But for women who are daily being consumed by the smouldering fire of disease there is little sympathy.

Inflammation, with its fierce burning; ulceration, eating into the tissues; the nervous system almost shattered by suffering; these are only part of the daily agonies borne by many a woman.

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y., "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, and I began taking your medicines. After taking first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

A DOMINION COMMISSIONER TO THE GLASGOW EXHIBITION.

He Represented Muskoka in the House of Commons From 1882 to 1896—One of the "Old Boys" of Upper Canada College—Followed Journalism, Was Called to the Bar, But Preferred Agriculture.

Lieut.-Col. W. E. O'Brien, one of the Canadian Commissioners to the Glasgow Exhibition, is perhaps best known to the public by reason of his representation of Muskoka in the House of Commons from 1882 to 1896. He was born at Thornhill in 1831, and was educated at Upper Canada College. He followed journalism for a short time, and was called to the bar in 1874, but never practised, having devoted himself to agriculture and to his public duties. He became actively identified with the militia in early life, and was largely instrumental in raising the Simcoe Foresters, to the command of which he was appointed in 1882. During the rebellion of 1885 he took command of the York and Simcoe Regiment, and was stationed with it at Fort Qu'Apelle and Humboldt. In 1897 he was present at the Queen's diamond jubilee celebration in London, on invitation of the Canadian militia authorities. He sat in Parliament as a Conservative, but acting in general harmony with the late Mr. Dalton McCarthy during the latter portion of his Parliamentary life. He was one of the thirteen members that in 1888 voted for the disallowance of the Jesuit grant, and he strenuously opposed the Manitoba Remedial bill. He was a prominent member of the Imperial Federation League during its existence, and is in general sympathy with all that tends to promote the unity of the Empire. Col. O'Brien is an able speaker, and well versed in all public questions. He married in 1864 a daughter of the late Col. R. R. Loring. Col. O'Brien is at present in Glasgow in the performance of his duties as Canadian Commissioner to the International Exhibition now in progress there.

Bronchitis is now Epidemic.

Bronchitis is becoming very prevalent, but is not now incurable for Catarrhozone cures even the worst cases. Catarrhozone Inhaler sends the healing medicated air into every air passage in head, bronchial tubes and lungs; it reaches the germs and destroys them. Catarrhozone soothes and cures the dry cough and feverishness, and the laborious breathing and soreness in the wind-pipe are relieved at once. When Catarrhozone is inhaled, Bronchitis is cured in one to five days. It has been extensively used, and never once failed. Even cases of 5, 10 and 20 years standing that have baffelled the skill of the best physicians, have been cured by Catarrhozone. Your doctor can tell you that Catarrhozone is one of the grandest discoveries of the century, and that he always prescribes it for Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. Get it to-day and be cured. An Uncouth Mode of Burial.

Of all the modes of burial ever practiced by creatures in the shape of human beings the method of the Queensland nomads is certainly the most uncouth. After drying the corpse in the sun and knocking out its teeth for keepsakes they deposit it on a framework of rough poles and bury it under a few armsful of rushes and old kangaroo skins, leaving the bush wolves to sing its requiem.

No member of the dead man's tribe will settle within a mile of his grave for fear of being haunted by the spooks making the burial place their midnight rendezvous. The metaphysical opinions of the Australian aborigines prove indeed that savages can be afflicted with an abundance of supernaturalism without betraying a trace of anything deserving the name of religious sentiment.

They believe in evil spirits whistling in the blasts of the storm wind and try to exorcise them by spitting in the direction of the sky, but for the conceptions of the deity, of future existence, of repentance, atonement and conscience their language has not even a definite word. From somewhere in the land of their forefathers—eastern Asia, perhaps—they have imported a notion faintly resembling the Buddhist doctrine of metempsychosis and believe that animals may be reborn as men and men as human beings of a superior rank.

Burr's Self Control.

Aaron Burr was by nature and training a man of extraordinary self control. He allowed no circumstances to throw him off his balance. An anecdote told by Rufus Choate to the late Richard H. Dana, recorded in Mr. Dana's "Diary," illustrates the callousness which aided Burr so greatly in controlling himself. Several years after the death of Hamilton, killed by Burr in a duel, Burr visited Boston, and Mr. Devereux of Salem paid him some attentions. The visitor was taken to the Boston atheneum, where, while the two men were walking through the gallery of sculpture, Mr. Devereux happened to catch sight of a bust of Hamilton.

The thought flashed across his mind that Burr might not care to be confronted with the sight of the features of the man he had slain. But no. Burr was undisturbed. He also espied the bust, and, although Mr. Devereux had instinctively turned away, he walked up to it and said in a loud tone: "Ah! Here is Hamilton!" Then, passing his fingers along certain lines of the face, he added, "There was the poetry!" Hamilton's contemporaries gave him credit for possessing a poetic mind.

Starving Children.

Thousands of well fed children are starving, simply because their food is not of the right kind. They are thin, pale and delicate. Scott's Emulsion will change all this. It gives vim and vigour, flesh and force.

A Pound of Cure.

"My son," said the family man, "is anxious to become a pugilist. I'm doing my best to prevent him."

"Let him go ahead," said the friend of the family, "and have some one pound him. You'll find a pound of cure worth more than an ounce of prevention."

NO ARGUMENT NEEDED.

Every Sufferer From Catarrh Knows That Salves, Lotions, Washes, Sprays and Douches do Not Cure.

Powders, lotions, salves, sprays and inhalers cannot really cure Catarrh, because this disease is a blood disease, and local applications, if they accomplish anything at all, simply give transient relief.

The catarrhal poison is in the blood and the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and trachea tries to relieve the system by secreting large quantities of mucous, the discharge sometimes closing up the nostrils, dropping into the throat, causing deafness by closing the Eustachian tubes, and after a time causing catarrh of stomach or serious throat and lung troubles.

A remedy to really cure catarrh must be an internal remedy which will cleanse the blood from catarrhal poison and remove the fever and congestion from the mucous membrane.

The best and most modern remedies for this purpose are antiseptics scientifically known as Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Sanguinaria and Hydrastin, and while each of these have been successfully used seperately, yet it has been difficult to get them all combined in one palatable, convenient and efficient form.

The manufacturers of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have succeeded admirably in accomplishing this result. They are large, pleasant tasting lozenges, to be dissolved in the mouth, thus reaching every part of the mucous membrane of the throat and finally the stomach.

Unlike many catarrh remedies, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain no cocaine, opiate or any injurious drug, whatever, and are equally beneficial for little children and adults.

Mr. C. R. Rembrandt of Rochester, N. Y., says: "I know of few people who have suffered as much as I from Catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I used sprays, inhalers and powders for months at a time with only slight relief and had no hope of cure. I had not the means to make a change of climate, which seemed my only chance of cure.

Last spring I read an account of some remarkable cures made by Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and promptly bought a 50-cent box from my druggist and obtained such positive benefit from that one package that I continued to use them daily until I now consider myself entirely free from the disgusting annoyance of catarrh; my head is clear, my digestion all I could ask and my hearing which had begun to fail as a result of the catarrh, has greatly improved until I feel I can hear as well as ever. They are a household necessity in my family.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents for complete treatment and for convenience, safety and prompt results they are undoubtedly the long looked for catarrh cure.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

VESSELS OVERLAND.

A NOVEL RAILWAY PROJECT TALKED OF IN NOVA SCOTIA.

A Marine Railway to Carry Ships Across the Narrow Isthmus That Separates the Bay of Fundy From Northumberland Strait—Mr. Provand, Working at the Scheme.

There is at least one walk of life in which Canadians can claim a high position, and that is the engineering profession. Canadian engineers have long been favorably known for their skill and enterprise, and many a signal triumph have they attained in the way of railroad and bridge building. But an enterprise now on foot in the Province of Nova Scotia will, if carried out, put the engineer to a severe test.

This undertaking is a marine railway designed to carry ships across the narrow isthmus that separates the Bay of Fundy from Northumberland strait, an arm of the gulf of St. Lawrence. The project was first talked of in the eighties, but was abandoned about ten years ago because the necessary amount of capital was not forthcoming. Now, however, it is on a fair road to success, for the British investors in the proposed railroad have taken the matter up again and are determined to recoup themselves for the losses they sustained before.

To this end they have sent to this country Mr. A. D. Provand, formerly a member of Parliament for the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, and one of the leading directors in the original corporation. Mr. Provand is hard at work at Halifax arousing interest in the railway and is meeting with much success. Speaking in

Halifax to a friend the other day, he said:

"It is a scheme which should appeal to every shipowner along the Bay of Fundy and to all foreign owners who have dealings in this part of the world. The railway is intended to carry all sorts and conditions of vessels overland from the Bay of Fundy waters to the strait, and vice versa, a distance of only 20 miles and a saving of a run of several hundred miles around the Nova Scotia peninsula and Cape Breton island.

"Not only will a great gain be made in the matter of time, but vessels so carried will escape the dangers which now beset them on this rocky coast, where, as is well known, storms seem to rage more violently than at other Atlantic points. They will escape, too, the dangerous fogs, currents and icebergs so prevalent in the channel between Newfoundland and Cape Breton. Altogether shipowners should be quick to recognize the benefits to be obtained by them from our railway."

As will be seen by a glance at the map, the railway if it becomes a reality will surely prove a boon to shipping. It will certainly present a very odd appearance, for it will have to be built in such a way that over its tracks may be conveyed vessels from small fishing schooners to large ocean liners. Despite all the difficulties that have to be encountered its promoters believe it can be successfully operated.

Material evidences of the Chignecto Marine Railroad, as it will be called, are even now in existence, for work was begun on it years ago when the old company was formed. The Government promised a large sum to subsidize the project, and the promoters spent nearly $4,000,000, but in 1890 a financial depression in England prevented the company from obtaining further capital. As the Government subsidy was contingent upon the completion of the work in a certain time, that money, too, was lost to the promoters.

Mr. Provand is now endeavoring to secure financial aid from the Government. He contends that the British public was induced to invest millions of dollars toward the undertaking on the strength of promises held out to them by Canada. Whatever the result of his efforts, it is certain that he has managed to arouse a great deal of enthusiasm in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

The Municipalization of Publichouses.

Earl Grey was the guest recently of the Pen and Palette Club, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Replying to the toast of his health, Lord Grey said that among the factors that would make for the beauty of life in England was the municipalization of public houses. He had suggested a means of putting a check to the drink traffic by covering England with public houses under a trust company. He would try to make these places museums of art. There was no reason why public houses should not be real centres of refinement. If this idea were carried out these places would be a blessing instead of a curse to the nation.—Lloyd's Weekly.

NEW FORT AT HALIFAX.

War Office Plans to Make the Harbor Impregnable—A New Barracks With a Fine Gymnasium.

Extensive improvements in the fortifications of Halifax are planned by the Imperial authorities, although the officers of the garrison are, as usual, extremely reticent. It transpires that the War Department will construct at the very mouth of Halifax harbor one of the strongest forts in the world. The new fort will exceed in proportions York Redoubt, which is second only to the one at Gibraltar. The new fortress will be armed with 12-inch disappearing, quick-firing guns of the latest type. It is stated that it will be located at or near Sambro, at the point where all vessels entering Halifax harbor must take their bearings. This fortress will be of the utmost strategical value, for no hostile fleet could pass it without being disabled. Sergt.-Major Westwood, Royal Engineers, an expert fortress constructor, who arrived recently from England, was ordered by the Imperial authorities to superintend the construction of the work. The Imperial authorities have decided to erect new barracks and to construct other important works in Halifax this summer. Plans were sent to Halifax contractors. The plans prepared by the military authorities call for a brick barracks for married soldiers, quarters for officers of the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery, quarters for ward master and a gymnasium. The gymnasium building will be the finest in Canada. It will cover a large area of ground and will be constructed on the citadel slope. It will contain swimming baths, shower baths, dressing room, etc.

AN EDITOR'S ADVICE.

Article in a Quebec Paper That Everybody Should Read—Recommends Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to Dyspeptic Sufferers.

Dyspepsia is the common evil of the times. Indigestion and Stomach Troubles are the afflictions of every class.

Brain workers, who from lack of exercise and nervous strain are peculiarly liable to Dyspepsia, cannot do better than take Editor Caron's advice.

He advises Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a reputation on three continents as an absolute safe and certain cure for Dyspepsia in all its forms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will quickly and permanently cure Indigestion, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Acidity, Nervousness, Anaemia, or poorness of the blood and every other indication that the stomach is not doing its work and properly assimilating its food.

Alphonse Caron is the Editor of the Echo of Montmagny, Que. Recently he felt so impressed with the value of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, that he published the article in the paper from which the following is taken:

"To Dyspeptics — Do you know Dyspepsia Tablets are the best things for Dyspepsia to be had on the market. I, the undersigned, do, for I have tested the matter for myself.

"Every person suffering from any form of Dyspepsia may rely on Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. As a former sufferer from that terrible malady myself, I am only too glad to allow others the way out of their troubles as publicly as lies in my power.

"I was cured by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They alone of all the remedies I used were of any benefit. I am sure if others suffering with Dyspepsia would try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets they will be satisfied with them as I am. — Alphonse Caron."

And they are but fifty cents a box all over the world.

A Telltale Boast.

Nell—She used to boast that she was one of the charter members of the Woman's Suffrage club. She doesn't appear to be as proud of it now.

Belle—Oh, she's just as proud, but, you know, the club was organized 15 years ago, and she must have been at least 20 when she joined.

The geographical divisions of the United States are the north Atlantic group, the south Atlantic group, the north central group, the south central group and the western group.

SOUTHERN MOUNTAINEERS.

The Part They Played in the War Between the States.

It is odd to think that the southern mountaineer was not discovered until the outbreak of the civil war, although he was nearly a century old then, and it is really startling to realise that when one speaks of the southern mountaineers he speaks of nearly 3,000,000 people who live in eight southern states—Virginia and Alabama and the southern states between—and occupy a region equal in area to the combined areas of Ohio and Pennsylvania, as big, say, as the German empire, and richer, perhaps, in timber and mineral deposits than any other region of similar extent in the world. This region was and is an unknown land. It has been aptly called Appalachian America, and the work of discovery is yet going on.

The American mountaineer was discovered, I say, at the beginning of the war, when the Confederate leaders were counting on the presumption that Mason and Dixon's line was the dividing line between the north and south and formed, therefore, the plan of marching an army from Wheeling to some point on the lakes and thus dissevering the north at one blow. The plan seemed so feasible that it is said to have materially aided the sale of Confederate bonds in England, but when Captain Garnett, a West Point graduate, started to carry it out he got no farther than Harpers Ferry. When he struck the mountains, he struck enemies who shot at his men from ambush, cut down bridges before him, carried the news of his march to the Federals, and Garnett himself fell with a bullet from a mountaineer's squirrel rifle at Harpers Ferry.—Scribner's Magazine.

The Honorable Board.

Sam Rawson occasionally said a good thing, and one of these occasions chanced to be the town meeting. The people of Sam's village could not understand how the money appropriated for the roads had vanished with such poor results.

A stretch of road running past Sam's house was in notoriously poor condition, although Sam declared that he had paid liberally to have it put in good order, and there was general interest when Sam rose to make his statement before the selectmen.

"I'd just like to say one thing," he drawled, heedless of the fact that he had interrupted an indignant neighbor. "I don't want to make any fuss, but I'd just like to ask the honorable board of highwaymen"—

That was as far as he could get. A roar of laughter swept over the town meeting and showed its effects in the red faces of the "highwaymen."—Youth's Companion.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

Gas on the Stomach

result of imperfect digestion pressing up against the heart, it excites alarming symptoms. Instant relief is afforded by taking half an hour after the meal, ten drops of Polson's Nerviline in a little sweetened water. Nerviline aids digestion, expels the the gas and imparts a sense of comfort. Nerviline is good for lots of other things, and wise people keep a 25 cent bottle in the house for rheumatism, cramps, neuralgia, toothache &c. Try it.

Why Girls Cannot Throw.

A great deal of fun is poked at girls because they cannot throw a stone or a snowball and hit the person or thing they are aiming at. The general idea as to why girls cannot throw as well as boys is that they have not acquired the knack by practice as their brothers have. Another explanation is given by a medical man which tends to show that girls could never learn the knack, however much they tried.

When a boy throws a stone, he crooks his elbow and reaches back with his forearm, and in the act of throwing he works every joint from shoulder to wrist. The girl throws with her whole arm rigid, whereas the boy's arm is relaxed.

The reason of this difference is one of anatomy. The feminine collar bone is longer and is set lower than in the case of a male. The long, crooked, awkward bone interferes with the free use of the arm. This is the reason that girls cannot throw well.

Such Stuff as Dreams Are Made Of.

The materials of dreams may be enumerated as memories of waking sensations, memories of waking thoughts and new sensations received in sleep, whether from without or within. Dr. Gregory mentions of himself that having on one occasion gone to bed with a bottle of hot water at his feet he dreamed of walking up the crater of Mount Etna and feeling the ground warm under him. He had at an early period of his life visited Mount Vesuvius and actually felt a strong sensation of warmth in his feet when walking up the side of the crater, and he had more recently read Brydone's description of Mount Etna.

On another occasion, having thrown off the bedclothes in his sleep, he dreamed of spending a winter at Hudson's bay and of suffering distress from the intense frost. He had been reading a few days before a very particular account of the state of the colonies during winter.

For twenty-four years Vapo-Cresolene has been extensively used for all forms of throat and bronchial troubles. All Druggists.

ROBT. NEILL

REV. O. C. ELLIOTT.

He Preached His First Sermon From His New Pulpit in Belleville on Sunday.

The Belleville Intelligencer refers as follows to Rev. O. C. Elliott, who has taken charge of the Baptist Church in that city:—"Rev. O. C. Elliott, the new pastor of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, preached his initial sermon to his congregation yesterday morning, and made a very favourable impression. Plain, straightforward everyday truths are the stock-in-trade of Rev. Mr. Elliott, expressed in a practical and withal an impressive way. There was a good congregation present. After the usual devotional exercises the Rev. gentleman addressed himself to his flock in a sort of confidential talk. He was glad to meet them, he said, glad to think that the call extended to him was an unanimous one, and believed he was where God wanted him to be, where he hoped and expected to succeed. But even if he did not succeed in Belleville he would not repine, for he knew if he failed it would be the Lord's will. The true test of a good workman was to go where he was sent and do what he was told. Some of them, no doubt thought there was nobody in the world like their old pastor, Rev. Mr. Cowsert. Well, he didn't blame them for that, but rather rejoiced in it, and he hoped in time they would esteem him as much as they did the gentleman who had just left them. He did not expect to please them all the time. If he saw evil he would rebuke it; what he though was God's work he would do, and he might at times have to say things which hurt. By doing so he might lose some earthly friendships, but he knew if he did his duty he would retain the friendship of Jesus Christ, which he had had for 17 years. He wanted them to pray with him and for him, and he was willing to learn from even the smallest child. There were two fundamental truths in the Christian religion—the fall and the redemption. The natural mind of man was in enmity with God, and the work of the Christian church was to teach that the Saviour had died to save sinners and to proclaim the glad tidings. Jesus Christ was to-day knocking in vain at the hearts of many men, and, he was sorry to say, at the doors of many churches. To do God's work properly they must keep up their public services, prayer meetings and Sunday School, and then, in addition, they must show by example what a Christian should and could be. He believed that men and women could be Christians outside the Church, but he did not believe God intended them to do so. What use would a man's arm be if separated from his body? God meant all Christians to keep together. They must keep steadily pressing onward to the goal. He hoped and trusted their work as pastor and people would be blessed, and they must recollect that though precept and teaching was necessary, still example was the strongest power for good."

The Belleville Sun says:—"Notwithstanding the unfavourable condition of the weather yesterday, large congregations greeted Rev. O. C. Elliott, the new pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. In the morning before the sermon, Mr. Elliott referred to the relationship existing between them as pastor and people, and spoke confidently of successful work in the future. This confidence, he said, was based upon the unanimity of the call extended to him, and upon the fact that he believed he was where God wanted him to be. After a few timely and suggestive remarks he preached an excellent sermon from 2nd Corinthians, IV.-20, taking as his subject "The Work to be done." There are two fundamental facts—the fall of man, and redemption through the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. Our work is to proclaim these. This can be done by precept and by example.

In the evening his text was I. Timothy, II Chap., 4,—"Our attitude to God is determined by what we apprehend God's attitude is towards us." This verse reveals His attitude viz., that all men should be saved. God's attitude can be seen through His word, through His preservation of our lives, though the gift of His Son and the Holy Spirit, and through providing a complete redemption from sin, we can be saved by believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

At the close of the service, many were the expressions of appreciation and satisfaction heard on every side.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS IN CANADA.

Statement of Their Number. Mileage and Other Information.

From returns received from the 35 electric railways of Canada, Mr. George Johnson, the Dominion statistician, makes up the following statement: "At the end of December, 1900, the number of miles of electric railways in Canada increased to 681 miles, or 49 miles over the number in 1899.

"The 35 electric railways in Canada carried 118,129,862 passengers in 1900, an increase of 14,097,203. This is equal to carrying every man, woman and child in the country 21 times.

"The car mileage run was 30,924,355 miles, an increase of 1,277,508 miles over 1899.

"The mileage run and the passengers carried show that for each mile run the electrics carried 3.8 passengers, against 3.5 in 1899.

"The amount of paid-up capital invested in electrics on Dec. 31, 1900, was $20,633,000, and the bonded debt was $12,619,422.

"The number of cars in active service in 1900 was 1,642, an increase of 98 over the previous year. The employes numbered 4,493, showing an increase of 164 over 1899.

"The total receipts for the year were $5,422,540, and the expenses $3,268,001.

"The steam railways carried 17,122,193 passengers in 1900. So that total passengers transported by rail was 135,252,055. Between them, the steam and electric railways carried the whole population of Canada 25 times in the year, and the proportion was over 87 by electric and a little under 13 by steam in every 100 persons carried.

"Since 1897 the number of passengers carried by the electrics increased from 83,811,000 to 118,130,000, an increase of 34,319,000, which is equal to 41 per cent., while those carried by steam using railways increased from 13,742,454 to 17,122,193, an increase of 25 per cent.

"The expenses form about 67.50 per cent. of the gross earnings of the steam-using railways and about 60.27 per cent. of the gross earning of the electric railways."

The Best Physicians Recommend MALT BREAKFAST FOOD As a True Health Food.

Many of the common and cheaply prepared grain foods use the term "Health Food" on their labels; this is misleading, as a proper analysis would prove. The term "Health Food" is truthfully applied to Malt Breakfast Food, and the ablest physicians recommend it as such. The pure health-giving Malt scientifically combined with the choicest Wheat, gives to the world a health food unequalled for producing flesh, bone and muscle. Grocers everywhere.

WITHHELD NOTHING.

War Office Has Given All News Received About South Africa.

CAPTURE OF A BOER LEADER.

Three More British Officers Killed—Willow More, Cape Colony, Attacked by Scheeper's Force, Which Was Driven Off After Nine Hours Fighting—Jamestown Threatened by Fouche's Commando.

London, June 4.—The War Office made the following announcement last night:

All the information received from Lord Kitchener respecting recent engagements in South Africa has been communicated to the public.

A Nine Hours' Fight.

Willow More, Cape Colony, June 2.—Commandant Sheeper, with 700 men, attacked Willow More yesterday (Saturday), but was beaten off, after nine hours' fighting.

Jamestown Threatened.

Cape Town, June 3.—Jamestown is threatened by Fouches' commando.

CAPTURE ON ABRAM MALAN.

Son-in-Law of the Late Boer General Joubert Taken.

London, June 4.—Nothing has yet come through to illuminate the Vlakfontein affair, the only despatch on the subject since the first official announcement being a three-line message from Lord Kitchener, issued yesterday morning, giving the names of three additional officers killed.

Details just received of the relief of Zeerust, Transvaal, May 22, by General Methuen, shows the town was besieged practically for several months, and that its food supply was short.

A despatch from Pretoria announces that the constabulary have captured Abram Malan, son-in-law of the late General Joubert. Malan was an energetic, progressive politician before the war, and since it began he had been very active against the British and had filled several important commands, including that of Pietersburg until the British occupied the place.

Uneasiness in England.

New York, June 4.—A special despatch to The Tribune, from London, says the uncertainty with regard to recent operations in South Africa is causing a good deal of uneasiness in this country. It is believed that owing to a recent warning from Gen. Kitchener as to giving news to the public, the home officials have suppressed almost all the news he has forwarded. Meanwhile the daily lists of casualties are anxiously studied, but these lists do not fully denote the actual number of deaths of British soldiers caused by the war. At the present moment all the military hospitals in the United Kingdom are crowded with patients, a large number of whom are suffering from enteric fever, contracted in South Africa.

A Marvelous Escape.

Tavistock, June 4.—About 11.45 yesterday a train passed through Tavistock at a high rate of speed, striking a wagon driven by Simon Zehr, a son of Mr. Christian I. Zehr of this vicinity, and very nearly killing him. The team had just got over the track, so that the engine struck the wagon fairly in the middle. The young man who was driving was hurled 12 feet in the air and lit on his hands and feet, being apparently very little injured. Dr. Niemeier attended him and found no bones broken, and the injuries, only bruises, chiefly to the legs and knees. The wagon box and wheels were hurled three or four hundred feet away and broken to slivers. The horses were not injured, and were caught shortly after at the mill.

The New British Gun.

London, June 4.—Great things are hoped for from a new gun with which the British first-class cruisers now in course of completion are being equipped. The weapon is known as the 9.2 marked 10 twenty-eight ton gun, and is taking the place of heavier guns on account of its great range and rapidity of firing. With a charge of 103 pounds of cordite it can throw a shell weighing 380 pounds to a distance of 15 miles. It is noteworthy that the weapon is being fitted with the new Vickers-Maxim mounting, which weighs 150 tons.

Two Men Were Killed.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 4.—Two men were killed and about 20 injured, two fatally, in a rear-end collision between two sections of a work train yesterday on the Pittsburg, Ohio Valley and Cincinnati Valley Railroad near Powhattan.

Accident to N. C. Wallace's Son

Woodbridge, Ont., June 4.—On Saturday evening James Wallace, third son of N. Clarke Wallace, M. P., broke his leg between the knee and the ankle, while engaged in a game of football.

Shoots Daughter's Caller.

St. Joseph, June 4.—Owen Logan, a young stockman, of Arwoene, Mo., last night was fatally shot while calling on Miss Jessie Walker near Maryville, by her father. He objected to Mr. Logan's attentions, and, it is said, had made frequent threats that he would kill Logan if he did not cease calling.

Mr. Tarte's Program.

Ottawa, June 4.—Hon. Mr. Tarte and Senator Casgrain will inspect Meaford harbor June 6. The Minister of Public Works will go to L'Assomption to the entertainment to the Premier June 11 and 12, after which he hopes to visit Toronto and other points in Ontario.

Seventy Burned to Death.

Oaxaca, Mexico, June 4.—Further details of the great fire which raged on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec for several days have been received here. Over seventy persons were burned to death. The fire started on a coffee plantation. The fire burned for 10 days.

Italy Menaces Turkey.

Rome, June 4.—Three warships, under Admiral Rezasco, left yesterday for Prevesa, owing to the ill-treatment of Italian subjects by the Turkish authorities. The vessels are to wait at Corfu for orders.

C. P. R. Earnings.

Montreal, June 4.—The traffic earnings of the C. P. R. for the week ending May 31 were $884,000; for the same week last year, $836,000.

Sick Man Disappeared.

Winnipeg, May 31.—Will Jones of 534 Portage avenue, suffering from fever, disappeared mysteriously in his night clothes early yesterday morning, and there is no trace of him.

SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experiences, many men do not seem to realize this, but go about complaining of the heat, in underclothes that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, suspenders, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

BOYD MURDERED WHILE ON DUTY.

Sensational Attempt at Escape by Bank Robbers.

SHOT A COUNTY CONSTABLE.

Amid Hail of Bullets They Attempted to Seize and Press a Street Car Into Their Service—Revolvers Supplied Them on the Way to the Jail From the Trial on Tuesday Night.

Toronto, June 5.—Murder is the cost of a hard fought extradition of the desperate criminals, Rutledge, Rice and Jones, who were brought here from Chicago to stand trial for bank robbery charges, and if Jones, one of the prisoners, does not die of bullet wounds, he will lose his right arm, which will have to be amputated to-day.

The victim is County Constable William Boyd, who is now lying dead at the morgue in the General Hospital, his death having been caused by two bullets fired from a revolver in the hands of the prisoner Rice.

The murder was the most sensational in the history of the city. It was committed in broad daylight on East Gerrard street, a few yards east of Sumach street, at about 20 minutes past 6 last night.

At the adjournment of the trial of the prisoners for robbery, they were placed in a hack to be taken back to the jail. Jones was in the centre, with Rutledge handcuffed to his left hand, and Rice to his right and the three occupied the back seat of the vehicle. Facing them were County Constables Walter Stewart and William Boyd, while County Constable Lyman Bogart sat upon the seat of the hack, with Driver George Highley of 237 Sackville street, who works for Newell's livery.

When the carriage was rolling at a leisurely pace along Gerrard street, an unknown man, who came up Sumach street, ran towards it and threw a package inside. It was a hat, in which was a cloth and two revolvers. The wrappers were grabbed by Rice and Rutledge and the man who threw them into the cab ran away down Sumach street.

When Rice got his revolver he fired at Constable Boyd twice, the bullets going through the constable's head on the left side, causing injuries which resulted in his death an hour later. The guns were turned upon Stewart, who, with presence of mind, threw up his hands and, feigning fear, told the prisoners to get out. As they left the cab Stewart drew his revolver and fired, shattering the right forearm of Jones, who was the middle prisoner.

A Carlton and College street car, No. 488, was passing east and the three fugitives boarded the front platform, while Jones howled with pain from his wounded arm, but was dragged along by his shackled comrades. As he was boarding the car he was shot again in the groin by Stewart. An effort was made to overcome the motorman and bullets were flying in all directions. Stewart had struggled with the men as they boarded the car and threw away his revolver, which he thought must be empty and grabbed one in the hands of Rutledge. The discarded gun was secured by Rutledge at the side of the car, and Stewart started in to club the men into submission, regardless of danger. The trolley pole was pulled down and the back brakes of the car worked till it stopped in front of Hathaway's butcher shop on the south side of Gerrard street. In the meantime there was a hail of bullets, and it is a miracle that others besides poor Boyd were not killed.

Bullets crashed through the doors of 440 and 455 Gerrard street, and it looked as if the desperados would get away, when Guards Spanton and Dodds of the jail, who were on their way home to supper, came on the scene and helped Stewart in his brave efforts to conquer the outlaws. Spanton took a gun from Rutledge, who said he would give in, and, after a fierce fight of a minute or so all resistance was overcome and the car was run along as far as the jail, the prisoners being covered by revolvers in the hands of the three officers. Several citizens rendered valuable assistance, and by combined action the desired result was brought about.

When the prisoners were safely landed in the jail, Dr. Sneath, the nearest physician, was called in, and he summoned the jail physician, Dr. Richardson, and Dr. Bingham.

In the meantime a large crowd of excited citizens had collected around the jail, the hospital and the scene of the tragedy. While the curious and sympathetic awaited news of the condition of Constable Boyd at the hospital gates, a score or more men assembled at River street and Gerrard and talked threateningly of going to the jail and having the three prisoners immediately shot in the jail yard. Cooler counsels prevailed, however, and ideas of such summary methods were subdued.

It was when a carriage containing the bereaved wife and daughter of Constable Boyd came tearing down Sumach street, on its way to the hospital, that indignation ran at its height, and the proposals of lynching were freely made, as at that time the news of Boyd's death was announced.

The greatest excitement prevailed in the immediate neighborhood. The nerves of the women were unstrung, while the men who were eyewitnesses seemed too much worked up to give a coherent story of the awful occurrence. The crowd of the morbidly curious increased to thousands as the news of the tragedy spread farther away.

It was hard to get any details from some who were witnesses. They were afraid there was an organized gang that would not hesitate to put to death anyone who would say anything that would help to hang the murderers. Even at the Hospital, the superintendent, Dr. O'Reilly, refused to assume the responsibility for the care of Boyd's body, and the remains were handed over to the coroner.

The presence of mind and daring of County Constable Stewart have made him a hero in the East End. He is a swarthy young fellow, and his strength stood him in good stead.

Several who saw the man throw the parcel into the cab are unable to describe him. He was chased to Sumach lane by William Hyde, who keeps the corner fruit store, and Mr. Hyde says he wore a hat and a dark suit, and was a young man, short in stature. Others say the man did not wear a hat.

The police place most credence as to the identification in the story of Albert Baker, a street railway motorman, who lives at 144 Amelia street. He says the man who stood at the corner waiting for the cab was between 20 and 25 years of age, and was in his shirt sleeves, with vest and trousers of a brown mixed tweed. Baker saw this man hurl something into the carriage as it passed, and then run away down Sumach street. He went down to Sumach place and then jumped a fence into the lane running parallel and out on to Oak, where all trace of him was lost.

The Dead Constable.

William Boyd, the murdered County Constable, was 58 years old. He was born at Cedar Grove, in the Township of Markham. His father, James Boyd, is one of the best known and highly respected farmers in Markham. Twelve years ago he was made a County Constable, and took up his abode in Toronto at 416 Wellesley street. His wife, who survives him, is a daughter of James Taylor, of the firm of Lount & Taylor, brush manufacturers, of Whitevale. He leaves two sons and two daughters to mourn his sad and sudden taking off. One son lives in Chicago, and another in Denver, Col.

The Desperades' Wounds.

The prisoner Jones is suffering from a compound fracture of the left forearm, also a bullet wound in the left pubic region. The course of the bullet, which has not yet been removed, was downward, passing the vital parts, the abdomen and the bladder. Several pieces of loose bone were removed from the prisoner's arm, and, providing blood poisoning does not set in, he will recover. After his injuries were dressed, he was made comfortable and a special guard placed over him.

Rice is suffering from two wounds, each about one and one-half inches long, on the back of the head.

Rutledge also has two wounds about an inch long, one on the forehead and the other at the back of the head.

About 9 o'clock several officials connected with the administration of justice visited the jail and made enquiries concerning the possibility of the prisoners being able to appear when their trial on the Aurora postoffice charge is resumed in the Criminal Sessions this morning. The doctors gave it as their opinion that Rutledge and Rice could be taken to court, but to remove Jones from the jail would be dangerous. Crown Attorney Dewart stated, after the interview with the doctors, that the trial would proceed this morning.

ly handed over the custody of the Dr. O'Reilly, medical superintendent of the General Hospital formalcorps to Coroner Powell, who will conduct the inquest to-night.

The evidence yesterday was largely a rehash of that adduced at the first trial, and consisted chiefly of the identification of the prisoners by those who had seen them at Aurora and on the road to Toronto before and after the postoffice robbery there.

EXPLOSION IN MICHIGAN.

Eight Miners Killed and Thirty Children Rendered Fatherless.

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 5. — Eight miners were killed yesterday in the seventh level of the Ludington shaft, Chapin mine, by deadly fumes, following an explosion of dynamite.

Dead — Antonio Farnetti, John Amone, Joseph Passiri, John Milano, Louis Tessi, John Bertelli, Rinildo Ausinto and an unknown Polish miner.

Nearly 30 children were rendered fatherless by the explosion. The men entered the level early in the morning, and it is supposed they forgot to keep the powder-thawing machine supplied with powder.

BRITAIN'S BALANCE SHEET.

There be those who affect to deride the efforts of the statistician, and allege that they are not in all cases a whit better than misleading statements. But if there is anything in them the figures advanced by Sir Robert Giffen must be entitled to first consideration and respect, for of all men he is probably the most able compiler of statistical information living. He has just been favouring Great Britain with some interesting and instructive figures, which, when the national outlay is so enormous, and the pessimists are croaking dismally, must be intensely gratifying and reassuring. Sir Robert tells his countrymen that, though they are spending at the rate of $300,000,000 a year on account of the war burdens, they can well afford it, as they are in the happy receipt of a larger income than any other European nation, and possess also the largest amount of accumulated wealth. According to the high authority cited the total national wealth of Great Britain at the present time amounts to the pleasing little sum of seventy-five billion dollars — an English billion, it may be noted, is a million millions, and not a thousand millions, according to the decimal calculation — and that it is being added to at the rate of more than one thousand millions of dollars. He makes an estimate of the aggregate income of the nation at seven and a half billion dollars, and shows that, therefore, the war expenditure of the nation only amounts to about five per cent. on her annual income. This Sir Robert styles "an exceedingly low rate of insurance," and he asks, very pertinently, "What Englishman would hesitate to insure his own individual property at such a trifling rate?" And it is further shown that when other nations are put in comparison with Great Britain, the annual income of France, Germany and Russia is about five billion dollars each, while their war expenditures aggregate $540,000,000, which, considering that they are at peace, except for the joint business in China, is proportionately much heavier than the annual British outlay. The real estate of Great Britain is appraised at twenty billions of dollars, and the largest single item in her assets is the foreign and national securities, which amounted to nearly twenty-six billion dollars out of the fifty billion dollars which she was computed to be worth ten years ago. Next to Great Britain in point of wealth, comes France, with a total valuation very nearly equal. In the case of France also the largest single item in her national assets is "lands and houses," appraised at twenty-eight billion dollars five years ago, while her holdings of foreign and national securities are the next largest item, estimated then at sixteen billion dollars. Germany, with a total valuation of thirty-two billion dollars five years ago, Russia, Austria-Hungary, and Italy came next in rank in the order named. The annual return made by Parliament in the form of a blue book indicates that increase in trade and wealth is evidenced each successive year. How it comes about seems little short of marvellous, especially when the close competition of foreign nations is remembered and the perpetual cry that British commercial dominance is on the wane. But it is not alone the figures which are evidenced in proof; the money is in equal evidence, and at the same time the domestic condition of the motherland every year gives the lie to the stereotyped assertion that the rich are getting richer and the poor poorer. The increasing prosperity of Great Britain is evenly distributed with a tendancy towards the lower middle and labouring classes. —Ottawa Free Press.

JAMESTOWN IS TAKEN

Kritzinger Overpowers Town Guard and Volunteers.

AFTER A FIGHT OF FOUR HOURS.

Three British Killed and Two Wounded —Gen. French Placed in Charge of Cape Colony—Lord Kitchener Gives Detail's of the Vlakfontein Battle Which Shows Fighting Was Furious.

London, June 5.—The War Office last night published the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, June 4:

"Jamestown, Cape Colony, surrendered to Kritzinger's commando on the morning of June 2, after four hours' fighting. The town guard and local volunteers were overpowered before our pursuing columns could come up.

"Our casualties were three killed and two wounded. The Boer loss is said to have been greater.

"The stores were looted, but the garrison was released.

"Have placed Gen. French in charge of the operations in Cape Colony."

Fierce Fight at Vlakfontein

London, June 5.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria, dated June 4, says:

"Dixon's report of the fighting at Vlakfontein, May 20, just received. On our side 1,450 men, with seven guns, were engaged.

"The force was returning to camp at Vlakfontein when the enemy, under cover of a veldt fire, rushed the rear guard, consisting of two guns of the 28th Battery, and 330 men of the Derbyshire and Yeomanry.

"They temporarily captured the two guns. When the remainder of the force came into action the Boers were driven off, and the guns recaptured, and the Boer position was occupied.

"Our casualties were 6 officers and 51 men killed, 6 officers and 115 men wounded, and 1 officer and 7 men missing. One officer and four men have since died of wounds.

"Forty-one Boers were killed on the ground. The further Boer casualties are not known. Reinforcements are being sent."

With Boer Prisoners.

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 4.—The Governor has received notification that the transport Armenian will arrive here July 3 with 900 Boer prisoners, and that two companies of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment will act as their guards.

WHIRLED BY A SHAFT.

Eli Lamb of Stratford Was Badly Wounded While Working.

Stratford, Ont., June 5.—A terrible accident happened shortly before noon yesterday, by which Eli Lamb now lies in the City Hospital in a critical condition. Mr. Lamb was at work in his pump works, on Ontario street. The pumps are bored by a large auger, ran by a dynamo, and this was in operation. Mr. Lamb stooped over to remove some shavings, when some part of his clothes caught in the machinery and he was wound round the shaft, which was moving at a high rate of speed. His clothing was badly torn and he was bruised externally, yet, strange to say, there were no external wounds of the nature of cuts inflicted. A number of ribs were broken and he was injured internally, just how badly has not yet been ascertained, although it is not impossible that the lungs may have been pierced.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market were large, 71 carloads all told, composed of 1321 cattle, 400 hogs, 461 sheep and 83 calves.

The market was much slower than it has been for some time past. Prices for shipping cattle were steady at Friday's quotations. The same can be said of the best butchers', but medium to inferior butchers' cattle were easier.

It is stated here that Kingston shows a decrease in population of a thousand, while St. Thomas has a gain to that amount.

Brockville's population is reported to be about 200 ahead of 1891.

THE PAPER COMPACT.

Royal Commission Investigating the Trade's Condition.

SECOND SESSION IN TORONTO.

Judge Taschereau Presided — Canadian Press Association Protests Against Being Considered as Prosecutors—Hard and Fast Agreement Shown—Witnesses Examined on Both Sides.

Toronto, June 5.—The commission to enquire into the charge that there is a combine of paper manufacturers to enhance the price of paper opened its second session in the City Hall yesterday before Justice Taschereau. The first session was held in Montreal. Mr. Walter Barwick represented the Canadian Press Association and Mr. W. J. White appeared for the Papermakers' Association.

Mr. Barwick at the opening of the session said he wished to object to the Press Association being regarded as prosecutors. The association did not desire to take that position, and should not be forced to assume it. They merely called the attention of the Governor-in-Council to the statutes governing combines and furnished him with information which led him to believe that a combine to enhance the price of paper was in existence. The Governor-in-Council set on foot the enquiry, and the judge was to be only regarded as the investigator. Mr. Barwick cited the Mercier case in Quebec, where the judges examined the witnesses and the counsel followed. He read a telegram from the Minister of Finance to the Press Association saying that Judge Taschereau had authority to call all witnesses and that they would be paid by the Government.

Mr. Barwick did not want it made obligatory that they should be represented at subsequent sessions of the commission wherever they should be held. His Lordship said that if counsel for the Press Association were absent he would examine the witnesses himself.

Mr. Edward Young of the Consolidated Paper Company was the first witness. He said that the company had joined the Papermakers' Association on January 1, 1901. The papers of the company were now in the hands of Mr. E. R. C. Clarkson. He had never seen the rules and regulations of the association at all.

Ironclad Agreement.

While Mr. Barwick was endeavoring to secure some idea of the agreement under which the association was formed, Mr. White said that in order to shorten the session he would produce the agreement. Mr. James Hardy of Jenkins & Hardy, Toronto street, Toronto, the secretary of the company, was put into the box, and he produced the agreement under which the association was formed. It is a long affair. The object, the agreement stated, was to promote friendly relations among the manufacturers of paper and to maintain fair prices in Canada and Newfoundland. There were stringent rules regarding prices and heavy penalties were provided for in the event of infractions by the company or their agents. Each company had to furnish the association with a monthly statement of the business done, prices, and terms. The goods were not to be sold by any but bona fide agents and there were to be no outside concessions or deals with customers. Each company put up a $500 guarantee to obey the regulations, and this was to be forfeited if they broke any of the regulations. There were no restrictions regarding news print paper.

The agreement was signed by the following companies: E. B. Eddy Co., Laurentide Pulp Co., Royal Paper Co., Rollins Paper Co., C. W. Thompson & Co., Taylor Bros., J. C. Wilson & Co., Lincoln Paper Mills, John Fisher & Sons, Barber Bros., Dominion Paper Co., Miller & Co., Riordon Paper Co., Alex. Buntin & Co., James Stutt & Son.

Mr. Young stepped down after he had given the current prices of paper, and he with Mr. John M. Poole, president of the Consolidated Paper Co., said they manufactured news print at a loss when they sold at association prices.

Mr. Preston's Experience.

Mr. T. H. Preston, M. P. P., proprietor of The Brantford Expositor, gave his experience with the paper companies. He had a contract with the Canada Paper Company for $2.10, and in the month of December it advanced to $2.20. That was a week before the association was founded. That paper carried him on until recently, when he invited tenders from the Canada Paper Company, E. B. Eddy Company, Consolidated Paper Company and the Riordan Paper Company, all of whom quoted a uniform price of $2.50 for rolls and $2.75 in the ream. Since then, within the last month or so, he received notification from the Eddy Paper Company and the Canada Paper Company that there had been a drop, and that he could have a contract at $2.37½ for rolls and $2.62½ in reams.

Every traveler representing the paper companies who called upon him during the past year have all had the one story to tell, that an agreement had been entered into between the papermakers, and that they could quote only one price. There was formerly a discount, which amounted, he thought, to 4 per cent. off the contract price of $2.20, which would amount to several hundred dollars a year to the purchaser. There had always been a shaving of prices formerly, which he could not now obtain, for the avowed reason that the papermakers had come to an agreement.

In cross-examination by Mr. White, Mr. Preston said he considered an advance of 20 per cent. above cost as a fair margin of profit. He was not prepared to say that the advance of 20 cents per hundred was solely due to the formation of the Papermakers' Association, but he added that it was simultaneous with that event. There had been, he understood, a rise in price in the United States about that time, but in reply to Mr. Barwick, he said he understood a combination existed there also.

The evidence of Mr. J. E. Atkinson, of Toronto, was also taken during the afternoon.

OUR BUTTER AND CHEESE.

To Be Shown at the Pan-American Exhibition Under Auspices of Agriculture Department.

Brantford, Ont., June 5.—The special committee appointed, with the approval of the Minister of Agriculture, to promote an exhibition of export cheese and creamery butter at the Pan-American Exposition to compete against all America, met yesterday in the secretary's office, Brantford, for the purpose of completing arrangements for the exhibition.

It was decided to invite the cheese and butter makers of Ontario, both east and west, to compete and to make their entries to the secretary, if possible, before June 24.

The exhibits will consist of cheese of the first half of June make, both white and colored, and butter made by the separator system and by the cream-gathered system, both salted and unsalted, and also both in 56-pound packages and 1-pound packages.

The committee decided to reimburse the exhibitors for the cheese and butter which they send at its full market value, and also to pay all transportation charges from the shipping station to Toronto and thence from Toronto to the Pan-American Exposition.

ONTARIO MINISTERS.

Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. F. R. Latchford at Meaford and Bognor.

Meaford, June 5.—The initiative ceremonies of the trip of Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. F. R. Latchford, who are holding meetings in this portion of Ontario, have taken place in the most satisfactory manner. They are accompanied by Mr. G. P. Graham, M. P. P., of Brockville.

At Bognor the meeting was well attended by the farmers of the vicinity, though the season is a busy one. Mr. McLean occupied the chair. On the platform, in addition to the gentlemen named, were Dr. Horsey, M. P., Mr. Cleland, ex-M. P. P., and Mr. Hatton. The chief speakers were Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. F. R. Latchford.

The visitors were welcome here by the Meaford band and a deputation of citizens. The Town Hall was full when Mr. Cleland, President of the Liberal Association, called the meeting to order. Stirring addresses on the issues of the day were made by the Attorney-General, the Minister of Public Works and Mr. Graham.

A Scotch Firm Gets It.

Ottawa, June 5.—The contract for the new twin-screw steel steamer to replace the old Government steamship Druid has been awarded to Messrs. Fleming & Ferguson of Paisley, Scotland. The contract price is $110,960. The dimensions of the new vessel will be: Length, 160 feet; breadth, moulded, 30 feet; depth, 13 feet. She is to have a speed of thirteen knots per hour, natural draught, and to be specially fitted for ice navigation. Six tenders were received, four British and two Canadian, but Fleming & Ferguson's offer was much lower than the lowest Canadian bid, so that there was no option but to award the contract to the Scotch firm.

THE MACHINISTS.

Strike Matters Quiet — Convention Considers Its Rules.

Toronto, June 5.—The machinists resumed convention in St. Andrew's Hall, with a larger attendance than on Monday. Yesterday's business was almost wholly devoted to the consideration of the report of the Committee on Laws. Some important amendments have to be considered. News was scarce as to the progress of the strike. "At Chicago matters seem to be settling down very quietly," remarked Mr. O'Connell, "especially as from the reports which came from there a day or two ago, that was to be the storm centre."

F. P. Sargent, Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, telegraphed Mr. O'Connell, extending the congratulations of 38,000 locomotive firemen to the Machinists' Association on the success attending the nine-hour movement.

There was a public meeting in St. Andrew's Hall last night, when addresses were delivered by Messrs. A. W. Holmes, James Wilson, D. Douglas Wilson and President O'Connell.

Settlement Arrived At.

Toronto, June 4.—The trouble existing between the shipyard and boilermakers' helpers of Toronto in regard to the scale of wages was satisfactorily adjusted last night by the Arbitration Board, which met at the Queen's Hotel. The board consisted of William Harty of Kingston, Walter Lourie of Montreal and John P. Northey of Toronto, on behalf of the employers, and D. A. Carey, T. J. Hartnett and R. Woodward, on behalf of the employes. The settlement arrived at gives to the men a minimum of 18½ cents an hour for three months, from the date of their going on strike, and 14 cents an hour thereafter, the agreement to terminate at the end of one year. This minimum of wages does not involve men whom the firms consider incompetent. These will be given a probationary term and discharged if not satisfactory. The wages paid the men previous to the strike were from $1.25 to $1.75 a day.

NEW FORT AT HALIFAX.

War Office Plans to Make the Harbor Impregnable—A New Barracks With a Fine Gymnasium.

Extensive improvements in the fortifications of Halifax are planned by the Imperial authorities, although the officers of the garrison are, as usual, extremely reticent. It transpires that the War Department will construct at the very mouth of Halifax harbor one of the strongest forts in the world. The new fort will exceed in proportions York Redoubt, which is second only to the one at Gibraltar. The new fortress will be armed with 12-inch disappearing, quick-firing guns of the latest type. It is stated that it will be located at or near Sambro, at the point where all vessels entering Halifax harbor must take their bearings. This fortress will be of the utmost strategical value, for no hostile fleet could pass it without being disabled. Sergt.-Major Westwood, Royal Engineers, an expert fortress constructor, who arrived recently from England, was ordered by the Imperial authorities to superintend the construction of the work. The Imperial authorities have decided to erect new barracks and to construct other important works in Halifax this summer. Plans were sent to Halifax contractors. The plans prepared by the military authorities call for a brick barracks for married soldiers, quarters for officers of the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery, quarters for ward master and a gymnasium. The gymnasium building will be the finest in Canada. It will cover a large area of ground and will be constructed on the citadel slope. It will contain swimming baths, shower baths, dressing room, etc.

Not Anxious.

"You have quite a number of the poets," said Goodby, who was inspecting Woodby's library. "Ah, there's Browning. Do you understand him?"

"No; I don't," said Woodby.

"Ah," said Goodby, continuing his examination, "have you Praed?"

"Certainly not. What's the use of praying? I ain't anxious to understand him."

WATER LILY LAUNCHED.

She Will Shortly Churn the Otonabee Waters.

The elegant new steamer Water Lily, was launched yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the ship yards in Ashburnham. The launching of the new steamer has been delayed several weeks owing to the fact that the boiler has been late in arriving. However, the boiler was placed in position yesterday, and the staunch little craft was slipped into the water under the direction of Shipbuilder Hickey, without the slightest trouble. The Water Lily will likely make her first trip from down the lake, to town, on Saturday next.

THE WATERWORKS.

Negotiations as to the Probable Purchase of the Same.

Negotiations between the town and the Peterborough Water Company for the probable purchase of the same by the corporation are proceeding quietly, and the special committee of the Council, consisting of Aldermen Best, Chairman, His Worship Mayor Denne, and Aldermen Rogers, Shortly and Rush, has been going ahead with its work very quietly but with fair progress. Mr. Wm. Kennedy, C. E., of Montreal, arrived in town yesterday evening to assist as an impartial party in the negotiations. The committee is in session with the Water Works people this afternoon.

MR. MACPHERSON'S TRIP.

He Intends Going to Germany and France for a Year—May Return.

Mr. A. W. MacPherson, of the local teaching staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, intends leaving Peterborough early in July to pursue his studies in Germany and France Mr. MacPherson's intentions are embodied in the following communication to the Board of Education which was received by the Board last night:

I beg to make application for leave of absence for the school year of 1901-2 for the purpose of visiting France and Germany in order to fit myself better for the teaching of French and German.

As I am anxious to retain my position I shall be very glad to assist the Board in any way in making a suitable arrangement.

Hoping that the Board may find it possible to grant this favour.

As will be noticed, it is Mr. MacPherson's intention to return to Peterborough if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Board, and it is hoped by his many friends that this may be accomplished as "Mac" is too popular a young man for the town to lose. During his stay in Peterborough he has won many warm friends by his identification with everything of interest to the town.

ST. LUKE'S WANTS REV. MR. LANGFELDT.

The Rector of Omemee Asked to Come to Town.

An Unanimous Call Has Been Extended to Him by the Anglican Congregation of Ashburnham.

A very largely attended congregational meeting of St. Luke's was held last evening, presided over by Mr. Frank Adams, People's Warden.

The committee appointed to recommend a successor to Rev. Dr. Symonds, as rector of the church, reported in favour of extending an invitation to Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, of Omemee.

Several other names were suggested by members of the congregation, which were all considered. After due discussion it was unanimously decided, on motion, that a call be extended to Mr. Langfeldt, and the Church Wardens were instructed to wait on him at Omemee, and obtain his decision. A committee was also appointed to wait on His Lordship, the Bishop, this evening, at the close of the confirmation service, and acquaint him with the result of the meeting, and ask his approval thereof.

PETERBOROUGH'S MODERN STORE.

DRESS ACCESSORIES AND MILLINERY

By Dress Accessories we mean such things as Ribbons, Laces, Veilings, Embroideries and other Dress Trimmings which are so much in vogue at present. This store stands out prominently as the one store in Peterborough where you can get these things right. ALWAYS THE BEST and equal to the Big City Stores is always this store's ambition. You can prove it to your own satisfaction by inspecting our assortments and comparing our prices.

RIBBONS

You're sure to get the kind you have in your mind at this store. We have an elaborate showing of them, all kinds, all widths, all prices in Velvets, Satins, Taffetas, etc., for Dress Trimmings, Neck Ribbons, Belts and other purposes. There's piles of Ribbon used now and we are selling the bulk of them. Why? Because we have the kind you want and the price is lower than you can get the same kind for elsewhere.

LACES

Everybody is using Valencienne's Lace. Do you want any? We have a fine assortment of them at rock bottom prices. We have just received another shipment of the good washing kind, both in Edging and Insertions, which we bought from the makers and are offering them to you at wholesale prices. You should investigate and find out the difference in our qualities from what you usually see.

EMBROIDERIES

From St. Gall, Switzerland, the home of Embroideries, bought direct from the manufacturer and selling to you at a clear saving of 25 per cent., the wholesaler's profit. You'll see a bigger range of patterns here than elsewhere and as for quality you can't help but notice the difference. The needle-work is so much finer. Of course we have lots of the cheaper goods too, but we always recommend the best, they're cheaper in the end. When you are here ask to see our sample book of Embroideries and Insertions and note the prices on our Ready-made White Wear. We have a special display of these goods this week.

MILLINERY

Our Millinery Department is particularly well known in town for its High Arts and Little Prices, but we want to call your attention to the fact that we have some Exceptional Values now being offered to you. On account of our enormous output we have many chances of buying quantities at clearing prices, and this season we have had some good ones. ARMOUR'S HILL WAS TAKEN.

The 57th Regiment Made a Successful Attack Last Night.

Lieut. Col. E. B. Edwards Addressed His Men—Regimental Orders.

The weekly parade of the 57th Regiment was held last night, and it aroused great interest by reason of the variety of the turn out. Armour's Hill was attacked and taken, despite the gallant defence of an imaginary enemy, and the members of the Regiment are as a result most enthusiastic over their venture.

The Bicycle Corps, under Lieut. McPherson and Lieut. Bradburn, left by way of Smith street and the Locks Bridge to make a light attack on the hill, and they were supported by the remainder of the Regiment, which marched spiritedly to the music of the band, down George street and over the Hunter street bridge to the objective point. The band took up its position on Concession street, while the men behind the guns did the work. The charge was made with great determination, and the hill, the lift lock, Curtis' brickyard and the surrounding country were taken.

Peterborough Ben occupied a prominent position in the attack, and stayed by his friends throughout the engagement.

In connection with the attack it might be said that the Bicycle Corps made the round to the hill in twenty minutes, which is considered of tactical importance, showing the value of the Bicycle as a means of locomotion in light infantry service.

The men paraded back to town and were watched by many citizens.

At the Drill Shed Lieut.-Col. Edwards, the commanding officer, commented on the successful operations of the evening, and the importance of the movements that had been gone through. He said that next week it was intended to renew the attack on a more extended scale, with a counter attack by a larger bicycle corps, which would form a leading feature of the night's manoeuvring and would test the efficacy of a bicycle corps. The men of the regiment were urgently requested to turn out from this on, as there will not be more than four or five drills before inspection. The colonel in conclusion, spoke of the advisability of having every man becoming an expert rifle shot.

The following orders were read:

Headquarters, Peterborough.
June 4, 1901.

Orders by Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, Commandant 57th Regiment, P.R.

No. 1. Detail of duty for the week ending June 11th, Captain for the week Capt. Mills; next for duty, Capt. Cluxton. Subaltern for the week, Lieut. Matthews; next for duty, Lieut. McPherson.

No. 2. The following are taken on the strength of the Regiment: A Co., Ptes. Gray, Howland and Crowe, from May 28th, 1901.

C Co., Ptes. Harrison, Sucee and Hooey, from May 28th, 1901.

No. 3. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Major Stevenson, Capt. Hayes and Lieuts. Walker and VanEvery.

By order,
G. W. BENNETT, Capt.,
Acting Adjt.

YOUNG MEN'S GUILD.

Last Night's Very Interesting Meeting—The Excursion.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church was held last night, there being a very large attendance. The president, Mr. T. G. Anderson, occupied the chair.

The debate of the evening was on the subject: "Resolved, that it would be better to abolish bonuses and exemptions from taxations to manufacturing concerns."

The affirmative was taken very ably by Messrs. Charles Anderson and Frank Walsh, and the negative by Messrs. George Guy and Will Miller. Mr. Guy's paper was particularly interesting, and showed many well thought out arguments.

The decision of the meeting, however, was in favour of the affirmative.

It was decided to have the annual excursion on June 27th by bus to Chemong, by boat to Lakefield, and back to town by train.

It was also decided to continue the meetings during July and August, as well as the special services.

Went to Omemee.

The choir of St. Paul's church to the number of 30, accompanied by about ten of their friends, went up to Omemee, per G.T.R., at 5.30 o'clock last night, and gave a grand secular concert in Bradburn's opera house, under the auspices of the Omemee Presbyterian church. The Omemee people say that it was the richest treat of the kind they have had in a long time. The choir was entertained at the manse after the concert, and through the kindness of the G.T.R. a coach was attached to the midnight freight, and the visitors arrived home in good time. They were well pleased with their trip.

CHARGE WAS DISMISSED.

Against a Local Live Stock Dealer.

It Was Alleged That he Tampered With the Town Scales—The Evidence in Court.

A rather extraordinary case came before Police Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning. Fred Stabler, a local live stock dealer was charged with having, on May 27th, willfully committed fraud in using the town scales and tampering with them so as to give false weight.

The accused pleaded not guilty, and the taking of the evidence was proceeded with. County Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Stabler was unrepresented by counsel.

Farmer Sutton was the first witness, and his evidence went to establish that he had sold hogs to the accused about two weeks ago, to be weighed on the market scale, and the hogs were accordingly brought in to be weighed.

Market Clerk Hutchinson told of having weighed the hogs in question. He had weighed a number of hogs just previous to weighing Mr. Sutton's, and at that time had balanced the scales. When he went to weigh Mr. Sutton's hogs the scales were out of balance, he having in the intervening time been out of the office. The weight was in favor of the buyer. A change in the balance of the scales could be brought about by something catching in the sides of the scales, but this would be a weight on the other side. He could not say how much they were out.

P.C. Stewart was sworn and said that he was in the Market Clerk's office when the affair occurred. He was standing at a desk talking to Mr. W. P. Morris, and with his back to the scales when he heard some one come in, stop a very short while at the scales and then go out again. He did not notice who it was, but Morris said to witness, "Did you see what that scoundrel did? He knocked the scales out of balance." They went to the scales then and found that they were out of balance. Morris told him that it was Fred Stabler.

Witness Morris said that he saw accused come in and touch the scales, but whether he opened up the box in which the regulator was or not he would not say. There was a noise similar to that which is made when opening the regulation box, but about the same sound could be produced by touching another part of the scales. He thought that P. C. Stewart was mistaken in saying that he said "Did you see what that scoundrel did," etc. He could not say whether such remark was made, but certainly not by witness.

This closed the Crown's case, and before any defence was taken His Worship dismissed the case, holding that no fraud had been committed. While there might have been an attempt at fraud, such had not been committed, and was not therefore reached by the statute. Had Stabler sold something and cheated in weight, he could have prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses. The case was therefore dismissed.

Mr. Stabler treats the charge very lightly, declaring that there is not the slightest foundation for such an accusation, and says that it is a frequent occurrence for the scales to change their balance in so short a time as it is alleged they did.

IS IT A TRIP?

Will the 57th Regiment Take a Trip Out of Town on July 1st?

It is said on the streets to-day that at a meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment, which was held last night, it was decided to have the annual out of town trip of the Regiment take place on July 1st, provided a suitable place as the objective point can be arranged for. The commanding officer of the Regiment, so the report goes, was not present at the meeting, which was in a sense informal, but the officers who were present were very enthusiastic over the matter. It is thought that Barrie will be the town visited should the project go through. The men are very anxious for a trip out of town.

THE THREE LINKS.

What is Going on Amongst the Local Oddfellows—Installation in July.

The officers and representatives of the local lodges were elected at the last meetings. Messrs. H. Morgan and W. Dixon Jewett have been appointed to represent Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F., at the Grand Lodge, which meets in Guelph in August next. To represent Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., Messrs. M. W. Matchett, Robert Scott and F. Perry were appointed.

The installation of the officers of these lodges will take place in July.

Eight members of each lodge have been appointed to act on a joint committee to arrange for Decoration Day. The first meeting of this committee will be held on Thursday evening, June 6th, at 7.30 sharp, in the Lodge Rooms, when each member is expected to attend.

The Peterborough members of the District Committee will meet on June 10th to discuss important matters, and to arrange for the general District Meeting. The meeting will be held at 7.30 in the Lodge Rooms.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. C. McHarrie was called to Washington, D. C., on business this afternoon.

Mr. F. W. Merrill, druggist, of Brantford, proprietor of Merrill's System Tonic, was in town to-day.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, General Supt. of the Canadian General Electric Company's works here, left to-day for Montreal, Boston and New York on a business trip.

We note in the Toronto papers that Mr. A. A. Fowler, who served his time with Mr. John Nugent, has passed his examinations successfully for the degree of Bachelor of Pharmacy and has now attained the highest possible honours in the drug profession. He will have to attend convocation at Toronto University on Friday when the degree will be conferred. He is now working with Mr. Nugent and has certainly earned the congratulation of his friends.

The communication was duly received.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Mr. Robert Fair, chairman of the Property Committee, presented the following report:

To the Chairman, and Members of the Peterborough Board of Education:

Gentlemen, — The matter of improving the sanitary condition of the South Central School was before your Board early in the year, and acting under your instructions your Property Committee have carefully considered improvements which seemed necessary and judicious, and beg leave to report.

Plans and specifications for a system of closets, tile drains and sewers have been prepared and approved, and tenders invited for the construction and completion of the work.

The lowest tender, that of Mr. Adam Hall, for $4.50 for the plumbing, and that of Mr. D. Hillier for the tile drains and sewer, for $275.00, and that of Mr. William J. Martin for the stone brick and concrete work, carpentering and painting, for $352, we recommend to be accepted on execution of proper undertaking in connection therewith.

Your committee, you will observe, proposes to undertake the care of the whole work. From the street line at the south east corner of the school property to the Stewart street connection, a six inch sewer will be laid.

This part of the work ordinarily is such as is undertaken by the town after certain formalities, but on a deputation from your committee waiting on and conferring with the Board of Works of the town council, they were advised that the Board proceed with the work and make the necessary connections with the Stewart street sewer, under the direction of the Town Engineer, and in accordance with the permission given.

THE DISCUSSION.

Perhaps no report in some time has aroused so much animated discussion as this one did. Mr. Fair moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, the adoption of the report, but Mr. Wrighton immediately was on his feet to protest against what he claimed to be an extraordinary procedure. The Board had no right to commit itself to put in these improvements, which he considered were uncalled for. He denounced the proposition most strongly. This town would or should build a sewer down Rubidge street in the course of a year or two, which would lessen the cost of connection until that time. Anyway the Board had no right to undertake such permanent improvements without assurance from the town that they would give them the money.

Mr. Fair spoke in reference to the matter, covering the circumstance on which the report was based. There was no prospect of a sewer going down Rubidge street. He contended that the adoption of the report did not commit the Board in anyway.

Mr. Stevenson though that the Board had no power to go on with such a undertaking without sending

LACROSSE.

If the Y.M.C.A. and the Vaticans play a return match the former should play Robertson out further. He is to big a man and uses too long a stick to make the quick turns necessary at inside home. He should make a great fielder.

At a meeting of the Vatican lacrosse club held Monday evening a vote of thanks was tendered the Y. M. C. A. for their extreme kindness in allowing the club the use of their baths.

An important practice of the Vatican lacrosse club is called for this evening at seven o'clock sharp. All members are requested to turn out.

It is expected that Lindsay lacrosse team will cross sticks with the Vaticans here at an early date.

Dick Boyle promises to develop into a star in front of the nets. He made some wonderful stops on Monday evening.

There is lots of material in town to make up a rattling fast team to go up against any of the intermediate teams of this part of the country.

Cobourg's much talked of lacrosse team was beaten in Port Hope on Monday by eleven goals to one and full time was not played even then.

CRICKET.

The Colts will go down to Port Hope on Saturday and they have closed arrangements with Lindsay for a game in that town on the 22nd of this month.

THE WHEEL.

An exciting bicycle race will take place at 6.30 o'clock this evening on the Nicholls Park track, between J. W. Koster and Wade Garbutt. The course is five miles and a purse of considerable sum is the prize to the winner of the event.

Economical, Delicious and Nutritious.

When you grieve and let it show
And may tell me nothing more,
You have told me, o'er and o'er,
All a woman needs to know.
When I show you tha. I care

I have made you understand
All a woman may or dare.

A ROMANCE OF THE FOREST.

The Story of a Long Wooing With an Abrupt Termination.

BY C. H. AUGUR.

Dark the halls and cold the feast,
Gone the bridemaids, gone the priest.

The 8 o'clock train on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad takes you away from the beautiful town of Marquette, on Lake Superior, climbs slowly up to the iron hills, passes through Negaunee, Ishpeming, Michigamme, rival cities of the "Northern Peninsular," and, bowling along at 20 miles an hour, brings you at noon to Sidnaw, whence a short branch road extends to Ontonagon, and, if you have to change cars, may heaven help you in your sorry plight, for you must wait hours in a dreary place.

Two hundred feet from the track at Sidnaw station is a good sized frame building, with a hotel sign over the door and a tin beer sign on either side of it. You get your dinner here, and after dinner you may sit on the hotel veranda and view the entire town and all of its inhabitants.

The town site comprises about half a 40 (20 acres it would be called in other parts of the country) tract of cleared land. The hotel before alluded to is set back against the woods on one side of the tract, while the business portion of the place—five saloons, a store and a board walk—skirts the other edge. The railroad track passes through the center. There is no street. There are everywhere blackened tree stumps and scattered blades of brown dry grass standing defiantly in a pepper and salt colored soil of muck and sand.

The main feature of Sidnaw is silence—the awful silence of the great surrounding forest—but it is broken at intervals by a dogfight or an explosion of oaths from the saloon district, where red shirted, slouch hatted woodsmen from the lumber camps play cards, just visible within the darkened doorways.

A line of freight cars stands on the track by the station, and now and then an engine that has been sizzling and hissing all by itself among the trees comes out and bumps these cars about in an aimless sort of way for a few moments and then goes into retirement again.

You spend four hours in the contemplation of this scene; then that fool engine backs a lot of the freight cars and an old passenger coach down to the station, and you get aboard and go to Ontonagon, the terminus of the road, and it takes you two hours to go—just half as long as it took to "change cars."

I had changed cars at Sidnaw once, and I was on my way thither again, depressed and low spirited at the prospect before me, when, all suddenly, I was invited to attend a wedding while I waited, and once more the world looked rosy.

The prospective bride occupied the seat behind me in the car. I had not noticed her particularly until she bent forward, and, touching me on the arm, she asked if I could inform her at what time our train was due in Sidnaw. Then I turned and beheld a lady of some 40 summers, wearing a flowery gown of white and green, with black lace mitts, and having beside her one of those big black 90 cent traveling bags that circulate so freely in the west.

The ready politeness with which I answered her question encouraged her to ask more, and eventually I found it necessary to sit sidewise that I might more conveniently keep up my end of the conversation, which shifted from one topic to another with wonderful rapidity and finally merged into a romance of which she was the heroine and to the completion of which I was cordially asked to lend my presence.

"It's 18 years," she said, "since this Mr. Prince left Kaukauny and came up here into the lumber camps. Him and me was young folks then and kep' company together a spell, but when he asked me to marry him I said, 'No, I wouldn't marry nobody.' Then he went away, and I never heard of him till three years ago he wrote and said somebody'd told him I was single and he was waitin for me; wouldn't never marry another woman, he said, nohow, and he hoped I'd take him into consideration again.

"That letter made me feel kind of queer—to think he'd been so faithful all these years. I never believed he set so much store by me as all that. I was a good mind to write him a favorable letter right then and there, but when it come right to the point I couldn't make up my mind to do it, so I just wrote him I wanted a year more to think about it.

"Well, I never heard a word from him no more than's if he was dead till the year was up. Then he wrote again and said he was still waitin.

"I put him off till Christmas, then till spring, and so it's been a-goin up to two weeks ago, when it come over me all to once that I wasn't treatin the man right. He'd been dreadful long sufferin and patient and deserved his reward, and I set down and wrote him I'd have him.

"He wanted to come down to Kaukauny after me, but I wouldn't have it. I told him to save his money, and I'd come up. So we fixed it that way, and today the weddin comes off, and I want you to be there. Mr. Prince's got a minister from Ontonagon, and he's invited a few of his friends to witness the ceremony, and I guess it'll be a pleasant, sociable little gatherin. Anyhow, it'll be better than waitin for the train, with nothin to do."

I agreed with the lady and eagerly accepted her invitation. I had a curiosity to behold this faithful old lover who had waited 18 years, waited with infinite patience until the girl he loved had lost all of the attractions of youth, and yet loved on and now was about to see his fond dreams realized. The story seemed rather pathetic to me, although its ludicrous side was very apparent also.

Of the half dozen passengers in the car, we were the only persons to alight when the train reached Sidnaw. I helped my companion with her big valise, and she, carrying a large strawboard box and a parcel tied in a newspaper, followed me out of the car.

Two or three woodsmen, standing about the station, gazed idly at us as we stood undetermined which way to go. And one lean, sandy whiskered man, who had been sitting on the platform at the farther end, jabbing his knife into the boards, slowly arose and advanced.

She was eying him.

"Is this Miss Birtchet?" he asked, with a sheepish smile.

"That's my name," she answered, "Artemisia Birtchet, and I must say, Abe Prince, that you seem dreadful glad to see me."

He held out his hand, but she could not take it on account of the parcels, and he scratched his head with it.

"This ain't Wednesday," he suggested after an interval of thought.

"I know it ain't," she answered, "and it ain't Tuesday or Monday, but it's Thursday, Aug. 13, and I was to come the 13th, if I remember rightly, and I think I do."

He shifted his gaze to me and then looked at her again.

"By gosh!" he said in a hollow voice. "I've lost my reckonin somehow. I thought the 13th was a Wednesday, and I had that minister here yesterday."

"Well, where is he now?" asked Miss Birtchet in a quick, harsh voice.

"He went back. I kinder thought you might have changed your mind again, and"—he struck himself on the leg—"I don't see," he said, "how the devil I got off on that date. Are you sure you ain't made no mistake, Artemisia?"

"I'm sure I have made a mistake," answered Miss Birtchet, with withering sarcasm. "I've made the mistake of comin way up here in the woods to marry a pesky fool. But, thank heavens, I ain't done it. If you'll be so kind and obligin as to hold that bag a minit longer," she continued, turning to me, "I'll just step in here and buy a ticket for Kaukauny."

The down train was approaching, and when Miss Birtchet appeared with her ticket I followed her into the railroad car.

"Aren't you a little hasty?" I asked.

"Little nothin!" she snapped, and I saw that it would be of no use to argue with her. I left the valise and bade her goodby.

When the train was gone, I went over to the hotel to get my dinner. Mr. Prince was sitting on the veranda with his legs crossed and his thumbs under his suspenders. His aspect was grave.

"That was a rather bad mistake of yours," I ventured to remark.

"It's just as well," he answered. "I knew 'twas just as well the minit I set eyes on her."

Proof of His Wife's Death.

A convict at a French penal settlement who was undergoing a life sentence desired to marry a female convict, such marriages being of common occurrence. The governor of the colony offered no objections, but the priest proceeded to cross examine the prisoner:

"Did you not marry in France?" he asked.

"Yes."

"And your wife is dead?"

"She is."

"Have you any documents to show that she is dead?"

"No."

"Then I must decline to marry you. You must produce some proof that your wife is dead."

There was a pause, and the wife prospective looked anxiously at the would be groom. Finally he said:

"I can prove that my former wife is dead."

"How will you do so?"

"I was sent here for killing her."

And the bride accepted him notwithstanding.—Exchange.

Distinction, Not Difference.

A group of small boys, gathered under a big oak, had listened spellbound for an hour to Uncle Enoch's tales of adventure by land and by sea, on the field of battle and in the trackless forest.

At last the hero of all the adventures paused for breath, and one of his listeners ventured a single gasping question.

"Uncle Enoch," he stammered, "I s'pose—I s'pose you never ran away from anything in all your life, did you? Not from bears nor tigers nor cannons nor wild Indians nor—nor anything?"

Uncle Enoch pulled his spectacles well down on his long nose and gazed benignly over them at this venturesome young person.

"Benny," he said in the tone of one safely arrived at the seat of wisdom, "you live long enough an you'll find out 'tisn't ever best to run away from danger, no matter what, but you'll see times when you'll change front an advance in the other direction 'bout as fast as you can go."

Starving Children.

Thousands of well fed children are starving, simply because their food is not of the right kind. They are thin, pale and delicate. Scott's Emulsion will change all this. It gives vim and vigour, flesh and force.

Spectra of Hot Stars.

Sir Norman Lockyer describes the order of appearance of metals in the spectra of hot stars. Helium appeared first, then hydrogen, then magnesium, calcium, oxygen, nitrogen, carbon and silicon, followed by copper and iron in the protometallic form. This term protometallic was given because the lines were only associated in terrestrial work with extremely high temperatures. Assuming that the substance of lowest atomic weight appeared first in a spectrum, we must suppose magnesium and calcium as we know them to be molecular forms of proto-elements which dissociated at higher temperatures into atoms of smaller mass.

THE RACE

Does not depend on the start but on the finish. It's staying power which carries many a runner to victory. It's like that in business. Many a man starts off in the race for business success with a burst of speed which seems to assure victory. Presently he begins to falter and at last he falls and fails. The cause? Generally "stomach trouble." No man is stronger than his stomach. Business haste leads to careless and irregular eating. The stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition become diseased. The body is inadequately nourished and so grows weak.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It strengthens the stomach and so strengthens the whole body which depends on the stomach for the nourishment from which strength is made.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is no medicine "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and allied organs.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has performed a wonderful cure," writes Mr. M. H. House, of Charleston, Franklin Co., Ark. "I had the worst case of dyspepsia, the doctors say, that they ever saw. After trying seven doctors and everything I could hear of, with no benefit, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and now I am cured."

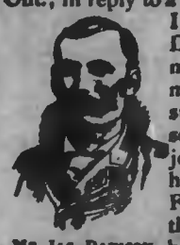
SPENT A FORTUNE.

"Yes, I am completely cured," said Mr. Jas. Davison, of Oconto, Ont., in reply to a question, "and I have to thank Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure for my relief. I suffered from sciatica in the joint of my left hip for ten years. For six years of that time I was a helpless invalid, unable to move about. I was reduced in flesh, and unable to partake of food. I spent every dollar I had in seeking relief, but without obtaining it. I passed through the hands of three Kingston doctors, and each pronounced my case incurable. I took everything people recommended, but without experiencing any benefit. Before I had used half a bottle of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure I obtained relief, the first in ten years. In all I took the contents of six bottles, and I am as well and sound to-day as ever I was, except for my short leg which the rheumatism caused.



MR. JAS. DAVISON.

"Previously I could scarcely walk half a dozen steps, and arose and sat down only with great difficulty and pain. When I first began to take the medicine I weighed only 145 pounds. Now I weigh 167 pounds, and am daily gaining weight. I cannot say too much for the medicine, but I ask God's blessing for the maker on account of the good it has done me."

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

BLOOD POISON

If you ever contracted any blood disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. At times you see alarming symptoms, but live in hopes no serious results will follow. Have you any of the following symptoms? Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over twenty years. No experiment, no risk—not a "patch-up," but a positive cure. The worst cases solicited. LOVE'S SACRIFICE.

"And behold a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment and stood at His feet behind Him weeping, and began to wash His feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head."

The eyes He turned on her who kneeling wept
Were filled with tenderness and pity rare;
But looking on the Pharisee, there crept
A sorrow and a hint of sternness there.
"Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee,"
The Master's voice rang clearly out, and stirred,
With its new note of full authority,
The list'ning throng, who pressed to catch each word,
"Master, say on," self-righteous Simon said,
And muttered in his beard, "A sinner she!"
Marvelling the while that on the drooping head
The hand of Jesus rested tenderly.
"Seest thou this woman, Simon?" Scornful eyes
Did Simon bend upon the woman's face,
The while the breath of love's sweet sacrifice
Rose from the broken box and filled the place.
Self-righteousness, the 'slimy thing that grows
Upon a fellow-creature's frailty,
That waxes fat on shame of ruined lives,
Swelled in the bosom of the Pharisee.
"Into thine house I came at thy request,
Weary with travel, and thou gavest not
To me the service due the humblest guest,
No towel, no water clear and cold was brought
To wash my feet; but she, whom you despise,
Out of the great affection she doth bear,
Hath made a basin of her woman's eyes,
A towel of her woman's wealth of hair.
Thou gavest me no kiss"—O, Simon, shame.
Thus coldly and unlovingly to greet
The Prince of peace!—"but ever since I came
This woman hath not ceased to kiss my feet."
"He loveth most who hath been most forgiven."
O, Simon, hearken, learn the great truth well,
No soul on faith's glad wings mounts nearer Heaven
That that which hath been prisoned deep in hell.
Methinks I hear her say: "Thou who forgivest
My many sins, this off'ring, sweet of breath,
I pour on Thee, dear Lord, while yet Thou livest,
For love is ever swift to outrun death."
Upon her are the eyes of Jesus turned.
With gaze which seems to strengthen and to bless,
Who knows how long the soul of Him hath yearned
For some such token of rare tenderness.
The flush of shame flaunts red on Simon's cheeks,
About the table idle babblings cease,
A deep, full silence, then the Master speaks:
"Thy faith hath saved thee, go in peace —in peace."
—Jean Blewitt, in Toronto Globe.

THE DARING OF "GAT" HOWARD.

Incident of South African War Which Showed a Man of Wonderful Nerve.

Major T. L. Boulanger, who arrived here from the Orient, recently, en route to his home in Quebec, was in command of the First Field Battery, Canadian Artillery, in the South African campaign. While at quarantine he told a Times representative a story of daring and pluck which is not surpassed anywhere in the history of the whole of that war of strange episodes. "Gatling Gun" Howard, who gained such fame during the Riel rebellion, and who was shot a few weeks ago while out scouting, was the hero of the incident. At the time he was attached to a small body of the British, and was on the Orange River somewhere—the exact location Major Boulanger did not recall—when the command was surrounded by Boers. The British were partially protected by entrenchments, but so hotly were the Boers pressing that the British considered it necessary to retreat. Howard alone remained. He was urged by his command to follow, but he refused, and for upwards of twenty minutes, Major Boulanger says, he held the enemy at bay until relief came. He had but two Colts in his service, but worked these with such rapidity and so effectually, that the Boers, probably ignorant of the real character of the stronghold, were held in check. When reinforcements came Howard received the hearty congratulations of fellow officers, who, one and all, were amazed at the wonderful courage and boldness of the plucky fellow. Had he lived to have seen the campaign through, Major Boulanger feels certain that he would have been highly promoted. —Victoria, B. C., Times.

Canadian Rattlesnakes.

Dr. Brodie of Toronto, who is a well-known naturalist and one of the best authorities on snakes, states that all rattlesnakes, great and small, at all times of the year have their fangs charged with venom. He says that there is only one species of rattler in Canada—the Caudsona Tergemina. This species is always ready with his poison sac, but the effect of the bite is not always as fatal as the Southern rattler that thrives in a warmer climate. Dr. Brodie instances the case of Dr. Clark, former member of Parliament, who was injured for life by the stroke of a Canadian rattler. There are ten species of rattlers in America, and they do not exist in any other part of the world.

TO SAVE LIFE AT SEA.

Capt. Bolt's New Form of Deckhouse or Life-Saving Cabin.

Capt. Bolt, a mariner of Newcastle, England, has invented a new form of deckhouse, or life-saving cabin, which in cases of sudden founderings, from collisions or wreckage will, with the turn of a wheel, float off the doomed vessel in its entirety and ride the waters like any other ship. The new invention has received the approval of the Trinity house. In the cabin are berths and seats and storage places where water and provisions are always kept. The only thing that remains to be done when the vessel strikes a rock is to collect passengers and crew within the deckhouse.

AN EDITOR'S ADVICE.

Article in a Quebec Paper That Everybody Should Read—Recommends Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to Dyspeptic Sufferers.

Dyspepsia is the common evil of the times. Indigestion and Stomach Troubles are the afflictions of every class.

Brain workers, who from lack of exercise and nervous strain are peculiarly liable to Dyspepsia, cannot do better than take Editor Caron's advice.

He advises Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a reputation on three continents as an absolute safe and certain cure for Dyspepsia in all its forms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will quickly and permanently cure Indigestion, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Acidity, Nervousness, Anaemia, or poorness of the blood and every other indication that the stomach is not doing its work and properly assimilating its food.

Alphonse Caron is the Editor of the Echo of Montmagny, Que. Recently he felt so impressed with the value of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, that he published the article in the paper from which the following is taken:

"To Dyspeptics — Do you know Dyspepsia Tablets are the best things for Dyspepsia to be had on the market. I, the undersigned, do, for I have tested the matter for myself.

"Every person suffering from any form of Dyspepsia may rely on Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. As a former sufferer from that terrible malady myself, I am only too glad to show others the way out of their troubles as publicly as lies in my power.

"I was cured by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They alone of all the remedies I used were of any benefit. I am sure if others suffering with Dyspepsia would try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets they will be satisfied with them as I am. — Alphonse Caron."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a compound of pepsin, diastase, and other perfect digestants mixed in sugar.

And they are but fifty cents a box all over the world.

A Proud Ottawa Man.

Staff-Sergt. H. G. Clarke of the Governor-General's staff, was a proud man on Saturday, on being made the recipient of a handsome present from Lord Minto. It was a paper weight made out of a piece of the old flag-staff at Fort Garry. The wood was mounted in sterling silver, with a silver plate in the centre, bearing the following inscription: "Part of the flag-staff of Fort Garry, now the city of Winnipeg, relieved by Col. Wolseley, 1870." Staff-Sergt. Clarke served with the Royal Rifles, leaving Ottawa May, 1870, for Fort Garry, under command of Gen. Wolseley.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS IN CANADA.

Statement of Their Number, Mileage and Other Information.

From returns received from the 35 electric railways of Canada, Mr. George Johnson, the Dominion statistician, makes up the following statement: "At the end of December, 1900, the number of miles of electric railways in Canada increased to 681 miles, or 49 miles over the number in 1899.

"The 35 electric railways in Canada carried 118,129,862 passengers in 1900, an increase of 14,097,203. This is equal to carrying every man, woman and child in the country 21 times.

"The car mileage run was 30,924,355 miles, an increase of 1,277,508 miles over 1899.

"The mileage run and the passengers carried show that for each mile run the electrics carried 3.8 passengers, against 3.5 in 1899.

"The amount of paid-up capital invested in electrics on Dec. 31, 1900, was $20,633,000, and the bonded debt was $12,619,422.

"The number of cars in active service in 1900 was 1,642, an increase of 98 over the previous year. The employes numbered 4,493, showing an increase of 164 over 1899.

"The total receipts for the year were $5,422,540, and the expenses $3,268,001.

"The steam railways carried 17,122,193 passengers in 1900. So that total passengers transported by rail was 135,252,055. Between them, the steam and electric railways carried the whole population of Canada 25 times in the year, and the proportion was over 87 by electric and a little under 13 by steam in every 100 persons carried.

"Since 1897 the number of passengers carried by the electrics increased from 83,811,000 to 118,130,000, an increase of 34,319,000, which is equal to 41 per cent., while those carried by steam using railways increased from 13,742,454 to 17,122,193, an increase of 25 per cent.

"The expenses form about 67.50 per cent. of the gross earnings of the steam-using railways and about 60.27 per cent. of the gross earning of the electric railways."

Emigration to Canada.

The area of the Dominion, extending as it does from the Atlantic to the Pacific, is as large as Europe, but the population is no greater than that of London, says Lloyd's Weekly. What a prospect this opens up to those who are possessed of the necessary energy and capital to take advantage of its great resources in agriculture, minerals, fisheries, forests, and manufactures! It offers free grants of land to settlers in some provinces (Manitoba, the Northwest Territories, and parts of Ontario), Crown grants in others (New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia), and improved farms may be obtained everywhere at reasonable prices. What Canada wants is more people and more capital, and those who are anxious to obtain information about our leading colony—its progress in recent years, and the advantages it offers to settlers of all classes—cannot do better than consult the High Commissioner for Canada, whose offices are at 17 Victoria street, London, S.W.

Newspaper Business in Dawson City.

The newspaper business must be a good thing in Dawson City. The rates for The Dawson City Daily News are 25 cents a copy, or $4 a month. The subscription rate for the town is $48 a year. It is an eight-page daily for five months of the year and four pages for the remainder. The circulation is a little under 900 per day. A 16-page weekly paper is published at 25 cents a copy for the town. It is distributed up the creeks by dogs and carriers and outside the town the price of the single paper is 50 cents to $1.50, according to the distance the carrier has to travel to the subscriber.

In The Dawson News Office there is a Merganthaler machine, which, with all equipment, cost $4,700, but by the time it was landed in Dawson the cost laid down there was $8,289. It had been shipped too late for navigation and had to be carried 400 miles over the ice. The horse feed alone cost $30 a day and it took 27 days to make the trip.

Gas on the Stomach

result of imperfect digestion pressing up against the heart, it excites alarming symptoms. Instant relief is afforded by taking half an hour after the meal, ten drops of Polson's Nerviline in a little sweetened water. Nerviline aids digestion, expels the the gas and imparts a sense of comfort. Nerviline is good for lots of other things, and wise people keep a 25 cent bottle in the house for rheumatism, cramps, neuralgia, toothache &c. Try it.

The Resin Eaters.

"Resin eating," said a south Georgia doctor, "is a habit acquired by the Cracker settlers who live in the neighborhood of a turpentine still. The resin they use isn't the hard, shiny resin of commerce, but has been dipped out of the cooking caldron at an early stage of the process, and when it cools it can be kneaded between the fingers like wax. The backwoods resin eater will bite off an immense chunk and chew it placidly until it disappears. The heat of the mouth keeps it fairly soft, but if the chewing becomes too deliberate it is apt to 'set,' as they say, and cement the victim's jaws together in a grip of iron.

"On one occasion a big, rawboned backwoodsman who used to hang around a still I operated came rushing into my little office, clutching his face in both hands and making a horrible gurgling noise in his throat. 'What on earth is the matter?' I asked in alarm. 'His rosum's sot,' said another Cracker, who brought up the rear. I was nonplused at first, but finally grasped the fact that the man had been chewing a monstrous slab of resin and had thoughtlessly suspended operations long enough to allow it to solidify and clamp his teeth like a vice. We finally pried his mouth open with a chisel and broke a couple of molars in the operation. Next day I saw him chewing again."—Exchange.

MUCH DISCUSSION BY THE TRUSTEES.

down to the Town Council an application for the amount necessary. Any ratepayer could object to the proceedings unless this course were taken.

Mr. Fair was asked by Mr. Wrighton if he had anything to substantiate the statement that the school was unsanitary, but Mr. Fair would not admit that there was other than public opinion.

Mr. Bamford thought that there was no one who lived south of Charlotte street who would object to the outlay of $1,200 for the purpose proposed. It was much better to do this than have all the children staying home.

Mr. Langford thought that they should instal the system of closets as set out in the report. The estimate was 25 per cent less than what he expected that it could be done for. If the school's sanitary condition were such that one child would be lost, the members of the board could never forgive themselves. He suggested to adopt the report and then see whether they could get the money legally or not.

Mr. Hartley would not sacrifice the health of even one child for the expenditure proposed. However, he might tell them that while in Toronto that Inspector Hughes and other equally as good authorities said that the system of closets now in use in the South Ward School were such that not an expert would say anything against them. But public opinion is crying out against them and if the people demand a change they were there to carry out their wishes. He could not see himself that the closets were unhealthy, but the opinion of specialists did not appear to satisfy the public.

Mr. W. C. Ferguson had much pleasure in supporting the recommendations of the Committee. He did not care for all the experts that might report on the matter. The sewer connection system of closets is the very best.

Mr. J. J. McBain did not think that the conditions were nearly so serious as were reported and urged that they wait until they could make connections on Rubidge street. He thought it best to leave the matter for a while and take the greatest precautions in the meantime.

Mr. Fair pointed out that there was no likelihood of their having a sewer down Rubidge street for some time.

Chairman Hill expressed himself on the matter, pointing out the great alarm there was amongst the citizens when the recent epidemic broke out in the two schools in which a certain system was in operation and something should be done to quie tthe public. The report might be adopted conditionally, the Town Council asked for the money and if the Board is successful in getting it then the new system of closets should be, in his opinion, instituted.

Mr. Wrighton then moved, seconded by Mr. Burnham, the following amendment:

That no further action be taken by this Board on the report now read, in making contracts or otherwise committing themselves until such time as the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough shall have provided the sum of $1,200 to be placed to the credit of the Board to complete the alterations and permanent improvements required according to the report now read and that the report be only adopted on these conditions.

Mr. Fair and Mr. Langford then offered to compromise by adding the words to their report. "Providing satisfactory financial arrangements can be carried out." Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Wrighton wanted the additional words "with the Town Council added," but the mover of the resolution would not consent. Mr. Fair contended that the matter would come up before the Board before any definite action was taken in the matter, and that the adoption of the report was merely a matter of form.

Mr. Wrighton's amendment was put and lost on division, and the original motion was carried.

COAL AND WOOD.

Mr. Ferguson reported that the cost of heating the Institute with wood for one year was $400, 100 cords of wood at $4.00 a cord being used. The cost of heating the same building for one year with coal was only $225, 50 tons at $4.50 per ton, thus effecting a saving of $175. Taking this into consideration, he moved that the chairman of the Property Committee be authorized to purchase the necessary coal for both the Institute and the Central school for next year.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Langford, the Finance Committee were instructed to confer with the Town Council regarding the ways and means of providing the balance of money required for improvements in the South Central School as outlined in the report.—Carried.

Mr. Hartley presented a very able report of his visit to the Provincial Educational Convention.

The meeting then adjourned.

TO KEEP BAIT ALIVE.

Solution of Problem That Has Puzzled Many Fishermen—Gets Air to the Minnows.

Every fisherman, says The Scientific American, knows how difficult it is to keep minnows alive. If the fish are kept in a pail, the water must be constantly changed to furnish a new supply of oxygen. The difficulty thus presented of feeding sufficient oxygen to enable the fish to live not only for hours, but for days, has been very ingeniously overcome in a recent invention.

This is a pail which is provided with an air chamber in its bottom and with a hand pump secured to the side. The lower end of the pump cylinder communicates with the air chamber by means of a pipe, and the air chamber communicates with the body of the pail by means of a flexible pipe. The pail having been filled with water and the minnows placed therein, the hand pump is operated to fill the air chamber with compressed air. Such is the pressure that the air is spontaneously supplied to the fish in the water through the flexible pipe. It is necessary to pump fresh air into the chamber only at very long intervals, for the construction of the flexible pipe is such that the air is very gradually discharged.

The inventor assures us that he has subjected his device to most severe tests. Forty fish, among them minnows so delicate that they cannot ordinarily be kept alive for more than ten hours, were placed in the pail and supplied with air in the manner described. So efficient was the apparatus that after 12 days the fish were all alive, although the water had not been changed during the interval and had become very foul. When the supply of air was at that time cut off, the fish came gasping for oxygen to the surface. The same minnows could not be kept alive in the same amount of fresh water for more than 14 or 15 hours.

SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experiences, many men do not seem to realize this, but go about complaining of the heat, in underclothes that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, suspenders, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

THE BANK BURGLARS.

Rice, Rutledge and Jones Convicted of the Minor Charge.

THE BOYD INQUEST BEGUN.

Constable Stewart Swears Rice Was the Murderer — Rutledge Urged Him to Do It—"Vina" Arrested and Held on Suspicion — Jones Had His Arm Amputated and May Recover.

Toronto, June 6.—The trial of Rutledge, Rice and Jones, bank burglars, closed last evening in the Criminal Sessions, the prisoners being found guilty of the charge of entering the postoffice at Aurora on the night of May 22, 1900.

The tragic event of the previous evening, in which Constable William Boyd lost his life while on duty, served to attract a tremendous crowd to the General Sessions court room long before 10 o'clock, the hour when the case was to be resumed.

It was known that Rutledge and Rice at least would be brought into court, and the courtyard at the City Hall was thronged by persons, who awaited the arrival of the hack which conveyed the prisoners from the jail. Several extra constables were on hand.

As Rutledge and Rice walked to the cell situated at the north of the court room they were very quiet and composed, exhibiting no anxiety or any interest in what they saw or heard. Rice walked along, coolly smoking a cigar, and bore himself brazenly as he has done through the two trials in which he has figured. His head was swathed in bandages and he looked decidedly pale, apparently having passed a bad night brooding over the exciting events which had transpired on the way back to the jail on Tuesday evening. Rutledge has several bare spots on his head where the hair had been removed by the physicians who dressed the wounds when County Constable Stewart beat him into submission with the butt of his revolver.

When they appeared in court they sat very close together in the same position as they did on the other days of the trial, leaving the space formerly occupied by the wounded prisoner, Jones, vacant. They paid no attention to the curious and searching gaze of the several hundred persons, including many women, in the room.

After Judge McDougall had taken his seat on the bench, Crown Attorney Dewart rose and said: "On account of certain events which have taken place since last evening, the prisoner Jones cannot be here, and I desire to know if I shall proceed with the trial in his absence."

Mr. Robinette, counsel for the prisoners, said: "I do not consent in behalf of Jones, nor do I object. I may say that at the close of the Crown's case, should Your Honor think there is sufficient evidence to go to the jury, I shall not offer any evidence on behalf of the defence."

The Crown's case against the three men charged with robbing the Aurora postoffice then went on. After the evidence was all in, and the counsel had delivered their addresses, Judge McDougall charged against the prisoners.

The jury retired at 4.30 o'clock and immediately afterwards Crown Attorney Dewart announced his intention of proceeding with the trial of the two men in court on the charge of robbing the private bank of J. L. Ross at Aurora on the night of May 22.

The selection of jurors then commenced. While thus engaged, the jury filed into court and took their seats.

When H. E. Irwin, Clerk of the Peace, asked the foreman if they had agreed on the verdict, the reply was: "Yes, we find the three prisoners guilty."

A consultation then took place between His Honor, Crown Attorney Dewart and T. C. Robinette, after which the last named announced that the two prisoners wished to withdraw their plea of not guilty to the charge of entering the private bank at Aurora, and enter one of guilty. They so pleaded as the indictment was read again; also to the charge of stealing the stallion Altoneer, the sulky and harness from the Queen's Hotel at Aurora, on the night of the robbery.

When the court adjourned the prisoners, Rutledge and Rice, were shackled hand and foot, and taken safely back to the jail in a cab.

INQUEST ON BOYD'S DEATH.

Constable Stewart Swears That Rice Fired the Shot That Killed Constable Boyd on Tuesday.

Toronto, June 6.—"I swear," said County Constable Walter Stewart at the inquest which was begun in the General Hospital last night, "that Rice fired the shot that killed County Constable William Boyd on Tuesday afternoon." As this statement fell from the lips of Stewart there was breathless silence. All eyes turned to the prisoner whose name was mentioned. He was the most unconcerned man in the room. He showed no signs of uneasiness and remained calm and watched the witness narrowly. The other prisoner, Rutledge, sat with downcast head, his eyes fixed on the floor.

The two prisoners, handcuffed together, Rutledge wearing a small dark peak cap and Rice a drab christy, were walked from the patrol into the theatre of the hospital, their free arms being clutched by Police Constables Poag and Moffatt. They were seated on the front seat in the theatre. Neither spoke a word.

The men who had been summoned as jurymen gathered in the mortuary at the rear of the hospital. Shortly after 8 o'clock Coroner Powell, accompanied by Crown Attorney Dewart, Dr. E. Reilly and several other physicians, arrived at the mortuary and adjourned in the men. After the oath was administered, C. H. Beavis was elected foreman, and then the coroner explained to the men the duty they had to perform. The jury then viewed the remains in another room. Afterwards they adjourned to the theatre of the hospital, where the inquest was begun.

Dr. G. A. Peters, sworn, said he attended Constable Boyd in the emergency ward. Deceased, on his arrival was dying and only lived a few minutes afterwards. It was impossible to do anything for him.

George Highly, the driver of the cab in which the fatality occurred, told of his leaving the Court House on Tuesday afternoon with five men inside and a man sitting beside him on the seat. He told the story of the drive as published yesterday.

County Constable Stewart said that he and deceased sat with their backs to the horses in the carriage, deceased sitting to his right. The prisoners sat facing them, Jones in the middle, with Rice facing Boyd and Rutledge facing the witness. Nothing of interest was said during the trip. When passing Sumach street a parcel was thrown through the cab window and it fell at Rutledge's feet. At once the three prisoners made a scramble for the parcel and Stewart grappled with Rutledge, while Boyd engaged with Rice. Jones leaned back in his seat and said: "What's the matter?" or something like it.

Witness then said that Rice got a revolver from the parcel and cried to Boyd to "Quit." Rice fired, shooting Boyd through the head. Stewart grappled with Rutledge, who leveled a revolver at him and told him to "Quit."

On close examination Stewart declared that, before the shooting, one of the prisoners told Boyd to "throw up his hands." He didn't, and then Rutledge said to Rice: "Give it to him." Rice then fired. Stewart told the prisoners to get out of the carriage, and after they did so, he fired at them from a 38-calibre revolver, which he carried. After he fired, the prisoners returned the fire, exchanging several shots. Stewart then got behind the cab, and the three prisoners boarded the car going east. Then the witness, running to the rear of the car, pulled the pole from the wire, stopping the car. Stewart at once boarded the front of the car, where the prisoners were struggling with the motorman. He grappled with Rice; and wrenched the revolver out of his hand. With the weapon he struck Rice on the head several times, all the time the prisoner calling on Rutledge to "Give it to him." The witness told Rutledge to give in, and at this juncture Guards Dodds and Spanton went to his assistance. The men were overcome.

To Mr. Robinette witness said that Rutledge did not shoot in the hack. He held a revolver at witness, two or three feet from his face. He was not sure if Rice fired more than once in the cab. He did not know who fired outside of the carriage.

To the Crown Mr. Stewart also swore that it was Rice who fired and killed Boyd.

Dr. J. F. Ross, who attended Constable Boyd, explained the condition of deceased on his admission to the hospital. He was satisfied from the first that nothing could be done to save his life.

Several other witnesses gave evidence covering no new ground. The inquest was adjourned till Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Jones May Recover.

Yesterday morning Judge McDougall made an order allowing Thomas Jones to be removed from the jail to the General Hospital. His left arm was so badly shattered and broken that it had to be amputated yesterday afternoon. His chances for recovery, the hospital doctors say, are good.

"Vina" Arrested.

The only sensational development in Tuesday night's murder case was the arrest yesterday morning of "Vina," Rice's sweetheart, who is believed to have been concerned in the desperate plot.

The woman was taken into custody by Detective Greer, in the corridor outside the court room. She laughed at the officer at first, and remarked that he couldn't bluff her, but soberd down considerably when she realized that she had to be locked up. Cross-questioning, however, proved utterly futile, the authorities not being able to find out even her name.

The police have traced the movements of Vina Seavey during the time the tragedy occurred on Tuesday night and they are satisfied that she was not near the scene as she was at the Court House when the prisoners left for the jail. From there she went to an hotel on King street. She attended the trials daily and affectionately watched the prisoners. She is held for vagrancy in the meantime.

Deceased leaves a widow and two children.

THE PLUMBERS OF CANADA INVITED.

Bridgewater, N.S., June 5, (Special). The case of John S. Morgan, plumber and tinsmith of this town, should be put prominently before every union and non-union man in Canada. In a matter like this there should be no distinction, the benefit belongs to all.

John S. Morgan for eight years was hampered in his work by backache. Stooping continually at work is the cause of a great deal of backache, though not in the way most people imagine. Mr. Morgan's letter explains the truth of the matter when he says Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his backache. It was really Kidney ache that troubled Mr. Morgan.

Backache is the commonest symptom of Kidney Disease. Kidney Disease is the commonest of human ailments, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one infallible cure for all Kidney Diseases. Read what Mr. Morgan says about them himself.

"I have been subject to lame back for eight years. The different remedies I tried were no good. I got so that I was crippled up entirely and couldn't do a tap of work. Another thing was a frequent desire to urinate altogether unnatural.

"About a year ago I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I had run down in weight to about 140 pounds. During the time I was using Dodd's Kidney Pills I gained 23 pounds. My back got better and better as I continued taking the pills until to-day I am as free from backache as ever I was in my life. This after eight years of it means an awful lot to me. I realize the danger I was in and know what I owe to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who has backache or any other Kidney complaint."

Nearly Killed by a Negro.

Hamilton, Ont., June 6.—Chas. P. Tuckett of the Tuckett Tobacco Company, came near being killed near the race track last evening. Some colored men were using bad language and he chided them. One of them, Thomas Lawrence, a follower of the races, from Windsor, attacked him, knocking him down and kicking him into insensibility. Not satisfied, the infuriated negro drew a knife and slashed young Tuckett till bystanders interferred. Lawrence ran on the track and hid himself under a couch in one of the stables. He was found there by Detectives Bleakley and Coulter and placed under arrest on a charge of cutting and wounding. Tuckett was taken into Truman's Hotel, where his wounds were dressed. It is not likely he will be able to appear against his assailant this morning.

THE MACHINISTS.

International Association Concerned Itself With Law Questions Wednesday.

Toronto, June 6.—Most of the time of the International Association of Machinists was in session yesterday was taken up with questions of law. The Committee on Law reported fixing the duties of officers. The Committee of Grievances presented a number of appeals, and in every case the action of the president was upheld. During the past two years President O'Connell has been called upon to decide a number of appeals from the decision of local lodges.

President O'Connell received word yesterday that all the firms in Marion, Ind., six in number, had signed agreements with their men.

In Detroit the machinists have been served with an injunction, restraining them from interfering with the Olds Motor Works Company or their employes.

At Passaic, N. J., girl strikers bombarded the Acheson-Hardson handkerchief factory with stones. Three girls and one man were arrested and fined $5 each.

C. P. R. and Its Trackmen.

Montreal, June 6.—There is every indication that a deadlock will be reached between the Canadian Pacific Railway management and the Grievance Committee, representing the trackmen on that system, by Friday next, and there may soon thereafter be more important developments. The questions involved include wages and general conditions affecting the welfare of the men.

Ottawa Plasterers on Strike.

Ottawa, June 6.—Thirty-six union plasterers went on strike yesterday morning. They want 30 cents per hour and Saturday half holiday during seven months of the year, and 28 cents per hour the rest of the year. The employers consent to this, but will not sign an agreement, and the strike is to compel them to sign. Eleven contractors are affected.

ONLY 60 MEN IN JAMESTOWN.

There Were 1,000 of the Enemy—Col. White Came in Contact With the Marauding Force and Drove Them Back, Capturing Horses and Munitions—Canada's Last 500.

Aliwal North, Cape Colony, Tuesday, June 4.—Col. White's column came in contact with Kritzinger's command northeast of Jamestown on June 3, drove the Boers back, captured 50 horses and some munitions, and recovered the stores looted from Jamestown.

60 Against 1,000.

Cape Town, June 5.—The garrison of Jamestown, Cape Colony, which surrendered to Kritzinger's commando Sunday, June 2, numbered 60 men in all. Kritzinger's force is estimated to have totalled 1,000 men. The British killed 12 and wounded 15 Boers before they were overpowered by numbers.

Don't Need More Canadians.

Ottawa, June 6.—The Militia Department has received, through Lord Minto, a cablegram from the Colonial Secretary, stating that the offer of the Canadian Government to send a further contingent of mounted rifles to South Africa had been laid before the Imperial War Office, and, notwithstanding the rather serious reverses of the past week, the War Office, while deeply grateful for the offer, do not think it necessary to accept the proffered further assistance.

It seems the Government refused, on constitutional grounds, to sanction the proposal of Major Hamilton Merritt to raise a regiment of horse for South Africa, but offered, however, to raise a further contingent of 500 mounted rifles. This is the offer that has now been declined.

THE PAPER COMBINE.

More Evidence to Prove That It Exists in Fact as Alleged.

MINUTES OF MEETING SHOWN.

Witnesses Testify to Facts Which Connect Increase in Price With Formation of the Association—Commission Will Meet Again in Montreal to Hear Evidence From Manufacturers' Standpoint.

Toronto, June 6.—At the investigation of the Papermakers' Association Tuesday afternoon, Mr. W. S. Dingman, proprietor of The Stratford Herald, and ex-president of the Canadian Press Association, said that the price he was paying for news prints just before the combination was formed was two and one-quarter cents a pound, with 3 per cent. discount at 30 days, but the price was immediately after raised to three cents and ultimately two and three-quarter cents; there was also a discrimination against him by fixing certain points at which free delivery is given, of which Stratford was not one. He had also made inquiries about getting paper from the United States, and found that he could lay it down a few cents per hundred pounds cheaper than the combine price.

Mr. Alex. Buntin, of Buntin, Reid and Co., wholesale paper dealers and jobbers, told of the visit of a deputation of the wholesale dealers and jobbers of Toronto and Montreal in February, 1900, to ask that the wholesale dealers be appointed agents of the Papermakers' Association, because that association had agreed to allow all the large consumers and newspapers to purchase at the same prices as the wholesale men. The object in appealing to the Papermakers' Association was to get the makers to let the wholesale men have a margin of profit. He understood the object in forming the Papermakers' Association was to avoid the losses the papermakers incurred owing to the cutting of prices. The American mills sell cheaper for export to Canada than for home consumption; if the duty were taken off the paper could come in from the States or the Canadian mills would have to come down.

Mr. Joseph E. Atkinson, editor of The Toronto Star, said that the first he knew about the combine was a little more than a year ago, when the probability of the formation of an association was mentioned to him as an inducement to make a contract or to renew an expiring contract, at a price equal to $2.28 net. That contract began on the 1st February, and ran for two or three months afterwards, when, on account of the Hull fire, in which the Eddy Company's works were destroyed, he had to go elsewhere for paper. The best he could then do was to make a contract for $2.57, with 2 per cent. off the net price he had been compelled to pay up to the present time. All the paper he consumed was not included in that contract, and he had bought paper at less prices from other companies.

The International Paper Company of New York offered him paper at $2 per 100 pounds, at the mill, with 2 per cent. off, the sample being the same as that upon which the New York Herald (Sunday edition) is printed. The freight upon the half-carload was 44 cents per 100 pounds, but the company informed him if he took a carload it would be reduced to 25 cents per hundred, which would be $2.21, plus the duty. The sample is very much better than the paper he is using at $2.57 per 100 pounds. The agent of the Manufacturers' Paper Company had also offered to supply him with paper at $1.80 per hundred pounds, f.o.b., at Watertown, or freight paid to Toronto at $2.01, but he did not accept the offer because 50 cents had to be added for duty. He had also, since the investigation began, received an offer from two mills at $2.50 per 100 pounds, which, they said, was the association price, and they could not quote any better.

In reply to Mr. White, Mr. Atkinson said that he did not close with the Manufacturers' Compant at $2.01 because he would have to pay 50 cents duty in addition, which would not make it worth while.

Mr. Sidney Stephenson of the Chatham Planet said his contract for paper expired in the early part of last year, and the price was jumped from $2.10, which he had been paying, to $2.75, with the freight added. He was told that this was the regular price, but discovered that his competitor fifty miles further on had his paper delivered free. His paper was carried through to Windsor, and brought back to Chatham at his cost. In this connection Mr. Stephenson produced a letter from the Riordan Paper Company admitting that a discrimination existed in regard to freight. The combine, he said, had also affected his job printing business by increasing prices.

Mr. Robertson gave a detailed statement of the negotiations between his paper and the Eddy Company. Before the Hull fire, he said, they had a contract for a supply of paper, the price of which was gradually reduced. In 1896 the price was $2.75 per hundred; in February, 1897, $2.65; in June, 1897, $2.50; in August, 1897, $2.35, and in August, 1898, $2.30. In 1898 the Canada Paper Company tendered for $2, and soon after the Eddy Company quoted $2.20 less 3 per cent. Eddy's offer was accepted. In February, 1900, the Eddy Company notified them that the price would be increased 10 per cent. The Journal attempted to hold the company to their contract, but the formation of the paper combine prevented the Eddy's from making good the offer of their representative.

The Journal then wrote to the Canada Paper Company, the Riordan Company and the Dominion Paper Company, but were unable to secure a contract, though previously these companies had been anxious to secure the business. The excuse they gave was that they had not the paper to spare. The Eddy Company seemed to know of the negotiations with the other companies. The Laurentide Paper Company was not then a member of the trust, and their representative quoted $2.40, urging The Journal to close a contract at once, as they had been approached with the object of bringing them in. Negotiations were then opened with some American companies, which were in the American trust. M. Alger, manager of the Laurentide Pulp Company, told witness that there was an understanding between the American Paper Trust and the Canadian Papermakers' Association. To Mr. White, counsel for the Papermakers' Association, Mr. Robertson said the Eddy Company admitted that it was owing to the formation of the trust that they could not give a better rate than $2.50. He was not prepared to say what was a fair margin of profit.

James Hardy, Secretary of the Papermakers' Association, was recalled. In answer to Mr. Barwick, he said he had the minutes of proceedings of the association, and he was asked to produce them, but Mr. White objected. The association, Mr. White said, was strictly within the law and their affairs should not necessarily be exposed.

Judge Taschereau ruled that the minutes should be produced, saying it was his duty to examine the books, and see what portion thereof had contributed to enhance the price of paper. It was then decided to adjourn to look over the minutes, to decide what abstracts should be produced.

When the enquiry was resumed at 2 o'clock, Mr. Hardy produced the constitution of the Papermakers' Association, formed in 1885. The present organization was merely the revival or reorganization of the old combine.

Mr. Hardy was asked if any arrangements had been made to give a bonus to those manufacturers who exported paper, and replied that none had been made, but such an arrangement had been discussed. There was more news print made in Canada than was needed for home consumption, and the proposition was to offer a bonus of $4 a ton on paper exported, but it fell through.

All the minutes of the association since its organization in 1900 were put in, and left to the judge to peruse before the next sitting of the commission.

It was developed in the evidence that The Montreal Star had a contract with the Canada Paper Company, the figure being $1.87, which is considerably below the price quoted by the trust.

The commission adjourned about 2.30. It is understood when the next sitting is held evidence will be offered from the manufacturers' standpoint.

The Central Park has been lately put into shape and it is bound to receive that attention it deserves.

Now for Cheap Groceries!

We have bought out at an unusually low rate one wine dollar, the whole of the fresh and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., recently opened out by Mr. William Hinchcliffe, next to H. Housekeepers don't miss this chance of getting the cheapest and best groceries you ever bought.

Electric Fans.

With the approach of hot weather the hotel keepers and many of the shop keepers are preparing for the occasion and during the last week or two there has been a large number of large electric fans placed in position. Messrs. Moon & Son have had placed in the National Hotel four handsome electric fans. There are two in the dining room, one in the office and one in the bar. The Snowden House has an equipment in this regard of six fans, having them distributed in the kitchen, bar, selling room and dining room. Mr. George Graham, of the Oriental, has recently put in a number of new fans and will have his hotel in a breezy state during the warm weather.

AN ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT.

The Wm. English Canoe Co. Received Many Letters of Enquiry.

As an instance of the attractiveness of the Ontario Exhibit at the Pan-American Exhibition, it might be mentioned that the English Canoe Company is in receipt of numerous letters of enquiry concerning their canoes on exhibition. It is in this manner: There is on exhibition at the Pan-American, a canoe built of many varieties of wood, representing the forests of Ontario, and the construction of the boat was carried out in the same attractive style that always characterizes the work of the English Canoe Company. While the craft is owned by the Ontario Government, and therefore under their control, still the local firm of boat-builders have received upwards of 40 letters from persons anxious to purchase the canoe after it has served its purpose at the Pan-American.

RICHARDSON'S TROUBLES.

Was Charged With Assault and Had to Pay Five Dollars.

People who happened to be on Water street near the Post Office yesterday afternoon saw a "scrap" which, while it may not have been as fierce as the recent Toronto affray between criminals and constables, was exciting enough. As a result, John Richardson was charged at the Police Court this morning with assaulting John McInnis. He pleaded not guilty, but the case was proven to the satisfaction of His Worship and accused was fined $5.

The circumstances of the little affair are rather interesting. It is said that a certain woman had been living with Richardson, but transferred her company over to McInnis. The dispute then arose regarding certain furniture which Richardson alleged he should be paid for, it having been includedi n the transfer of the feminine beauty. The three interested parties met on the street yesterday as aforesaid and a general mix-up occurred in which the woman took a free hand to the astonishment of the onlookers.

We have just received another shipment of the good washing kind, both in Edging and Insertions, which we bought from the makers and are offering them to you at wholesale prices. You should investigate and find out the difference in our qualities from what you usually see.

EMBROIDERIES

From St. Gall, Switzerland, the home of Embroideries, bought direct from the manufacturer and selling to you at a clear saving of 25 per cent., the wholesaler's profit. You'll see a bigger range of patterns here than elsewhere and as for quality you can't help but notice the difference. The needle-work is so much finer. Of course we have lots of the cheaper goods too, but we always recommend the best, they're cheaper in the end. When you are here ask to see our sample book of Embroideries and Insertions and note the prices on our Ready-made White Wear. We have a special display of these goods this week.

HON. J. R. STRATTON IN WEST LAMBTON.

MR. WHITNEY ANSWERED.

The Liberal Policy—The Development of New and Old Ontario—Liberal Rule in Canada.

Bridgen, June 5.—About one thousand of the Liberal stalwarts of West Lambton turned out at this point this afternoon to greet the Hon. J. R. Stratton. The meeting began at three o'clock in the Agricultural Hall. The building had been gaily decorated for the occasion, the platform being festooned with flags and bunting and pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Premier Ross. The audience was composed of the representative farmers of the riding, and delegations from Petrolea and other towns were present to hear the Minister who has charge of Ontario's public institutions. The chair was filled in an able manner by Dr. Fisher of Brigden. On the platform were:—Hon. J. R. Stratton; Mr. F. F. Pardee, the popular representative of the riding in the Legislature; Mr. H. J. Pettypiece, M.P.P., of Forest; Dr. Johnston, M.P., and Dr. Crown of Sarnia; Messrs. John Fraser, ex-M.P., Charles Jenkins, James Peat and Daniel McKellar of Moore Township. The visitors were warmly applauded as they took seats on the platform.

Hon. Mr. Stratton was the last speaker, and for nearly two hours he held the interested audience in a general discussion of Provincial matters. He commenced by referring to the County of Lambton being fortunate in its Liberal representatives. Forty years ago next month honest and sturdy Alexander Mackenzie had been first elected as representative for Lambton, the County being named after George Lambton, who had been Governor-General of Canada from 1830-40, a Whig. Mr. Mackenzie had been succeeded by the late Mr. Pardee but in 1894 the constituency fell from grace, but in 1899 the "King returned to his own," and the present popular representative was elected by over 500 majority—(applause)—and the speaker had no doubt he would be elected by even a larger majority in the coming election. Mr. Stratton then dealt with Mr. Whitney's lack of policy as compared with the forward and progressive policy of the Ross Government. He said the ninth Parliament of Ontario was near an end. The Government would be upon its trial at the hands of the Provincial jurors, and they entered upon this trial with confidence. Provincial affairs had been manged with prudence, with wisdom, and with moderation, with enterprise in action, with large and abiding faith in the future of Ontario. This Province needs more than perfunctory routine administration. Proud as is its position, that position is nothing to what it can be made by the effective development of its great resources. To this the Government was committed with all the energy at its command. It had made a most gratifying advance. People must advance, not stand still; he had no sympathy with stagnation. He then dealt with the great progress that had been made, and gave a detailed description of the work and programme of the Government, which had not been supported by the opposition. He referred to the Conservative leader's meetings in Toronto and London. He had expected Mr. Whitney whould have had something to say, some declaration of policy to make on the eve of an appeal to the people, but his speeches showed he apparently had no policy to give.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

Mr. Whitney posed as a specialist on the subject of political corruption. He should be an expert, for he is the leader of a party with a long, black record of corruption to its credit, or rather, discredit. He never failed to denounce Pritchett, but he never denounced "Billy" Smith, the Conservative ex-M.P., in South Ontario, who on oath in court swore that he had been guilty of what the Trial Judges had said was "the most brazen piece of corruption" they had ever heard. He would grow red in the face with righteous indignation denouncing Pritchett, an obscure individual, but the perpetrator of the most brazen corruption ever heard of by a Judge was left severely and considerately alone. While Liberals condemned corruption in any form, the Conservatives specially honoured their boodlers by publicly and shamelessly banquetting them, afterwards nominating them for Parliament, to be rejected by the honest electors. He asked the audience if a public man's honesty was not questionable who demands the punishment of petty bribers of an opposing political party, ignoring in his own party prominent members guilty of far more heinous corruption and by his silence consents to political wrong doing. Mr. Whitney's policy was to blacken his opponents and pose as a political purist with pharisaic unction. He was willing to overlook the corruption of his own party and enjoy the fruits of their corruption. Mr. Whitney's statesmanship seemed to be narrowed down to a policy of this kind. He seemed to be able to indulge in no wider outlook, to take no broader view. He seemed to have no sympathy with the policy of advance and development. He not only failed to support but antagonized every effort made in that direction. He called the land grant to the Algoma Central Railway a colossal robbery in one session, supported a large grant in another session to the Manitoulin & North Shore, when forced to do so by his followers, who privately denounced his course on the Algoma Central. He sneeringly remarks of the Government plan to establish abattoirs, and calls the abattoirs in contempt "butcher shops." His nasty sarcasm, no doubt, drew the applause of his audience, while an abattoir, employing capital and labour, was being established in the very city in which he was speaking for the benefit of the farmers.

NEW ONTARIO.

He sneers at New Ontario "as discovered by Hon. Mr. Ross," but he came nearer the truth than he meant as the true wealth and importance of New Ontario had been discovered by Mr. Ross, through the exploring parties he sent out, and by the development brought about by the large new industries established by Government aid an dencouraged in Ontario. Mr. Stratton then referred to the attempt to rob the Province of what is now known as New Ontario while the party which Mr. Whitney now leads passively, if not actively, aided and abetted the attempt to deprive us of what is known as New Ontario, which Mr. Whitney now sneeringly refers to as the land of the "stunted poplar.' He asked if Mr. Whitney's political friends at Ottawa did not think it the land of the "stunted poplar," when a score or two of political heelers had given to them by the Conservative Government, 1,500 or more square miles, nearly a million acres, of valuable timber lands at less than a cent per acre, among the boodle beneficiaries being Mr. Whitney's bosom friend and political chum in Morrisburg. Mr. Stratton did not think Mr. Whitney appreciated the importance of New Ontario, where millions of dollars of capital and thousands of labourers, and thousands of settlers were now locating, settling New Ontario and bringing corresponding benefits to old Ontario. He then dealt with the bold, energetic, progressive and patriotic policy of the Government, giving the details of the various pulp concessions and showing by a map the new lines of railway that were being built with the assistance of the Province. He dealt exhaustively with the financial position of the Province, with the position which the Province had taken, and concluded what was generally referred to by the vast audience as one of the most exhaustive and complete expositions of the affairs of the Province ever listened to in this banner Liberal county.

At the conclusion of Mr. Stratton's address, cheers were given for the Provincial Secretary, the local members and the King.

Mr. Wm. Nicholls, one of our local blacksmith, while engaged connecting pipe for Mr. G. H. Brown, in connection with the wind mill had rather a narrow escape last week. Mr. Nicholl was engaged laying some pipe out in the lake some distance from the shore. The raft which he was working on gave way and Mr. Nicholls was precipitated into the water beyond his depth. Having his clothes on he was unable to swim and only for the willing hands who were on the shore Mr. Nicholls would certainly of had a narrow escape from drowning. Mr. Thomas Trennum and Mr. John Latchford succeeded in landing him on the balmy beach none the worse, only a severe ducking.

Mr. J. H. Brumwell is having his private residence painted and has secured Mr. Fred Cook of Peterborough to do the work, which will insure Mr. Brumwell work of the highest order.

The steamer Menita made her initial trip from Bobcaygeon to Bridgenorth on Saturday morning, returning again at 3.30 p.m. The Menita intends making regular return trips between Bobcaygeon and Chemong during the month of June. On and after July 1st Chemong will have two boats a day connecting with steamer Sunbeam at Burleigh for Stony Lake and Peterborough. Tourists will be able to leave Chemong in the morning and travel by boat to Lakefield, G.T.R. to Peterborough and return to Chemong, perhaps, by electric cars.

The steamer Lady of the Lake came in on Saturday night and will return on Monday morning. The drive is at present anchored at Big Island. Mr. John Coones, the foreman says it will require five or six days yet before they will will reach Chemong, as the drive is a very large one.

Mr. W. B. Kelly is putting an addition to his saw mill as he finds that the present floor space is too small for the amount of work which is being carried on. The new machinery which has been placed in position by a skilled staff of workmen under the supervision of Mr. Meeks, of Lakefield, is in perfect running order and Mr. Wm. Mann the head sawer, is turning out both quantity and quality much superior to that which could be done with the old machinery. A visit to the mill at any time will convince the visitor of the work which is being carried on as one sees great pine saw logs brought in dripping wet from the lake and converted into lumber before his eyes in a way that is altogether marvellous. Strong men grapple hold of a 15 or 20 foot length of a bole of a tree with the rough, picturesque bark of years on it, in a moment it is on the bed of the sawing machine and falls into slabs then it is passed into other saws that further divide it after which it is carried to the lumber yard, where it is piled up and is left ready for shipment.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough sporting fraternity are asked to bear in mind the game of baseball that will take place on the P.A.A.A. Grounds on Saturday afternoon. The Heintzman team, of Toronto, will be down to try conclusions with the locals and an exciting game should be the result.

THE WHEEL.

The five mile bicycle race between Wade Garbutt and J. W. Koster, announced to take place last evening, will come off at 6.30 to-night on the Nicholls oval. The event promises to be exciting, and a large crowd is expected to witness it.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

At 6.45 (weather permitting) there will be a practice of lacrosse at the Nicholls oval. Let all interested players turn out and enjoy a good, hard practice. At the conclusion of the practice there will be trial heats at running and hurdle jumping. All interested in track athletics will have an evening of enjoyment as well as profit.

THE BROKE BRIGADE.

When the last string snaps and a man goes broke,
He turns to the woods or the sea;
He eats clean loons from the home bred folk,
While love and honor go up like smoke,
And life is a gamble and death is a joke
And the universe good to see.

There's a brand new sort of a fate for him;
They may languish early and late for him,
The bird on the wing is a mate for him,
And the hawk on the hunt goes free.

There's the brown and gloom of the forest track,
Where the deer go ghostly by;
There's the starving camp and the dead weight pack,
The moose hide lodge or the trapper's shack,
And a wolf's fierce life in the pine woods black,
And the freedom of the sky.

There's the plunging deck and the jarring screw
And the oilskins bright with foam,
The stokehole's blaze and its naked crew
Or the topsails drenched with the gulf stream dew,
And the sharp, salt breath of the landless blue,
Where a man forgets his home.

We know it, my friends of the "broke brigade,"
Pals of the plain and sea;
Single handed and unafraid,
The artists of life and the fools of trade,
But we think we know how the game is played,
And we know where it's best to be!

There are some that may wait and pray for us;
There is luck that never will stay for us,
But the woods and the waves will make way for us
When the "broke brigade" goes free!

—Frank Lillie Pollock in Boston Globe.

OVER THE MORNING CUP

A MARITAL TIFF.

"It is the money that has done it, Mary—the miserable money."

"It is your pride that has done it, I tell you, Basil. I couldn't help having the money, could I? You liked the luxuries it brought as well as I did. I never thought whether it was yours or mine."

"But I thought. I knew it was yours, and other people knew it. They took pains to make me feel it too."

"But I had the money when you married me, and you knew it. If you took me in spite of it, why should you be angry now because of its existence and the existence of the things which are the logical outcome of it?"

"I now realize that it would be a logical outcome for people to say and for you to think that I took you because of it."

"If people have said that, they have not said it in my hearing"—

"Naturally they have not, but they have said it."

"And I've never thought anything about it one way or the other."

"Maybe you don't appreciate the fact that you have thought of it, but the possession of that money has given you an independence which is not conducive to the happiness of this home. I asked you not to go on that journey last week to your cousin. I don't like your cousin. I don't approve of the people she has about her or of her manner of living. I don't like that betting, sporting husband of hers. I heartily disapprove of the men you meet there and of the unnecessary attentions you receive from them. I told you all this or hinted it, but you decided that as the journey cost me nothing and as you could provide a good housekeeper in your absence it was practically nothing to me. So you ordered six new gowns, paid for them out of your own purse, bought your railroad ticket and went. I staid at home, fuming to know I was not personally able to provide luxuries or pleasures for you and thought of you among those reckless people, taxing your strength beyond what was right, listening to compliments from men who could spend more money in one month than I ever earned in my life, and knowing that if I commanded you to return you probably would not obey me."

"I'm glad you didn't put my obedience to the test, Basil."

"You would not have returned?"

"Not if you commanded me. Neither would you do anything I commanded you to do. Commands are out of date between married folk. I have always tried to regard your wishes."

"You went to your cousin, and I expressed a wish that you would not."

"Because you are such a provincial. You've never known anything but this humdrum, supervirtuous, formal, insufferable town."

"This insufferable town has sent out a number of distinguished men. Your cousin and her kind would knock a long time at certain doors in this village before they would gain an entrance."

"You are mistaken, for they would not knock. Why would they deliberately give up the pleasures of life and enter into these social crypts which you call by the name of drawing rooms? Why, the nearest pleasure the people in this village have ever come is in reading 'An Elegy in a Country Churchyard.' They are ignorant of everything that has happened since the battle of Bennington."

"You think so? I thought some of them had led in more recent battles. I thought some of them had framed the laws we now enjoy. I believed that some of them had enjoyed great honors abroad as well as at home. They don't know much about the record of the favorite trotter of the year, I admit. They are unacquainted with the latest scandal about the reigning prima donna. They are not up on the latest slang. By your standard they fall short undoubtedly."

"I am glad you understand my standard so well. I'm glad. No, no; please don't answer. You spoke spontaneously, and you said what you thought quite honestly and without any reservations. At least I hope there were no reservations."

"But there was a reservation."

"Indeed!"

"Shall I tell you what it is?"

"If you please."

"Well, then, I think you do not love me."

"Oh!"

"I think my society appears as dull to you as the society of the other inhabitants of this village, which you frankly confess you detest. I think there are men—and one in particular"—

"Basil, I wouldn't go on."

"Why not?"

"Because there is a candor I cannot endure and keep my self respect."

"Then I'm not to speak the whole truth? I'm to keep my reservation?"

"I think you'd better."

"Where are you going?"

"To my room."

"I shall not be home to dinner."

"Neither shall I."

"Why not?"

"Because I'm going away."

"To stay overnight?"

"To stay over many nights."

"Mary!"

"Many nights! What do you care? What do you want with a wife whose standard of living is what you say mine is? We've been unhappy together for months. You misinterpret everything I say or do. You neither admire nor trust me."

"I neither admire nor trust you? Mary, wait a moment."

"Let go of my wrist! Why should you hold me?"

"Mary, listen."

"I have listened too long. I have learned what a man means when he says to a woman, 'I love you!' He means: 'I wish to possess you body and soul. I wish you to be mine, to have no power to move independently of my will.' Because a woman is a wife is, that any reason why she should have no right to exercise her own judgment? Must she be coerced by the will of her husband always—always? Then the meaning of wifehood is slavery. You have confessed it. The bane of your existence is that I have money, which gives me liberty. You cannot withhold it from me and so force me to obedience to your will. That is the cause of your complaint."

"Mary, stop—listen to me."

"No. I have begun now. I will finish. Have I ever tried to force you into the companionship of my cousin and her friends, whom you despise? Has it ever occurred to you that some of your friends might be quite as objectionable to me? Don't look at me like that, Basil. I can be just if I am a woman. I am just to you. I know you cared for me once, and it was not my money that attracted you either."

"No, by heaven, Mary, it"—

"Wait a moment. You know you did care for me"—

"Mary, I"—

"Wait, Basil—you cared for something in me that was not like you. There were any number of women of your own set you might have had for the asking, but you must choose me, and for something they were not and never could be to you, and then, Basil—take your arm away—you must needs proceed to make me over, to cast me in their mold as rapidly as possible. Now you—I would not have changed you for the world. I learned to love you as you are, and I wanted you to stay so. That is love. But you, after you had succeeded in making me all over and had cut me off from the gayety of my past life, would find you had spoiled your plaything."

"Oh, throw that all aside. I wouldn't make you over, Mary, I tell you—I"—

"And I tell you I have heard those protestations before, and I used to believe them. Now you must let me go"—

"Believe them? What did you believe?"

"You needn't be so bitter. I cannot believe in a love that is in no sense just."

"Mary, not just?"

"No! It isn't just that you should ask of me that which you would not for a moment yield. I respect your individuality, I trust, I love you, but you"—

"Mary, Mary, it is enough"—

"No, Basil, you have stopped my mouth with kisses before. You shall not do it this time. I will make you see why"—

"I do see, Mary, and I will stop your mouth—there!"

—"why I went to my cousin's last week and why"—

"Why you are going next week if you wish to, dear, and"—

"But I don't wish to—that is, unless you say I shan't."

"But I say you shall!"

"Then I will not."

"And I say you shall go off and leave me morose and sullen here all by myself, as you threatened and as I deserve, and shall go this minute."

"And you know I can't get away when you hold me like this—stop, Basil. I shall not let you kiss me again—not until you tell me you will trust me always, everywhere, anywhere!"

"Always, love, everywhere, anywhere. Now what?"

"Now you may"—

"Thank you. I will whether you will or not."

"Are you coming home to dinner?"

"Are you? Yes."

"Yes, love, yes."—Chicago Tribune.

Emigration to Canada.

The area of the Dominion, extending as it does from the Atlantic to the Pacific, is as large as Europe, but the population is no greater than that of London, says Lloyd's Weekly. What a prospect this opens up to those who are possessed of the necessary energy and capital to take advantage of its great resources in agriculture, minerals, fisheries, forests, and manufactures! It offers free grants of land to settlers in some provinces (Manitoba, the Northwest Territories, and parts of Ontario), Crown grants in others (New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia), and improved farms may be obtained everywhere at reasonable prices. What Canada wants is more people and more capital, and those who are anxious to obtain information about our leading colony—its progress in recent years, and the advantages it offers to settlers of all classes—cannot do better than consult the High Commissioner for Canada, whose offices are at 17 Victoria street, London, S.W.

Newspaper Business in Dawson City.

The newspaper business must be a good thing in Dawson City. The rates for The Dawson City Daily News are 25 cents a copy, or $4 a month. The subscription rate for the town is $48 a year. It is an eight-page daily for five months of the year and four pages for the remainder. The circulation is a little under 900 per day. A 16-page weekly paper is published at 25 cents a copy for the town. It is distributed up the creeks by dogs and carriers and outside the town the price of the single paper is 50 cents to $1.50, according to the distance the carrier has to travel to the subscriber.

In The Dawson News Office there is a Merganthaler machine, which, with all equipment, cost $4,700, but by the time it was landed in Dawson the cost laid down there was $8,289. It had been shipped too late for navigation and had to be carried 400 miles over the ice. The horse feed alone cost $39 a day and it took 27 days to make the trip.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

Young Girls

Are often engaged in doing the work of a home under the most trying conditions. Nature cries out against the stooping and lifting, the running up and down stairs at times when labor should be as light as possible. It is owing to overstrain or self-neglect under these conditions that the foundation is laid for serious womanly diseases. Irregularity is the first step to impaired womanly health.

Perfect regularity may be established by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will heal inflammation and ulceration and cure female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"It gives me much pleasure," writes Miss Ella Sharp, of Jamestown, Guilford County, N. C., "to thank Dr. Pierce for the great good received from the use of his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I had suffered for three years or more at monthly periods. It seemed as though I would die with pains in my back and stomach. I could not stand at all without fainting. Had given up all hope of ever being cured, when one of my friends insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. With but little faith I tried it, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt better. Now I have taken two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I am entirely cured, and in two months' time when all other medicines had failed."

NO ARGUMENT NEEDED.

Every Sufferer From Catarrh Knows That Salves, Lotions, Washes, Sprays and Douches do Not Cure.

Powders, lotions, salves, sprays and inhalers cannot really cure Catarrh, because this disease is a blood disease, and local applications, if they accomplish anything at all, simply give transient relief.

The catarrhal poison is in the blood and the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and trachea tries to relieve the system by secreting large quantities of mucous, the discharge sometimes closing up the nostrils, dropping into the throat, causing deafness by closing the Eustachian tubes, and after a time causing catarrh of stomach or serious throat and lung troubles.

A remedy to really cure catarrh must be an internal remedy which will cleanse the blood from catarrhal poison and remove the fever and congestion from the mucous membrane.

The best and most modern remedies for this purpose are antiseptics scientifically known as Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Sanguinaria and Hydrastin, and while each of these have been successfully used seperately, yet it has been difficult to get them all combined in one palatable, convenient and efficient form.

The manufacturers of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have succeeded admirably in accomplishing this result. They are large, pleasant tasting lozenges, to be dissolved in the mouth, thus reaching every part of the mucous membrane of the throat and finally the stomach.

Unlike many catarrh remedies, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain no cocaine, opiate or any injurious drug, whatever, and are equally beneficial for little children and adults.

Mr. C. R. Rembrandt of Rochester, N. Y., says: "I know of few people who have suffered as much as I from Catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I used sprays, inhalers and powders for months at a time with only slight relief and had no hope of cure. I had not the means to make a change of climate, which seemed my only chance of cure.

Last spring I read an account of some remarkable cures made by Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and promptly bought a 50-cent box from my druggist and obtained such positive benefit from that one package that I continued to use them daily until I now consider myself entirely free from the disgusting annoyance of catarrh; my head is clear, my digestion all I could ask and my hearing which had begun to fail as a result of the catarrh, has greatly improved until I feel I can hear as well as ever. They are a household necessity in my family.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents for complete treatment and for convenience, safety and prompt results they are undoubtedly the long looked for catarrh cure.

NURSES FROM CANADA

Compose Half the Classes in New York Training Schools.

REASONS WHY THEY SUCCEED.

How the Canadian Niece of the British Matron Is Avenging the Capture of British Youths—They Are Marrying United States Doctors, Too—Fault of the Yankee Girls Pointed Out.

Canadian girls will constitute one-half of the graduating classes of the leading training schools for nurses this year in New York and all the big cities from the Atlantic ocean to the Rocky Mountains, says The New York Sun.

While the British matron moans as each successive British youth is led captive to the altar by American girls, her Canadian neice is avenging the English cousin. She has swept across the boundary line and descended on the professional young woman of the United States. While the Canadian girl is now prominent in all the professions in the States, her greatest distinction has been won in trained nursing. In the most noted Training schools and the finest hospitals the Canadian trained nurse is in places of responsibility.

Not content with all this Canadians estimate that for every English title won by American heiresses Canadian nurses have bound as many as ten American doctors in matrimonial chains.

A Canadian railroad man who is a prominent member of the Canadian organization in New York City, said on this subject:

"I could name at least 250 Canadian nurses offhand, and I don't know one-fifth of them. I married one myself, and they are very popular as wives among American doctors. Its easy to see why the Canadian girl gets admission to the Training schools for nurses where the American can't.

"The best-known Canadian nurse, or the one of whom most has been heard, is Miss Betsey Russell, a daughter of the head of the Hamilton, Ont., insane asylum, Miss Russell was graduated from a New York hospital, St. Luke's, I believe, or the Presbyterian, and went to Cuba to nurse the American soldiers. After that she went to South Africa, and on her return to Canada several public receptions were given in recognition of her work."

"Canadian parents send their girls to boarding schools more than parents in the United States. They educate the girls with the idea of preparing them to take a place in the social world, and preside in homes of their own. They don't start out educating them for college and professions with the idea of careers and money getting. Then, when misfortune overtakes the parents, the girls, thrown on their own resources, look for what they are fitted to do.

"The trained nurse goes into the finest homes. She must be a person of high breeding, or else she becomes a trouble maker and source of annoyance. The American girls who apply to hospitals for admission to the training schools are not to be compared to the Canadian girls in this respect. There are charming and smart girls among the American applicants, and many well-bred young women among them; but the proportion who are quite the opposite is great. So trained nursing offers a resource to Canadian girls in the circumstances referred to.

"I know many Canadian nurses also who leave homes of ease because they have tired of society life and caught the American independent spirit; girls who have been brought up in affluence, with their own horses and carriages; girls who ride to hounds; popular belles and so on. Of course, some of them go back to Canada with their training, but most of them remain in the States.

"It's the case not only in New York, but also in all the large New England cities, in Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, and even farther west the Canadian girl has the same hold on trained nursing to the exclusion of American girls. In Buffalo, owing to its nearness to Ontario, the rush of Canadian girls to the training schools for nurses became so great that the schools were closed to aliens.

"The Canadian trained nurse certainly is a greater feature of the profession than is appreciated in lay circles. For some years now the classes in this school have contained you may safely say, on an average, 45 per cent. of Canadian girls. I should hardly say 50 per cent. on an average, but there have been classes where the percentage was as high as 65. Only a small proportion return to Canada permanently. Most of them stay here or scatter through the United States.

"The same thing prevails in all the foremost training schools in the country. In Philadelphia, particularly, and Baltimore, I know it is the case. Canadian nurses rank high in the profession, and physicians prefer them in many cases.

"Itcally, I couldn't say why the Canadians have fixed on that profession especially or why so many are admitted, I should be very unwilling to assert that it is because they are more refined and better bred than American applicants. We take applications, of course, in their order, and there is always as many Canadians as Americans on the waiting list. At Bellevue Canadians were very numerous until the politicians objected, and a law was passed forbidding the admission of aliens to Bellevue.

"It is not only for the regular training that Canadian girls come to the United States, but also for post-graduate work, and the schools and hospitals making a feature of that work have even a larger percentage of Canadians than we. Canada has not so many opportunities for training as the hospitals of the States offer, and I suppose that is one reason why so many Canadian young women are met with here. I know of no other profession that has attracted them as nursing has."

Miss Rykert, of the Post Graduate Training School for Nurses, said:

"I am a Canadian, but that does not prevent my doing my duty by the American applicants for admission. The class before I came here was over 65 per cent. Canadian. Being Canadian myself I am distinctly sensitive lest I may be accused of favoring Canadian applicants. I have discussed the matter freely with the board.

"Oh, yes, Canadian nurses frequently marry American doctors. But I'm sure they have no idea of avenging their English sisters for the titles they lose to American heiresses, although apparently they are successful in doing so."

VETERANS' LAND GRANTS.

Regulations Which Provide For a Wide Choice—The Location of the Lands Set Apart by the Ontario Government.

Regulations for the allotment of the veterans' land grants have just been framed, and passed by Order-in-Council. Under these the successful applicants will have the choice of any land now open for sale or location in any of the townships north of the French and Mattawan Rivers, and Lake Nipissing, and west of the Quebec boundary to Manitoba. At present, the Department of Crown Lands estimate this will embrace between 75 and 100 townships. Under the terms of the bill only one applicant may be located to the square mile. As each township possesses an area of 36 square miles, it will be seen that although the area actually open and ready for settlement is a small portion of the whole territory yet it gives room for several times as many soldiers as will apply. The regulations and forms for filling in will be printed in a few days, and it is possible that applicants may be furnished with a map to assist them in choosing their land.

The regulations provide in a general way for declarations as to the service in the field of each applicant, first, by the applicant himself; secondly, by a comrade in the field, and, thirdly, by the senior surviving commanding officer of the corps in which he served. Where some of these are impossible other means of proving claims may be agreed upon. Declarations are also required by two disinterested persons that the land applied for is wholly unoccupied and unimproved, and that there is no adverse claim to it. The mines and minerals pass with the land grant, but the pine timber is reserved to the Crown. The locatee, however, may cut what pine he needs for building or fencing upon his land, and may also cut and remove any other pine timber necessary in clearing his land for cultivation, by paying the ordinary Crown dues, for such pine so cut and disposed of, which are now fixed at $1.25 per thousand feet.

Canada's First Cheap Postage.

We are most happy to announce that the result of the first month's trial of the cheap postage system is entirely satisfactory, and realizes the expectations of the most sanguine in regard to it. The average letter postage under the old system was ninepence currency so that it required three times the amount of business to make the present rate produce a revenue equal to what it was before the change. The number of letters during the first month has more than doubled—so that the revenue is only about one-third reduced. Of course, this is the minimum, and every month will show an improvement.

The great object of attainment is now cheap postage. When shall we have penny postage across the Atlantic?

The White Shark.

The shark of sharks, the real "man eater" and the one most dreaded, is the white shark. This variety reaches a length of 25 feet and a weight of 2,000 pounds. Its head is long and flat, and the snout far overhangs the mouth. Its six rows of teeth are sharp as lancets and notched like saws. Its mouth is very large, so that one has been known to cut a man's body completely in two at a single snap of its cruel jaws and another to swallow one at a gulp. Near Calcutta one of these sharks was seen to swallow a bullock's head, horns and all.

From the stomach of another a bull's hide was taken entire, and the sailor who made the discovery insisted that the bull had been swallowed whole and all except the hide had been digested. From the stomach of another was taken a lady's workbox, filled with the usual contents, scissors and all. It is commonly the white shark which follows the vessel at sea day after day and week after week.

VERY FINE SOIL WITHOUT STONES.

Where Rev. W. Peer, Late of Norwood Has Been Labouring.

The Temiscaming District Warmly Praised—A Rush of Settlers There.

[illegible] Toronto Star.

The first meeting of the Executive Board of the Baptist Church under the superintendency of Rev. W. E. Norton, was held in the Baptist Board Room, Richmond street, on Tuesday morning. The business consisted in making appropriations for a few churches and in listening to the report of Rev. E. T. Fox, who has just returned from a trip to the Lake Temiscaming District.

Mr. Fox, who was accompanied by his wife, spent ten days in the New Ontario region. Going to Thornloe, or, as it is now called, North Liskeard, Mr. and Mrs. Fox found that they would have to sleep in a tent, owing to the crowded state of the village. The Government agent, Mr. John Armstrong, hearing that they were in the place, gave them accommodation in his house during their stay there.

From ten to twenty prospectors come in by every boat, and the boats arrive three times a week. As soon as the prospectors get a look at the land they decide on settling at once, go and take up their land and to make sure of their share chop an acre. Four or five weeks ago there were 200 or more lots to be had. Now in several townships there is not a single lot to be had, and there is talk of opening some six new townships. Mr. Fox was successful in obtaining two lots in the village, one for the Baptist church and the other for the parsonage. Promises of money and lumber have been made, and the Board hopes that both church and dwelling house will be erected before the cold weather comes in. Rev. Mr. Peer has been the minister in charge for the past year. Mr. Peer spent six months in the village last year, and would have remained for the winter but it was quite impossible for him to secure a dwelling for the winter, and it did not seem wise to attempt living in a tent.

Mr. Fox describes the soil as magnificent, and says that in several townships there are not enough stones to put a foundation under a building. All the stone that is required has to be hauled from a considerable distance.

VACCINATION.

Mr. H. E. Hall has asked the Examiner to publish the appended letter which recently appeared in the Philadelphia Bulletin:

To the Editor of the Bulletin:

Sir, — With the arrogance and unveracity which has distinguished the advocates of vaccination from the master charlatan, Jenner, down to this day, "W. B. B." begins his lucubration by the cool assertion that the opposition to vaccination is based upon and sustained by a lack of information, or by misinformation. That this is contrary to the truth will be evident at once, from the fact that to become opponents of vaccination the physician has in nearly all cases, to overcome the prejudices in which he has been educated.

"W. B. B.'s" statement that "It (vaccination) has prevailed throughout the world for a hundred years simply upon its merits," is so grossly, so impudently untrue, that it needs a large charity to believe that "W.B.B." did not know that he was presuming on the assumed ignorance of your readers.

It has been enforced by laws; laws not passed by the will of the people, but sneaked through the different Legislatures at the bidding of the medical priests, and has for nearly 100 years been a State enforced medical creed!

But for this State enforcement it would long since have passed into the limbo of other abandoned medical fads.

One of the many falsehoods of the vaccinists has been to terrify the people by calling smallpox, "the dread disease." Yet, what said Sydenham, the greatest authority upon the subject? Writing in 688, he said, "If no mischief be done by physician or nurse, it (smallpox) is the lightest and safest of all diseases."

In the three years following June, 1895, I treated thirty cases of smallpox, and cured every one of them, without a scar. Yet two of them were already black in the face and swollen out of recognition when I began to attend them.

"W.B.B." says: "When a centre of infection arises, physicians can always prevent its spread by quarantine and re-vaccination," and yet, according to Surgeon-General Lippincott, the United States soldiers sent to the Philippines, were vaccinated and re-vaccinated, four, and many of them five times, and yet smallpox raged among them. His reason for consenting to admit to school a child who would not "take" vaccination, is just as absurd as his other arguments. He says such a child is immune to smallpox, as well as to cowpox. I now make to "W.B.B." or to all vaccinists, the following offer, I will pay $1,000 to "W.B.B." or to anyone else, if he can explain:

(1) What is it that is put into the blood of the vaccinee when he is vaccinated, either with "pure calf lymph," or with "arm to arm" lymph?

(2) What the process is which then takes place in the blood of the vaccinee whereby he pretends that such vaccinee is thereafter protected from smallpox?

(3) That the introduction of the "vaccine virus" into the organism can be so governed and controlled to prevent its producing septicamia?

Montague R. Leverson.

"MISTRESS NELL."

"Mistress Nell, a Merry Tale of a Merry Time," are the title and subtitle of a delightfully enticing story by George C. Hazelton, jr., just issued by the Copp, Clark Company, Limited, Toronto. It is enough to say, to open up romantic possibilities for the reader, that the story is of Nell Gwyn, and the merry court of the merry monarch Charles II., and it embraces the brightest and most piquant scenes from a period of English history which contributes very little of sober and solid merit to the national record; but it can boast of, or blush at, the maddest, merriest, most rollicking and devil-may-care court from Alfred the Great to Edward VII. In addition to Charles II., and Madcap Nell Gwyn, the wholom orange-wench, popular actress and royal sweetheart, we have the dashing Buckingham, Rochester and other gallants and wits, and the intriguing Duchess of Portsmouth, laughing, dancing, sparkling and plotting through the tale in glittering and gay medley. It is a bright and sparkling story from preface to finis. Its spirit defies description, and to be felt and enjoyed, "Mistress Nell" must be read. It outshines all the so-called historical novels so much the present vogue.

Exporter's Suit Over Preservation Patent.

One Dealer Claims a Royalty of one Cent per Dozen on all Eggs Treated by Glycerine Process.

The leading egg-dealers of the Province and the adjacent States met in convention for the first time at Toronto on Tuesday for the primary purpose of uniting in a law-suit in which the interests of all are involved, and with a secondary object of forming an organization for the protection of individual dealers in emergencies such as the one that has made the present gathering necessary. Many prominent members of the egg-exporting trade were represented at the meeting yesterday, among them being: William Flavelle of Lindsay, J. H. Walker of Detroit, W. A. Rutherford and A. Marshall of Toronto, James Madden of Wm. Ryan & Co., Toronto, T. E. Moore of Waterloo, John Nichols of Waterloo, A. J. King of the King-Darrell Company, Toronto, William Hunter of Hyslop & Hunter, Montreal, and H. B. Clemes of the Matthew Edwards Company of Port Perry.

During almost the entire day that they were in session this gathering of egg-dealers discussed the suit brought by D. D. Wilson of Seaforth against William Meldrum & Co., of Montreal. The suit, which is brought to recover unstated damages for a breach of a patent, means a great deal to the egg-dealers. Mr. Wilson claims to have discovered and patented, some eighteen months ago, a process by which after treating eggs with a solution of lime to preserve their quality, they are put in a solution of glycerine to preserve their natural appearance. The process has been used by almost every exporter of eggs in the country, and Mr. Wilson's claim of a royalty of one cent upon every dozen treated by the process has been the cause of the present meeting.

Some eight million dozen eggs were exported from this country last year, and about 70 per cent. of this amount were treated by the glycerine process. One Toronto firm alone exported one million dozen eggs, and is liable for the royalties if the suit of Mr. Wilson is successful. Although the Meldrum firm, against which the suit was brought, was not represented at the meeting yesterday, the case will be strenuously fought, and prominent dealers, including many of those at the meeting, as well as William Richardson of Walkerton and J. D. Moore of St. Mary's, will be called on behalf of the defendants. It is claimed that the glycerine process was used in this country six years ago, and that it was even then in common use in Denmark, from which country the first recipe for the preservation of eggs came.

Health and Comfort Secured in Summer Time By Using MALT BREAKFAST FOOD.

Oatmeal and ordinary prepared breakfast foods are positively hurtful to many people in summer weather, as they contain too much insoluble starch and are too irritating and heating. Malt Breakfast Food is quite free from starch; it is the most easily digested food, it keeps the blood at normal temperature, it sustains strength and energy, and builds flesh, bone and muscle. SUMMER COMFORT.

From June until late September we must keep up with a climate that is almost tropical. Instead of burdening ourselves with apparel altogether unsuitable, we should dress just as lightly and comfortably as possible. In spite of former experiences, many men do not seem to realize this, but go about complaining of the heat, in undershirts that are too thick, shirts that are too stiff, clothes that are too heavy, suspenders, high lace boots, etc.

There is no need of doing this as regards informal attire. We show two styles in our window, highly suitable for the hot months and gotten up as are our usual high class styles. They make the unfashionable man look fashionable. The largest assortment of select imported materials to choose from. Suitable furnishings of the highest quality and best style at a saving of 20 per cent.

Prisoner Jones Goes to Appear Before a Higher Judge.

DIED OF WOUNDS IN TORONTO.

The Evidence and the Verdict in the Case of the Dead Bank Burglar—Rice and Rutledge Stolid Over the News—These Two Will Be Charged With Murder To-Day.

Toronto, June 7.—The battle between officers and prisoners which followed the attempt of the "Chicago" bank burglars to escape from their guards on Tuesday night resulted in the death of another man yesterday. "Thomas Jones," the one member of the trio of burglars who could take no part in the fight, and the one man seriously wounded, passed away at the General Hospital, and last night a coroner's jury returned the following verdict:

"That at the City of Toronto, on the 6th of June, from shock and collapse, the result of gunshot injuries and of a severe struggle following their receipt, the deceased, Thomas Jones, came to his death. Further, we say and find that County Constable Walter Stewart shot the deceased in the execution of his duty, and that we commend him for the coolness and bravery which he exhibited in the attack made upon him and upon his comrade, the late Constable William Boyd. We recommend that the county authorities provide a suitable conveyance for transporting prisoners to and from the Jail."

There was a slight hitch in the proceedings over the empanelling of the jury. Coroner N. A. Powell wanted the jury to consist of six prisoners and six citizens, as the deceased was a prisoner at the time of his death. County Crown Attorney Dewart objected, and to settle the matter, Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright was communicated with. The latter agreed with Mr. Dewart, putting forth the argument that Jones, at the time of his death, although a prisoner, was not under sentence.

The jury were empanelled in the mortuary and sworn in. After viewing the remains of the prisoner, the jury adjourned to the theatre of the hospital, and the inquest commenced.

The Evidence.

Medical Superintendent O'Reilly of the General Hospital gave testimony regarding the admission and treatment of the deceased. The prisoner Jones arrived at the hospital at 1.10 p. m. on Wednesday afternoon. He told of the amputation of his arm and of the prisoner's death, which occurred yesterday morning at 8.07 o'clock. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning deceased showed symptoms of collapse, at which hour he became unconscious, remaining in that condition until his death. Deceased made no ante-mortem statement to witness or to any physicians or nurses in the hospital. On Wednesday night, in answer to a question made by witness, deceased said that his parents were Roman Catholics. Dr. O'Reilly called in a priest, who was in attendance when the prisoner died.

To Mr. Dewart, Dr. O'Reilly stated that from the time of the prisoner's collapse, death was imminent and it was impossible to take any ante-mortem statement from the deceased.

A detailed account of the wounds received by deceased was given by Dr. Richardson, the Jail surgeon. He had examined Jones and described his wounds. After dressing the injuries, Jones called his attention to a bruise he had sustained on the hip. The following morning he again visited the patient. He wrote to the sheriff, advising the removal of Jones to the hospital. He was present when the operation took place, and explained minutely the nature of the injury. In his opinion, deceased was a "hearty, strong young fellow." He was not surprised at shock following the injuries, and stated that death was due to prolonged shock and injuries.

Drs. Charles R. Sneath and Geo. A. Bingham concurred with Dr. Richardson. Dr. Harold Parsons made the post-mortem examination of the body. The body was in a well-nourished condition and well developed. Had the prisoner rallied from shock he might have recovered.

County Constable Walter Stewart repeated his story told at the inquest on the death of Constable Boyd. He identified the 35-calibre revolver which he used to shoot down Jones and also the bullet found in deceased's body, as belonging to his weapon. It was due to the fight made by Rutledge and Rice, he declared, that he shot Jones. Had Rice and Rutledge not used their revolvers he would not have fired. He swore that he did not pull out his revolver while in the cab, but waited until the prisoners had reached the road, before he clutched a weapon.

Provincial Detective Greer testified as to the records of Rice, Rutledge and Jones. He believed that from their bad careers that any of them would shoot.

In summing up the evidence Coroner Powell pointed out that it was not an accustomed thing in Toronto to use firearms in the way it is done out west. He thought Constable Stewart was within his rights to shoot all who interfered with him. The jury were out only about 15 minutes, when they brought in the verdict.

Did Not Mind It.

The two desperadoes, Rutledge and Rice, who are both confined in cell 1 of corridors 3 and 4, respectively, heard of the death of their pal, Jones, which occurred at the General Hospital yesterday morning from prisoners in the adjacent cells. Just before the noon hour, Governor Van Kant went to the prisoners to tell them of the death, but he found that they had already learned of it. Neither of the men showed by the slightest expression on their faces what their thoughts might have been, their actions in the matter being the same as have characterized them since the first day of the trial on the charge of breaking into the Standard Bank in Parkdale.

Meet Murder Charge To-Day.

Rutledge and Rice will be brought into the Police Court this morning and charged with the murder of Constable Boyd. The informations have been sworn out by Crown Attorney Curry. It is expected that the preliminary investigation into the charge of murder will be proceeded with immediately after the arraignment of the prisoners.

"Pass O'Brien."

"Pass" O'Brien, a woman known to the Chicago police, is visiting the city, and the local police have her under surveillance. She went to the hospital yesterday with Mrs. Chas. Rutledge, and applied for the body of Thomas Jones, saying she was his wife. She is a heavy set woman, about 35 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs about 200 pounds. In Chicago the woman is known as Kate Spellman, and she was constantly in attendance at the trials in that city. Rice and Rutledge always introduced Jones to their numerous admiring lady friends, but Jones did not reciprocate in that regard, and he seemed to be very fond of this one woman, who is evidently much in earnest in her application for the remains.

Vina Still in Jail.

Vina Seavey, alias White, alias Hudson, the lady who is in love with Rice, still remains in police custody, as no one has, so far, come forward to go her bail.

MAJOR MUNROE KILLED.

Well Known Figure in Toronto and a Personal Friend of Lord Roberts.

Toronto, June 7.—A very sad accident occurred last evening, shortly after 6 o'clock, when Major George G. G. Munroe was struck by a street car and fatally injured. Major Munroe was crossing Bloor street, near Balmuto street. He passed round one street car, and was struck by another he did not see. He soon after expired.

Major Munroe was 74 years old, born in the Orkney Islands. He was the son of Capt. Hector Munroe of the 2nd Queen's Regiment, and a brother officer of Sir Isaac Brock. He came to Canada when a young man, and was employed in the Bank of Upper Canada in Kingston. In 1858 he joined the Royal Canadian Rifles as an ensign, and afterwards went back to the Old Country, where he was appointed lieutenant of the 87th Irish Fusiliers. He then went to India, and was created captain of the 20th Regiment at Pashawin.

Major Munroe was well known in military circles throughout the Empire. He was a personal friend of Lord Roberts, and had charge of a squadron at the funeral of the Duke of Wellington. He saw service with the British legation in that country. In 1883 he returned to Canada.

Coroner Wilson will hold an inquest this evening.

BINDER TWINE PRICE.

The Ontario Government Fixes It at Eight Cents.

Toronto, June 7.—The Hon. Mr. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and the Inspector of Prisons have decided upon the price (8 cents per pound) by which farmers can be supplied with binder twine from the Ontario Central Prison, for the season of 1901. This year there is only one quality that will be supplied, and that the best, of which every ball and every ounce is guaranteed, and any farmer who purchases this twine and does not find it satisfactory can by returning it have the price paid for the twine refunded. This condition, however, is not likely to arise, for there is no question of the quality of the twine supplied the farmer—it is as good as the best twine that will be placed upon the market this year.

FARM EXODUS.

The Ottawa Free Press says:—"It will be a public calamity if, as alleged, the census returns lead to the conclusion that there is a continued exodus from the country to the cities and towns. But it is to be feared there is some ground for the suspicion that the statements made upon the subject are true. It has been more than once stated in the public press that the evil tendency to rush to the cities and the abandoment of the farm was lessening in volume. The last bulletin of the Ontario Bureau of Industries is, however, not encouraging in its reference to the subject. It states in its reference to Farm Labour, that the rush to the towns and cities continues, and it would appear as if urban attractions are drawing away a majority of the more ambitious and energetic young men and women from the farm. A considerable number of strong and active young men also leave agricultural pursuits for river driving and other lumbering operations just when the land is most in need of their services. The burden of all the correspondents of the Bureau seems to be that farm labour can scarcely be obtained, and as for domestic help, it appears to be out of question. It is a bad sign when a correspondent in one of the garden counties of Ontario has to report that farms may have to be abandoned unless labour can be obtained. The subject is one of the most vital national moment, and the Provincial government should give its consideration to it. The exodus must be the effect of a cause or causes. Those causes should be sought and counteracted and what is necessary to make country life more attractive provided.

This week Prince Edward Island enters upon a period of prohibition, and the announcement is made by the Premier of the Government which passed the law that an attempt will be made to enforce it. The Island Province has had experience of prohibition before. It had license, open sale without license, prohibition under the Scott Act, and then repealed the Scott Act and went back to license. Now they again try a period of "no revenue." Unless the future is very different from the past experience, this does not necessarily mean no liquor. Sometimes the difference between license and no license is said to be just the difference between drinking iced beverages out of a dew-covered glass with a celluloid straw at a marble counter, and drinking warm beer out of a black bottle behind a barn door, but both varieties are about equally intoxicating.—Montreal Star.

IMPERIAL GRATUITY.

War Office Consents to Canadians Being Paid at Once.

THE SCOUTS GAIN A VICTORY.

Kitchener's Braves Surprise and Attack Four Hundred of the Enemy and Put Them to Flight—Sir Blundell Maple Makes Serious Charges Against Officers Who Purchased Horses.

Ottawa, June 7.—A cablegram received at the Militia Department yesterday contained good news for those Canadians who served in South Africa. It was a message from Lord Strathcona, stating that the War Office had agreed to the Militia Department paying the Imperial war gratuity to the soldiers who came direct from South Africa, with the understanding that the department would be reimbursed for the money so expended.

The War Office simply required that the demand for repayment be accompanied by satisfactory proof that the gratuities had been paid. Those who will receive the gratuity from the Militia Department are the Infantry who came from South Africa in the steamship Idaho and the cavalry and artillery who returned in the Rosslyn Castle, numbering in all about 1,250.

The War Office itself will prepare the list of soldiers who came back from South Africa via England, the idea being to deduct from the gratuity advances which were made over and above the pay due while they were in England.

The Militia Department has the lists of those entitled to the war gratuity, who returned in the Idaho and Rosslyn Castle, and will ask for their discharge papers. The amount of gratuity due in each case will be inscribed upon the document and sent back to the owner, together with a check. Upon receipt of this the recipient will be required to forward an acknowledgment. The work of sending out the necessary papers and filling in checks will necessarily take a little time, but all those interested will be paid without any undue delay.

Beyer's Command Defeated.

Petroria, Wednesday, June 5.—Col. Wilson, with 240 of Kitchener's Scouts, has surprised and routed 400 Boers, belonging to Beyer's command, 34 miles west of Warm Baths. The Boers resisted stubbornly, but finally broke and fled; leaving 37 dead, 100 prisoners and all their wagons and supplies, including 8,000 cattle, in the hands of the British. The loss of the latter was three men killed and 15 wounded. Beyer's main command arrived on the scene soon after the engagement, but failed in an attempt to recapture the supplies. Beyer was thus left practically without any transport or supplies.

Sir Blundell Maple's Charges.

London, June 7.—After a long and somewhat embittered discussion of the policy of the War Office in buying horses for use in South Africa, the House of Commons last night, by a vote of 159 to 60, voted the sum of £15,779,000 for transports and remounts.

Sir Blundle Maple, Conservative, asserted that British officers who had been sent to Hungary and Austria had purchased broken down animals at extravagant prices, and divided with the sellers the price charged the British Government above the actual cost. He demanded the appointment of a Committee of Inquiry. Lord Stanley, Financial Secretary of the War Office, said an inquiry would be made into the matter.

It is understood that the charges made by Sir Blundle Maple are of a very serious character. It is asserted that in one case an officer netted £50,000 in the purchase of horses in Hungary.

WAR OFFICE REFORMS PROPOSED.

Mr. Dawkins' Committee Suggests Loosening Strings of Red Tape.

London, June 7.—Simplification and decentralization are the keynote of the report issued yesterday morning by the committee under the chairmanship of Clinton E. Dawkins (partner in J. S. Morgan) appointed to inquire into the War Office organization. The abolition is recommended of the present system of ruling the army by minute and irritating regulations, both military and financial. The committee considers the War Office ought to be relieved by the decentralization of a mass of routine work now absorbing the energies of the high officials and preventing proper attention to important military questions. Further decentralization should be secured by an enlargement of the powers and responsibilities of the officers commanding districts and, finally a permanent War Office Board should be established, which, under the authority of the Secretary of State, should control the business of the War Office as a whole, without detracting from the individual responsibilities of the Commander-in-Chief and heads of departments.

P., Selkirk, to again bear their standard in the Provincial campaign. Three names were placed before the convention, those of Col. A. T. Thompson, M. P., S. W. Winger and Mr. Holmes. Col. Thompson and Mr. Winger withdrew immediately, and Mr. Holmes was tendered the unanimous nomination of the convention by a standing vote. After the convention Hon. E. J. MR. TARTE AT MEAFORD.

The Minister of Public Works Inspected the Harbor.

Meaford, Ont., June 7.—The Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, paid his first visit to Meaford yesterday, accompanied by Hon. Senator Casgrain, Dr. Horsey, M. P., and the Government Engineer, Mr. Lefleur. They were accompanied by Mayor Hamill, J. G. Sing, P. L. S., Inspector of Public Works, now going on at Meaford harbor, and the council. Mr. Tarte made a thorough inspection of the work in the harbor, and seemed satisfied with the town work and prospects. Regarding the harbor he admired the pluck of the citizens in voting the amount ($60,000) for promoting interest in the railway and elevator and appreciated the efforts of our citizens in that direction. He seemed thoroughly satisfied with the capability of the harbor. He very much admired the up-to-date elevator erected by the Botsford, Jenks Co. of Port Huron, Mich., and assured the mayor that the department would exert themselves in pushing forward and expediting the work so that the elevator could be operated at an early date.

Arm Terribly Mangled.

Guelph, June 7.—A terrible accident happened on Wednesday to Mr. Elijah Sarles, an old man of about 65 years, who lives between Rockwood and Everton. He was chopping grain with the windmill, and by some means his arm was caught in the shaft. The flesh was torn from the arm and wound round the shaft from his wrist to his elbow and the bone of his hand broken.

Young Man Lost a Leg.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 6.—Yesterday about 3.30 a.m., Conductor Neil of the Michigan Central yard transfer noticed a man lying on the track near the Michigan Central station, Niagara Falls, Centre. One of the crew was put off to investigate, and found a man unconscious with his right leg horribly mangled above the knee, as though it had been run over by a passing train. After he had been taken to the station and doctors called, he was recognized as Robert Mackenzie, jr., of Chippewa. The doctors amputated the leg.

ANTICOSTI.

A St. John's Journalist Thinks the Island Too Isolated to Be a Danger Point for Canada.

P. T. McGrath, of The Evening Herald, St. John's, Nfld., discusses the feeling of apprehension that Menier may use his occupancy of Anticosti Island for overt purposes against the peace and security of the Dominion, and that it may eventually fall into the hands of France, and become a positive menace to British prestige at Canada's eastern gateway. He recalls the circumstance that in 1899 the warship Alert was despatched by Mr. Chamberlain to make a thorough examination of the island from a military and naval standpoint. After the return of the Alert from her mission the whole subject was gone into at a conference in St. John's, the result being embodied in a report to Mr. Chamberlain in which the principal findings were as follows:

1. For the winter months—January, February, March and April — Anticosti is cut off from all communication with the outer world by the ice floes which cover the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

2. During the eight months when Anticosti is safely approachable, by the navigability of the Gulf, the island suffers from the lack of safe harbors.

3. Anticosti has and can have no other system of cable and telegraphic communication save what it enjoys at present by connection with the Canadian wires in the Province of Quebec and their extension by a cable from the mainland at Gaspe to Ellis Bay.

4. To obtain unobstructed access to the island would be a task of extreme difficulty for a French fleet even in war time, unless the British navy had been previously swept from the seas.

5. The construction of forts, and the arming of them in particular, would be next to impossible at Anticosti without the British Government becoming aware of the fact.

6. Another difficulty, and one of prime importance, is that comprehended in the inability of Anticosti to provide an adequate supply of coal for the use of a naval squadron using it as a base. So far, no coal has been found on the island, and stocks for commercial use would have to be brought from Cape Breton.

BUSY ONTARIO MINES

Output and Value Will Exceed Those of Last Year.

FIGURES SHOWING EXPANSION.

Quarterly Report of the Ontario Bureau of Mines—Large Increases in Iron Ore and Pig Iron — Increases Also in Nickel and Copper—New Copper Companies and Large Operators.

The mining outlook in this Province appears to be decidedly more encouraging this year, the evidences pointing to a decided increase in the quantity and value of Ontario's metalliferous mines and furnaces over the year 1900.

In a quarterly report just issued by the Ontario Bureau of Mines some interesting figures are given, showing the expansion in mining.

The quantity of iron ore smelted into pig iron at the three furnaces of Ontario, all of which are in steady operation, was 48,663 tons, of which 21,083 tons were from Ontario mines, and 27,580 tons were imported ore. The proportion of native ore smelted during the quarter rose to 43 per cent. of the whole, as against 23 per cent. in 1900. In addition to the ore, 3,486 tons of scale and mill cinder were smelted.

The total quantity of nickel and copper ore mined during the period was 72,036 tons, being a proportional increase, as compared with the whole of 1900, of 31 per cent. The new nickel-copper and copper mining companies are beginning to raise considerable quantities of ore, but not much of it has yet been smelted. The quantity of gold ore ecushed was 10,174 tons.

The output of the metalliferous mines and works of Ontario for the three months ending March 31, 1901, as returned to the Bureau of Mines, was as follows:

	Quantity.	Value.
Iron ore, tons	36,503	$ 44,108
Pig iron, tons	28,694	488,698
Nickel, pounds	1,805,691	190,858
Copper, pounds	1,680,391	75,625
Arsenic, pounds	226,054	12,046
Gold, ounces	3,150	54,520
Silver, ounces	20,077	12,046
Total		$827,860

The total value of the above products for 1900 was $2,541,131, consequently the output for the first three months of the present year shows a proportional increase of about 30 per cent. The largest increases are in iron ore and pig iron; nickel and copper remain at about the same level of production; arsenic shows a decided increase, while gold and silver have fallen off.

SIR EDOUARD P. GIROUARD.

Canadian Officers Who Have Received Honors From the King.

Five Canadian soldiers have received share in the war honors—one, Lt.-Col. Girouard, being knighted, and four others—Colonel Otter, and Lt.-Cols. Drury, Evans and Steele—receiving the honor of admission to the military division of the third class of Companions of the Bath. The four latter will hereafter have the privilege of adding the coveted initials "C. B." after their name. Lieut.-Col. Steele also has the privilege, alone in Canada, of having had membership in the Victorian Order conferred upon him by King Edward.

The Order of the Bath is one of the oldest of British Orders. It was established in 1399, and consists of several divisions. There are Military Knights Grand Cross (G. C. B.), Civil Knights Grand Cross (G. C. B.), Military Knights Commanders second class (K. C. B.), Military Companions (C. B.). The motto of the order is "Trio juncta un uno (three joined in one), and its head is the Sovereign.

Lieut.-Col. Sir Edouard Percy Cranwill Girouard, D. S. O., R. E., D. A. G., who has been raised to the rank of a Knight of the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, for his good work in South Africa, was born in Montreal in May, 1867, and is a son of Justice Girouard, of the Supreme Court of Canada. He is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and joined the Royal Engineers in 1888. He first made his mark with the Dongola expeditionary force in 1896, when he was mentioned in despatches and rewarded by being created a Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, and a brevet as major, receiving the British medal and the Khedive's medal with two clasps. He was one of the most active engineer officers with the Nile expedition of 1897. He then became director of the Soudan railways, and at the close of the Egyptian Railway Board, from which he was called by Lord Roberts to command the railway transportation service in South Africa.

An English Superstition.

A cure for hydrophobia in many English villages is claimed to lie in the mad dog itself. Some years ago a man was bitten by a mad dog in a Warwickshire village, and the dog was buried. The man, notwithstanding the fact that the wound had been cauterized and treated by the local doctor, began to exhibit signs of hydrophobia.

The villagers at once dug up the carcass of the dog. Its liver was extracted and fried before a fire. The cooked fragment was then given to the unfortunate man, who ate it, firmly believing that in so doing he would be cured. Sad to relate, however, he died. And this happened not in Somaliland or Tibet, but in England.—London Standard.

ROBT. NEILL

Prompt Justice.

In the "History of Beverly," Mass., the following anecdote is related of a good justice of the peace in the old colonial times. On a cold night in winter a traveler called at his house for lodging. The ready hospitality of the justice was about being displayed, when the traveler unluckily uttered a word which his host considered profane.

Upon this he informed his guest that he was a magistrate, pointed out the nature of the offense and explained the necessity of its being expiated by sitting an hour in the stocks.

Remonstrance was unavailing, for custom at that time allowed the magistrate to convict and punish at once, and in this case he acted as accuser, witness, jury, judge and sheriff, all in one.

Cold as it was our worthy justice, aided by his son, conducted the traveler to the place of punishment, an open place near the meeting house where the stocks were placed. Here the traveler was confined in the usual manner, the benevolent executor of the law remaining with him to beguile the time of its tedium by edifying conversation.

At the expiration of the hour he was reconducted to the house and hospitably entertained till the next morning, when the traveler departed with, let us hope, a determination to consider his words more carefully before giving them utterance in the hearing of a conscientious magistrate.

The Professor's Wooing.

The experience known as "popping the question" is the bugbear of every man, however confident of his charms or fluent of speech. Many original ways of asking young women to marry them have been resorted to by bashful men, but perhaps the most brilliant suggestion came to a learned German professor, who, having remained a bachelor till middle life, at last tumbled head over ears in love with a little flaxen haired maiden many years his junior.

One day, after vainly endeavoring to screw his courage to the sticking point, the learned man came upon his Gretchen as she sat alone, darning a stocking, with a huge pile of the family hosiery on the table. The professor aimlessly talked on general topics, wondering how he could lead up to the subject nearest his heart, when all at once a happy thought came to him.

Leaning forward, he put his big hand on the little fist doubled up inside the stocking and said hesitatingly:

"You darn very beautifully, fraulein. Would you like to darn my stockings only?"

Fortunately the fraulein was not so simple as she appeared. She grasped the significance of the question immediately and lost no time in answering. "Yes."—Youth's Companion.

For Fast Driving.

Samuel Wynn, a young man was this morning at the Police Court sentenced to a fine of $10.15 or twenty days in jail on a charge of fast driving on the public streets. Wynn's case dates back to some time last fall, when he was doing up George street with two young ladies. A warrant was issued for him, but he left here and returned some time ago. Yesterday he was arrested on the streets by P. C. Stewart and was called to answer to the old charge. He expects to pay the fine.

LIVED IN PETERBOROUGH.

May Grace Said to be One of the Women Friends of the Aurora Robbers.

In referring to the recent sensational effort made by the Aurora bank robbers to escape from justice in Toronto, the World to-day says:

"At least four of the women friends of the Rutledge gang, who followed the prisoners around in Chicago, are now in this city. They are 'Puss' O'Brien, alias Spellman, Louise Rutledge, sister-in-law of the prisoner Rutledge, May Rutledge, sister of Louise, and Vina Henderson, alias Seavey, alias White. Mrs. Joseph Valentine was formerly May Grace, and her home is in Peterborough. She is comely, and her friends in Toronto say she has a most jolly disposition. Before she was married she was employed as a waitress in some of the leading hotels in Toronto, and she was very popular with patrons. She is a sister of Mrs. Charles Rutledge, Louise, and she is about 27 years of age. Mrs. Valentine is said to be the cause of the capture of the three robbers. Her husband, shortly after they were married, is said to have become enraged over attentions the prisoner Rice paid to her, and in a spirit of resentment informed the police of the wrong doings of the gang."

May Grace will be remembered as a pretty brunette waitress at the Oriental Hotel, from where she was married to Mr. Joseph Valentine, a cigar traveller, some two years ago. She afterwards visited Peterborough on several occasions, the last time being when she accompanied her husband to town to meet the returning members of the Toronto boys who went to South Africa. Mr. Valentine is at present engaged in the manufacture of cigars in Simcoe.

FAVOUR VICTORIA PARK.

Public Opinion Says the Band Should Play There.

His Worship Mayor Denne had an opportunity last evening of feeling the public pulse in the matter of the question relating to the desirability of using Central Park as the place in which the band shall give its open-air concerts during the summer.

Out of a whole car load of excursionists who were returning from the Lakes, only one gentleman was in favour of having the band play in Central Park. All others on board voted to have the concerts in Victoria Park, where the citizens can have an opportunity of sitting down and listening to the music in comfort, instead of having to stand, as would be the case if Central Park is chosen.

The Mayor stated that his only reason for being in favour of Central Park was in deference to the wishes of the Horticultural Society, which complained of the crowds trampling down the borders of the paths.

It was pointed out to His Worship that the matter of keeping the borders in shape passed out of the hands of the Society as soon as the contract was let each year to the successful tenderer for the care of the Park.

A PRESENTATION

Which Was Made to Mr. W. Bunton Last Evening.

One of the pleasant incidents associated with the Olympic Excursion yesterday, was the presentation to Mr. W. Bunton, the popular uptown G.T.R. ticket agent, of an exceedingly handsome leather suit-case, by a number of his railway friends to whom he has for the last few years forwarded invitations to attend the outing.

There are a half dozen of these genial, jolly railroaders whose presence always adds mirth galore to the day's sport and that they appreciate the fun they have was shown by the gift which they made to Mr. Bunton to whom they were indebted for their invitations.

The presentation took place immediately after the return of the special train and was suitably acknowledged by Mr. Bunton.

THE OLYMPIC EXCURSION.

The Day Was a Grand One to Spend on the Lake.

Only a Few Light Showers Fell to Mar the Pleasure of the Party.

The ranks of Peterborough's professional and business men were considerably depleted in town yesterday, it being the occasion of the Olympic Club's annual outing.

Three carloads of jolly excursionists left the Grand Trunk station shortly after eight o'clock, and were conveyed to Lakefield, accompanied by the 57th Regiment Band. After Mine Host John Craig had been serenaded, the party steamed away on the "Majestic," in care of Captain Scollard, Frank, Fred and Pat Young, to whose kindly courtesy during the day due tribute must be given.

At Young's Point there was half an hour's stop, and the band played a number of selections before the steamer again resumed her trip to Stony Lake.

When McCracken's Landing was finally sighted a pretty view greeted the excursionists as the Morgan House had been most profusely decorated in honour of the day, and presented a very pretty appearance. Flags fluttered from every conceivable spot and long strings of pennants were draped from tree to tree. Every possible arrangement for the convenience of the visitors had been made, and too much credit cannot be given Mr. Fred Morgan for the manner in which he looked after the welfare of his guests. He made an ideal host during the day. This is the first time that the Olympics have made McCracken's Landing the objective point of their annual outing, but it is safe to guess that they will make many more visits there. The view from there is one of the prettiest on the lake, and the abundance of shade trees make it a most desirable spot for summer visitors. Added to this the modern conveniences of the hotel, with its wide and spacious piazzas, complete the attraction as a tourist's resort.

The meals during the day were served beneath the trees by Caterer McQuay, of town, who made a most distinct success of his first venture of this nature amongst the Olympics. The cold meats and salads were all that could be desired, and much satisfaction was expressed at the manner in which both dinner and tea were served, in spite of the fact that just before the former meal a thunder shower considerably dampened things in general. After tea the band gave one of their delightful concerts, and the music was thoroughly enjoyed.

In the afternoon a trip to Mount Julian and the head of the Lake proved most enjoyable.

The usual programme of sports was run off, and the names of the winners will be announced in a future issue.

The trip home was one of the greatest pleasures of the day, not a ripple on the water stirring the surface of the lake. On the run down from Lakefield per special train, a most enthusiastic vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. E. Lech for the day's pleasure which had resulted from his skilful management of the details in connection with the trip.

The family group photos taken by Mr. G. E. Whiten are of the finest quality. Each person in a group comes out clear and natural.

Dr. McNulty was called in attendance and set the injured limb. The patient is suffering considerable pain as a result of the most unfortunate mishap.

GEN. O'GRADY-HALEY COMING.

The General Will Inspect the 57th Regiment in the Fall.

Lt.-Col. Edwards is in receipt of an answer from General O'Grady-Haley to a request that the 57th Regt. be inspected by him about the 2nd of July. The General expresses regret at being unable to be in Peterborough at the time requested on account of the work in the camps. He states, however, that he will be pleased to personally inspect the Regiment at a date later on in the fall, together with a number of other troops which will be massed at some central point at the time that His Higness the Duke of York passes through Canada.

It is understood that the Regiment will take its annual outing at this time also.

GIRLS TOOK A BATH.

But Somewhat Against Their Will—Brakesmen to the Rescue.

An accident occurred on the Otonabee river just at the C.P.R. bridge, this morning, which, while not attended with any serious results, gave an opportunity of displaying the gallantry of two burly-looking C. P. R. brakesmen. Two young ladies were passing under the bridge in a canoe and in some unexpected manner their craft upset, participating the occupants of the same into the water. Their need for assistance was quickly noticed by the two train hands, who just as readily plunged into the water and brought the young ladies safely to shore. Beyond a good drenching the girls were none the worse of their experience and appeared to enjoy their dip very much.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR AT OMEMEE

The Concert Given was Greatly Enjoyed.

Kind Words for Mr. Crane and the Members of His Excellent Choir.

The Omemee Mirror speaks as follows of the concert recently given by St. Paul's Church choir in the Presbyterian church of that village:

The clerk of the weather must look favourably upon Presbyterianism owing to the fact that the first really fine weather for several weeks was the occasion of the annual tea in connection with Omemee Presbyterian Church. The ladies had been busily engaged during the afternoon in arranging the basement for the accommodation of a goodly number and their expectations were more than realised. From six o'clock until eight in the evening, they were kept on the alert serving not only the members of their own congregation but many of the other denominations in town and from outside points. After the wants of the inner man had been satisfied, an adjournment was made to Bradburn Hall, where a good sized audience had assembled to enjoy the musical programme to be presented by the members of the choir of St. Paul's church, Peterborough. This organization, under the excellent and indefatigable leadership of Mr. Crane, was received with applause, many having held in remembrance their visit of last year. Rev. W. M. Kannawin B. D., introduced the choir and in a few chosen words announced the programme in detail owing to the fact that it had reached him too late for publication.

The opening number was then given by the full choir, in the form of a chorus entitled "Hail Smiling Morn." From the outset, one saw that Mr. Crane enjoys the confidence of every individual member, and the blending of the voices was excellent.

Miss Mabel Rowan, a favourite in local musical circles, sustained her reputation as a pianist by the skilful execution of a difficult piece of composition. Lovers of the "Emerald Isle" were especially interested in a comic reading entitled "The Irish Schoolmaster," ably delivered by Mr. C. Brown, of Peterborough. This was followed by the rendition of a selected quartette "Juanita" from Messrs. E. and J. Dawson, Mein and Crane. So enthusiastic did the audience become that these four gentlemen were obliged to respond to an encore and did so most gracefully by means of a comic selection.

A Toronto vocalist was introduced in the person of Miss Bertram, who rendered a "Spring Song" most pleasingly. Her sweet, bird-like notes so delighted all present that a hearty recall was given.

The complete choir again appeared and favoured the audience with a chorus, "Last Night." The interest of the listeners steadily increased with each new number by the visitors from St. Paul's.

A spice of variety was lent by the next item on the programme—Scottish dancing by two young "Heelan' Lassies," Misses Crane and Robertson. Very skilfully and gracefully did their feet move, and the audience refused to be satisfied till they again appeared.

A tenor solo, "The New Kingdom," was excellently rendered by Mr. Gordon Wright, a member of the Presbyterian choir in Omemee. His voice was heard to great advantage, and he received a very enthusiastic encore.

The words of Longfellow's beautiful poem, "Excelsior," were sung as a duet by Messrs. Crane and Dawson, in such a way as to enhance the already fine thoughts therein contained.

Miss Bertram again favoured the listeners with a delightful solo, "Beyond the Gates," which enabled her to display great richness of tone. A very amusing solo from Mr. Scott was enjoyed by the audience. He impersonated admirably "Farmer Magee," who was noted for his jolity.

The re-appearance of Mr. C. N. Brown was a signal for applause. On this occasion he interpreted ably "An Irish Letter." A bass solo of unusual merit was given by Mr. Milne, whose voice is possessed of great depth and wonderful softness. An enthusiastic recall was the will of the audience.

Very feelingly did Messrs. E. and J. Dawson, Mein and Crane, sing as a quartette, "In the Shadows of the Pines." They were obliged to favour their hearers once more, and kindly did so.

A final chorus, "Scots Wha Hae," by all the members, completed their share of the programme, and appealed to Scottish hearts. The audience joined in "God Save the King," and an event that had been looked forward to with expectancy was over, but pleasant memories of it will linger.

Omemee will always be glad to welcome our Peterborough friends, and the congregation of the Presbyterian church here is to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment."

We have an exceedingly complete range of infants' roller bands and infants' and children's underwear. Our little white merino vests at 15c are just the right thing for present use. FISH FOR STONY LAKE WATERS.

About 770 Were Deposited There Yesterday.

Brought From Lake Erie in Large Tanks—An important Event—The Ceremony.

Yesterday a large tank of black bass was deposited in Stony Lake by officials of the Ontario Department of Fisheries. The Ontario Government is doing a great deal to bring the waters of the Province to the highest point of utility for the propagation and supply of fish, especially such as are known as game fish. Apart from measures taken of a preservative character by means of properly devised laws on the subject, effective regulations, etc., there has been a systematic re-stocking of waters that may have been depleted by over fishing, or the placing of fish from other waters in lakes where there may be a reasonable quantity of fish, in order that new blood may be infused, and the quality possibly improved by cross-breeding. In compliance with this policy tens of thousands of healthy parent bass have been netted in certain waters and transferred to others. Arrangements were made by which the Grand Trunk Railway Company fitted up an express car with properly constructed tanks with the necessary provision made for aeration to supply the necessary oxygen and for maintaining a proper temperature. This is decidedly an improvement in the right direction on the part of the Government. A few thousand devoted to re-stocking fished-out waters, improving the stock in other waters, or introducing new varieties, is money well spent. And equally commendable is the Government action for the investigation by eminent biologists of the fish life of our more important waters. It is very desirable to know what fish our lakes and rivers contain. Our local fisheries have their value also. The fine fishing of the waters of the Kawartha Lakes and other districts, attract large numbers of American sportsmen, and the presence of these tourists means profitable employment to settlers, or their sons. And, besides, the fish supply is very important to the settlers, not only for the pleasure of the sport of angling, but for the valuable food provided.

When the fish supplied by the Ontario Department of Fisheries were being distributed, Hon. Mr. Stratton arranged for a considerable number to be deposited in Stony Lake waters.

The fish arrived in Peterborough yesterday morning in a car especially adapted for the purpose of conveying fish. It contained ten very large tanks, with about eighty fish averaging between two and five pounds in weight in each tank. The car was viewed by many at the station yesterday morning before it was taken to Lakefield.

At Lakefield, the fish were transferred into smaller tanks and taken on board the steamer Empress. The party which superintended the depositing of the fish was composed of Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, W. A. Sanderson, Benj. Ebertts, W. J. Yelland and Mayor Denne, and W. W. Ellis, of the Fisheries Department, J. W. Moore, of Lakefield, and the Inspector of Fisheries for this district.

A considerable quantity of ice was taken on board at Lakefield and at Young's Point, for the purpose of keeping the water in the tanks at a proper temperature. There were actually deposited in the water 770 fish, a few having died in the transportation. The deposits were made, of course, in shallow water so that the fish could be in suitable places for spawning. Henderson's Narrows on the way up, the lower part of Clear Lake and Upper Clear Lake were amongst the places selected as well as all over Stony Lake, principally at the Narrows. In the waters where the fish have been deposited, the people will be allowed to catch only six bass and two lunge, instead of twelve bass and four lunge, as heretofore, as these fish, it must be distinctly understood, are for spawning purposes.

Several gentlemen from Lakefield rendered very valuable service in the matter yesterday as well as Mr. Fred Addison, of Toronto. Captain Reynolds and the crew of the Empress were particularly obliging.

The G.T.R. fish car will take a load to Lake Simcoe to-morrow.

A new book of sacred songs entitled "Battle Songs of the Cross," by John M. Whyte, the well-known singing evangelist, has just been published by William Briggs, of Toronto. The collection contains all of Mr. Whyte's popular songs previously published, including such favourites as "Can a Boy Forget," "Will He Not Come Back," "De Mans ob de Sheepfol'," etc., and, in addition, fully one hundred entirely new songs. SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY.

A Report of the Union S. S. Convention of the Apsley and Clydesdale District

The annual convention of the Apsley and Clydesdale District Sunday Schools was held in Grace Church, in the Apsley Circuit, on the 24th of May, and although poorly attended on account of the rain was a very interesting and instructive meeting, as will be seen by the programme.

At the afternoon session, the president, Mr. F. J. Wilson, occupied the chair. After singing by the audience Rev. Mr. Berry read the lesson from a portion of the 119th Psalm. Prayer was then offered by Mr. Howson. A convention paper, by Mrs. F. Hawker, was read by Rev. Mr. Shearer. Reports from the different Sunday Schools in the district were then presented. After a solo by Miss Julia Eastland, a model Sunday school lesson was taught by Rev. Mr. Berry. A committee was then appointed to choose the officers for the ensuing year.

The evening session was opened by Rev. Mr. Shearer. A paper, "The Material of the Sunday School," was read by Miss Payne, after which Miss Julia Eastland sang a solo. A paper on "The Instruments of the Sunday School," was read by Mr. Howson, and the methods adopted by different superintendents discussed. Rev. Mr. Berry conducted an interesting question drawer, and after singing the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Shearer.

The following officers were appointed by the committee:

Pres.—Miss Hattie Eastland.
1st. Vice-Pres.—Mr. F. J. Wilson.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Chas. Lauder.
Treas.—Mr. T. Mellmoyle.
Cor.-Sec.—Mrs. F. Bullied.
Rec.-Sec.—Mr. D. Campbell.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Apsley; the time to be appointed later.

Much regret was felt at the absence of the delegates from Clydesdale and other parts of the district on account of the wet weather. We hope that sometime in the future the convention will be held in Eden church, South Burleigh.

WHERE LOVE IS LORD.

I take the glory from the day;
I take the terror from the sea;
I take the charm of life away
For those who walk with me.

I blot the printing in the book;
Before their eyes one word shall flame,
And in their eyes the lips of men
Shall seem to form one name.

Yet will they follow me, although
Earth shakes beneath, heav'n flames above!
Careless of life or death they walk
Who are the slaves of love.

How a Yankee Did It

BY M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I was in the marine hospital at Callao, Peru, when war was declared on Chile and was just able to limp around when two of the Peruvian gunboats were chased into port and the Chilean man-of-war Vengeance took up her station to blockade. There was a third gunboat in the harbor, and there was a great deal of boasting as to what the trio would do when they got ready to pitch in. The very least they would do would be to sink the Chilean within a quarter of an hour. The people foamed and raged, and the navy waited. Those gunboats had no business to go out against that modern ironclad, armed with the latest and most powerful guns, and their officers knew it, but there came a day when public opinion drove them out. The fight lasted 20 minutes. One gunboat got back to sink in the harbor, while the other two went down outside. The people were fairly wild over the defeat, and women as well as men howled for vengeance.

The day after the fight, while I still had my quarters in the hospital, one of the lady visitors happened to speak to me and discovered that I was an American. She began talking of the agit, and I never saw a madder woman. She was grieved, humiliated and angered over the defeat of her countrymen, and when I sided with her it brought out a startling proposition. She was the widow of Calinta, of vast wealth and much social and political influence and believed that the defeat of the Peruvians was caused by the timidity of the admiral. She asked me if it was not possible that the Vengeance could be blown up, and when I replied that it was possible what did she do but offer me every chance to bring about such a calamity. That meant the use of a steam launch which she owned, with all the money necessary to fit her as a torpedo boat, and $50,000 cash in hand if I succeeded. The old girl fairly took my breath away as she piled up the business, and, having once got the idea, she would not let go of it. She insisted that I get into her carriage and drive home with her, and then she sent for half a dozen of her most influential friends and demanded that I lay before them a plan and at once begin work. It was a queer position for the mate of a Yankee craft who knew nothing of naval affairs and had never been aboard of a man-of-war and had no claim to ingenuity. I knew absolutely nothing of torpedoes, and instead of a plan I had only an idea. That was good enough for them, however. They had heard of the cute Yankee and believed that he could accomplish anything he set about. I had no more idea than the man in the moon of going into anything seriously, and yet two days later found me "boosting the job." I had offered my services to fit out a launch and run her out and blow up the man-of-war, and the president of Peru wasn't in it with me for popularity. It took all the police force of Callao to keep the enthusiastic population off my feet and save my arms from being paralyzed.

In my teetotal ignorance I was wise enough to assume to know it all, and that passed for the brightest sort of acumen and the most solid nerve. I soon discovered, however, that it wasn't necessary for me to know much and that previous experience was not demanded. The launch was a fair sized one, using naphtha and therefore smokeless, and but few changes were necessary to fit her with a torpedo. There were naval officers at hand who knew all about torpedoes, spars and electricity, and, seeming to work under my direction, we had the launch fitted within a week. A spar was solidly affixed to her bows and projected a distance of 30 feet. To the end of this was attached an iron torpedo containing 120 pounds of giant powder, which was to be exploded by electricity at the moment of contact with the man-of-war. I had counted on a crew of three, one to fire and one to steer, while I would con the launch into position and press the button. When we were all ready, not a man could be found in Callao to go with me. As high as $10,000 was offered, but there was no moving a patriot. It was considered a sure thing that the launch would be blown to pieces along with the blockader, and, although all loved their country, they didn't want any sure thing in theirs.

In this emergency and thinking to put the men to shame Donna Calinta came forward and offered to go along, and she was very much in earnest too. The scheme didn't work. The men still hung off, and under no consideration would I have taken a woman along. The affair was at a dead standstill when I decided to go alone. I had the electric wires run aft to the wheel, and one night at 10 o'clock I left the wharf for a five mile run through the darkness and against a choppy sea by compass. There had been so much talk about the enterprise that I expected to find the Vengeance on the alert and to be discovered and sunk before I had come within a cable's length of her, but I was going out because I had promised to and because I wanted to show the Peruvians how we did things on this side of the pond.

Steam had been generated to the last notch and the furnace doors locked. Instead of a light in the binnacle I had two fireflies imprisoned on the compass, and I sat at the tiller and held a straight course for the spot where the Vengeance had been seen as darkness closed in. You need not ask if I was afraid. I was. My teeth chattered, and my limbs trembled, and in my desperation I wished it was all over. When I had run out four miles, as I judged, I slowed down to half speed. Another half mile, and I was moving through the water like a log. There was something of a fog outside, and I was within 300 feet of the steamer when I caught the glare of her lights. I was making for her broadside on, but I changed the course and quietly approached her stern. I made the last hundred feet almost by inches. Every second I expected to be hailed and fired on, but to my amazement no lookout seemed to be kept. I was that wrought up that I wanted to scream out for relief, and my heart pounded at my ribs until I winced under the blows. I wondered at my courage in going ahead, but go ahead I did until I finally felt rather than heard the end of the torpedo spar strike against the iron side of the ship. I was fairly under her counter when I pressed the button. There was a mighty roar, followed by a flash, a crash and a hundred screams, and then my life was blotted out.

It was morning when I lived again, and I was in the cabin of an English merchant vessel. I had been picked off a piece of cabin wreckage at daylight, wreckage from the cabin of the Vengeance. There was no other man afloat, and how I had reached that wreckage and clung to it through the night Providence alone can tell. I was not greatly injured, but I was carried to London, and it was only after reaching that port that I learned I had sent the man-of-war to the bottom and earned my reward from Donna Calinta. When I could return to Peru for it, the war was over, the Chileans had conquered, and the donna no longer had a dollar she could call her own. I had simply shown her weakkneed countrymen how a Yankee could do it.

Cash of the Ancients.

The little brass cash, the Chinese coins, are the lineal descendants, in unbroken order, of the bronze ax of remote Celestial ancestors. From the regular hatchet to the modern coin one can trace a distinct, if somewhat broken, succession, so that it is impossible to say where the one leaves off and the other begins. Here is how this curious pedigree first worked itself out: In early times, before coin was invented, barter was usually conducted between producer and consumer with metal implements, as it still is in central Africa at the present day.

At first the Chinese in that unsophisticated age were content to use real hatchets for this commercial purpose, but after a time, with the profound mercantile instinct of their race, it occurred to some of them that when a man wanted half a hatchet's worth of goods he might as well pay for them with half a hatchet. Still, as it would be a pity to spoil a good working implement by cutting it in two, the worthy Ah Sin ingeniously compromised the matter by making thin hatchets of the usual size and shape, but far too slender for practical usage. By so doing he invented coin, and, what is more, he invented it far earlier than the claimants to that proud distinction, the Lydians, whose electrum staters were first struck in the seventh century B. C.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Scottish Echo.

The late Sims Reeves was fond of telling a story that related to an early engagement in Glasgow which was arranged through a metropolitan agency. One of the items on the programme was "Hail, Smiling Morn!" and of course Mr. Reeves was put down for the solo portion. The chorus consists of an echo, and the London agent assured the soloist that a satisfactory choir had been engaged.

The whole matter was settled hurriedly. Mr. Reeves was at first disinclined to accept, as other engagements prevented him from reaching Glasgow in time for a rehearsal with the choir.

"Don't worry about that, my dear sir," said the agent. "You will find the choir perfect."

The concert was a success, and in due course "Hail, Smiling Morn!" was called for. When the soloist came to the lines requiring an echo, he delivered them in his best manner—"At whose bright presence darkness flies away." Imagine his horror when the echo repeated his words in the broadest Scotch:

"Floos awa', floos awa'!"

Yet Sims Reeves averred that not a person in the audience smiled or appeared to see anything incongruous. When he talked over the matter with a bailie after the concert, the good man assured him:

"That's nothing at all. You were a little wrong in your pronunciation, and the echo was correct. You see, it was a Scottish echo."

She Gave Herself Away.

Judge Davis was one day in his private office when he was president of the senate and acting vice president. A woman came into the room to see him. He turned and said, "Well, madam, what can I do for you?" She was neatly dressed in black, with an air of extreme poverty. She told a wretched tale of sorrow and suffering, winding up with the climax that she and her little family were actually starving and had not tasted food for two days. The judge seemed deeply moved. He excused himself for not attending to the case for the moment, as the senate was nearly ready to open.

He looked at his watch with an air of vexation, as if it were not going, and said, "Can any one tell me what time it is?" His visitor pulled out a gold watch and told him the time. The judge said, "Can it be true that your children have been without food for two days when you have a gold watch in the house?" The woman saw the point of the judge's question and called out, "You are a hateful old thing!" and flounced out of the room. She was a professional dead beat.

A Pair of Lovers.

Two American men in Venice spent their first evening loafing round the lagoons in a gondola, it being moonlight, of course, and all the rest of the sentimental, charming things it is always in Venice.

"Here comes a gondola," stage whispered one American to the other, "that probably contains a pair of lovers. See how absorbed those two dim figures evidently are in each other. Gondolier, other gondolas, the witchery of the moonlight and the place—to all of it they are oblivious. Oh, what a spot for sentiment! The air is full of it!"

And as the two gondolas glided past each other the Americans heard the unmistakable accents of a fellow countryman, "I'll see your three and raise you five.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of other organs when it cures the diseases of the stomach, on which the several organs depend for nutrition and vitality.

"I would say in regard to your medicines that I have been greatly benefited by them," writes Mr. J. S. Hall, of Lenado, Van Buren Co., Ia. "I was at one time as I thought almost at death's door. I was confined to my house and part of the time to my bed. I had taken gallons of medicine, but it only fed the disease; but I must say that 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me, and to-day I am stouter than I have been for twenty years. I am now forty-three years old. Have taken in all twenty-nine bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' besides two or three dozen vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets, but now I take no medicine."

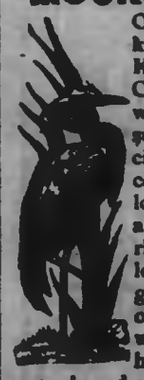
THREE BOTTLES ...CURED HIM...



One of the best known residents of Kingston, Ont., is Charles H. Clarke, who for nine years in succession held the civic street-watering contract. While following his daily vocation he contracted rheumatism in his legs and feet, through getting them wet so often. For three weeks he was so bad he could barely walk around, and could not put on his boots. He had almost lost the use of his legs, and was unable to obtain any relief from the terrible pains until he gave Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. It worked like magic; and before he had taken the contents of three bottles he was as well as he ever was at any period of his life. He took the contents of only three bottles, and is completely cured, with no sign of a return of the old complaint. He says Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is a marvellous medicine for the cure of rheumatism.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 25 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE CHRIST IN ART.

SCARCITY OF EARLY PAINTINGS OF THE RESURRECTION.

The Ancient Masters Avoided the Theme and Modern Painters Were More Successful in Treatment of the Scene at the Tomb.

It was many years before painters took brush in hand to paint the resurrection. The horrors of that time, told by eyewitnesses and descending mouth to mouth through the generations, were enough to falter the brush.

The early painters were intensely religious and firm believers not only in the reality of the scenes they painted, but also in the holiness of them. The sorrows of the Christ saddened them; his joys were the only themes they could paint. They were depressed by the legends—for much came down in purely legendary form until the Bible was printed on printing presses and became general—and with true artistic instinct they avoided that which was disagreeable and sought that which was lovely. And that is the reason why so few early paintings of the resurrection have come down to us, while the paintings of the beautiful Madonna and of the Christ child are the most numerous in art.

Surreto and Rossini are the first painters who ventured to touch the stirring scene. Even they robbed it of its tragedy and took it along to the spot where the risen Lord is seen ascending in wonderful robes to heaven. Neither sent forth a great painting.

Surreto was unfortunate in his face of the Christ and his work perished in a fire in Rome, when only the most valuable paintings could be removed and that of poor Surreto was left to burn.

Rossini did still poorer. One of the famous family that afterward left its mark upon art of another nature, he painted "The Resurrection" in too matter of fact a way. Nothing was left to the imagination, and the angel at the sepulcher looked sadly out of place in the midst of the devastation of the disorderly tomb which Rossini had painted there.

Their work brought forth lots of criticism and stirred on other painters to try. A series of pictures of the resurrection followed, and for a few years it looked as though there would be nothing else in sacred art; even the Madonna was neglected for the great theme of Christ risen from the dead.

As interpreted by the artists of that day the scene was one that gave the widest latitude for dreamy thought. The tomb, a picturesque thing in architecture of that day, gave the background; then came the graceful women to it; then the marvelous sky work, in which the figure of the Lord was visible.

In the hundreds of pictures that were turned out previous to the fifteenth century only a few remain, but after that the painters were more fortunate and gave us works of art that are enduring. Cracked, scarred, often defaced and having gone through vandalism and vicissitudes, they are still marvelously beautiful, in a beauty not so much the beauty of form as beauty of conception.

The old masters understood that which we call composition. They were not so anxious to get strong effects; they wanted a whole, a picture, a something that would tell a story. Take any of the old paintings and study it and you will observe this peculiarity. An entire story is told in the picture and not one person or part is made more prominent than the rest; it is as a whole that the old masters must be viewed.

With the modern masters it is all different. They sought beauty. Reading the Scriptures they formed a conception, and from that they painted. Only beauty appealed to them, and they placed upon the canvas only beauty.

We have today nothing lovelier in art than the pictures of the resurrection, as turned out by the hands of the modern painters, and, looking at them, one begins to worship, even one who has never worshiped before. The old masters sought this result; the modern found it.

The greatest difficulty in painting the resurrection lay in the work of painting the face of Christ. Each had his conception of the ideal head, but few agreed in this ideal. You see heads of Christ in the earlier days with long, curling beard and features too strong for beauty. Then you see him in another type, blond, softly lovely, almost like a woman. To paint the face of the Saviour was the most difficult task the masters, ancient and modern, ever set for themselves. The most successful compromised matters by indicating a face strong in a manly beauty and not too pronounced in type. That interpretation succeeded, and faces of Christ, those that have survived, now generally show that style.

The faces of the women were easier to paint, being mortal. The face of a woman was enough, provided she were beautiful, and so nearly all were successful in their women's faces.

The strangest thing to be noticed in the pictures of the resurrection is the light—that curious light which bathes the scene. All have agreed that the resurrection took place at an hour when the light was uncertain and changing and that from the depths of the tomb came a wonderful ray that is not equaled by the discoveries of science.

The pictures of the resurrection as counted today are not so numerous, but in interest they equal those provoked by any other theme, secular or divine.

DEPTH OF A RAINFALL.

The Method by Which It Is Accurately Measured.

Probably one question that has puzzled the lay mind is how the depth of a rainfall may be accurately determined. The way it is done is this:

A funnel whose larger aperture represents a surface of 100 square inches is placed in a position where it may catch the direct fall of the rain, with the rim of the funnel extending perhaps an inch or more beyond the platform to which it may be fixed. This is for the purpose of preventing any rain from being washed into the funnel and increasing the true fall. From this funnel the water runs to a tube which bears an exact and carefully determined ratio to the area of the funnel's mouth, say one-tenth.

If, therefore, the tube shows water to the depth of an inch, it is clear that one-tenth of an inch of rain has fallen. The tube is provided with a carefully graduated scale so that the fall may be readily seen. Three inches of rain would show a depth of 30 inches in a tube one-tenth the size of the receiving aperture, and the decimals of an inch could be quickly noted by observing the scale.

If placed on the roof of a building, the apparatus should be kept away from the edges to prevent any peculiar slant of the wind carrying into the funnel a larger proportion of rain than would fall into it under normal conditions. The larger the aperture of the receiving funnel is made the more accurate will be the results obtained.

A curious fact that has been noted in connection with rainfalls is that gauges placed on roofs usually gather less water than those placed on the ground. This is accounted for on the theory that the rain in falling absorbs some of the moisture of the air, and the greater distance it falls the larger will be the bulk of the individual drops.

THE PLUMBERS OF CANADA INVITED.

Bridgewater, N.S., June 5, (Special). The case of John S. Morgan, plumber and tinsmith of this town, should be put prominently before every union and non-union man in Canada. In a matter like this there should be no distinction, the benefit belongs to all.

John S. Morgan for eight years was hampered in his work by backache. Stooping continually at work is the cause of a great deal of backache, though not in the way most people imagine. Mr. Morgan's letter explains the truth of the matter when he says Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his backache. It was really Kidney ache that troubled Mr. Morgan.

Backache is the commonest symptom of Kidney Disease. Kidney Disease is the commonest of human ailments, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one infallible cure for all Kidney Diseases. Read what Mr. Morgan says about them himself.

"I have been subject to lame back for eight years. The different remedies I tried were no good. I got so that I was crippled up entirely and couldn't do a tap of work. Another thing was a frequent desire to urinate altogether unnatural.

"About a year ago I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I had run down in weight to about 140 pounds. During the time I was using Dodd's Kidney Pills I gained 23 pounds. My back got better and better as I continued taking the pills until to-day I am as free from backache as ever I was in my life. This after eight years of it means an awful lot to me. I realize the danger I was in and know what I owe to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who has backache or any other Kidney complaint."

Indians Restless.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

To Move or Not to Move.

To move or not to move?
That is the proposition
Which I am up against.
To move and hunt a house?
To tramp the pave with sugar eyes
Peel'd keen for each "To Let,"
To pore with aching head
The columns of "For Rent,"
And when the house is found,
To move!
To tear asunder carpets and
To put them down straightway;
To struggle with the stovepipe till
The fittest shall survive?
To bow the servile hinges of
My knees
To her who rules this domicile—
The boss
To move or stay?
To stay—and pay the rent!
"The rent! The rent!"
Alas, that sordid cry
Doth haunt my soul!
Between two fires am I,
And from this knotty problem may
The gods deliver me!

The Deacon's Hope and Pride.

"Papa," remarked the boy thoughtfully, "the plate the minister holds when the collection is taken up in church is a gold plate, isn't it?"

The deacon absentmindedly nodded his head.

"And the plate they give you to pass is nothing but wood?"

Again the deacon nodded.

"I guess they must know you, don't they?" asked the boy.

Here there was an interesting and exciting diversion, for it is not well to have a boy's bump of humor developed too rapidly.

Needs Must.

Mrs. Upton—I saw Mr. Newton bowing with the most courtly grace to a very commonplace woman. He's a gentleman of the old school, isn't he?

Mr. Upton—No; a gentleman of the new school.

"New school?"

"Yes. He lives in the suburbs and that was his cook."

Strawberry Shortcake.

The shortcake, the shortcake,
The shortcake came to town,
With its lower layer soggy
And the top a crispy brown,
And the boarders cease awhile
To be fretful, and they smile
With hope at one another and prepare to gulp it down.

The shortcake, the shortcake,
It's here again, and, oh,
The boarder lifts the cover
Of his piece and looks below
To discover with despair
The old, old conditions there—
It's always short of berries, and it's always long on dough.

The Usual Start.

Mrs. Homewood—Does your husband intend to make garden this spring?

Mrs. Beechwood—He thinks he does. He's attending to the literary preliminaries now, but he may get no further.

"What are the literary preliminaries of garden making?"

"Studying the seed catalogues."

When Myrtle Cooks.

When Myrtle cooks, she looks so sweet
That, sitting in the window seat,
I like to gaze upon her while
She comes and goes in merry style
On tripping, dancing, dainty feet.

The maid is gone; it is a treat
To see my darling pound the meat
As if 'twere something wicked, vile,
When Myrtle cooks.

Her arms are round, her waist is neat,
Her cheeks are reddened by the heat,
But satan and his imps must smile
To see the stuff she likes to pile
Before me that 'twere death to eat,
When Myrtle cooks.

"Enough" Never Sufficient.

Aunt Ellen—So you like to go to your grandmother's to dinner, eh?

Tommy—You bet!

Tommy—No. It's 'cause I'm sure I'll get too much.

An Old Story.

"In the spring a young man's fanc"—
What's the use? You know the rest.
How the throbbing heart doth loosen
All the buttons on his vest!

How the blissful, balmy breezes
Breed delusion in his brain,
And he figures, figures, figures,
Till he nearly goes insane!

For he's straining mathematics
In the hope that when he's done
He'll have stretched his slim per annum
To support a double one.

An Apt Pupil.

"My boy tells me he is getting much valuable information at college," said the proud father. "I hope he won't forget everything when he comes home."

"I hope not, sir," said the professor. "He's borrowed $25 from me already."

No End to It.

Duty calls. Each day that's passing,
Ere the quiet evening falls,
Finds them at it, ever at it—
Women making "duty calls."

A Failing Memory.

"Binkler seems to be failing fast."

"What makes you think so?"

"Why, here it is May and he has entirely forgotten to come over and borrow our garden hose."

Scientific.

The smallest microbe has a tail;
At least, so it is said.
Let's hope he wags in gracefully
Whenever he is fed.

The Very Latest.

"What a peculiar monocle that golfer is wearing!"

"Yes, that is the very latest. It is called the boot monocle!"

A PAPER FOR THE MOHAWKS

The New Weekly Will Be Printed in Their Own Tongue.

N AND K THE EDITOR'S TROUBLE

An Ottawa Civil Servant Will Be the Publisher—He Is Charles A. Cooke, a Full-Blooded Indian in the Employ of the Indian Department—

Are An Inquisitive People.

The Mohawks of Canada and New York State are to have a newspaper. It will be edited by Charles A. Cooke, a full-blooded Indian employed in the Department of Indian affairs at Ottawa.

Some time ago Cooke began publishing the Onkweonwe, a semi-monthly magazine, printed in the Mohawk language, and it was so successful that he has decided to turn it into a newspaper, the first of its kind in Canada and the second in America. There are other Indian publications not newspapers, but the majority of them are issued by missionary societies and they are edited by white men. The Cherokee Advocate, published in Indian Territory, is the only Indian newspaper in North America.

The Onkweonwe will publish some telegraphic news from different parts of the world, market news and reports of prices of furs, skins, fish, etc., and will have an inquiry department, which will be one of its leading features. Editor Cooke is the son of a Mohawk chief and was educated at Government schools and afterwards took a course in a Canadian college. When he had been graduated he got a clerkship in the Indian Department. He is a dark-skinned young man, with pronounced Indian features. He is a good singer and a member of the choir of the leading Methodist Church in Ottawa. Two other Mohawk Indians, Miss Maracle and Joseph Delisle, are employed in the same room with Mr. Cooke. All are well educated.

The Editor's Difficulty.

Few of the Indians can read English, but about 10,000 are able to read anything printed in the Mohawk dialect. The Mohawk alphabet consists of twelve letters, and n and k are used much oftener than any of the others. An ordinary eight-page issue of the Onkweonwe contains about one-quarter n's and k's. For this reason the editor has had some difficulty in getting his copy set up, as the printer soon runs out of n's and k's. English characters are used. Here is a specimen paragraph from the Onkweonwe:

Kanoolwe Actiriwaonha.

When the Onkweonwe came out first many of the old chiefs objected to it. "The Great Spirit, Gitchee Manitou the Mighty, says good Indians never read newspapers," said they to the younger braves, but the paper became popular. Indians like to learn about the doings of the white men. When Editor Cooke started the paper he published incidents about the Indians, and some letters were sent to him from his fellow-braves, saying, "Stop publishing news about the Indians; tell us about Laurier and others."

They did not object to the name Onkweonwe, which means in the Mohawk tongue, "the only human being," or "the real human being," in contradistinction to others who are looked upon as being less worthy of the name of man, or as lacking in qualities of manhood. "Onkwe" means a human being, and would be applied to a paleface or to an Indian of another tribe. The addition of "onwe" is Mohawk for "the real thing."

An Inquisitive People.

The Mohawks are inquisitive. Among the questions Editor Cooke has had to answer are the following: "Why does the Government try to control Indians?" "What is electricity?" "Who was Papineau, and what did he do?" "What is an Indian?" To the last question Mr. Cooke answered: "An Indian is an Indian who has native blood in his veins, and who is on the reserved lands under the protection of the Government."

The Onkweonwe recently published the following story about an Indian living near Eganville, not many miles from Ottawa:

"Indian John, a celebrated Mohawk guide, who is now 80 years old, has been sleeping in his coffin for many months. John, although still a vigorous man, knows that he must soon leave for the happy hunting grounds, so some time ago he made himself a coffin and began sleeping in it.

"Since then he has used no other bed, and he has told his family that if death comes to him while he is lying in his coffin, they are to put on the lid and bury him. Until the call comes John will continue to hunt in the land of the Mississaugus.

"Sixty years ago he entered the land, and began to hunt near Eganville, which was then a wilderness. The Mississaugus would have no interlopers in their territory, and one day eight of them set out after Mohawk John. They came upon him when he was sleeping, and made him a prisoner.

"Placing him in a canoe, the Mississaugus started for the Mohawk country. On the way John became so troublesome that they had to put him on shore before they had gone far. Grabbing a tomahawk, John smashed the prow of the birch bark canoe, and defied them to come ashore and fight him. Although the others had rifles, they were afraid, and put out into the stream. From that day to this John has hunted in the Mississaugus country."

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Benjamin Parsons Cuts His Wife's Throat and Suicides.

AWFUL DEED OF INSANE MAN.

He Was Probably Going to Kill His Children When a Little Daughter's Answer Turned Him Away—Evidence of an Unbalanced Mind Quite Clear—Jury's Verdict in Accordance.

Brampton, Ont., June 7.—Benjamin Parsons of Queen street east, Brampton, a wholesale butcher, yesterday morning, between 5 and 6 o'clock, killed his wife and suicided by cutting their throats from ear to ear with a large butcher knife.

Parsons for some time had been deeply affected by the loss of a child 6 years of age, and gave expression to the belief that he had nothing to live for; there was no pleasure for him now. For the past two weeks Parsons had acted rather strangely, but no one thought he contemplated any such action.

Yesterday morning about a quarter to 6 Ida Parsons, the 11-year-old child of Parsons, with her 9-year-old brother and a baby of 3 years, ran crying across the road to the house of Patrick Kenney, a man employed in the soda water works here, and told him their father and mother were dead. Kenney ran to a neighbor's house a short distance away and, wakened him and said: "Get up; Ben Parsons has killed his wife and himself." Together they went to the house. The bedroom is situated on the east side. The Parsons' were in the habit of rising about 5 o'clock, and it is supposed that at that hour or near it his wife was killed.

Went to Children's Room.

Parsons went upstairs to his children's bedroom and said: "Ida, the Lord has told me to kill you children."

The child Ida jumped out of bed and said: "No, father, the Lord never told you that, for He would have told me, too, and you have killed my mother."

He, answering, said: "Oh my, I did," and going downstairs again he suicided. The room presented a distressing picture. Mrs. Parsons was lying partly under the bed in her night clothes, with her throat gashed, and her head in a pool of blood. Her husband was beside her, face down, saturated with his own blood.

Signs of Slight Struggle.

The bed presented a suggestion of a slight struggle; the sheet in one place had been grasped with a tight clutched, but nothing else had been disturbed. Even if Mrs. Parsons had made any effort to save herself, she could not have done so, for Parsons was a powerful man and in the prime of life. It is evident he was deranged, for a more kind and better man never lived. He had not an unkind grain in his make up. His love for his family was well and favorably known. His wife was formerly Miss Elizabeth Cheetham. She was 35 years of age.

Mr. Parsons was in good circumstances, and the family lived well. He was widely known among cattlemen and in Toronto.

An Inquest Held.

Coroner Dr. Heggie empanelled a jury of Brampton's business men, who, after viewing the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons early yesterday morning, adjourned till 7 o'clock last evening. The daughter who so bravely met her father after he had killed his wife, gave her evidence. Nothing new was elicited.

The coroner, reviewing the evidence, in his address, said there was no doubt that the double tragedy was the result of an unhinged mind.

The jury, after a few moments' consideration, rendered their verdict in accordance with the facts.

The funeral of the deceased will likely take place on Sunday.

VON WALDERSEE HAS RESIGNED.

Leaves China by Way of Tokio for Home.

Berlin, June 7.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Count Von Waldersee, dated Tien Tsin, Tuesday, June 4:

"I have now resigned the functions of commander-in-chief and to-day am leaving China by way of Tokio. Strict measures have been taken here to avoid collisions between the different contingents. In company with large German detachments, I attended the funeral of the French soldiers killed in the recent affray."

Have Ceased Holding Meetings.

Pekin, June 7.—The Ministers have ceased to hold meetings while making enquiries as to the desires of the respective Governments. The majority of the Ministers hold that Germany should have told the Chinese that all the powers would agree to an indemnity of $50,000,000 taels, at 4 per cent. interest. They also think that the withdrawal of Count Von Waldersee and the German troops shows a desire to force the powers to acquiesce to Germany's demands, which they are not inclined to do.

Trouble between the British and French soldiers at Tien Tsin continues. Brig.-Gen. Lorne Campbell, in command of the British troops, and the French commander, will use their utmost endeavors to prevent further friction.

THE MACHINISTS.

Fourth Night Session of the International Association.

Toronto, June 7.—The fourth day of the biennial convention of the International Association of Machinists was largely taken up with a continuation of the discussion of the rules and amendments to the constitution. After a lengthy debate, the recommendation of President O'Connell, in respect to the increase of dues, was carried out. The monthly dues were increased from 50 to 75 cents and the per capita tax from 20 to 40 cents a month.

President O'Connell reports the strike situation satisfactory. He received word yesterday that 150 men had secured a settlement at Davenport, Ia. A press despatch says the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, had made a settlement. Mr. O'Connell wired for an official statement, but received no reply. He says the action of this company will dominate the situation in Dayton. The President received word that the Olds Company of Detroit had been granted a temporary injunction, restraining the association from inducing men not to go to work for them.

Man Killed, Mill Burned.

Vancouver, B. C., June 7.—T. R. Spink was killed at Vancouver Iron Works yesterday afternoon. A large six-bore marine boiler, upon which he was working slipped off its temporary supports and crushed him to death.

The lumber mill owned by the Pacific Coast Lumber Company was totally destroyed by fire yesterday.

A Mystery Cleared Up.

Windsor, Ont., June 7.—Mrs. Frances Gardiner, Point Pelee, yesterday learned the fate of her father, who disappeared on Sunday. His body was found in the lake after three days' search, opposite his daughter's home. Around his neck was a rope, to which was fastened a large stone. It is thought that the deceased went out in a boat and committed suicide.

A large dinner party in Lord Minto's honor will be held at Government House this evening. He will probably return to Ottawa to-night.

Pabst Brewery Scorched.

WHY THEY ARE STRANGERS.

He Fell Overboard and She Threw Queer Life Preservers at Him.

"Now, William, I'm going to have a frank talk with you. I've known you ever since you were born, and our families have been intimate since Detroit was a village. What is the reason that the engagement between you and my niece is broken?"

This plain spoken woman is an elderly spinster and has charge of the young person referred to, who is an orphan in addition to being an heiress, present and prospective. Like many another venerable maiden holding such relationship, she is exceedingly proud and sensitive where her charge is concerned. "She's bright, cheerful, rich, accomplished, well bred and beautiful," the aunt proceeded in a higher key. "Now, what's the trouble?"

"What's the use of thrashing the matter over?" answered the young man. "She's engaged now. The incident is closed."

"I want to know. I don't understand, and it worries me."

"Well, you remember that yachting trip we took rather late last fall, and you know that I've said a million times that I would never have a wife who was not cool headed, courageous and quick to act intelligently in an emergency. I suppose I'm a crank on the subject, but that is the way I've always felt about it."

"I know. But she is. She always was. It runs in the family."

"Pardon me, but wait. One cool evening when it was blowing half a gale we were out in Lake St. Clair, and because I was running about too carelessly I fell overboard. She screamed, called me by name and rushed back and forth distractedly. Then she realized that something must be done."

"Of course she did. Just like her."

She knocked over two or three chairs getting to one of those receptacles that they use for foot warmers and threw that at me. Then she rushed down into the cabin, came back with an oil stove in her arms and shouted, 'Here, Will!' as she heaved the thing toward me."

"I don't believe it," and aunty's head was way in the air. "I don't believe a word of it. But if it's true there's only one explanation."

"And that?"

"She wanted to sink you."

A BACK DIVE TO DEATH

Terrible Suicide of Bank Burglar Frank Rutledge.

HIS HEAD WAS SHATTERED.

Sentenced to Twenty-One Years for Burglary, and With the Murder Charge Ahead of Him, He Took His Own Life by Springing From Gallery in the Jail—Details of the Tragedy.

Toronto, June 8.—Boyd dead, Jones dead, Rutledge dead.

These are the grim results of the most dramatic tragedy that Toronto has ever witnessed, and the end is not yet, for the shadow of the gallows hangs over Rice, the last of the three desperate men who for the past week have been the chief theme of conversation in the city.

Rutledge committed suicide yesterday afternoon by throwing himself over the guard rail from the gallery on the top floor of Toronto Jail and crushing in his skull.

He committed the desperate deed at 3.15 yesterday afternoon, after coming from the two courts, in one of which he had been arraigned on a murder charge and in the other had received sentences aggregating 21 years in prison.

When Rice and Rutledge arrived at the Jail at about 3 o'clock they were taken to the searching room opposite the governor's office, where they were rigidly inspected by the officials. Then they were sent up to dinner. The diningroom is on the first floor, and to reach it the route was through the bars at the main entrance to the corridors, then across the main hall to a special staircase. Rice was almost at the front of the other prisoners, and Rutledge was three prisoners behind him. Guard Tom Lonergan was on duty on the first floor watching corridors three and four, and the prisoners were being taken to dinner by Guard George Groves.

Instead of entering the diningroom with the other prisoners, Rutledge dashed away and ran two or three stairs up the spiral staircase which leads to the chapel. Then he placed one leg over the railing and took a quick glance at the floor 30 feet below. He adroitly dragged over his other leg and then brought both feet almost up to the rail where his hands were and then pushed himself away by the feet and landed upon his head on the grating, badly cut on the head and with a fractured skull.

Lonergan, the guard, saw him when he made for the railing, and frantically yelled: "Don't do it, Frank!" but Rutledge was determined to escape the hangman, or at best a sentence of almost a life-time, and he paid no heed to the guard. His face was ashen white, but he went to his death coolly and with a deliberation that made his fellow prisoners and the guards shudder.

John Noonan, a prisoner, who was in No. 9 corridor, saw the tragedy, and Jack Nagle, another convict, who was working on the ground floor, narrowly escaped being struck by the falling body; so did Governor Van Zant, who was just entering the place. Rutledge fell backwards and alighted squarely upon the back of his head on the iron girders of the glass grating. He fell 30 feet. It is surmised that he had calculated his land just exactly where he did. The blood from his head splashed around for several feet, and, in response to the alarm raised, the governor, guards and several prisoners rushed to pick him up, and there was almost a panic.

Rutledge was bleeding and unconscious, and he was carried into the searching room where a few minutes before he had undergone examination. He was evidently past all hope. Drs. Richardson and Sneath were soon in attendance, but it was apparent that medical skill was of no avail, and the man died a quarter after four. Concussion of the brain caused death, and there was a wound in his skull about four inches long.

As the lifeless body was carried from the rotunda to the searching room a trail of blood marked its course. It was laid upon the floor, and a pillow placed underneath his head. The man expired at precisely 4.27, or one hour and 22 minutes after he took the fatal leap.

Dr. Sneath said death was directly caused by concussion of the brain.

In the meantime Rice, with the other prisoners, had partaken of dinner, and were returned to their cells.

Rice occupied his old cell, the first in corridor 3. When he was informed of his pal's death he cried bitterly, and said, "He must have had a terrible nerve."

Rutledge had been carried to the examining room, when the measurements were taken. The tape showed the distance from the iron bar on which his feet rested vertically to the floor to be 24 feet, and from the same point to the place where the body struck, 28 feet 8 inches. The floor line of the angle thus formed was about 15 feet.

An inquest will be held by Coroner Powell at the jail at 3 this afternoon.

Rice Interviewed.

Shortly after Rutledge died the Inspector of Prisons, the Sheriff, the Crown Attorney and the Governor of the Jail visited Rice in his cell and interviewed him. As the four approached the cell, Rice said: "Is he dead?"

He was asked if he knew of Rutledge's intentions, and he replied he did not.

Asked as to who threw the parcel in the hack, he said he did not know, neither did he know what the parcel contained.

"But why did you grab at the parcel so quick and dig into its contents?" No answer.

Rice made a request to the Governor, that Rutledge's Bible should be given to him. The Governor could not promise, until he knew how the body and effects were to be disposed of.

Turning to the inspector, Rice asked if he could have his meals brought in to him as before.

The Inspector stated that he could not promise, but if such could be done, he would see that the meals were brought in.

Addressing the Governor again, Rice said: "Have we not always acted right in jail?"

The Governor said that as far as their conduct was concerned while in the jail he had no fault to find.

IN THE COURTS.

Rutledge and Rice Sentenced and Arraigned on Murder Charge.

Fred Lee Rice and Frank Rutledge were taken from the jail yesterday morning to answer to the murder charge before Police Magistrate Denison. The court room was crowded with citizens anxious to get a look at the men who had furnished the most sensational episode in the annals of crime in Canada.

Rice and Rutledge were called and arraigned on the charge of murder and immediately sent below to await the conclusion of some shoplifting cases on the docket. The appearance of the two men betokened the strain under which they have been for the last three days. They looked worried and the bandage on Rice's head had been removed and only a few patches of court plaster told of the encounter on Tuesday night. The men were not manacled in the dock. Rutledge looked pale, but the charge of murder against him appeared to come as a surprise.

The charge was read to the two men and Rutledge answered in a firm tone, "Not guilty." Rice merely shook his head.

In the Sessions.

It was decided yesterday to bring the prisoners up for sentence in the Aurora cases immediately, in order to allow the county constables to attend the funeral of their fellow officer, the late William Boyd, this morning, to avoid the crush in the court room, and because the prisoners were in the building. The prisoners were deadly pale, but betrayed no emotion as they stood up for sentence.

Crown Attorney Dewart rose and moved for sentence of the court upon the prisoners Rutledge and Rice for the three crimes of which they had been convicted.

Upon being asked if they had anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be pronounced, Rutledge said: "Nothing," and Rice merely shook his head.

Judge McDougall thereupon addressed the prisoners as follows:

"This is a peaceful country, but you came here bent upon a career of crime; you have followed your unlawful purposes by committing three serious offences against the law. This country has enough trouble and expense to take care of its own criminals and cannot do anything to encourage criminals from a foreign country to come here and pursue their depredations. The sentence of the court upon you, Frank Rutledge, and upon you, Fred Lee Rice, is that each of you be confined in the Kingston Penitentiary for the term of fourteen years for the robbery of the bank, and seven years for stealing the horse, cart and harness; the seven years to be consecutive with the fourteen years; for the robbery of the postoffice seven years, to be concurrent with the sentence for stealing, making, for each of you, a sentence of 21 years."

The condemned men were as stolid and indifferent as at any time during their trial. Then they were manacled and led out of the court.

Back to the Police Court.

From the General Sessions court-room the men were taken back to the Police Court dock, and Constable Stewart was placed on the witness stand.

He related the circumstances leading up to the killing of Boyd. He told of the parcel being thrown into the cab, and falling on Rutledge's side. Witness was opposite Rutledge. All the criminals, except Jones, scrambled for the parcel. Jones sat back in the seat and enquired: "What's up?" Rice got a revolver from the parcel and Rutledge clutched something. Witness also clutched the revolver in Rutledge's hands.

By this time Constable Boyd and the prisoner Rice were struggling. Thought Rice said to Boyd, "Quit, or give up." Boyd refused, and Rice pulled on him. Rutledge, in the meantime, got possession of the revolver he and witness were struggling for. Putting it to Stewart's head he said, "Quit." Rutledge said to Rice, "Give it to him," and Rice pulled the trigger.

"I put up my hands," said Constable Stewart, "and told them to get out. They got out of the hack and I swung around on the step and fired at them. They were running towards the horses and turned and fired at me. I think there was only one shot fired, the one which killed Boyd, until I fired. I don't know how often I fired or how often they fired at me. I went around the hack and they went around the horses. They got on the trolley car and I followed. They were fighting with the motorman, and Rice said to Rutledge, 'Give it to him,' meaning for Rutledge to fire at me. Rice tried to swing his revolver around at me, and Rutledge was trying to get his weapon around at the motorman. I got Rutledge's revolver and pounded him with the butt. Somebody else hit Rice, and they quit almost insensible."

The witness was cross examined by

THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

The legislation of the Ontario Government has always been of a character calculated to elevate the people. They might fairly adopt one of the mottoes of Norway, "Spirit, Loyalty, valour, and whatever elevates a nation, let the world learn from Norway." It can fairly be claimed for the Ontario Government that they have never failed to legislate for the elevation and advancement of the people.

In education the position gained by the educational system of the Province (then under the present Premier's direction), at the World's Fair, at Chicago, is ample proof in that regard.

In charities, the deaf and dumb, the blind, the insane, the unfortunate of all kinds, to whom have recently been added the treatment of those who need it for drunkenness and kindred vices. On the monument to John Howard Payne, the philanthropist, who did so much for the prisons and asylums of England, and made them more humane, these words are written: "He trod an open but unfrequented path to immortality." Such men as he did much to pave the way for legislation, such as that possessed by the people of this province regarding charities — a legislation that relieves the home, and gives every possible hope for recovery.

In the administration of justice, the Province of Ontario is as far advanced as any country in the world. Its system is the best known, and will be copied by other provinces. Ontario is the leading province of the Confederation, and it is a good thing for the people, not only of Ontario, but of all Canada, that we have an experienced, capable Administration controlling its affairs; one that helps and encourages everyone at home, reaches out a hand to recognize and cheer the loyalty of the soldiers who endured the burning sun of Africa for the sake of the old flag and British rights.—London Advertiser.

YOUNG CHILDREN AND MALT BREAKFAST FOOD.

Do not allow your little ones to use starchy or irritating foods such as oatmeal and the majority of ordinary prepared grain foods. They are hard to digest and lack the grand constituents for the formation of bone and muscle. Malt Breakfast Food is predigested, therefore does not task digestion, and the children love it, and thrive efast on it. Malt Breakfast Food is as cheap as common oatmeal; one packet makes thirty meals. At all Grocers.

W. DURHAM ELECTION

Hearing of the Petition Against Mr. C. J. Thornton.

BRIBERY BY AGENTS CHARGED.

Mr. Walsh and Mr. Gerrie of Orono Implicated — The Woodward Family — Husband and Wife and Son Say They Were Given Money by the Two Men.

Cobourg, June 8.—Evidence of corruption by two alleged agents of Mr. C. J. Thornton, the Conservative candidate in West Durham in the recent general elections for the Commons, was given here yesterday in connection with the hearing of the petition by Mr. C. Burnham against the return of Mr. Thornton on charges of corruption and the ineligibility of the marked check as a deposit. When the court opened before Chief Justice Falconbridge and Mr. Justice Street at 11 o'clock yesterday, Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., who, with Mr. D. B. Simpson, K.C., of Bowmanville, appeared for the petitioner, suggested that with regard to the ineligibility of the check the evidence taken in the trial of Mr. Thornton's suit against Mr. Burnham, the returning officer, be accepted in this case and taken as given. He explained that the present petition was a double one, and that in the first part the petitioner claimed the seat for Mr. Beith on the contention that he was the only candidate legally nominated. Mr. W. D. McPherson, counsel for the respondent, objected to this procedure, but, subject to the objection, the court accepted Mr. Aylesworth's suggestion. This cleared the way for proceeding with the evidence in the charges against D. F. Walsh, merchant, and Wm. Gerrie, agent, of Orono. Mr. McPherson raised again the objection that the petition could not be entered against a candidate who had not been returned, and the court stated that might be argued with the rest of the case. The court sat until 7 o'clock, and the first two charges were not disposed of, while there is a host of witnesses in reserve. Jesse Woodward and his son Frank, laborers, of Orono, testified to being offered money by Walsh and receiving it from Gerrie. Mr. Gerrie, before Mr. Aylesworth, evidenced a lamentably poor memory and lack of knowledge of the most ordinary affairs, but brightened up when Mr. McPherson took him in hand. Mrs. Woodward said he gave her a dollar for good-will; he said it was for half a barrel of cider, that the old man might have what he wanted to drink.

The first witness was Jesse Woodward. His evidence was to the effect that on the Saturday night before the election, when standing on the street in Orono, near Armstrong's store, his son Frank came to him and said Mr. Walsh wanted to see him at his store. Both went to Walsh's store, and Walsh asked him if he intended to vote for Thornton, and he replied he guessed he would. After a general talk Walsh said to Frank that he would give them ten dollars for their votes and the votes of two of Frank's brothers: that Frank said they would make no bargain about the brothers, and that Ben Walsh got a piece of paper from his desk and wrote on it, handing it to Frank, who could not read it, and passed it on to witness, who read on it the figures $16. Frank asked Walsh what was on the paper, and Walsh said $16. Frank said, "No good." Witness also deposed that on the night before the election Frank came to his house and told him not to go to bed too early; that Garry was coming to see him, and had money for him. Subsequently Garry came and asked him to vote for Thornton, and when going out in the garden to go away gave him $5.

Cross-examined by Mr. McPherson, he said he had never told anyone except Mr. Simpson about the matter, and when he told Mr. Simpson he did not mention Walsh, but Garry; that he signed some paper in Mr. Simpson's office, and left it with Mr. Simpson.

Mr. McPherson asked Mr. Simpson to produce it, and received the reply that it was at home.

Witness also said that on the occasion when he went to Walsh's store, he was standing on the opposite side of the store 70 feet from Walsh's store. It was dark, and Frank could not have seen him from the store. He had not seen Frank before that evening, and Frank came without any arrangement, and told him Mr. Walsh wanted to see him; that they at once went to Walsh's store, and the conversation about their votes took place. As to the piece of paper, he said Mr. Walsh, after receiving it back, threw it away. He also swore that he was not seeking to sell his vote to Walsh, and would not say how he voted.

Frank Woodward was then called, and related his story, which was similar to his father's.

W. L. Gerrie denied, practically in toto, all the evidence of the Woodwards. They had said he was never at their house save the once when he gave them money for voting. He declared he had been there several times.

This concluded the evidence for the petitioner, and Mr. McPherson argued that no case had been made out, either as to corruption or agency. The court held there was a case calling for defence on that ground.

The court adjourned till 9 to-day.

PERILS OF THE DEEP.

GREAT HARDSHIP AND EXPOSURE ENDURED.

Capt. Adnah Burns, of Dayspring, N. S., Tells an Interesting Story From His Own Experience.

From the Progress, Lunenburg, N.S.

Capt. Adanah Burns, of Dayspring, Lunenburg, Co., N.S., is a prominent representative of a large class of men in Nova Scotia, who, during much of the year, follow the dangerous occupation of deep sea fishing. When not at sea Capt. Burns avocation is that of ship-carpenter. He is 43 years of age, and is to-day a healthy, vigorous representative of his class. Capt. Burns, however, has not always enjoyed this vigorous health, and while chatting recently with a representative of the Lunenburg Press, he said he believed that but for the timely use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills he would have been a chronic invalid. "From 1895 to 1898," said Capt. Burns, "I was the victim of a complication of troubles. I suppose they had their origin in the hardship and exposure I so frequently had to undergo. My illness took the form of dyspepsia and kidney trouble. The foods which I ate did not agree with me, and frequently gave me a feeling of nausea and at other times distressful pains in the stomach. Then I was much troubled with pains in the back due to the kidney trouble. Finally I took a severe cold which not only seemed to aggravate these troubles but which seemed to affect my spine as well, and I became partially rigid in the arms and legs. I was forced to quit work, and doctored for a time with little or no benefit. Then I dropped the doctor and began taking other medicines, but with no better result. By this time I was run down very much, had no appetite, and was depressed both in mind and body. While in this condition I chanced to read in a newspaper the testimonial of a cure made by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which in some respects presented symptoms like my own. The straightforward manner in which the story was told gave me new hope and I determined to try these pills. I sent for three boxes of course I did not expect that this quantity would cure me, but I thought it would probably decide whether they were suited to my case. I must say they seemed to act like magic, and before the pills were gone there was a decided improvement in my condition. I then got a half dozen more and before they were gone there was a decide dimprovement in my condition. I then got a half dozen boxes more and before they were gone I was back again at work in the shipyard, and enjoying once more the blessing of vigorous health. This was in the spring of 1898, and since that time up to the present I have not been laid up with illness. Occasionally when suffering from the effects of exposure or over work I take a box or two of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they always put me right. Since my own marvellous rescue from premature uselessness and suffering I have recommended these pills to many persons variously afflicted and have yet to hear of the first instance where they have failed to give good results where they were fairly tried."

It is such endorsations as these that give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills their great popularity throughout the world. Neighbours tell each other of the benefits they have derived from the use of these pills and where a fair trial is given the results are rarely disappointing. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills go directly to the root of the trouble, they create new, rich, red blood, stimulate the nerves to healthy action, thus bringing health and strength to all who use them. Sold by all dealers in medicine or sent post paid on receipt of 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.25, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REAFFIRMED.

Mr. Brodrick, the War Secretary, Again States Government's Policy.

London, June 8.—Mr. Brodrick, the War Secretary, replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the probability of an early conclusion of peace in South Africa, reaffirmed that the Government would not consent to discuss the future independence of the conquered states with the Boers.

No Mediation Is Possible.

Vienna, June 8.—Count Goulochowski, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, informed an Austrian deputation yesterday that the Government could not entertain a suggestion of mediation between Great Britain and the Boers, because "no serious government would care to undertake mediation after the British Government declared it would not accept mediation, and that an offer to mediate would be regarded by Great Britain as an unfriendly act."

THE MACHINISTS.

They Appointed Two Representatives to Meet Those of Metal Associations.

Toronto, June 8.—A feature of the business transacted at yesterday's session of the Machinists' Association was the adoption of a resolution instructing the president to appoint two representatives from each of the Metal Associations in St. Louis next month for the purpose of forming a National Metal Trades' Federation to combat any hostile action that may be taken by the manufacturers, who are combining against the metal trade workers. The federation will embrace the blacksmiths, moulders, patternmakers and boilermakers.

The amendments to the Grand Lodge constitution were completed.

To-day the convention will discuss the railway situation, and a day will probably be set for the inauguration of the nine-hour day on all railways.

Strike News.

President O'Connell reports that one shop in Buffalo, which granted the nine-hour day on May 20, has gone back on their agreement, and posted notices in the shop that the men would be required to work ten hours. As a result 22 men went out on strike. All the shops in Hartford, 13 in number, one shop in Buffalo and one in Philadelphia have granted the required concessions.

Situation at Depew.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 8.—The New York Central Railroad officials have posted notices in their shops at Depew, to the effect that all employes who have absented themselves from work of late without leave must report Monday morning if they desire to remain in the company's employ.

Serious Strike at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 8.—The woodworkers' strike here has assumed a serious aspect, although the men have not yet been out for a week. Some capitalists have come forward and offered to finance a factory to be run on the co-operative plan, and many of the men are in favor of accepting the offer, and going into active competition with the big firms. A number of the best men, too, have left town and got work in Montreal.

The plasterers' strike was declared off yesterday morning, the bosses agreeing to recognize the union and sign an agreement for one year to pay 30 cents an hour for the seven summer months, and 28 cents for the five winter months.

YOUNG MAN ENDS HIS LIFE.

George Licht of Roseville, Ont., Hanged Himself—Religious Mania.

Roseville, Ont., June 8.—The village was startled yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock by the announcement that a highly respected young man had committed suicide. The party in question was George Licht, aged about 27 years. He had committed the deed by hanging himself, and it was his mother who first discovered the body in the barn. George Licht was of a melancholy disposition, was an industrious young man, and a member of the United Brethren Church. He felt very strongly certain religious tendencies, and, it is thought, ended his life while laboring under the excitement created by reading religious tracts, etc.

Dr. Vardon of Galt, coroner, was notified, and he will hold an inquest.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Most Famous of Medicines.

IT MAKES SICK PEOPLE WELL

Honest worth, merit and strict fulfillment of every promise made to suffering humanity have combined to place Paine's Celery Compound on the highest round of the ladder of fame. Its praises have been sounded by men and women in every walk of life—by the affluent, the distinguished, and by the humblest, but equally grateful people.

Paine's Celery Compound is the established home medicine of the large majority of our Canadian people. It is a medicine full of healing, strengthening and health-giving power. It nourishes the delicate nerve fibres, sustains strong heart action, and keeps the stomach, liver and kidneys in vigorous health.

Mrs. G. Durant, of Elma, Ont., briefly gives her experience with Paine's Celery Compound.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from liver troubles, and have doctored with several physicians but only found relief for a very short time. My husband advised me to try your Paine's Celery Compound. I did so, and found so much relief from the first bottle that I continued, and am now using the third bottle. Your compound has done more for me than any physician. For months before using the compound I never had one night of sound sleep; now I can go to bed and sleep soundly and naturally and feel like a new woman in the morning."

Fix It Somehow.

A man has written in from the Temiscaming country asking for 160 acres of land because he has a baby that is the first white child born in that region, but Mr. Southworth says there is no provision for making such a grant. Fix it somehow, exclaims the Toronto Star, and give the child the land, the father to hold it in trust until the youngster is 18. By that time the father will probably have it cleared and fixed up so that the boy can see it, go into town with the money, and out a dash for a couple of months.

Torontonian Hurt in Buffalo.

Buffalo, June 8.—J. B. Perry, whose home is in Toronto, while riding on a north-bound Main street car at 11.30 o'clock yesterday morning, leaned over the platform rail toward the centre of the car tracks and was struck by one of the iron trolley poles at Main and Dalcom streets. The car was going at a fair rate of speed and the blow severely injured Perry's head. He was removed to the Sisters' Hospital, where the physicians said his injuries, while serious, were not fatal.

Didn't Marry for Money.

The Boston man, who lately married a sickly rich young woman, is happy now, for he got Dr. King's New Life Pills, which restored her to perfect health. Not Quite What She Meant.

A very stout lady while out walking in a certain part of Edinburgh came to a gateway which appeared to be the entrance to a private road. Not being certain, however, she asked one of two messenger boys who were standing at the entrance whether she could get through the gateway or not.

The boy looked her up and down and across. Then, winking to his friend, he replied:

"I dinna ken, missus, but think ye micht try, as I saw a horse and cart gang through a wee while since."—London Tit-Bits.

FOR A FAST SERVICE.

Government Will Soon Advertise For Atlantic Tenders.

TO KEEP DOWN THE RATES.

Discrimination Against Canada to the Diversion of the Tide of Immigration Towards South America—Another Big Surplus—Digest of the Dominion Balance Sheet for Past Eleven Months.

Ottawa, June 8.—The Government will shortly advertise for tenders for the establishment of a fast Atlantic service. It is expected that in any contract which may be entered into a clause will be inserted forbidding the steamship company from entering into the pool or conference which now controls the passenger rates from Europe to America. The effect of the rates in question is to discriminate against Canada, and to partially divert the tide of immigration to South America. Immigrants are conveyed to South America for rates which are nearly one-half less than what it costs to go to Winnipeg, although the distance to the former country is twice as far, and this fact is depriving the Dominion of thousands of desirable settlers.

Another Big Surplus

The likelihood is that at the close of the present fiscal year the balance sheet of the Dominion will show a surplus of revenue over all expenditures of about two and a quarter millions. On the 31st May last, when eleven months had expired, the surplus of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure was $10,945,036, as against $12,531,563 for the same period of the previous year. Deducting the capital expenditure from the surplus, it would leave a balance of $2,214,794 to the good. The receipts on account of consolidated fund were $46,571,284, while the expenditure was $35,626,248. Last year the receipts were $45,626,144, and the expenditure $32,575,581. As compared with the previous year, there has therefore been an addition of $1,464,140 to the revenue, and of $3,050,667 to the expenditure during the eleven months. The capital expenditure was $8,731,242 up to May 31st, being an increase of $1,502,731 over the eleven months of 1900.

YOU CANNOT CURE PILES

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected, and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly, just where it is needed, and where it will do the most good. Not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor the harsh barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct application to the seat of the disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything then no sufferer has any excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so the Pyramid Pile Cure will have made one more friend, the best possible advertisement we can have. The chief advantages of the remedy are: It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and, lastly, it is the quickest and cheapest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

TORONTO SCULPTOR SUCCEEDS.

His Model for Monument to Governor Simcoe Selected.

The model for the statue to be erected in memory of Governor Simcoe has been selected by the committee appointed for that purpose, and the choice fell upon the model submitted by a Toronto sculptor—Mr. Walter S. Allward—who designed the Northwest volunteers' monument which stands in Queen's Park. Nine designs were presented to the committee from competitors in France, Scotland, the United States and Canada, and Mr. Allward's model was chosen only after a long and careful scrutiny upon the part of the committee. The decision was arrived at by a process of elimination, and after some time the number of models under consideration was narrowed down to three, Mr. Allward's conception finally carrying off the prize.

The figure of Governor Simcoe will be of bronze, and will be nine feet in height. The intention of the sculptor was to present Governor Simcoe in both his military and civic capacities, and the figure will be represented as clothed in a mess uniform. The model is of exceptional beauty, and both the originality of the conception and the treatment accorded it by Mr. Allward excited the greatest admiration.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N.Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50c. and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Jas. Lynch. Trial bottles free.

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH.

North-West Canada to Solve the Food and Fuel Problems.

A block of territory a thousand miles square; 640,000,000 consecutive acres of the richest pasture lands in the world, which yield on cultivation the strongest and best grain ever put on any market.

Contiguous to, and underlying this immense area, are the largest coal fields that have ever yet been discovered; large enough to solve the fuel problem for an indefinite period; gold, silver and copper, are in abundance, and, above all, there is any quantity of water power.

Such is Northwest Canada, as described at the Royal Colonial Institute recently by the Rev. John McDougall; and all this rich country is in touch with the home markets through British routes, no foreign power lying in between.

"Let the British Government," urged Mr. McDougall, "take a practical interest in this great portion of our Empire; turn the trend of emigration that way, people these immense areas, multiply the producing power of the nation, and thus secure to the home country a sure and certain food supply, as also an ever-increasing field for commercial enterprise and in the investment of capital."—London Express.

A Good Idea.

The Walkers of Walkerville have done a good thing that will tend to beautify the town by offering gardening prizes to amateurs, as follows: $50, divided into three prizes, for the best kept gardens; $40 for the best collection of flowers; $35 for flowering vines; $5 each for the best display of stocks, hollyhocks, dahlias, asters, and nasturtiums. Mrs. William Robins also gives $25 in two prizes for the most artistic gardens.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The Season Formally Opened on the New Grounds.

There Was a Large Attendance of Members—Many Spectators Were Also Present.

That lawn bowling is to be a very popular method of taking recreation amongst Peterborough's professional and business men, was amply demonstrated yesterday afternoon, when the recently organized club formally opened the new Simcoe street grounds under auspices of a nature which predict a bright future for the game.

Of the hundred members which the club boasts there were few absent when the draw to decide the pairing of the competitors took place, and a large number of spectators were also present, occupying the benches and standing in groups on the portion of the lawn not required by the bowlers.

The great majority of the players knew little or nothing about the game, but under the direction of the few who had experience in bowling they soon acquired a sufficient acquaintance with the rudiments of the game to enable them to make a very fair showing, and became greatly interested in the match.

As previously arranged, the afternoon's programme consisted of a match of six rinks a side, to be played between the President, Dr. Boucher, and the Vice-President, Mr. R. C. McHarrie.

As the appended score will show, the laurels properly fell to the presiding officer, but the Vice states that his elation over the success attending the opening of the grounds is so great as to completely counterbalance any down-heartedness which might be expected to result from his defeat.

The ground is hardly level enough to allow of perfect bowling, but the sod will improve in condition as the season advances, the unevenness in places being attributed to the fact that it was all removed and relaid this spring. Some roughness at the ends have resulted from members playing without rubber shoes. This being the opening day the enforcement of this rule was passed over, but it is understood that the Executive Committee will impose a fine of 50c on any players using the grounds hereafter unless their pedal extremities are encased in accordance with the rules.

The individual competitions should commence immediately, as the matter of selecting the skips cannot be settled too soon, in order that permanent rinks for the season may be made up and the schedule matches be started.

FIRST OF THE SERIES.

The 57th Regiment Band at Victoria Park Last Night.

The first of the open air series of band concerts in Victoria Park took place last night and notwithstanding the fact that the affair had not been to any very great extent advertised, and the additional fact that the night was quite cool, the concert was quite largely attended. The lights have not yet been placed in the band stand, but with the aid of the band torches the bandsmen pulled through all right. The townspeople to the number of several hundred took up their respective positions in the old familiar spots and the music rendered by the band was of course of a delightful variety. The citizens were well pleased with the first concert of the season and will now look forward with pleasure to Friday night of each week..

The steamboat owners on the Rice Lake and Otonabee River waters are making a big complaint because there is no glance pier or rest pier at the swing of the Bensfort bridge. Considerable damage has been done to both the boats and the bridge through the need of these piers and a week or so ago the caretaker of the bridge came very nearly going into the water head first by reason of the North Star coming violently in contact with the swing.

The Steamer North Star arrived in port this morning with an excursion from St. James' church, Alnwick. There were about 150 on board.

The Star was the only boat in port to-day. The Water Lily has not yet commenced her Saturday trips and the Beaver, which was expected up for some unknown reason did not put in an appearance.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

The property owners of the town will be called upon on Tuesday next to vote upon the bylaw sanctioning the grant of a site for the factory of the Peterborough Shovel Company. The desirability of having as many industries as possible locate in Peterborough, must be patent to all, and that, through encouragement to manufacturers only, can the desired end be accomplished is a well-established fact. The concern in question is one in which a large amount of local capital has been invested, and therefore its substantial character and permanency is assured, as far as the goverance of such matters lies in the powers of the directorate.

The town is asked to give the company a deed of the south half of the corporation lot on which the Kennedy Stock Yards are located, but before the papers are signed the company agrees to erect a brick building 50 x 150 feet in size, and to instal therein machinery to the value of $25,000. Another condition attached to the deeding of the property over to the company, is that if at any time operations cease for 12 consecutive months within the next ten years, the property shall revert to the town, the company having the option of purchase at a valuation.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

Wm. Spillsbury of North Monaghan is Charged with Attempted Cattle Poisoning.

William Spillsbury, who last year was charged with attempt at cattle poisoning, and who to the satisfaction of the Court proved his innocence, was last night at the residnce of Mr. Joseph Green, North Monaghan, arrested by High County Constable Cochrane, on a similar charge.

On Friday next he will come up for hearing before County Magistrate Edmison charged with putting Paris green in Andrew Dobbin's pasture field. The mixture is alleged to have been of Paris green, salt and pumpkin seeds.

County Constable Archie Moore will leave to-morrow for Methuen Township to arrest Frank Newell, sr., who is charged with assaulting his wife. The Newells live in the vicinity of where the Sharpe-Hull shooting affray took place, and the name was quite familiar at the trial subsequent thereto. The wife claims that she has been badly used by her husband, and she finally swore out a warrant charging him with assault, the document being issued by Magistrate Robb. Mrs. Newell then brought the warrant down to High County Constable Cochrane for execution. She walked all the way to Peterborough, and is still in town.

Everybody is using Valencienne's Lace. Do you want any? We have a fine assortment of them at rock bottom prices. We have just received another shipment of the good washing kind, both in Edging and Insertions, which we bought from the makers and are offering them to you at wholesale prices. You should investigate and find out the difference in our qualities from what you usually see.

EMBROIDERIES

From St. Gall, Switzerland, the home of Embroideries, bought direct from the manufacturer and selling to you at a clear saving of 25 per cent., the wholesaler's profit. You'll see a bigger range of patterns here than elsewhere and as for quality you can't help but notice the difference. The needle-work is so much finer. Of course we have lots of the cheaper goods too, but we always recommend the best, they're cheaper in the end. When you are here ask to see our sample book of Embroideries and Insertions and note the prices on our Ready-made White Wear. We have a special display of these goods this week.

Miss Florence Carolyn Hall has been engaged as soprano soloist of the Murray street Baptist church, and will commence duties to-morrow.

Mr. Adam Hall, president of the Dominion Cordage Co., accompanied by Mr. R. R. Hall, left this afternoon for Chicago, with a view of inspecting some large binder twine factories there.

Mr. Michael McAuliffe, of San Francisco, who left Peterborough some 37 years ago, is in town visiting Mrs. Peter Simons, of whom he is a first cousin. His reminiscences of the town are most interesting. When Mr. McAuliffe went out to San Francisco the trip had to be made by water.

There lived a man who said
That he
Would revolutionize the sale
Of tea;
Giving good in place of bad,
Which made John Chinaman
Feel sad.
So he began, this clever man,
To pack Ceylon "Saluda" brand.
He advertised it far and wide
Spending thousands
To get it tried.
His plan worked well
Because the tea
Was pure as it was Claimed to be.
The sale to-day is greater than Ever before attained by man.

A TONY CIGAR STORE.

Mr. C. LeGros Has Now One of the Handsomest in the Dominion.

Peterborough can lay claim to having one of the swellest cigar stores in Canada. Men who know every inch of the road between Quebec and the Coast make the statement that there is nothing to beat it for tony fixtures and up-to-date furnishings anywhere on the map.

Mr. Charles LeGros, the "Alive" tobacconist of Peterborough, has been known to possess an ambition to own the finest premises for the sale of tobaccos, cigars, and smokers' sundries in the Dominion. On more than one occasion he has put on "considerable style," just to indicate his taste and desires in that direction, but this time he has "budded out" in fullest splendour.

Mr. LeGros' newly-fitted premises are nothing short of elaborate, and stand to his credit as an elegantly-appointed cigar store, easily outclassing the best known "brands" of the largest cities. Among the newest practical additions of a handsome character are three large show cases with plate glass fronts and tops, fitted with the latest improvements for the displaying of goods. These consist of two refrigerator cigar cabinets, fitted with water tanks at bottom and having ventilated partitions and shelves for keeping the finest imported cigars in perfect condition and flavour. The other glass cabinet is a display case for pipes, etc., made with adjustable shelves and sliding trays—a "silent salesman," so designed that everything displayed may be seen at a glance. The north side of the store is lined with handsomely executed, solid walnut fittings, reaching to the ceiling, in the centre being a massive plate glass mirror measuring eleven feet long by five feet wide. Opposite, on the south wall, another British plate glass mirror is placed, the reflecting of both mirrors producing an interesting enlarged panorama of the interior. A large glass enclosed case is also fitted to the south wall for displaying tobaccos and other goods, free from dust and damage. The store has been installed with a fine system of electric light, the work being done by Mr. Cyrille Wilhelmy, an expert electrician in the Canadian General Electric Works, who has fitted up some of the largest electric light plants in Montreal. Three costly chandeliers of a unique design, fitted for both electric light and gas, decorate the centre of the store, and a row of four lights with ground glass globes light up the large plate mirror. The show window has a large multiplying reflector suspended from the ceiling, with a glittering circle of glass pendants surrounding the fixture. The walls and ceiling of the store have been treated to a bright and attractive pattern of wall paper and the woodwork toned up in harmonious tints. In addition a large new stock of imported cigars and smokers' sundries of a first-class quality have been opened out in the preparations for a largely increased business, that will doubtless justify Mr. LeGros' expectations.

The hair-dressing and shaving room, adjoining the store, has also been greatly improved. Mr. LeGros has four comfortably upholstered barber chairs for the accommodation of his patrons. His tonsorial quarters are fitted in up-to-date style, the large walnut dressing case and leather-covered lounges and chairs and other fixtures enhancing the comfort and convenience of the premises. The same excellent combination system of lighting has been carried out here, as in the cigar store—some forty lights in all being available when required.

Mr. LeGros is naturally proud of his whole premises, and an appreciating public will naturally give him credit for his enterprise. His next move is a cigar factory over the store.

NO. ONE COMPANY'S DINNER.

Capt. Cluxton and Lieut. Layfield Entertain

The Men of Their Company at McCallum's Restaurant Last Night —The Speeches.

McCallum's Restaurant was the scene of much festivity last night, it being the occasion of a dinner to No. 1 Company, of the 57th Regt. by the officers of the same, Capt. Harold Cluxton and Lieut. R. E. Layfield.

With the general improvement in the 57th Regt. during the past year or two, No. 1 has kept its place, and to-day the officers and members of the company claim to be to the front, not only by virtue of their number, but as regards proficiency in drill and general qualification. In this assertion, perhaps, they have facts to substantiate their claims, but there can be no doubt that socially speaking, No. 1 is composed of a jovial lot of fellows to spend an evening with.

On parade or in drill of any sort, the men are of fine appearance, and most attentive to their duties. In brief the officers are proud of their men, and the men reciprocate and are proud of their officers, as is evident from the harmony that exists between all parties.

There is nothing however that tends to bring a company up to that degree of harmony so necessary to a successful corps, as company dinners which have not of late years been held any too frequently. It gives officers, non-coms., and men, an opportunity of talking in a friendly spirit around the festive board of those things that are for the welfare of the company. No. 1 has set the pace in this regard, and such an occasion was this that took place at McCallum's last night. The men had spent an hour or more at the drill shed going through company drill, and about ten o'clock they sat down to a sumptuous spread. The chair was occupied by Capt. Cluxton, who is becoming exceedingly popular with his men, and the vice-chair was ably filled by Lt. R. E. Layfield, who after ten years of faithful service in the ranks and on the staff, was rewarded recently with a commission. Seated around the tables were: Colour-Sergt. G. W. Mulligan, Corps. R. A. Sheppard, D. H. Mosley, G. Tovey, and W. H. G. Armstrong, W. Vass, J. Fairbairn, E. W. Gray, G. F. Webber, E. Dormer, J. Howland, A. Vass, J. Costello, R. G. Pringle, Prof. R. Glidden, A. Levasseur, J. J. Bygott, W. E. Pollard, W. H. Moore, J. Crowe, R. Robertson, J. G. Brown, J. A. Wilson, J. Legg, W. Staples, C. Campbell.

After ample justice had been done to an excellent spread, the programme opened by the singing of God Save the King, followed by three rousing cheers and a tiger for His Majesty.

Bandsman Joe Legg was called upon for a song and responded very ably with "The Bells of Fate," which he rendered in his usual sweet voice and for which he received much applause. Capt. Cluxton came next with his old time favourite "For I'm off to Philadelphia in the Morning." Captain Cluxton quite humourously called this his regimental, but it is nevertheless always well received.

Bandsman Bygott said, on rising, that he was a stranger amongst the gathering, but he soon became quite at home with his comic songs, which he voluntarily rendered and which caused great laughter. The toast of the Governor-General was proposed by Lieut. Cluxton and was heartily drunk and responded to by all singing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

At the request of Captain Cluxton, Lieut. Layfield and Sergeant W. H. Moore spoke briefly on the subject of rifle shooting.

Lieutenant Cluxton said that it was a subject he took a great deal of interest in and he therefore thanked the Captain for calling on him to speak on the same. No. 1 Company was always noted for its good shooting and was only one point behind the best shooting company last year. Their representative, Sgt. Moore, had carried off all kinds of prizes at both Ottawa and Toronto, which was indeed a great honour and this year number one will be head of the list. He spoke of the different shooting leagues in the regiment and explained the provisions under which the members of the company are required to compete. Lieut. Layfield spoke in high terms of Sgt. Moore, who carried off prizes in Peterborough, Ottawa and in the Association Matches and he reminded the boys that Sgt. Moore had only two years experience. He gave reasons why recruits should not become discouraged and he appealed to them very strongly to turn out to the butts each Saturday. It is a healthy sport and one which can be taken up while quite young and continued until one is too old to see the butts.

After Captain Cluxton had made a complimentary reference to Sergt. Moore, the Sergeant proceeded to speak on his subject. He disclaimed any pretence at being a speaker but said that it was important that every man should be able to handle his rifle. He thought that the men were coming along splendidly and he would like to have the company a shooting company and the regiment a shooting regiment.

Mr. Robert Shepphard sang one of his compositions being an eulogy on "No. 1" in which a number of pleasant local hits were brought out.

"The 57th Band" was a toast that was drunk amid much enthusiasm.

Prof. Glidden's reply was characterized by sound advice and its modesty. He expressed the great pleasure he felt at being present and of being attached to No. 1 Company. He spoke of the harmony that existed in the band and the sympathy shown by that organization with the rest of the regiment. They all desired the fighting men to be up to the mark and the members of the band now feel as perhaps they never felt before that they are in every sense a part of the regiment. He was glad to see the 57th going so smoothly and he looked forward to the time when it will be the banner regiment of the Dominion outside of the city regiments. He spoke in eulogistic terms of Captain Cluxton and felt that under his command the company would reach a high state of proficiency.

Bandsman Wilson also spoke a few words.

Mr. R. Shepphard rendered another song, after which Mr. Gliddon proposed the toast of Capt. Cluxton.

The Captain, on arising to reply, was greeted by the boys singing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." He said that it was the first time he ever had the song sung for him, but he would rather have it sung by his own company than anyone else. He went on to speak of how he came into the command of No. 1 Company, of which he was now so proud. They have a set of recruits that are so well drilled that one would have hard work to pick them out from the older men. The moral tone of the regiment is of a great deal higher standard than previous years, a fact which was frequently commented on by the citizens as the boys march down the streets. The reason for this is that no such inducement as a trip, or $6 a year has been offered to them but a higher view was taken when joining, and the men enlisted out of a sense of duty. Captain Cluxton then went on to speak of the enthusiasm that prevails in the regiment and spoke of the anxiety of all the men to learn all they can. He closed by thanking the men for their support and assured them of the best possible treatment.

Lieutenant Layfield, who has had a ten year connection with No. 1, spoke of the interest he took in the company. He impressed upon the men the necessity for continuous work at the ranges.

Sergeant Moore, in asking the company to sing the "Maple Leaf Forever," remarked that the first schoolteacher he ever went to was the author of the same. It was sung right heartily.

Captain Cluxton, in proposing the toast of the press, said many kind things regarding the assistance the local papers rendered the regiment. They were, he said, the 57th's staunchest friends and were deserving of the hearty thanks of all.

The local representatives of the press present, replied.

"The Non-Coms." brought to his feet Sergt. Milligan and Bandsman Dormer, followed by singing "Tommy Atkins." The "Ladies" were represented by Messrs. Vass and Campbell, and afterwards Captain Cluxton recited a selection from Prof. Drummond.

The toast of our host was disposed of and the affair broke up with the singing of "Auld Lany Syne" and "God Save the King."

USING ANÆSTHETICS.

THE FACTS ABOUT THE EFFECTS OF CHLOROFORM AND ETHER.

Evil Deeds Are Not Easy to Do With the Aid of These Drugs—Some Popular Misinformation on the Subject Corrected.

A curious case of robbery under chloroform which was decided in London not long ago was followed with great interest by writers on medical jurisprudence. Hitherto many such writers have expressed great doubt about these cases, for the process is by no means so easy of use as people think.

Very extravagant ideas prevail among the public as to the power of anæsthetics, owing perhaps to the license employed by novelists when they describe "fancy" cases in their books.

One reads, for instance, of a man in a railway carriage waving a handkerchief before the face of a fellow traveler and producing instantaneous unconsciousness. This is absolutely impossible. Another imaginative writer recently described a murder carried out by pushing a towel saturated with a powerful anæsthetic under the bedroom door of his sleeping victim. This also is nonsense.

In another tale the more feasible plan is carried out of entering the sleeping man's chamber, pouring the anæsthetic on the bed, the murderer standing by and watching his victim die. But even this is stretching the truth rather severely.

The true facts about chloroform and its companion anæsthetic, ether, are as follows:

First, with regard to administering the drug during sleep, doctors have made very exhaustive experiments, for it would be of great advantage to a patient on whom an operation has to be performed to chloroform him while asleep and save him the horror which so many people have of the inhalation, and they sum up the results, showing that very rarely can chloroform be administered to a sleeping person without awakening him. Grown people are, with the rarest exception, awakened by the irritating fumes. If a man were tired and if his nose were naturally insensitive to unpleasant odors, and especially if he were under the influence of drink, it might be possible to make him unconscious while asleep. But not even every doctor could do it. The operation would require the highest skill, and the most skillful administrator would succeed only once in a hundred times.

If we take the case of spilling the chloroform in a room and thus impregnating all the air of the room, the thing is out of the question. Yet not only do novelists assert that this can be done, but many people have been actually charged in real life with doing it—for the purpose of blackmailing them, for injuring them or perhaps to throw off suspicion from the pretended victim who has committed the robbery himself. If the room measures, say, 12 feet square and is 9 feet high, it would probably take a gallon of chloroform spilled on the floor to make a man unconscious. All the chinks and crannies would have to be stopped up first, moreover, and the operator himself would have to be poison proof or he also would succumb.

As a matter of fact, the only way to render a person unconscious by the use of chloroform is in the way practiced by surgeons in the operating room. And this is by no means an easy task. There are several ways of doing it. The chloroform may be dropped on a handkerchief, which is then held over the face at some little distance, or it may be dropped on a sponge, or it may be used in one of the innumerable machines invented for the purpose. But the vapor must be mixed with air before it is breathed. That is the reason the handkerchief or the sponge is held some inches from the face. As a rule it takes from five to eight minutes to make the person unconscious, and during this time he generally struggles very violently.

It is probable that many of the charges of chloroforming which have been made are false. Sometimes the pretended victim asserts that he has become unconscious immediately. But it has been shown in evidence that the time necessary to bring about this result is at least four or five minutes. Sometimes he says he could not cry out, yet he describes all the circumstances of the administration minutely. Now, the first effect of the chloroform is to produce confusion of the mind, while, on the other hand, the patient can cry out almost up to the last. He becomes mentally confused before he loses the power of speech. These few facts are sufficient perhaps to demonstrate that some charges of possible chloroforming are necessarily untrue.—London Mail.

Perfect Health

Is within the reach of almost every woman. The weakness, nervousness and irritability from which so many women suffer is in general due to disease of the delicate womanly organism. When the disease is cured the general health is re-established.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It promotes regularity, dries disagreeable and enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these diseases are cured, headache, backache, nervousness and weakness are cured also.

"I was very weak and nervous when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' about a year ago," writes Mrs. M. R. Everette, of 69 Oxford Street, Woodstock, Ont. "I had been suffering for seven long months, and had taken medicines from a physician all the time, but it seemed to make me feel much worse. My stomach was so bad (as my doctor told me), and my nerves were in such a state that I would start at the least noise. I felt irritable at all times; was not able to do any of my own housework; had to keep help all the time. How I suffered God and myself alone knew. I was greatly discouraged when I commenced taking your medicines, but the first bottle seemed to help me. I took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I can highly recommend these medicines to all who suffer as I did. I never had better health than I now enjoy, and it is all owing to Dr. Pierce's medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WOMAN'S LONG WALK.

Did the Distance From New York to Toronto Almost All on Foot.

Except for a short lift in a farmer's wagon, Agnes Jeffs walked the entire distance from New York to Toronto. Tired and covered with dust of her long journey she walked into No. 1 police station, Toronto, one night in the beginning of May, and accosted Sergeant Seymour with the object of getting a night's lodging. The woman was middle-aged, muscular, well built and apparently very respectable, and the sergeant sent for the matron. The wanderer said that she was a native of England, but came to America to get a situation as servant, working for a time in New York city. Not liking Gotham she determined to go back, but wanted to see more of this part of the world. Accordingly she set out on foot, having enough money to get food and lodging. Two nights she spent in the open being overtaken by darkness. In her journey she met several tramps, but was not molested.

Country Editor Strikes Back.

An editor in an Ontario village which shall be nameless, after leaving most of the contents of his purse at a church fair, strikes back in this style: "A church fair is a function where a man spends more money than he can afford, for things he does not want, to please people he does not like, for the benefit of the heathen, who are better off left alone."

Took Him at His Word.

"Men on newspapers often have peculiar experiences," said W. A. Fairchild of Chicago, "and such a one befell a friend of mine some time ago. The friend in question was city editor of a great daily, and in the course of his manifold duties it fell to his lot to take to task one of his reporters. The reporter in question was an Englishman, slow of thought and action and miserly of speech. Through the tirade to which he was subjected he said nothing, and when it finally ended he left the presence of his superior without any comment.

"But, as the result proved, he did some tall thinking. City editors when 'riled,' as is well known, are not particularly choice or economical in the language they bestow on their unfortunate reporters, and among other things the Englishman had been told that he was no better than—in fact, was—a crazy man and that his proper habitat was a lunatic asylum and not the hall bedroom of a Chicago boarding house which he occupied.

"The Englishman took this part of the city editor's remarks as his text and acted upon them. He promptly went to an asylum, had himself thoroughly examined by three or four alienists and secured from them an official certificate to the fact that he was sane. With this he appeared at the office of his paper the next day, and, entering the editor's sanctum, he slapped it down before his astonished and dismayed superior. 'Now, you go and get one,' was his only comment and for once that city editor capitulated."

Cost of a Coronation.

It is interesting to see how the cost of William IV.'s coronation—which amounted to just over £40,000—was built up. Here are the official items in the bill:

Their Majesties' household	£22,234
Office arms, King's herald and pursuivants	1,473
Officer of works, fitting up Westminster Abbey	12,663
Royal mint, coronation medals	4,324
Fireworks, keeping open public theatres on the night of the coronation	2,084

LOYALTY IN THE BAHAMAS.

Effect on Natives of News of Ladysmith's Relief and Queen's Death.

"I don't know that I ever saw a greater contrast in a small corner of the world," said a regular winter visitor to the Bahamas, "than I witnessed in Nassau when the news was received there a year ago that Ladysmith had fallen, and when last January the report came that Queen Victoria was dead. London's riot of joy over Ladysmith was duplicated in a small way at Nassau. Shops were closed and the entire town took on a gala appearance. All the flags were flying, big and little ones, on every house front, and even in Grantstown every hut had its flag. Shortly after the news came a crowd started up the street with drums beating, flags waving, and children arrayed in holiday dress. Walking up Bay street I met an old negro woman. She had no shoes on her feet, her gown was tattered and torn, a coarse coffee sack apron was about her waist, on her head was a yellow turban, and between her lips was an old clay pipe. Across her bosom was pinned an English flag, for which she probably paid a ha'-penny. I stopped her and said:—

"'Aunty, everybody seems to be happy to-day.'

"'Yes, chile,' she said, 'I don't know what dey's happy about, but dey tell me de Queen's happy and so is I.'

"In this speech the loyalty and devotion to England's Queen was shown. That very loyalty and regard for the Sovereign was shown when the news came that Victoria was dead. It was personal mourning that was seen on all sides. No matter how poor these subjects were each managed to secure a piece of black crepe or silk or woollen or cotton cloth, and men, women and children displayed the emblem tied about the left arm. Even the babies had bows of black on the left shoulder. As I stood in the cathedral listening to the "Dead March" and saw the wreaths of violets and lilies laid upon the altar, I felt that each of the mourners who crowded the edifice was grief-stricken, not because of the death of the Queen, but because of the death of his or her Queen.

"Strangely enough, many of the negroes, feared return to slavery upon the accession of Edward VII. When the official proclamation was read they were very down-hearted. They are a simple-minded folk, and any change is disheartening to them. A proclamation always frightens them. It is full of big words to them and is not comprehensible. It conveys an idea of change, of something new, something different, and they dread it. Before I left Nassau, however, I heard many of the negroes singing 'God Save the King,' lustily enough."

A Perfect Laxative.

A laxative is one of the most necessary medical agents. Most every ailment is either caused by or causes a clogged condition of the bowels. This fact has caused the placing on the market of hundreds of laxative medicines. Many of these preparations will do what is claimed—move the bowels. But they are in the end more harmful than good. Their action is harsh and accompanied by such pain that they leave the stomach so inflamed and enfeebled that it immediately goes back to its constipated condition, but naturally much worse than previously.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is a laxative—but it is more, too. It does not act only by moving the bowels gently, safely and surely but it refreshes and strengthens the stomach, fitting it for its work. It tones up the digestive organs and purifies the blood. It will do this for the most stubborn case of chronic constipation.

A SYMPHONY IN BLACK

Mr. Bourassa, of Labelle, Entertains the Stranger.

WEARISOME WHEN WELL KNOWN

Pen Picture of a Member of the Dominion House of Commons Who Has Been Somewhat in the Public Eye During Session Just About to Close—His Gesture and Voice.

Mr. Bourassa's remarks were delivered to a decidedly inattentive House. Of the Cabinet Ministers present, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Louis Davies, and Mr. Fielding attended to their correspondence. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Tarte, and Mr. Paterson listened indifferently enough, while Mr. Sifton, who intended to speak, paid the best of attention. The Opposition benches were but scantily filled, and on the Government side there were many vacant seats, while of those who were there, Mackie of North Renfrew, Davis of Saskatchewan, Roche of Halifax and D. C. Fraser all dosed, while Dr. McLennan of Inverness evidently wanted to do the same thing, but found it difficult because Mr. Bourassa, whose desk is just across the aisle from him, managed by one of his frequent gestures during the early part of his speech to upset a glass of water over the nether limbs of the member from Inverness.

Mr. Bourassa's gestures do not always have so unpleasant an effect. Generally they are easy and graceful, and do no more harm than lacerate the atmosphere. The member for Labelle has always been an interesting—possibly an eccentric—member of the Canadian Parliament, says The Ottawa correspondent of The Toronto Star. He is of medium height, and is slight and symmetrical of build. His hair is black, closely clipped, and never parted; he wears a moustache, luxuriant and black, and a short beard, cut a la Napoleon. He is always dressed in black, never wears a sack coat, has black eyes, and wears besides his other sable garments black shoes and a black necktie. A perfect symphony in black is Bourassa of Labelle. His face is narrowish, his nose aquiline, and his forehead high but receding, tapering back to a skull round as a bullet at the back. Mr. Bourassa's voice is clear and ringing, his delivery easy, his English, as a general thing, pure and undefiled, though marked, of course, by a French accent, his gestures as easy as his delivery.

A MONSTER LOCOMOTIVE.

Weighs 154 Tons, and Has a Six Foot Fly Wheel.

Superintendent Egan, of the Grand Trunk Railway, has a new pet, which he calls 988. It is the greatest locomotive that ever rolled over the rails of the Toronto yards, and no larger one could get inside the roundhouse without raising the roof. The big locomotive which hauls the average fast passenger train, weighs 90 tons, but this gazelle tips the scales at 154 tons. The ordinary fly-wheel is five feet in diameter; the wheels which carry this one are 72 inches high. To feed her as she flys across the desert of steel she carries ten tons of coal and six thousand gallons of water, about double the allowance of the average passenger engine.

This graceful creature is 65 feet long, and the top of the boiler towers up 15 feet above the rails. The pistons are 20 by 26 inches, much larger than the ordinary, and she will carry 200 pounds steam pressure instead of 185, but in spite of this, and in spite of her great drawing capacity, she is not a heavy eater of coal, as she works at easy pressure, and does not throw coal out of the smokestack.

This engine, working easily, will saunter along at 60 miles an hour and draw from ten to fourteen cars, and if pressed will leave the telegraph poles behind at 70 miles per hour. She will be placed on the run between Niagara Falls and Sarnia Tunnel, and will make the run without change. The engine was turned out of the Grand Trunk shops at St. Charles, and was designed by Mr. Frank W. Morse, superintendent of motive power.

A Story of Disraeli.

An English paper is responsible for the following delicious story: Soon after Lord Galloway entered the British House of Lords, he presumed so far upon his relationship to the Marquis of Salisbury as to write to Disraeli to ask for the office of Master of the Buckhounds, and he was favored with a reply which read somewhat as follows: "I am sorry that I cannot recommend you for the office of Master of the Buckhounds, as Her Majesty dislikes having anybody connected with the Royal Household who uses bad language. But I will recommend you for the Lord High Commissionership to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland." And, sure enough, Lord Galloway held the Lord High Commissionership to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, both in 1876 and 1877. How Disraeli must have chuckled over that note, and over the appointment

THE BOOKS ON CANADA

Review of the Publications Relating to This Country in 1900.

SEVEN PAGES OF BRIEF TITLES.

It Was Edited by the Professor of History (Prof. Wrong) of Toronto University, and Published by That Institution of Learning — Canada's Relations to the Empire—Other Sections of the Review.

The fifth volume of "The Review of Historical Publications Relating to Canada," published by the University of Toronto, and edited by the professor of history (Professor Wrong) and the librarian of the university (Mr. H. H. Langton), has just appeared, and embodies a review of all the publications of 1900 relating to Canada. It is sumptuously printed. Annually for five years a volume such as this has been issued. It seemed at first hardly possible that each year a book of more than two hundred pages could be filled with review of the publications relating to Canada appearing in a single year. Yet here it is. Nearly seven pages are taken up with the brief titles alone of these publications.

The contents are divided conveniently into groups, of which "Canada's Relations to the Empire" stands first. Nothing very important under this head appeared in 1900, if we except the able book on "Commercial Federation and Colonial Trade Policy," written by Professor Davidson of the University of New Brunswick. He proposes, in lieu of preferential trade, that subsidies should be paid in order to cheapen transportation within the Empire. This would amount to a practical preference, and would do good all round. Anything more than this is unlikely, he thinks, to be effected.

The second section in The Review is "The History of Canada," and a large number of works appeared in 1900. There are some learned reviews on the Cabot question. The great edition of the "Jesuit Relations," just completed, calls for a long article. A new and scholarly life of Champlain, by M. Gravier, has appeared, and some attention is paid to works on the diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the United States affecting Canada. A good many inaccuracies and omissions in the articles on Canadians in the "Dictionary of National Biography" are pointed out.

In the third section, "Provincial and Local History," the French shore question as it affects Newfoundland is reviewed, the "tenth island" being treated as really a part of Canada. The Nova Scotia Government has published a new volume of archives throwing more light upon the Acadian question. Judge Routhier has written an interesting history of the City of Quebec, and Mr. John Ross Robertson's "Landmarks of Toronto" is noted. The Northwest and British Columbia are much in evidence, Mr. Beckles Willson's and Dr. Bryce's histories of the Hudson Bay Company being the most important works in the year. Mr. Baillie-Grohman gives an amusing account of sport and life in British Columbia.

In the fourth section, "Geography, Economics and Statistics," numerous works on the Klondike are noticed. This review is the best guide to the enormous literature upon this subject. In an earlier volume Dr. G. M. Dawson, the late Director of the Geological Survey of Canada, described the Klondike literature up to the time of writing. The publications of 1900 have not lost the former sensational character. The Klondike miners are, it appears, admirers of Shakespeare. "Nearly everywhere Shakespeare seems to be the favorite author. . . . A gulch that had a full set of Shakespeare considered itself in for rather a cosy winter, and there were regular Shakespeare clubs, where each miner took a certain character to read.

The reviewer of the Statistical Year-book of Canada, edited by Mr. George Johnson, rebukes what he calls its tone of narrow patriotism.

The progress of mining in Canada and the work of the Geological Survey are described, and we have a record of travel in Canada, extending from Labrador to the Pacific Coast. Perhaps the most breezy book reviewed is "Buffalo Jones' Forty Years' of Adventure." "Archaeology, Ethnology and Folk-lore" and "Education" complete the volume. Many publications relating to the Indians in Canada appeared during the year. In connection with education, readers are pleased to see a sketch of the career and a complete bibliography of Sir Daniel Wilson.

On the whole, the contents of the review are most varied and interesting. Nowhere else is there to be found such a repertoire of information regarding works on Canada. Professor Wrong and his collaborateurs criticize frankly. The tone is fair, however, and frank criticism is still so rare in this country as to deserve a special meed of praise.

NO ARGUMENT NEEDED.

Every Sufferer From Catarrh Knows That Salves, Lotions, Washes, Sprays and Douches do Not Cure.

Powders, lotions, salves, sprays and inhalers cannot really cure Catarrh, because this disease is a blood disease, and local applications, if they accomplish anything at all, simply give transient relief.

The catarrhal poison is in the blood and the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and trachea tries to relieve the system by secreting large quantities of mucous, the discharge sometimes closing up the nostrils, dropping into the throat, causing deafness by closing the Eustachian tubes, and after a time causing catarrh of stomach or serious throat and lung troubles.

A remedy to really cure catarrh must be an internal remedy which will cleanse the blood from catarrhal poison and remove the fever and congestion from the mucous membrane.

The best and most modern remedies for this purpose are antiseptics scientifically known as Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Sanguinaria and Hydrastin, and while each of these have been successfully used seperately, yet it has been difficult to get them all combined in one palatable, convenient and efficient form.

The manufacturers of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have succeeded admirably in accomplishing this result. They are large, pleasant tasting lozenges, to be dissolved in the mouth, thus reaching every part of the mucous membrane of the throat and finally the stomach.

Unlike many catarrh remedies, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain no cocaine, opiate or any injurious drug, whatever, and are equally beneficial for little children and adults.

Mr. C. E. Rembrandt of Rochester, N. Y., says: "I know of few people who have suffered as much as I from Catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I used sprays, inhalers and powders for months at a time with only slight relief and had no hope of cure. I had not the means to make a change of climate, which seemed my only chance of cure.

Last spring I read an account of some remarkable cures made by Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and promptly bought a 50-cent box from my druggist and obtained such positive benefit from that one package that I continued to use them daily until I now consider myself entirely free from the disgusting annoyance of catarrh; my head is clear, my digestion all I could ask and my hearing which had begun to fail as a result of the catarrh, has greatly improved until I feel I can hear as well as ever. They are a household necessity in my family.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents for complete treatment and for convenience, safety and prompt results they are undoubtedly the long looked for catarrh cure.

Your liver is pretty sure to become laden with poisonous matter in springtime. This time of year there is not so much required from your stomach and digestive apparatus, and consequently if you eat a little too much it simply lies in the liver and produces germs. That's what makes you feel weary of living. The effect of the condensed oxygen that you get in Powley's Liquified Ozone is purifying and cleansing to the liver and blood. Mrs. Hill, 1152 Dufferin street, Toronto, has found it so. This is what she says :—

"I have been completely cured of Liver Trouble and loss of appetite, with severe headaches, by the use of your Ozone. It is a grand remedy. I have recommended it to all my friends who need it, and it has done its work in each case without fail."

50c and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. Write the Ozone Co., of Toronto, Limited, 46 Colborne St., Toronto, or the Liquified Ozone Co., 229 Kinzie St., Chicago, Ill., for their literature and any information you desire.

COSTLY LONDON FOG.

Eight Hours of It Often Creates Half a Million Dollars' Damage.

A London fog is an expensive visitation. A day of it, counting the days at eight hours, is estimated to cost anything from £100,000 in hard cash. No small proportion of this goes to the gas and electric light companies, which have to supply about a third more power than usual. But there are also the railways. Fog-signalling is expensive. At Chapman Junction alone £50 has been spent by a single railway company during a day's fog in extra pay to the plate layers. When the red light cannot be seen at a distance of a hundred yards the plate layers become fog signallers and for this they are paid a shilling a day in addition to their regular wages and 4d. per hour over time, provided the over time does not run into a second shilling.

Fog signals, like a cuckoo, are more frequently heard than seen, and like a number of things such as babies, cats and crickets, make an amount of noise altogether out of proportion to their size. The largest of those in use is scarcely bigger than a crown piece, and is a quarter of an inch in depth. The little tin box contains a teaspoonful of gunpowder and three percussion caps and is fitted on to the rail by a red ribbon. It comes from Birmingham mostly and costs exactly a penny apiece. A hundred and fifty thousand or so are purchased by a big railway company in a year, and there are not many left over at the end of it.—London Chronicle.

The Cannon and Science.

The president of the French Academy of Sciences remarked in a recent address that the cannon is one of the most instructive laboratories that science possesses. It was the modern cannon, he said, which suggested the application of explosive gases to the driving of engines. The experience of the immense pressures obtained in cannon also led to the use of pressures in steam machines which a few years ago would have been regarded as impracticable. Thus experiments intended primarily for the purposes of war had resulted in the advance of the triumphs of peace.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

AN INTERESTING REPORT

Of Messrs. J. J. Hartley and James Stevenson.

At the Educational Association in Toronto Last Month—What They Observed.

Appended will be found the report of Messrs. J. J. Hartley and Jas. Stevenson, of the Peterborough Board of Education, who attended the annual educational convention in Toronto:

Gentlemen,—As delegates from this Board, we attended the meetings of the Ontario Educational Association held in Toronto on April 10th and 11th.

This Association shows a steadily increasing membership, there being this year over 500 delegates present from all parts of the Province. It comprises some dozen or more sub-departments, each devoted to a special phase of educational work.

We confined our attention solely to the Trustees' Department, and although the discussions may not have been such as to be of any immediate benefit to this Board, yet they may be of value in some of our future deliberations.

"Voluntary Public Schools" formed the subject of a paper read by a Mr. Burritt, of Pembroke, in which he strongly opposed state recognition or assistance for such institions.

Mr. Baldwin, of Toronto, who is interested in one of these schools, advocated their claims, but the meeting adopted a resolution in favor of the sentiments expressed by Mr. Burritt.

Dr. Noble, of Toronto, spoke on the efficiency of High School training. He was followed by Mr. Dow, of Whitby, who advocated the teaching of languages in the Public Schools. This suggestion appeared to meet with approval, though it was not thought advisable to make these subjects compulsory.

The Entrance Examination came in for considerable discussion in this as well as in several other departments. It would appear that at present they give rise to much dissatisfaction. It was proposed to substitute fo rthem the recommendations and reports of the teachers. This the Trustees' section would not endorse, though it was agreed that such reports should be considered in connection with the examinations.

At a meeting of the General Association, Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria University, and Mr. Scott, Principal of the Toronto Normal School, it was decided to recommend that the Entrance Examination should consist of oral reading, writing, dictation, grammar, composition, geography and arithmatic, and that in the other subjects, literature, history, drawing and physiology, the teachers' report should be accepted.

Inspector Cowley, of Carleton County, spoke of "Reform in our School System." He pointed out the failure of the compulsory law in regard to school attendance, the over-crowding of the Public School curriculum and the necessity for higher moral training.

Two resolutions adopted by the Trustees' Department may be mentioned. By the first, the principal of giving increased renumeration to retain valued teachers in rural sections, was endorsed, and by the second it was decided to recommend that no teacher under 21 years of age should hereafter receive a professional certificate.

We took advantage of our visit to Toronto to make some enquiries regarding Manual Training, and by the kindness of Inspector Hughes, we were permitted to visit one of the City Schools in which this branch of work was carried on. From what we saw and learned, we are of the opinion that the establishment of such a course would not, as is generally supposed, entail any great expense either in the matter of accommodation or equipment. The room we visited formed an apparently cheaply constructed addition to the regular school building, and provided accommodation for about forty pupils. As the school was not in session, we saw nothing of the work done.

Referring to school ventilation, we were informed that in Toronto neither the health officers or the school authorities had any complaint to make against the system of dry-earth closets in school buildings, but that there was a strong public feeling opposed to it, to allay which flushing closets were substituted where possible.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. J. HARTLEY,
J. STEVENSON.

SOME MILITARY NEWS

What is Going on in the Local Regiments.

Interesting Bits of Military Gossip—57th Regiment and 3rd Dragoons.

The Militia Department is determined that they will have Lieut.-Colonel H. C. Rogers in camp at Belleville as a Brigadier. He has refused once already the offer, owing to press of business, but they are still pressing him for an acceptance. Colonel Rogers may yet accept the position—as at least it is the wish of all that he will. He will have charge of the 4th Hussars and 3rd Dragoons.

Captain J. W. Garvin, Quarter-Master of the 3rd Dragoons, has arrived home from a three weeks' trip to New York, Buffalo and other American cities. He is now preparing for his onerous duties at camp.

While not a great deal has been heard of the bugle and drum corps of the 57th of late, still it is by no means defunct and they will surprise the public before long. Four excellent young drummers are coming along very rapidly and with the new drums that have been ordered, the bugle and drum band of the 57th will be up to that of any city regiment.

Major Sutton, who will have command of the Dragoons at the coming camp was in town to-day arranging matters of a preliminary nature.

Major Galloway, Commandant of the Second Military District, inspected the Orillia High School Cadets on Monday last. They passed a creditable examination, so the "News-Letter" says.

Mr. "Chill" Turner will go to camp this year as Hospital Sergeant for Dr. Young, Surgeon-Major of the Dragoons. "Chill's" year's experience in the hospitals of South Africa will well fit him for the position.

Captain George Syer, of "B" Squadron, Millbrook 3rd Dragoons, was in town to-day shaking hands with local military men. Captain Syer is the youngest squadron commander in the regiment and is exceedingly popular. He says that his squadron is already up to full strength.

Militia orders require that all volunteers going into camp this year must be vaccinated. Each volunteer on arriving at camp must present a certificate of vaccination, otherwise he will be sent home at the expense of the captain of his company.

When the 3rd Dragoons go under canvas at Kingston on June 18th, one week from Tuesday, the officers of the Regiment will have a new caterer in the person of Mr. McQuay, the George street confectioner. Mr. McQuay, with his efficient staff, which he will no doubt have, will be well able to look after the mess in a manner which should please all parties concerned.

Private R. G. Johnston, of Fairmont, Cavan, who went from Peterborough with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, now holds a commission in the Springville Company of the 4th East Durham Regiment. He will be in camp with his company at Kingston commencing on June 18th.

Captain Johnston, of the Springville Company, 46th East Durham Regiment of Infantry, was engaged issuing "kits" to his men last Saturday night and will about complete the work of outfitting this evening. Captain Johnston's company has always been the crack company of the 46th.

There will be only four or five more parades of the 57th Regiment before inspection and it therefore behooves every officer, non-commissioned officer and man of the regiment to turn out on every possible occasion from this forward and pay strict attention to his work. So far this season the drills of the 57th have been most successful and there is every reason to believe that a very creditable showing will be made at the anhual inspection which will likely be before General O'Grady-Haley.

A course of military instruction for school teachers of high schools or collegiate institutes in the Province of Ontario will be commenced at Stanley Barracks on July 5th next.

PRICE OF BINDER TWINE.

The Ontario Government Fixes It at Eight Cents.

A big Improvement has Also Been Made in the Method of Parcelling it—Packing Material Will be Useful.

The Hon. Mr. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and the Inspector of Prisons have decided upon the price (8 cents per pound) by which farmers can be supplied with binder twine from the Ontario Central Prison, for the season of 1901. This year there is only one quality that will be supplied, and that the best, of which every ball and every ounce is guaranteed, and any farmer who purchases this twine and does not find it satisfactory can, by returning it have the price paid for the twine returned. This condition, however, is not likely to arise, for there is no question of the quality of the twine supplied the farmer—it is as good as the best twine that will be placed upon the market this year.

There will be besides a decided, and, to the farmer, profitable, improvement in the mode of parcelling. Heretofore it has been the practice of binder-twine manufacturers to ship twine in ordinary jute bags, which were useless to the farmer after the twine was received, and the lashings, of loosely twisted tow, were also useless after their temporary purpose was served. The weight of these sacks and lashings was six per cent. of the weight of the bale.

But this is now changed as regards the twine from the Central Prison, and there will be no six per cent. loss to the farmer. The twine will hereafter be shipped in two-bushel, 16-oz. cotton grain bags of excellent quality, which will be of permanent use to the farmer, as will also be the lashings, which consist of two nine-feet rope halters, with snap and ring ready for use. The value of the grain bag is greater than an equal weight of twine, and the same applies to the halters. The twine balls are five pounds in weight each—twelve to the bag—and of a length of five hundred feet to the pound, and of uniform quality throughout.

PROVINCE AND CITY.

Mr. Stratton Replies to City Treasurer Coady.

Says the Treasurer Takes a Narrow Shopkeeping View of the Relations of the Two—Enormous Sums Spent in Toronto.

To a representative of The Globe yesterday Hon. Mr. Stratton, the Provincial Secretary, made an interesting statement in regard to the financial relations of the city and the Government, according to the City Treasurer's remarks as reported in The Globe.

"I suppose, Mr. Stratton," said the reporter, "you saw in The Globe the remarks of the City Treasurer of Toronto respecting his claim that the Provincial Government should give the city some financial return for the privileges the Government enjoy?"

Yes," replied Mr. Stratton, "I noticed the City Treasurer's claim with some surprise, which did not become less when I reflected upon what narrow grounds that official's claim is based. A little consideration will show that the Province is giving much more than a full equivalent to the city for all the advantages given by the city to the Government. Figures show to what extent Toronto has benefitted by the fact of the city being the seat of Government. The City Treasurer seems to take a narrow shopkeeping view of the matter. To meet him on his own ground, however, it may be pointed out that he forgets the fact that since 1867 Toronto has received in direct grants and in indirect benefits from the Ontario Government over four million dollars which may be generally mentioned as follows:—

"Grants to Public, Separate and High Schools, $787,740; Mechanics Institutes, $8,415; Administration of Justice, $63,919; for Hospitals and Charities, $1,140,972; for Agricultural Exhibitions, $15,674; or a total of $2,016,721. The benefits derived by the City of Toronto from the presence of asylums, prisons, reformatories, etc., aggregate since Confederation $1,500,000. Then the benefits received by the City of Toronto giving employment to building trades and labour by the money spent on public buildings from 1867 amount to $2,793,771. These buildings are the Toronto and Mimico Asylums, Central Prison, Mercer Reformatory, educational buildings, Osgoode Hall, School of Practical Science and Government House. To this is to be added an expenditure of $1,316,425 for the new Parliament Buildings, making a grand total of $4,110,197.

"To calculate a little more closely, analyse the direct and indirect expenditures which Toronto gets the benefit of this year, according to the estimates of 1901, for civil government, $270,000, the great bulk of which is spent in the form of civil servants' salaries residing in the city; legislation, $182,000, of which $60,000 is indemnity to members, the larger share of which is also spent in the city; administration of justice, $50,000, the amount which is spent for salaries of officials and maintenance of courts, etc., of which Toronto is the centre; Toronto Asylum, $100,000; Mimico Asylum, $75,000; with the addition of large sums spent on the clothing of private pay patients; Central Prison, $30,000; Mercer Reformatory, $25,000; Normal and Model Schools, Toronto, $25,000; School of Practical Science, $27,000; departmental library, etc., $8,000.

"These figures which I have just given represent the direct expenditure in the way of salaries of officials and purchases of supplies of various kinds. The same very largely may be said of the bill for repairs and maintenance for Government and departmental buildings, $86,000, of which $70,000 will be expended on buildings situated in the City of Toronto, for which supplies of material and labor will be very largely furnished by the city. To this is to be added $2,000, special expenditure on Government House on account of the visit of the Duke of Cornwall and York. Then we have put down in this year's estimates $50,000 towards the new buildings for the School of Practical Science, which is to cost $200,000. Then we have on account of public buildings of various kinds situated in the city an expenditure of $83,125 additional voted for this year. This combined expenditure for the year 1901, of which Toronto very largely, if not entirely, gets the financial benefit, amounts to nearly $928,000. I would not like to estimate the profits Toronto derives from the presence of the students brought here from the fact of the Government being auxiliary to the establishment of the City of Toronto as the educational centre of the Province.

"I noticed that special complaint seems to be made by the City Treasurer that Toronto maintains a good many outside paupers. He should remember in this connection that the Province contibutes more to hospitals and charities in the City of Toronto than the whole of the expenditure of the city for these purposes. Toronto has no special cause for complaint in this respect. All large centres have to provide for meeting the problem of caring for those thrown upon their charity by adjacent communities. Toronto in this respect is no worse off than any other large city like Ottawa, London, Hamilton, etc., and should not expect exceptional treatment; and besides these cities derive no great advantage such as Toronto derives from the fact of its being the seat of Government.

"The figures I have mentioned show that Toronto receives benefits of expenditure of nearly a million dollars a year and in return for this the Government has the satisfaction of paying two prices for water at the asylum and reformatory. But there is a broader way of looking at the matter, and the Province does not wish to divide the financial relations of the Province and the city in such a purely material light. Toronto is well adapted both from its situation and from other considerations for being the seat of Government of the Province, and reciprocal benefits should not perhaps be placed upon a hard and fast quid pro quo basis, though if this course were adopted the city would find itself largely in debt to the Province."

Comforting.

People who ask children questions should be a little careful as to what they lead up to. A school inspector in England was catechising a class of children who had been singing or reciting "The Vacant Chair." The inspector wanted the children to tell him what a vacant chair was, but in spite of all his leading questions he could get no further.

At last he said, "Now, children, where do you think I should be most missed if I were to die?"

The answer came like a shot, "In heaven, sir."

The Garcinetti Troupe of nine acrobats, direct from Italy, is a big feature with Ringling Brothers' famous big circus this season. The marvelous performance given by these great acrobats has created a universal sensation.

A NEW CIRCUS IDEA.

All the comforts and conveniences of a great modern theatre are at the command of the patrons of Ringling Brothers' Circus, the famous big show that is to exhibit in Peterborough, Friday, June 14th.

The idea is so novel and has been carried out so successfully that it deserves to be recorded as one of the greatest innovations ever introduced by a circus management. The new system begins with the ticket wagon, and is carried through every department of the show. Instead of a crowded ticket wagon, with limited facilities for handling the great crowd desiring to purchase tickets, there are now large and commodious ticket offices, with a dozen compartments, from each of which tickets are sold. This entirely does away with the unpleasant crush and excitement that was unavoidable under the old system, while to still further contribute to the comfort of the public uniformed guards are placed at convenient points to direct the crowds that always gather and to furnish information. Notwithstanding these complete arrangements for conveniently and expeditiously selling tickets on the show grounds, there is always a down town ticket office, the location of which is advertised in the local newspapers, where admission tickets as well as reserved seat tickets can be procured at exactly the same price as on the exhibition grounds. Another innovation is the new system of entrances at the main door. Instead of a single entrance, there are now a half dozen, so that the largest crowd can be handled without discomfort or jostling. In the menagerie the passage way between the central exhibitional space and the outer row of cages has been broadened into a wide esplanade, affording room for a multitude to pass or to linger at will. Each cage has its uniformed attendant, and every question is courteously and intelligently answered. These are things that all can commend, but ladies especially will appreciate the commodious dressing and toilet rooms that have been conveniently placed for their exclusive use. These rooms are furnished with handsome marble lavatories, hot and cold water and an abundant supply of clean towels. Similar accommodations have been provided for the men in another part of the menagerie pavilion. What this means to tired women and children, and even to men, can readily be appreciated. In the main hippodrome tent an entire new system of seating has been inaugurated, adding greatly to the comfort and pleasure of the public. With all these modern comforts and accessories in conjunction with the greatest circus performance ever given in America, it is not surprising that Ringling Brothers' Circus should be universally recognized as the greatest and most progressive show in the world. The only giraffe in the world is with this show.

T. C. Robinette, the prisoners' counsel. Stewart said there was a struggle between Boyd and Rice, but he thought the shooting was deliberate. Rutledge could have shot witness if he had wanted to. He did not know whether Rutledge had fired at him or not. He (Stewart) fired at all three and not particularly at Jones.

The investigation was then adjourned for a week. Mr. Curry said he did not know whether he would be ready to go on then or not. All he wanted was to get Stewart's evidence in so far as to destroy any motive for removing him.

After court was over they were taken back to the Jail in the patrol wagon, heavily guarded. They arrived safely at the institution at 2.45 p. m.

The Funeral on Monday.

Charles Rutledge and his wife, "Louise," brother and sister-in-law respectively of the dead prisoner, waited on Coroner Powell last night, with the result that the remains will be handed over to them after the inquest to-day for burial. They appeared at the Jail last night, but were refused permission to see the body. The funeral will probably take place on Monday to St. James' Cemetery or Streetsville, the birthplace of deceased.

Jones' Body Applied For.

Mrs. Black, who denies she is Kate Spelman or "Puss" O'Brien of Chicago, but says she is a sister of Jones, whose real name she says was Francis Joseph Ryan; made application for his body, but Coroner Powell has handed it over to the School of Anatomy. She will get it if any prominent Chicagoan identifies her as Jones' sister on payment of the School's fees.

Why Men Lift Their Hats.

Some Ontario editors are discussing whether or not a self-respecting British subject could kiss the hand of the King. It all depends on the point of view, says The Woodstock Express. No self-respecting citizen could kiss anybody's hand as a token of self-abasement; yet if he looked upon the ceremony merely as an acknowledgment of his allegiance, there is no reason why his self-respect should suffer. Old ceremonies may be retained long after their original significance has departed. Why should a man take off his hat to a lady? According to the original significance of the custom he offers her an insult, for by removing his hat he presumes that she is carrying a club or some other murderous weapon concealed in the folds of her draperies. When he takes off his hat he says to her in effect: "There is my naked head; smash it if you want to." But who ever thinks of the origin of the custom now?

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY

Mrs. McCord Murdered in London Township on Saturday.

SON-IN-LAW'S AWFUL CRIME.

Murderer Then Turned Another Revolver Upon Himself and Died Instantly—His Wife Had Left Him and Her Mother Would Not Tell Him Where She Was to Be Found.

London, Ont., June 10. -- Robert Fulford, a prosperous Chicago contractor, murdered his mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert McCord, and blew his own brains out, on the McCord farm in London Township Saturday night. Fulford came to London searching for his young wife, who deserted him three weeks ago, and, not finding her at the home of her parents, upbraided his mother-in-law for secreting his wife, and killed her. Before anyone could reach him, the desperate man had placed the muzzle of a second revolver in his mouth and blew his own brains out.

Fulford met his wife when she was a young girl of 16 at the home of her parents near Exeter, Ontario. They were first cousins, and the prosperous Chicago buisness man was struck with the freshness and charm of his pretty Canadian cousin. He told her his wife would be overjoyed to meet her, and that she would have a good chance to prosecute her musical studies in the big city. The McCords were grateful to their big, good-looking cousin for his kindness, and gladly sent their daughter to visit him. Mrs. Fulford welcomed her Canadian cousin, but within a few months changed her mind. She wished Gertrude back to her farm home. Mr. Fulford objected and husband and wife had a disagreement. The disagreement grew to an open breach, and the result was that the courts of Cook County judicially separated Robert Fulford and wife.

The Second Wedding.

Within a year there was another Mrs. Fulford, when Gertrude McCord became the 18-year-old bride of her cousin. Their married life was happy for a time. Then Mrs. Fulford No. 2 says her husband tyrannized over her and his threats frightened her. In October last she left him and came to her father's home. Many promises on both sides were made, and she returned to her husband. Three months ago she left him, this time finally, declaring she could no longer stand his ill-treatment. Fulford wrote to Robert McCord, threatening violence unless his wife were returned to him. The wife, fearing a scene, left her parents' home and went to St. Mary's, a town some 30 miles distant.

On Saturday afternoon Fulford arrived at Ilderton, a small village about three miles from the McCord farm, and engaged William Schwartz to drive him to the home of his father-in-law. On the way he confided to the driver that he was in search of his wife, who had run away from him, and asked Schwartz to wait a few minutes for him. He walked directly to the barnyard, where Mrs. McCord was seated on her milking stool. She rose and greeted her son-in-law with a handshake, and the two conversed for a few seconds. Then, pulling two revolvers from his pocket, Fulford shot the defenceless woman down. As her husband rushed to her assistance with the first available weapon, a large stone, the murderer turned his second pistol upon himself, and fell across her body.

Mrs. Fulford Unconcerned.

Mrs. Fulford expressed little concern about her husband, and said yesterday that she had been forced to leave him because he had threatened her life. She refused to have anything to do with the body, which was brought to the city morgue last night. Fulford was a contractor, living at 176 South Clinton street, Chicago. Some $427 in cash was found on his body.

GAUNTLET PICKED UP.

The Machinists' Association Hurls Back the Defi of the National Metal Trades Association.

Toronto, June 10.—A strong resolution touching the recent action of the National Metal Trades' Association was passed by the International Machinists Saturday morning. The resolution accepts the defi of the manufacturers and declares that, if therg is to be war, it will be war to the knife. The resolution, after reciting the facts as it understands them, concludes as follows:

Resolved, that we, the delegates assembled at the ninth convention of the International Association of Machinists, after due and mature deliberation, and in the name of the membership that we represent, do hereby accept the challenge forced upon us by the National Metal Trades Association, and, in accepting this declaration of war, we fully realize what it means, but, armed with the knowledge that our case is just, as our efforts are honest, we cheerfully pick up the gauntlet and hurl back the defiance, with this addition: If it is to be war, let it be war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt, for we never will accept any modification of our demands or resume labor until the holy cause for which we struggle is triumphant and the shorter workday is an accomplished fact, monumental to the cohesive power and co-operative effort of the International Association of Machinists.

No session was held on Saturday afternoon.

Fight to Finish.

The Railway Committee reported a resolution in favor of leaving the settlement of the railway question with the general officers, who will appoint a day for the conference. The idea is to get through with all the contract shops first before ordering a general strike on the railways, if the latter do not concede what the machinists claim are just demands.

Ottawa Carpenters Will Fight.

Ottawa, June 10.—The Carpenters' Union has decided to fight the Contractors' Association until the demands of the union are met. The contractors Saturday night decided not to grant the demands of the men, and when the latter received the official notification of the employers' decision they resolved to stay out until their demands are granted."

Kingston Strikers Surprised.

Kingston, Ont., June 10. — The Street Car Company sprung a surprise on the employes, who have been talking strike for some time. The company demanded that the men sign an agreement to accept present wages and then give notice of 48 hours of intention to quit. Few so far have signed.

RUTLEDGE VERDICT.

It Exonerates the Jail Guards From Blame—Relatives Are Given His Body —His Bible.

Toronto, June 10.—The remains of Frank Rutledge were yesterday morning taken to Streetsville for interment. The hearse left the home of Charles Rutledge at 7 o'clock for the Union Station. The body was handed over to the relatives on Saturday night. There was no service at the house, and at the time of the funeral only a few intimate relatives were present. On the coffin lay a few floral sprays and one large white lily, placed there by relatives.

The body was placed on C. P. R. No. 5 train for Streetsville, and left at 7.45 o'clock. Attached to the casket was a certificate from Coroner N. A. Powell stating that deceased was 32 years of age, and that death resulted from a fracture of the skull. There were also attached certificates from the Board of Health and Undertaker McCabe. Charles Rutledge, brother of the deceased, accompanied the body to Streetsville. The interment will take place this morning.

Verdict in the Rutledge Suicide.

The following verdict was returned on Saturday afternoon by the mixed jury empanelled to inquire into the death of Frank Rutledge, the bank robber, charged jointly with Fred Lee Rice with the murder of County Constable William Boyd on Tuesday evening last. The inquest was conducted by Coroner N. A. Powell, in the guard-room at the jail.

"We find that Frank Rutledge, confined in Toronto jail on a charge of burglary, came to his death on the 7th day of June, 1901, from injuries received in throwing himself over a corridor to the ground floor. Further we say and find that no blame for the suicide of Frank Rutledge can be attached to any jail official."

The evidence elicited no facts differing from those told in the press story of the tragedy.

"To Jack From Wee Wife."

The Bible which the dead man Rutledge carried in his breast pocket, and for the possession of which the surviving desperado Rice made a request, is a copy of the New Testament. On the fly leaf are the words: "To Jack, with love. From 'Wee Wife,' Chicago, Oct. 7, 1900." The book shows the marks of being considerably handled, and all through there are verses and clauses underlined, some with pencil and some with pen.

On the back page appear the words: "Fred Lee Rice. Be sure and send this book to A—— in Chicago."

On the top half of the inside cover of the book are some shorthand characters, which are hardly readable, and shorthand characters are also written on the backs of two envelopes which were addressed to Rutledge. One sentence, which is partly in longhand and partly in shorthand, reads: "Why was this evidence not put in at Chicago?"

The Bible is now in the possession of Governor Vanzant, who will not hand it over to Rice as requested by Rutledge until it has been thoroughly examined.

Odds and Ends

Mrs. Black, who denies she is Kate Spellman or "Puss" O'Brien of Chicago, has not yet been given the body of Jones, whose sister she claims to be. She has had masses said at St. Michael's every day since he died for the repose of his soul.

The newspapers and the police are doing considerable work just now. They have clues and tabs on every strange woman who comes into the city, but they have not found the fourth man of the gang, who they allege supplied the revolvers to the prisoners, nor have they connected criminally any of the women suspects with the prisoners.

Canon Spencer's Very Sudden Death.

Picton, Ont., June 10. — Canon Spencer, secretary of Senate, Kingston, was to have assisted Bishop Mills and Rev. E. Houcks at the confirmation services at the Church of England yesterday, died very suddenly at the residence of A. E. Bog, about 9.30 Saturday evening. He arrived about 9 o'clock per steamer Hero from Kingston, in apparently good health. While shaking hands with Rev. E. Houcks at Mr. Bog's residence, he was taken suddenly ill and died in a few minutes. Heart failure is said to be the cause. He was about 55 years of age. The remains were taken to Kingston per North King, yesterday morning.

The Tally-Ho Ran Over Him.

Hamilton, Ont., June 10.—Joseph Thayer, wine clerk in the Schmidt House, was seriously, if not fatally, injured Saturday evening on East King street. He was wheeling home carrying a bouquet in one hand. He turned to pass another bicycle, when his wheel struck a hole and he ran in front of Rance Wilson's tally-ho coach returning from the race track. Both teams passed over him, breaking his shoulder bone and several ribs. He was rendered unconscious.

REV. MR. GOFORTH.

The Catholic Record, London, says: "We are very much suprised to notice by a Peterborough paper that the Rev. Mr. Goforth, missionary, continues to speak unkindly and unfairly of the Catholic missionaries in China. The press report of the lecture does not give any particulars, merely stating that the Catholic missionaries were critized very freely. It might be expected that, in view of Mark Twain's recent criticism of the methods of the Protestant missionaries in China, that Mr. Goforth and his companions would seek obscurity rather than publicity. There is a strong argument which tells severely against these gentlemen: While the Catholic missionaries remained at their posts and fought like men in defence of their converts, the Protestant missionaries took flight like carrier pigeons towards headquarters, for the purpose of retailing what dreadful things are taking place in the flowery kingdom."

Writing to Col. Sam Hughes, Mr. P. Ryan, of Cape Town, an ex-member of the colonial legislature, talks of the war. He says that chasing the Boers is like plowing water and adds: "At the present rate it will take a long time to reach the end of the war. The majority of the men who are now opposing us never lived a better or more enjoyable life, as they are frequently telling those they meet that the British are looking well after their wives and children and they themselves are living on the fat of the land and commandering whatever they can lay their hands on and leaving the bill for John Bull to pay."

The Boys' Brigade of Ontario is expected to go into camp at Belleville this month. The boys will number 1,000 and will camp there for ten days. The camp was held in Cobourg last year and was a most interesting event.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BANK OF MONTREAL

PROCEEDINGS OF THE 83RD ANNUAL MEETING.

A Satisfactory Report for the Year—Mr. Clouston's Remarks on the General Commercial Situation in Canada.

The eighty-third annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in the Board Room of the institution at 1 o'clock Wednesday.

There were present: Hon. Geo. A. Drummond, Vice-President; Sir William Macdonald, Hon. James O'Brien, Capt. Benyon, Messrs. R. B. Angus, A. W. Hooper, Hector Mackenzie, David Morrice, F. S. Lyman, K.C.; F. T. Judah, K.C.; B. A. Boas, J. G. Snetsinger, W. H. Evans, W. J. Buchanan, E. B. Greenshields, Richard White, A. T. Taylor, J. Try-Davies, Henry Dobell, Hugh Cameron, M. S. Foley, Henry Mason, H. Drummond, A. Walmsley, Nicholas Murphy, John Morrison.

On motion of Mr. R. B. Angus, Hon. George A. Drummond, Vice-President, was unanimously voted to the chair, in the absence of the President, the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal.

On the motion of Mr. F. T. Judah, seconded by Mr. Henry Dobell, it was agreed: "That the following gentlemen be appointed to act as scrutineers: Messrs. F. S. Lyman, K.C., and W. J. Buchanan, and that Mr. James Aird be the secretary of the meeting."

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The report of the directors to the shareholders at their eighty-third annual general meeting was then read by Mr. E. S. Clouston, General Manager, as follows:—

The directors have pleasure in presenting the 83rd annual report, showing the result of the Bank's business of the year ended the 30th April, 1901. Balance of profit and loss.

Account, 30th April, 1900	$ 427,180.80
Profits for the year ended 30th April, 1901, after deducting charges of management, and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts	1,537,522.39

Dividend 5 per cent. paid 1st December, 1900	$600,000.00
Dividend 5 per cent., payable 1st June, 1901	600,000.00
	1,200,000.00
Balance of profit and loss carried forward	$ 764,703.19

As shareholders are aware, the present bank charters would have expired on the 1st July next. Instead of introducing an entire new Bank Act, the Government proceeded to continue the charters of the banks, and has provided for the changes which, in its opinion, were advisable by amendments to the Bank Act of 1890.

The accommodation in the bank's building at headquarters having become very inadequate for the proper conduct of the business, it has been found necessary to erect suitable premises on the site recently acquired on Craig street, and the work is now in progress. The new premises are to be connected with the present building by a bridge over Fortification lane.

Premises are being erected at the corner of Wellington and Magdalen streets, for the use of the Point St. Charles sub-agency, and since the last annual meeting the bank's building at Sydney, N.S., has been completed and occupied by that branch.

It has been decided to open a branch of the Bank at Glace Bay, N.S., at once.

The Head Office and all the branches have passed through the usual inspection during the year.

STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL
President.

Bank of Montreal,
Head Office,
3rd June, 1901.

THE GENERAL MANAGER.

Mr. Clouston then said:—

a little explanation, as it is made up to conform to the Amended Bank Act of last session, and now embraces our foreign business as well as our Canadian. Previous statements showed only the balances which would be due us from other countries after our business there has been liquidated. Consequently, our statement now includes all deposits and loans elsewhere than in Canada. This makes a comparison with former statements an impossibility, but, for the information of shareholders, I may say that the principal changes in our Canadian business are as follows:—

Circulation, increase	$ 321,000
Deposits not bearing interest, increase	1,963,000
Deposits bearing interest, increase	5,422,000
Current loans and discounts, decrease	360,000

You will notice that our profits are a little in excess of those of last year, and the statement is one of the strongest we have had the pleasure of laying before you.

As the charters of all the banks would have expired in July of this year, a further extension of ten years was granted, and certain amendments to the Bank Act were enacted.

The chief changes were:—

The rate of interest on the notes of suspended banks was reduced from 6 per cent. to 5 per cent.

Power has been given to enable a bank to purchase the assets of another, thus overcoming the barrier which formerly existed to the amalgamation of banks.

In addition to the annual return of unclaimed dividends and balances, we are also required to furnish a statement of all drafts and bills of exchange issued and remaining unpaid.

In the case of a suspended bank, the Canadian Bankers' Association has been given power to appoint a curator. The Association has also been entrusted with the work of inspecting and supervising the note circulating accounts of all the banks in the Dominion, an added safeguard, if any were needed, to the circulating currency of the country. In this way the Association has practically become an agent of the Government in the administration of the Act.

The form of our statement to the Government has been changed, and fuller details are now required. It was this that rendered advisable the new form of statement now laid before you. Other changes were more of interest to bankers themselves than the public. Generally speaking, the alterations were in the direction of strengthening and improving the Act under which we have worked for the last ten years.

At the last session of Parliament the Finance Minister took power to establish a mint. The opinion of the bankers, not from any selfish point of view, but from what we believed to be in the best interest of the country at large, were set forth at the last annual meeting of the Bankers' Association, and I do not propose to say anything more on the subject here. The Act was only permissive, and it may be that on looking more closely into the matter, the Government may decide not to incur considerable expense in order to deteriorate the value of one of our products, as the gold is more available to pay our foreign indebtedness, and more valuable for export, as bullion, than if it were minted into coin. As a circulating medium, it will not displace the paper currency here, any more than it does in the United States, while the miners to-day can obtain from the banks the same value for their gold as they would if the mint were established even in British Columbia.

Business during the last year has been generally good, notwithstanding a short crop in the Northwest, and in spite of the unfortunate condition of affairs in the mining districts. In other sections of Canada, even the most pessimistic of farmers should have been satisfied with the results of the last two years. If, from a sentimental point of view, we were eager and willing to aid the Mother Country by the despatch of troops, as will always be the case, the practical result is a magnificent advertisement to Canada, and an additional market established for our products, which will probably recoup the outlay of this country. In the last year there has been an increased demand for its products, in consequence of the Boer War in South Africa.

On the other hand, the woollen manufacturing industry has not been prosperous, and I am sorry to say the outlook for the lumber trade is not of the best, prices ruling low and the markets being congested, and we can only hope for an improvement before the season finishes.

There are also signs of over production in textile goods, and in the manufacture of pulp, which only need judicious restraint to be put on a good basis. We must not forget the return of the wave and get so far beyond our depth as to loose our footing.

It is too early to speak of the future crops, though up to the present the reports are good, and if they turn out according to promise, we ought to have another good year, and if that comes you can see that this Bank is in a position to take advantage of it.

ADOPTION OF REPORT.

Hon. George A. Drummond said:—

You have heard the statement of the General Manager and the report of the directors, and the statements placed before you appear to me to be so full and complete that I do not consider it necessary to make any further amplification of them. I will content myself, therefore, with moving: "That the report of the Directors now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the Shareholders."

The motion was seconded by Mr. E. B. Greenshields, and after a few remarks by Mr. John Morrison, who thought that the General Manager had taken the correct view with regard to the proposed establishment of a Canadian mint, it was carried unanimously.

Senator O'Brien moved:—

"That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank."

This was seconded by Mr. David Morrice, and was unanimously agreed to.

Sir William Macdonald moved:—

"That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Inspector, the Managers, and other officers of the bank for their services during the past year."

The motion was seconded by Mr. R. B. Angus, and having been unanimously concurred in, was acknowledged by the General Manager.

Mr. B. A. Boas moved:—

"That the ballot now open for the election of Directors be kept open until 3 o'clock unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time, and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued."

This was seconded by Mr. Hector Mackenzie, and unanimously agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. John Morrison, seconded by Hon. James O'Brien, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Chairman for his conduct of the business of the meeting, and he acknowledged the same.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following directors:—

R. B. ANGUS, ESQ.
HON. GEORGE A. DRUMMOND.
A. F. GAULT, ESQ.
E. B. GREENSHIELDS, ESQ.
SIR WILLIAM C. MACDONALD.
A. T. PATERSON, ESQ.
R. G. REID, ESQ.
JAMES ROSS, ESQ.
RT. HON. LORD STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL, G.C.M.G.

The President and Vice-President will, in the ordinary course of business, be elected at to-day's meeting of the Board of Directors.

How it shakes one up, invades sleep, destroys strength, adds a real misery to life. Not the stomach but the nerves are affected. You need Ferrozone because its a great nerve food. It supplies the elements that are needed to make rich red blood. This is the savings bank of health. The richer the blood in red cells, the richer you're sure to be in health. Ferrozone quickly makes blood, strengthens the nervous system, strengthens the digestive organs and presto! the nervous disturbance disappears. Sold by Ormond and Walsh.

WEST DURHAM IS NOW VACANT.

The Judges Order a New Election—The Conspiracy Charge—The Parties Agree to Suspend Proceedings—As the Law Has Been Changed Judgment Will Not Be Given on Marked Cheque.

Cobourg, June 10.—The trial of the West Durham election petition came suddenly to an end Saturday, with the seat declared vacant, and a new election ordered. Chief Justice Falconbridge and Mr. Justice Street, after conferring a few minutes at the end of the investigation of the charge against W. L. Gerrie and the supplementary charge against D. F. Walsh, declared the charges against Gerrie proved and his agency established. The parties then got together, and after dickering for an hour or more came to an arrangement not to proceed with the trial, and the court was asked to declare the seat vacant and order a new election, which was done.

Gerrie Charge Established.

Some witnesses were then heard as to the truthfulness of the Woodwards, and after eloquent addresses by Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. McPherson the court, without leaving the bench, arrived at the conclusion that the charge against Gerrie had been proven and his agency established. They dismissed the charge against Walsh. The Chief Justice drew attention to Gerrie's foolish explanation of the cider transaction.

The Conspiracy Charges.

The paties the conferred a few minutes, and Mr. Thornton would not abandon the case, so the trial of a charge of conspiracy between the Independents and Conservatives was begun. The alleged agreement was to the effect that if the Independents would support Mr. Reid in the Provincial election the Conservatives would vote for Thornton for the Commons. The first witness was Thomas Power, formerly Secretary of the Patron Lodge, but he was only nicely started when Mr. McPherson, for Mr. Thornton, asked for a delay, and in the course of an hour an agreement was arrived at. Only the costs of the proceedings as far as they have gone are to be decided by the court. An adjournment was made at 5.50, after the seat had been declared vacant and a new election ordered. As it was no longer necessary, and the law has been changed, the Judges declined to deliver an academic judgment on the question of the marked cheque. It was agreed that there should be no appeal.

HON. S. C. WOOD NOMINATED.

His Old Riding, West Victoria, Claims His Services.

Lindsay, June 10.—A well-attended convention of the Liberals of West Victoria was held in the Academy of Music here on Saturday for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest this riding at the coming Provincial general elections. The spirit of unanimity and enthusiasm that marked the meeting, combined with the character and acceptability of the candidate selected, gives assurance that this riding will be represented in the next Provincial Parliament by a stalwart, and in a sense historic, Liberal. The nomination was unanimously tendered to Hon. S. C. Wood, a former representative of Victoria for many years, and for a considerable period a member of the Mowat Administration in the days soon after Confederation, when it was considered by many to be at its strongest. It is understood that in view of the cordiality and unanimity of the nomination, and in view of the unusual and immediate popularity developed in the convention, Mr. Wood will accept, and assuming that he does so, the nomination will be ratified at a grand political demonstartion and mass meeting to be held on Thursday, June 20. In the practically certain event of Hon. Mr. Wood contesting his old riding, the confidence in his triumphant return as a supporter of the Ross Government cannot be shaken. A feature of the convention was the admirable address by Hon. Mr. Stratton, Provincial Secretary.

Great Welcome for Mr Wilfrid.

Ottawa, June 10.—The Premier, accompanied by Lady Laurier and Hon. J. Israel Tarte, goes to Montreal to-morrow. From there they will proceed by electric railway on Tuesday morning to L'Assomption, stopping at various points en route to receive addresses. L'Assomption College, Sir Wilfrid's alma mater, has prepared a grand welcome for him!

SERIOUS BLAZE AT WHITBY.

Rev. John Abraham Struck by an Erratic Bullet

Whitby, Ont., June 10.—Fire destroyed Gross & Granger's handsome hardware store yesterday morning. Gunpowder and other explosives made it somewhat dangerous for firemen and citizens to work, as these materials from time to time blew up. For half an hour there was a continuous explosion of cartridges, and many persons were hit by the bullets, Rev. John Abraham, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, amongst the rest, but fortunately no one seriously. The windows of J. Saunders' shoe shop, opposite the fire, were smashed by the bullets. The building was erected over 40 years ago. Gross & Granger's loss on stock was $12,000, insurance $4,000; loss on the building, $6,000, insured for $3,000.

BOER GENERAL'S WIFE

Mrs. Louis Botha in England on a Peace Mission.

REFUSED TO BE INTERVIEWED.

Accompanied by Son of Ex-Secretary of State Fischer—British War Office Ignorant of Botha's Alleged Request to Lord Kitchener—British Surprised and Captured Two Boer Laagers.

London, June 10.—Mrs. Louis Botha, wife of the Boer commandant-general, arrived at Southampton Saturday morning, on board the British steamer Dunvegan Castle, from South Africa. She refused to grant an interview, but a son of ex-Secretary of State Fischer, who accompanied her, said that Mrs. Botha was going straight to London, and later would proceed to Holland and Belgium, but that the date of her departure for the Continent had not been fixed. Mr. Fischer was unable to confirm or deny the report that Mrs. Botha had come to Europe on a peace mission. He was released on parole, in order that he might accompany her.

The British War Office knows nothing of the alleged request of Gen. Botha, the Boer commander, for a conference with Lord Kitchener at Standerton, on the Johannesburg-Durban Railroad. The officials here point out that if anything of the kind had occurred Lord Kitchener would have notified the Government immediately.

Two Laagers Captured.

Cape Town, June 8.—The British surprised two Boer laagers at different points in Cape Colony Thursday night and captured 42 prisoners, 15,000 rounds of ammunition and a quantity of supplies. A railroad wreck occurred near Pretoria June 7, in which nine soldiers were killed and many injured.

SECTION MAN KILLED.

Robert Herrington, a Grand Trunk Employe, Met a Horrible Death.

London, Ont., June 10. — Robert Herrington, a G. T. R. section man, was run over and killed a mile east of Hyde Park station by G. T. R. westbound express No. 3, which left London at 11.05 a.m. Saturday. When first seen by the train crew, the man was lying on the track a short distance ahead, and there was no time to stop the train before running over him. The body of the unfortunate man was terribly mangled, being literally ground to pieces. His neck was broken, the skull and face were crushed in, both legs were taken off below the hips and both feet crushed, while the arms were partially severed. The clothing was torn from the body and not a single garment was left whole, his boots, socks, coat, pants, vest and underwear being torn in pieces. The hat was the only portion of his apparel undamaged. The remains were gathered up and brought to the city.

ROBT. NEILL

How Carlyle Received Him.

One of the most curious receptions of visitors was that which Carlyle gave George Gilfillan. Gilfillan was quite a literary character a generation ago. His books were widely read, and his "Literary Portraits" were especially popular with the young ladies. I know of many girls who slept with these volumes under their pillows. Gilfillan was a lecturer as well as a writer. He appreciated his popularity and had a very good opinion of George Gilfillan. He called one day at Mr. Carlyle's, and his knock was responded to by Carlyle himself. As Carlyle opened the door and stood before him Gilfillan introduced himself with a grandiloquent bow and said:

"I am George Gilfillan, and you are Mr. Carlyle, I suppose. I have been lecturing about you all over England."

Carlyle looked at him half a moment and then, throwing back his shaggy mane, blurted out, "What the dickens did you lecture about me for?" and slammed the door in his face.

All Plain to Him.

"Here," said the foreman of the pressroom, leading his visitors into another department, "are the great presses. The matter is stereotyped in the form of curved plates; these are placed on the cylinders, and as they revolve they leave their impression on the paper that unwinds from that huge roll at the back of the press."

"I see now," remarked one of the visitors, a person of much sagacity, "what is meant when we read of an item going the rounds of the press."

Saves Two From Death.

"Our daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N.Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50c. and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Jas. Lynch. Trial bottles free.

YESTERDAY AT ST. PETER'S.

One Hundred and Eight-Five Children Received the Sacrament of Confirmation.

At. St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning a solem ceremony took place which is considered to be the most important epoch in the life of a Catholic, being the reception of the sacrament of confirmation. At nine o'clock mass about 185 young children of the parish assembled in the convent hall and marched in a body to the church, headed by Van Archdeacon Casey. The young girls were attired in white, wearing white veils and the boys were dressed in black suits with a white ribbon on the arm. Two banners were carried in the procession and the children rendered a hymn to the Sacred Heart. The sacrament was administered by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor and at the conclusion of the mass he addressed the candidates, referring to the solemnity of the event and explaining the nature of the sacrament of which they had partaken. In the afternoon the children assembled in the church where they were enrolled in the Scapular. They also renewed their baptismal vows and took the pledge against the use of intoxicating liquor. Large congregations were present on both occasions.

Mr. Kent was assisting at a barn raising at a neighbours, and in the course of the work some heavy timbers fell causing a very ugly fracture to his right ankle, and breaking both bones of the leg. A HORSE KILLED.

It was cut so Badly by a Barbed Wire Fence That it had to be Shot.

A valuable horse recently purchased at a cost of $100, by Mr. James McIlmoyle, of Weller street, had to be shot yesterday, on account of the injuries it received through coming violently in contact with a barb wire fence.

The horse was tethered in Mr. McIlmoyle's yard, where it was grazing, but broke the rope by which it was fastened through being frightened by a cat which sprang up on the fence beside it. After getting loose the horse ran across several lots and and then charged straight into a barb wire fence, apparently not seeing the obstruction. The wires cut so deeply into its chest and forelegs as to necessitate its immediate despatch.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH.

Demise of Mrs. Edward Thompson Early Yesterday Morning.

The death of Mrs. Edward Thompson, which occurred yesterday morning at the family residence, No. 165 Smith street, came as a great shock to her family and to her friends in general.

The deceased was apparently in her usual good health on Saturday and was about town in the morning, but later in the day was stricken down with paralysis of the brain, which in a very brief time carried her away.

The late Mrs. Thompson's maiden name was Eliza Lee, she being the daughter of the late John Lee of County Monaghan, Ireland. She was 63 years of age and came to this country about 47 years ago, settling in Peterborough, where she has since resided, and about four years later she married her late husband, who predeceased her ten years. She was a prominent member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and much beloved by a wide circle of friends. A family of four sons and six daughters survive her. The latter are Mrs. David Johnston, of Campbellford, Misses Annie, Isabella, Henrietta and Margaret at home, and Miss Bertha, of Kendal. The sons are all well known to the people of Peterborough, being Messrs. Albert, of Montreal; W. J., of the Davis & Thompson Co.; and Messrs. Henry and Reginald of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co.

No eulogy is necessary concerning the Christian character and fine attributes of heart and mind possessed by the deceased. Her deeds speak for themselves, and a residence of forty-seven years in the town gathered to her side a circle of friends, who will long cherish loving remembrance of many acts of kindness.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, No. 165 Smith street, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 to the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE PETERBOROUGHS WIN AS USUAL.

Heintzman's, of Toronto, Defeated on Saturday.

The Score Was 8 to 5 and an Innings—Attendance Small, Owing to Cool Weather—Notes on the Game.

The baseball season, practically speaking, was opened in Peterborough on Saturday, when the Heintzman nine of Toronto, were defeated by the locals by a score of 8 to 5, and an innings. The unfavourable weather so far has delayed the baseball season to a considerable extent, and has been most discouraging to the local management. The only other attempt at baseball was on the 24th of May, when the locals ran up against the Crawfords of Toronto, in the rain at that, and carried off honours as usual. But there was not an opportunity of playing good ball, or of testing the abilities of the respective players, owing to the cold and the rain which prevailed on that occasion. Therefore, the game on Saturday was looked forward to with much interest. However, even Saturday was disappointing in regard to the weather. It was by no means an ideal day for baseball, although the boys made the best of it. The rain throughout the morning kept the enthusiasts in a state of uncertainty, but at noon the heavens cleared, and a goodly number of townspeople, including a fair representation of ladies, made their way to the P.A.A.A. grounds to witness the event. While the rain ceased, the wind and the cool atmosphere were still in evidence, and it was a most unusual sight at a June baseball match, to see most of the spectators wearing overcoats, in some instances with the collars of the same turned up. Umpire Kenner, too, was determined that would not be frozen, and did not disrobe himself of his overcoat throughout the entire game. His decisions, it might be stated, were ready and unobjectionable.

The match was a most interesting one, and gave the local enthusiasts an opportunity of seeing what condition their favourites were in. The result, needless to say, was most gratifying, and the next game will be eagerly looked forward to. The personnel of the Peterborough nine was pretty much the same as last year. Of course, Mulhall, so conspicuous on 2nd bag last year, was this year conspicuous only by his absence, and his place was filled by Andy Scott, who moved from 3rd bag, while Sheridan covered the latter position, and Kehoe, the latest acquisition to baseball circles in town, played right field.

The game had very many noticeable features, not the least of which was the fact that not a man was sent to his base on balls by either pitcher. Again, the base stealing of the locals was cleverly worked, and no fewer than ten bags were purloined, while Toronto "pinched" only three. Another feature of the game was Andy Scott's home run after dropping the ball many feet the other side of the fence. To particularize the playing of the locals would be difficult, but special mention should be made of the work of the battery, McCabe and Graham. Many had thought that last season would be Dan's last on the diamond, but Saturday he stepped forward with the elasticity of a 15-year-old boy, as light as a feather, and twirled the ball over the plate in the same astonishing manner as in the days when baseball was in the zenith of its popularity in Peterborough. He was splendidly held by Graham, who played quite up to the expectations of his friends. Parnell and Connors made a great pair in their work from short to first, and "Wally" never failed to land them into the latter's mit, nor did the latter fail to hold them.

Throughout the game the best of good nature prevailed, and the excitement was constantly at a very high pitch. It was a pretty sure thing for Peterborough, apparently, until the last innings, when the visitors made a great spurt and ran in 4 runs in short order. Until this stage of the proceedings they had landed only one man. Peterborough stiffened up, however, and closed them out before matters became too dangerous looking.

The teams were as follows:

Connors put a nice two bagger to the left field fence. He stole third and Scott came to bat and hit a homer over the left field fence, scoring Connors and himself. It was the longest hit made on the grounds in a long time. Grady made a single and Kehoe hit an easy one to the pitcher and was thrown out at first. Score, Heintzman's, 1; Peterborough, 6.

Sixth Innings. — Robinson the first Toronto man hit the air three times; Maxwell hit one to Sheridan, who threw him out at first. Mahoney hit a long one to left and reached second. Lockhart hit one to Parnell and was thrown out at first, leaving Mahoney on second. In Peterborough's half of the sixth McCabe made a hit, stole second and third, and reached home on Sheridan's sacrifice to short. Earls hit one to third, and Graham hit a liner to short, both being out at first. Score, Heintzman's, 1; Peterborough, 7.

Seventh Innings. — Bone went out second to first; Johnson made a two bagger; Brockbanks reached first on Sheridan's fumble and stole second; Forbes struck out and Heron was thrown out at first by Parnell, leaving Johnson and Brockbanks on bases. Parnell went out short to first, Connors reaching first on short stop's error, and was doubled up at second on Scott's fly to centre. Score, Heintzman's, 1; Peterborough, 7.

Eighth Innings. — Robinson hit a high fly, which Grady misjudged; Maxwell flew out to third; Mahoney popped one up for Graham, and Lockhart fanned. In Peterborough's half Grady flew out to second; Kehoe made a double again. McCabe hit one to short and Kehoe was caught off the bag. He dodged up and down the line till Maxwell put him out at third, when he made a nice slide. Sheridan made a hit, scoring; McCabe, who had stolen second; Jack Sheridan then stole third and Earls struck out. Score, Heintzman's, 1; Peterborough, 8.

Ninth Innings. — Bone was the first man up for the Toronto team in the ninth, and hit a grounder to Parnell, and was out at first. Johnson, the next man up, hit a grounder to Parnell that got through his legs. Brockbanks hit one at Sheridan who let it go through him, Johnson scoring. Forbes made a nice two bagger to left scoring Brockbanks. Heron hit a warm one at Parnell who threw low to first. Robinson made a hit, scoring Forbes. Maxwell sacrificed to Parnell, and Heron reached home, and putting Robinson on second. The Toronto team had piled up four runs on a three dumb plays and one hit and the local fans were beginning to get nervous, when Mahoney hit a long one to Earls, who gathered it in, ending the suspense and game. Score, Heintzman's, 5; Peterborough, 8.

NOW FOR A TRIP.

The Regiment May go to Either Montreal or Toronto.

Those of the 57th Regiment who have been clamouring for an out of town trip, will, by all appearances, have their ambitions gratified a little later on in the season. Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, on Saturday received a communication from Lieut.-Colonel Montizambert, D.O.C., asking him to report as to what regiments in Districts 3 and 4 would be able to respond to the invitation to take part in the proceedings at either Montreal or Toronto on the occasion of the visit of Their Royal Highness, the Duke and Duchess of York and Cornwall. The 57th, it may be depended will be reported as one regiment at least prepared for such an occasion. Let the men stay together even though inspection will be over in the course of a few more weeks. The regiment is in excellent condition and will be a credit to the town when the time comes.

SHOVEL COMPANY BY-LAW.

The attention of the property owners is again called to the fact that they will be called upon tomorrow to record their vote in connection with the bylaw which provides for the granting of a site to the Peterborough Shovel Co. The site is already owned by the town, having been purchased a number of years ago for the very purpose which it is now proposed to hand it over to the Shovel Company, and therefore in voting for the passage of the bylaw, the property owners are not in any manner voting for any additional expenditure.

HEALTHY CONDITION OF AFFAIRS.

The commercial and industrial situation of a country is always reflected in the statements of the chartered banks, and comparisons now afford a fair indication of the rapid growth and development of the past few years. The annual accounting of our financial institutions shows that there has been no break or interruption in the general expansion of trade and industry. The report of the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal shareholders, published in another column, is most satisfactory from a public standpoint as well as for those directly interested in the institution. The profits for the year ending April 30 were $1,537,522, which with the balance carried forward from last year was sufficient to pay the stockholders $1,200,000 in two half-yearly dividends of 5 per cent., and leave a balance of $764,703 to be carried forward to profit and loss. The note circulation was $6,482,214, a gain of $321,000 during the year; the deposits bearing interest were $54,501,853, an increase of $5,422,000, and deposits not bearing interest, $18,184,774, an increase of close on two millions. The current loans and discounts were $58,850,449, and the call and short loans in Britain and elsewhere, $23,536,628. The rest account is $7,000,000.

Mr. E. S. Clouston, General Manager, in presenting the report, spoke of the good condition of business, a condition certainly reflected in the records made by the bank. Mr. Clouston gave a word of caution as to the possibility of over-production in the textile industries and as to the outlook for lumbering. Warnings against excessive confidence are always in order, and it is quite possible to place too much dependence on an expanding trade. But Mr. Clouston will never err on that side, for his words of caution always afford an instructive contrast to the enthusiasm of commercial optimists.

REV. MR. YULE'S REMARKS.

The Assistant Pastor of St. Pauls Church Speaks Straight to Church Members.

Rev. Mr. Yule, the new assistant pastor of St. Paul's Church, since his arrival in town has been thoroughly initiated into his work and his sermons every Sunday are most interesting and listened to with marked attention.

Last night he delivered a stirring discourse, taking for his text the first few verses of the Lord's prayer, Matthew, xvi chapter. It was when speaking on brotherly love arising out of the words of his text, that the assistant pastor spoke of the alleged want of brotherly love in St. Paul's Church, and the alleged pride, which if it were true as reported, was nothing short of contemptible pride. He asked if it were so that some members of the church do not attend certain mid-week meetings because they do not care for the society while there of certain other people, and is it so, he asked, that persons could come to St. Paul's Church week after week, month after month and year after year and never be noticed by the person who sat next them? If such were the case, he desired to know it. One thing the speaker knew, and that was they were as a congregation lacking in their love for God, or out of a congregation of 700 they would have no difficulty in getting one hundred persons at last, to attend a mid-week service.

Altogether Rev. Mr. Yule's discourse was of more than ordinary interest by reason of the exceptionally straight forward manner in which he spoke to his church members.

LEAVING FOR ENGLAND.

Presented With a Travelling Case and Lady's Companion ere Her Departure.

Mrs. Edward Harris is leaving in a few days for England, where she expects to spend the summer with relatives after an absence from the Old Country of eighteen years, during fourteen of which she has been a resident of Peterborough.

A very pleasant incident in connection with Mrs. Harris' departure was the presentation to her on Thursday, by the Woman's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church, of which she is a member, of a handsome travelling case and lady's companion.

Mrs. Harris has shown a warm interest in the work of the Auxiliary for many years and that her efforts have been appreciated is shown by the manner in which the members bade her adieu on Thursday. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

A TEST OF COURAGE.

TORTURES WHICH INDIAN SCOUTS BORE WITH SMILING FACES.

It Was Up to Lieutenant Farrow Once to Emulate Their Example, but the West Pointer Used His Wits and Escaped the Ordeal.

The Indian scouts that joined forces with the United States army in 1878 to make prisoners of the Sheep Eaters in western Idaho were skeptical at first of Lieutenant Farrow's abilities to lead them into battle. They had never seen his courage tested and plainly intimated by word and action that they had no intention of obeying his orders unless he should prove himself braver than any chief, subchief or buck in the command.

First they gave themselves up to all kinds of physical torture as a lesson to him. They slashed their bodies with knives without showing pain. They slit the skin on their chests, ran skewers thereunder and jerked off cutaneous and fleshly strips while smiling happily in his face. They split their ears, pierced their noses, lacerated their cheeks, butchered their arms and legs. Their stunts were so far beyond anything Farrow could inflict upon himself that the poor young lieutenant thought he "saw his finish."

Suddenly, while rivulets of cold perspiration trickled down his spine, the West Pointer recollected that in his schoolboy days he was an adept at driving a pin into the thick of his "vastus externus" without feeling pain and the joyful inspiration to thus illuminate his courage seized him.

The necessary pin was in the lapel of his fatigue jacket. Ruthlessly he slit the front of his breeches leg from pocket to knee, then his drawers till the front of the thigh was exposed to the wondering gaze of the Indians gathered close around. Then dramatically exhibiting the pin, an affair of an inch and a sixteenth, he reached for a flat stone and drove the harmless bit of wire down to the head in the unresisting muscle. His handsome face was as unclouded as when he helped to haze his first plebe.

The red men nodded approvingly, grunted, looked wise and sat down on their haunches. They had seen something new, but wanted something more convincing. Farrow realized this and was in the seventh heaven of despair as he smilingly pulled out the pin and held it aloft for inspection.

To show the white feather meant in that hostile country insubordination and treachery, involving Farrow's mysterious death. It was a moment to try a soul—and to fry it. The lieutenant whispered to his trusted sergeant: "I am going to take a desperate chance. I am going to shoot myself through the head with my revolver, but you stand beside your horse, and just an instant before I shoot you fire your rifle, yell 'Si-wash!' mount and make off through the woods as fast as you can ride. Don't forget to fire before I do, else I shall be a dead man."

Sitting upon a jagged rock, he explained to the Indians what he was about to do, and with great deliberation and some fine theatricals he cocked the pistol and placed the muzzle against his temple. The Indians were wrought up to a high pitch. They had never seen a man shoot himself through the head and live. Surely here was the bravest of all brave leaders. They would follow him through hell.

The sergeant, unnoticed, fired his rifle, his "Si-wash!" woke the echoes of Shoshone and Bitter Root, and the clatter of his horse's hoofs rang down the Clear Water as far as Fort Lapwai. "Si-wash!" The Indians knew what that cry meant. In less time than it takes to tell it Farrow was alone. His forces had scattered to the four winds. In the course of a few hours all were united again, but the courage test was not renewed.

Twenty-two years after this exciting incident, on a certain evening in 1900, Farrow occupied a box in the Madison Square Garden when Buffalo Bill's Wild West was in full blast. Chief Joseph, the celebrated commander of the Nez Perces, whom Farrow had captured 22 years previously and whom he had not seen in the interim, led a wild, whooping, yelling, screeching mob of painted Indians out into the arena for a dash around the circle.

But the charge was interrupted—cut short. When Joseph reached the curve near the Madison avenue end of the amphitheater, he pulled his horse sharply to the right, cutting across the first file of warriors in most dangerous fashion. In a mad gallop he poked his charger's head into an arena box, straightened up in his stirrups, held out his hand and cried: "How! How! How!" The old fellow had caught sight of Farrow, and nothing could prevent him from riding up to salute his captor of 1878. It was a dramatic incident.

Budget.

The origin of the word "budget," meaning an estimate of government revenues and expenses, is thus explained:

Almost from time immemorial it was the custom in England to p... the estimates of receipts and expenditures presented to parliament in a leather bag, the word budget being thus borrowed from the old Norman word bougette, which signifies a leather purse. Curiously enough, the word has passed back again into France from England.

"I love company," said a local Mrs. Partington. "It makes things bright and lively—it breaks the anatomy."

SUCH A CHANGE.

Not only in feelings but in looks. The skin is clear, the eyes are bright, the cheeks are plump. No more pain and misery, no more sick headache, no more jaundice. What worked the change? Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cured the disease of the stomach that prevented proper nutrition, and also cleansed the clogged and sluggish liver.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of lungs, heart, liver, and other organs which seem remote from the stomach because many of these diseases have their cause in a diseased condition of the stomach involving the allied organs of digestion and nutrition.

"I sent you a letter about a year ago," writes Miss J. Ellis Hamilton of Fayetteville, Marion Co., West Va. "I stated my case as plainly as I could, and received a letter from you in a few days, telling me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription'—a bottle of each. I used three of each, and feel like a new woman. Don't suffer any pain or misery any more. Before using your medicines I suffered all the time—had jaundice, caused from food not digesting properly. I would have sick headache three and four times in a week. Could not do the work myself. I commenced using your medicines as recommended for liver complaint, and think I am cured now. I asked our doctor if he couldn't cure me, and he said he could give me medicine to help me but the trouble might return any time. I doctored three years without any relief. Haven't had sick headache since I took the first bottle of your medicine."

PAYING MEXICO'S SOLDIERS.

When the Private's Turn Comes, There Is Little Silver Left.

"Things have greatly improved for the private soldier in the Mexican army of late," said a resident of New Orleans whose business takes him frequently into the sister republic, "but only a few years ago he had a pretty rough time of it, and as for his pay—well, I'll tell you a little story that covers the ground fairly well. On one occasion I spent several months in a small town in the northern part of the country where a regiment of infantry was temporarily in barracks. Of course I got well acquainted with all the officers from the colonel down and found them, without exception, royal good fellows. But the poor soldiers were as tough looking a lot of scarecrows as I ever laid eyes on. Their uniforms were in rags and tatters, half of them were barefooted, and the other half had no hats, while their arms and accouterments were in a condition to match.

"The paymaster used to get around about every two months, and his arrival would be a signal for great excitement at the barracks. He did his business, however, entirely with the colonel and after inspecting the rolls would place a certain sum of money in that dignitary's hands, dine formally with the whole staff and take his departure. Next day the colonel would call in the captains of the several companies and give each of them a bag of dollars. The captains would thereupon summon the lieutenants, who, in turn, would send for the sergeants, and thus the money would glide down the line until it finally reached the corporals, who did the actual paying off of the men.

"How it happened I don't undertake to say, but with each transfer the cash invariably suffered a shrinkage. Perhaps it was due to abrasion. Anyhow, not more than a third ever reached the rank and file. That would have been bad enough, but in this regiment there was also a curious ebb tide, so to speak, that swept a good deal of the money back through the original channel of distribution. The whole crowd, from private to commander, were inveterate poker players, and by a mysterious freak of fate their ability was in almost exact ratio to their rank—the old colonel being acknowledged champion of the department.

"After pay day there was always a grand poker orgy, in which the noncommissioned officers usually cleaned out the privates. Then a few lieutenants would swoop down and wind up the 'noncoms,' to get looted themselves by their captains, who invariably fell victims to the superior skill of the colonel. The result was that the unfortunate private never got over a third of his pay and never had that longer than 48 hours. He got it in the neck both 'comin and gwine,' as the old darky remarked."

The Sort of Table He Wanted.

The following conversation was overheard between a joiner and his customer a short time ago:

Joiner—Please, sir, I've brought the table you ordered me to make.

Customer—Well, put it down here, my man, and let's see what sort of a job you've made of it.

The man set it down in the middle of the room, and the customer examined it with the air of a critic.

Customer—Why, my man, there is here a crack filled up with putty.

Joiner—Yes, sir. Well, sir, I knew about that, but it won't be noticed when it sets hard.

Customer (coming across some more putty)—But here's some more, my man. What is the meaning of this?

Joiner—Well, sir, you see, a little bit of wood chipped off the corner, and I just put a little putty there to fill up. It won't do no harm, sir, when it's set hard.

Customer (finding some more putty patches)—Look here, my man, this won't do. Why, here's a big lump right in the middle of this leg. What can you say about that?

Joiner (scratching his head and trying hard to find some excuse by which to retrieve his honor)—Well, sir, that's no harm whatever, and the putty when it sets hard will be firmer and harder than the wood. So, you see, it will be all the better if you wait a bit, sir.

Customer (sarcastically)—Here, my good man, just take this table home and bring me one made of putty altogether. I want a good strong one, and you can fill up the cracks with wood.—London Tit-Bits.

How the Spanish Gypsy Dances.

I held my breath as I watched the gypsy in the Seville dancing hall. I felt myself swaying unconsciously to the rhythm of her body, of her beckoning hands, of the glittering smile that came and went in her eyes. I seemed to be drawn into a shining whirlpool, in which I turned, turned, hearing the buzz of the water settling over my head. The guitar hummed, buzzed in a prancing rhythm, the gypsy coiled about the floor in her trailing dress, never so much as showing her ankles, with a rapidity concentrated upon itself. Her hands beckoned, reached out, clutched, clutched delicately, lived to their finger tips. Her body straightened, bent, the knees bent and straightened, the heels beat on the floor, carrying her backward and round. The toes pointed, paused, pointed, and the body drooped or rose into immobility, a smiling, significant pause of the whole body. Then the motion began again, more vivid, more restrained, as if teased by some unseen limits, as if turning upon itself in the vain desire to escape, as if caught in its own toils.—Arthur Symons in London Saturday Review.

Companions in Misery.

"I am not especially sensitive," said the man with the billiard ball pate in talking to friends with scanty hair who had been telling experiences, "but I confess it rankled when an absolute stranger hailed me as 'Old Baldy!' I was sprinkling the lawn one hot evening last summer and had laid aside hat and coat. I was somewhat astonished on looking up to see a stranger hanging over the picket fence intently watching me. I continued to play the hose, but when I looked up again the man was still there studying and with evident amusement. I glared at him.

"'Hello, old Baldy!' he shouted, making a profound bow.

"'Are you speaking to me, sir?' I demanded.

"'Hello, old Baldy!' he repeated.

"'Why, you verdant chump,' I replied, rushing toward him, with the nozzle, 'I'll turn the hose on you!'

"'No, you don't,' he answered, removing his hat with a flourish and making another low bow. 'I'm the limit,' he said. I then saw there was not a hair on his head. We went off together and had a drink."

Heart Disease

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Trouble.

Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, is certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores, and which contains valuable, harmless, digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular, persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

A Newspaper Man Speaks.

Mr. E. C. Dean, City Editor of the Daily British Whig, Kingston, Ont., was a sufferer for thirteen years from neuralgia in the head. Hearken to his unsolicited testimony: I take much pleasure in testifying to the efficacy of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure for the treatment of neuralgia. I suffered for thirteen years with neuralgia in my head, immediately above the eyes. For one whole year before trying Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure, I was scarcely ever free from pain, and for five weeks at a stretch I was confined to my room unable to eat or sleep and during this time six physicians treated me declaring that they had given me every remedy known to the medical profession, but without affording me even temporary relief, except when they administered morphine hypodermically. A friend, Henry Wade, the well known druggist, recommended to me a trial of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. Less than half a bottle gave me relief, and after taking the contents of three bottles I am able to declare myself completely cured.

HOW DO YOU CARRY AN UMBRELLA?

A Woman's Character Revealed by This, Thinks One Man.

The man who sat nearest the window said he didn't mind the wet weather.

"It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such firm faith in my umbrella deductions that I wouldn't be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

"I'm glad I'm not out there in the street," she said. "You'd be picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man. "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry your umbrella, when it's furled, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go forging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pedestrians who go before and follow after."

"And what does that signify?" asked the woman on the left.

"Alertness, activity, selfishness and inconsiderateness."

"Um-m-m," said the woman.

"But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about her house. I'll warrant they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of seven. I never yet saw a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could track her by the trail of the tip who wasn't dilatory and shiftless. She never sews on a button or darns or mends, and her breakfast dishes are seldom washed before 2 o'clock.

"That other woman who is hustling along holding to the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the tip down and forward in a kind of south by southwesterly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I am not sure that I'd want to be married to her, either. She'd be too energetic. She'd push everything before her, and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have nowhere to lay his head. What she is good for is serving on committees.

"That woman in the gray skirt is a yea and nay sort of person. She wants to agree with everybody and follows wherever led. Women who carry their umbrellas with the point backward and downward are always unassertive.

"But just look at that girl who spins along swinging her umbrella around in a circle as if it were a magic wand. I like her. She's jolly and good natured and gets more pleasure out of life than ten ordinary people. There's a woman carrying her umbrella swung across her shoulder like a shotgun. She's a true soldier of fortune and was never known to say die. I can't think of anything that would cause her."

The man paused.

"And what would you say," asked the woman, "about that girl who carries her umbrella horizontally across the small of her back and catches either end into the crook of her elbow?"

"Well," admitted the man, "she is a new one on me. I never met her before, but I wouldn't be afraid to wager that she is conscientious to a degree and has a heart as big as all outdoors. But here," he added, "comes the most even tempered woman of the lot. She cuddles her umbrella protectingly under her arm as if she doesn't want even it to get hurt in the crowd. That woman is gentle and thoughtful and kind."

TRADING WOODEN LEGS.

Effects of the "Sway" Between Minister and Stage Driver.

"Trading legs!" I exclaimed. "Do you mean to say that a wooden leg is an article of barter and exchange?"

"Waal, some do, an some don't. I'm one of the kind that does," went on the driver dryly. "It's only human natur' to be dickerin an tradin round if a fellow's got anything to trade with, an when I run acrost a chap who's got a peg leg that looks as if it might fit me a leetle mite better than the one I'm wearin at the time I gener'ly stump him fer a trade before I let him git away.

"Sometimes we make a swap of it, an sometimes we don't; depends on whether the other feller's got any game in him or not. It's a sorter risky business, tradin legs, same as swoppin hosses, an some folks ain't got the relsiste sand to do it. I'll never forgit the first trade I made. Feller I swopped with was one of these travelin exhorters, an, b'gosh, I don't keer a durn whether you b'lieve me or not, but I hadn't bin wearin that wooden leg of his a week before I quit swearin at the hosses an raisin Sam Hill when anything didn't go right, same as I allers uster do, an commenced exhortin the passengers an p'intin out the error of their ways to them in any case where I seen it was necessary.

"Waal, it wa'n't very long before complaints begun to come in ag'inst me. You see, to begin with, I couldn't make time over the road without rippin out at the hosses wunst in awhile. The plaguy critters noticed the difference in me right off, an they took advantage of it to lazy along an do jest about as they pleased, an then, besides complainin of me fer bein behind time, the passengers said I was preachin at them an mixin in affairs that was none of my special business, an, by gravy, it begun to look as if I was goin to lose my job, when that dir aboutin exhorter come along back ag'in an kicked up a rumpus because that leg of mine had jest about ruined his business; said it had bin travelin straight t'rds the bottomless pit with him ever since he owned it, an now he'd got so he was jest as liable as not to swear right out in the pulpit without thinkin, an he allowed that unless I traded back with him he'd sue me fer damages."

A Great Scheme.

Friend—What are you working at now?

Inventor—Greatest thing of the age—a dollar in the slot voting and weighing machine. It collects the poll tax, counts the votes and so beautifully discriminates that there'll be no more trouble, no more politics, no more speeches, no more brass bands and, best of all, no more boodlers.

"My stars! What's the idea?"

"Simple as A B C. The machine only counts the votes of those under a certain weight. Quick as the party in power begins to get fat on the spoils of office their votes are thrown out, and the half starved minority walks in, and when the new party gets fat it goes out, and so on. It beats all creation! Gives every fellow a chance to become a successful politician."

Starving Children.

Thousands of well fed children are starving, simply because their food is not of the right kind. They are thin, pale and delicate. Scott's Emulsion will change all this. It gives vim and vigour, flesh and force.

A SUNDAY HORSE RACE.

Anna Was Sedate, but Just Had to Say "Let Her Go!"

One of those men who came in from the country and have climbed from the bottom of the ladder to the top likes to tell a story on his wife, whose second beauty is crowned by a mass of silken hair as white as cotton.

"We both lived on a farm then," he says. "Anna was an orphan and brought up by a strict old uncle, who was a deacon. She was pretty and bright, but so prim and straitlaced that she would sanction nothing to which the deacon himself objected, and no old Covenanter ever drew the lines more closely than he did.

"Next to Anna my affections were centered on a colt that was good to look at and developed a wonderful speed and gameness that spoke of aristocratic descent. I told this to no one but Anna, and it was with great difficulty that I induced her to ride one Sunday with me to a camp meeting behind a real trotter.

"Going to the meeting I regulated the colt's pace to suit the day and the occasion, and he was as sedate as the deacon himself. The only girl of the neighborhood who pretended to rival Anna in beauty was there with a young fellow who prided himself on having the fastest horses in the county. Toward sundown she told Anna that we had better start home early. They would require much less time and would probably pass us on the way.

"That made me mad, and I thought I detected an unwonted fire in Anna's eyes. We were jogging homeward as decorously as we had gone, talking solemnly, as we should, when there was a rush past us, a cloud of dust and a mocking laugh that bade us goodby. My colt was prancing and pulling like a tugboat. I was bound to please my girl, grinding as it was.

"That was enough. Fences and trees flew the other way. Blood told, and the colt seemed on wings. When we were nose and nose, Anna was so excited that she wanted to take the reins for fear I couldn't win the Sunday race. But the gallant colt shot through ahead. It wasn't long till Anna wore a little jewelry and tolerated cards to the extent of playing 'old maid.'"

THE LIQUOR HABIT.

Rev. A. J. McCallen's Lecture.

On the occasion of a lecture delivered before a large and appreciative audience in Windsor Hall, Montreal, in honour of the Father Matthew anniversary, Rev. J. A. McCallen, S. S., of St. Patrick's church, and president of the St. Patrick's Total Abstinence Society, paid the following grand tribute to the value of Mr. Dixon's new discovery for the cure of alcohol and drug habits.

Referring to the physical craze engendered by the inordinate use of intoxicants, he said: "When such a craze manifests itself there is no escape, unless by a miracle of grace, or by some such remedy as Mr. Dixon's Cure, about which the papers have spoken so much lately, and if I am to judge of the value of the Dixon remedy by the cures which it has effected under my own eyes, I must come to the conclusion that what I have longed for twenty years to see discovered, has at last been found by that gentleman."

Full particulars of this new medicine are sent sealed free to all applicants. Address, Mr. Dixon, 81 Willcocks street, Toronto, Ont.

He Knew When He Was Well Off.

Teddie slept in a big bed with his mother, and one winter's night, being right in the middle of it when his mother's bedtime came, she suggested to him to move on his side. He blinked up at her rebelliously: "No. I t'ink I won't move. It's cold everywhere I ain't."

The receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day amounted to 64 carloads all told, composed of 1175 cattle, 1000 hogs, 250 sheep and 126 calves.

Prices for good shipping cattle were firmer, and sold as high as $5.40 per cwt. Butchers' cattle sold at unchanged prices from those quoted on Thursday's market.

LOCAL DELEGATES' REPORT.

Before Provincial Historical Society at Belleville.

Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers and Messrs. J. D. Collins and E. H. D. Hall Attend—May Meet in Peterborough.

Lieut.-Colonel H. C. Rogers, and Messrs. J. D. Collins and E. H. D. Hall, were in attendance last week in Belleville, at the Provincial Convention of the Historical Societies of Ontario, and returned on Friday morning, well pleased with what they saw and heard while away. Delegates were present from many of the societies, and a number of interesting papers were read. The delegates, too, were treated to visits to many historic points in the neighbourhood of Belleville, including the Mohawk Reserve and church, Glen Island, Lake on the Mountain, and Adolphustown.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President—Mr. J. H. Coyne, St. Thomas.

Vice-Presidents—Mr. C. C. James, Toronto; Mr. A. Pattullo, Woodstock.

Treasurer — Mr. Frank Yeigh, Toronto.

Secretary—To be nominated by the Council of the Society; Mr. Boyle has resigned.

The Council is composed of the Presidents of the various Societies of the Province.

The matter of where the next meeting of the society will be held was not decided on but will be at an early date, and the Provincial Association has been extended an invitation by the Peterborough delegates to meet in Peterborough. Lindsay, it is understood, is also anxious for the Association to have its next annual meeting in that town, but the probabilities are that Peterborough can have this honour, providing, of course, that the town backs up the society in a suitable manner in the matter.

On Thursday last the steamer America was kindly placed at the disposal of the delegates by Mr. Rathbun for a trip down the bay to Adolphustown, stopping at Deseronto, Glen Island and Glenora.

The old U. E. Loyalist burying ground at Adolphustown, now nothing but a cow pasture, was visited, and deep interest was shown in it. The old tombstones are all fallen down and their inscriptions obliterated, or nearly so, but still dates such as 1799 and 1812 could be deciphered.

Lt.-Col. Rogers was able to decipher the inscription on the tombstone marking the grave of his grandfather.

The old cedar posts which supported the fence are still there.

On the way down the bay several ports were read from outside societies, by Judge Dean, Lieut.-Colonel Rogers, Mr. J. S. Barker, Miss Fitzgibbon and Mr. Pattullo.

Mr. T. W. Casey pointed out the different points of historic interest, and as he is an authority on this subject, his description was very interesting. All were enthusiastic about the trip.

LIEUT. COL. ROGERS' PAPER.

Lieut.-Colonel Rogers' paper was as follows:

Peterborough, Ont., June 3, 1901.
To the President and Members of the Ontario Historical Society, assembled at Belleville, on June 5th, 1901.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen,—Our society not having been represented at any of your previous meetings, I thought it might be of interest to you and the members present to hear what we have done in the back country in the historical line. I have put down a few facts regarding our local Association, which I now submit.

The forming of a society at Peterborough was, I think, owing to the suggestion of Mrs Leigh and Miss Fitzgibbon, of the Toronto Ladies' Historical Society, who were acquainted with our neighbourhood, and a local society was organized on December 20, 1896, with the late Mrs. Catharine Parr Trail as patron; she took a great interest in the work, be thus since departed this life at the ripe old age of 97—beloved by a large circle of friends and remembered by a larger circle of readers throughout the English-speaking world, from her literary works. I had the honour of being elected President, with T. A. S. Hay, C.E., in the more important office of secretary, which positions we have continued to hold to the present time. We set to work to collect the stories of the few surviving but fast vanishing old settlers in our vicinity.

A short time after, the executors of the will of the late Mrs. Nicholls, (a lady who was a great benefactor to our town, and who, among her many bequests, left several parks, in one of which was situated a residence) offered this building to the society for the purposes of a museum which we undertook to form, and it was handed over to the society, with a ceremonial dedication, on the 21st of June, 1897, at the celebration of the Jubilee of our late revered Sovereign—after whom it was named—the Victoria Museum. In it we have now stored a growing assortment of curios and relics, as well as a representative lot of minerals and geological specimens of Canada, which, together with a pretty full variety of the native birds and animals, forms a nucleus which we trust will ere long comprise a collection worthy of an inspection by this society. The museum is now open to the public every afternoon during the summer months, and we hope soon to be in a position to keep it open all the time.

Among the many records in our store, I might mention one of particular interest to many of the descendents of our pioneers, viz., a list of the settlers and their locations in the county of what is known as the Robinson Emigration, for which we are indebted to Christopher Robinson, Esq., K. C., Toronto, a nephew of the late Peter Robinson, after whom our town and county were named.

We have also been enabled to do a little in Memorial Work by the erection of a stone to the memory of a Poetess—Isabella Valency Crawford, who was of Irish birth, but sometime lived in Peterborough, and whose talents were not appreciated during her life as they deserved, and whose grave was unmarked in our cemetery. Through the particular exertions of our treasurer, Mrs. Macfarlane Wilson, and "Kit," of the Mail and Empire, her tomb is now ornamented with a Celtic Cross, surrounded by a wreath of maple leaves in gray granite, from a design by our secretary.

Hoping that our society may on many future occasions be able to report greater progress in the very desirable work of research and preservation of the history of our beloved Canada, and with all good wishes for the prosperity to the Ontario Historical Society, I beg to remain,

Your obedient servant,
H. C. ROGERS,
President Peterborough Historical Society.

SUGAR BEETS THRIVING.

Those Planted in the County Were Inspected Last Week.

Mr. E. H. Shuttleworth, of Guelph, was in town on Saturday on his way home after having spent a few days inspecting the progress made by the sugar beets recently planted in this county. In connection with the inspection, Mr. Shuttleworth says: "Having just completed my June inspection of the sugar beet plots planted at Peterborough in the townships of Smith, North and South Monaghan, Otonabee and Douro, under the direction of Dr. A. E. Shuttleworth, of the Ontario Agricultural College, by order of the Minister of Agriculture of Ontario, I am pleased to be able to say that I have found them generally in good condition although the season has been cold and the ground very wet. There are two cases where the plants are not up yet owing to the land being so wet that the seed could not be planted at the proper time. But where the land is high and dry the beets show well. Some of the plots are unusually fine. I find the farmers quite interested in the cultivation of sugar beets and they generally follow instructions closely, though some forget. On the whole I think they are doing remarkably well and their plots show it. I find a large breadth of land suitable for the growth of the sugar beet around Peterborough and much more can be made so by draining."

PASTRY PROHIBITED.

Sufferer From Dyspepsia Forced to Eat and Subsist on Plainest of Foods—No Need of That With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets

To many a poor sufferer from Dyspepsia the only possible relief to be found for their distress is by confining themselves to a strictly plain uninviting diet. Tasty, appetising dishes are out of the question.

There is no need of such a sacrifice. Dyspepsia is no longer the all powerful tyrant which compels men and women to conform their lives to its cruel sway.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have revolutionised the treatment of Dyspepsia, providing a boon to thousands of people who, without their help, would never know a day of freedom from pain.

With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets dieting is unnecessary. Any food may be taken into the stomach, and digested surely and painlessly if Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are used.

Gradually, with the help of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the stomach will improve and grow stronger, until at last the time comes when it can do its work alone; when its digestive powers are so perfect that all foods can be assimilated without strain. Then only will the health and vigour of the whole system be at its highest, for, on the stomach depends the condition of the whole body.

Mr. Dan Corlson, of Hamilton, writes thus of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets: "Since I was eighteen years of age I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Heartburn. I could not eat any pastry, for fear of Heartburn.

"Doctors have tried to cure me, but only slight temporary relief would follow. I was advised to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and I gave them a trial. I am delighted to say I not only found them a relief, but a final, permanent cure, for the slightest sign of Dyspepsia has not bothered me since ceasing their use."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are thoroughly endorsed by the medical profession, and by dyspeptics all over the world.

THE OTTAWA TRIP.

The Excursionists Were Well Pleased With Their Outing and of What They Saw.

The excursionists who went from this vicinity on the annual excursion of the East and West Peterborough and East Durham Farmers' Institutes, to Ottawa, have returned home well pleased with their outing. There were about 200 in all took in the trip, the excursion train leaving here on Thursday morning. On arriving in Ottawa Mr. John Lang, the popular representative in the Dominion House for East Peterborough, took the visitors in hand and showed them various places of interest, including the parliament buildings and the leading city parks. On Friday morning the excursionists visited the museum and in the afternoon their main object in visiting Ottawa was accomplished, viz., inspecting the model farm. All of the excursionists expressed themselves as being favourably impressed with what they saw and one very pleasing and noticeable feature was that the employees of the farm, the very instant the visitors struck the institution, dropped their work and proceeded to explain and in every possible way enlighten their guests as to everything of interest.

The excursionists all expressed a desire to visit the model farm again next year. The majority of them arrived home on Friday night and others came back on the Saturday trains.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

At Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday morning the anthem "Like as a Father Pitieth His Children" was sung, the solos being taken by Mr. G. K. Martin and Miss Florence Carolyn Hall.

In the evening Miss Hall sang "I Think When I Read the Sweet Story."

MARK STREET CHURCH.

In the morning the pulpit was filled by Mr. Jos. Batten.

The choir sang "Jesus is Mine," by Emerson, the solo of which was ably rendered by Miss Lottie Kindred.

During the offertory the solo "O Happy Day," by Goetz, was sung by Mr. E. S. Watson.

In the evening the pulpit was occupied by Mr. A. M. Harding.

The choir sang "Praise the Lord, O My Soul," by Vance, the soprano solo being taken by Miss Lottie Kindred.

During the offertory a duet "The Gift of God's Love," was rendered by Misses L. Kindred and R. Curry in a highly pleasing manner.

BETHANY TABERNACLE.

The services at Bethany Tabernacle yesterday were conducted by Rev. R. A. Jaffray and Mrs. Jaffray, of Toronto. In the morning the former gave a continuation of his address of a few Sundays ago on "Faith," and in the evening both spoke on mission work in China, they having laboured among the Chinese for five years.

TWO FATAL ACCIDENTS.

John Patterson and Risley Batson Killed at Niagara-on-the-Lake on Saturday—Distressing Particulars.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 10.—A fatal accident occurred near here Saturday afternoon, about 1 o'clock, resulting in the death of John Patterson, a teamster, from St. Catharines. Patterson has been engaged in teaming spiles here for several days, and made his usual trip Saturday morning, in company with his son and another teamster, named Murphy. When ready to return he told his son to go on ahead, as he was going to wait for Murphy. The men left an hour later, somewhat intoxicated, Patterson going about 10 minutes ahead of Murphy. Patterson had a spirited pair of horses, and was driving recklessly when he left. About three miles of the journey had been covered when his horses became unmanageable and ran away, throwing him off his truck. He was dragged about 10 or 12 feet, when the wheel of the heavy truck passed over his head, crushing his face and skull to a pulp. Murphy passed him and went on about a quarter of a mile, and informed the village postmaster that there was a dead man about a quarter of a mile down the road, after which he proceeded homeward. No inquest was deemed necessary. Deceased was a man about 65 years of age.

ANOTHER FATALITY.

Gardener Named Batson Struck by Michigan Train and Killed.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 10.—Risley Batson, aged 64, was struck by the M. C. R. 6-o'clock train Saturday night and instantly killed, the train running over and crushing his skull. Mr. Batson was an Englishman by birth, and emigrated to Canada some 15 years ago, taking up his residence at Port Robinson, for some years, and after that moving to Niagara-on-the-Lake, where he has since lived. His occupation was that of a gardener. He was very deaf, and this was the cause of his death. Deceased was a member of the Royal Artillery in England. He leaves a wife, two daughters and a son, in very destitute circumstances.

The three Marvelles, who are a new feature in Ringling Brothers' Circus, are acrobats, contortionists, grotesque pantomimics and expert barrel vaulters, and their performance has been a distinct hit.

MR. HARDY SERIOUSLY ILL.

An Operation Performed at Toronto General Hospital on Sunday.

Toronto, June 10.—The many friends of Hon. A. S. Hardy will learn with regret that the attack of appendicitis from which he has been ailing for a week became very much worse on Saturday. Shortly before midnight on Saturday an abcess that had formed about the appendix burst, and Mr. Hardy was conveyed, on the advice of Dr. McPhedran, his physician, to the General Hospital, where Dr. I. H. Cameron and Dr. Starr performed an operation. The patient was very weak after the operation, but rallied last evening.

At 8 o'clock this morning it was stated at the General Hospital that Hon. Mr. Hardy's condition had been unchanged throughout the night. At that hour respiration was good, the pulse unsettled, but the patient was resting comfortably, being perfectly conscious.

FIVE KILLED, SEVEN INJURED.

Disastrous Wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 10.—While freight train No. 61 on the Lackawanna was taking water at Vestal, 10 miles west of here, at 9.45 o'clock on Saturday, it was run into from behind by a double-header wildcat freight. In the second car from the caboose of the stationary train was a large quantity of dynamite, which was exploded by the impact.

The Killed.

John P. Kelly, head brakesman wild-cat train.

S. R. Polhamus, conductor, train No. 61.

Elmer Polhamus, trainman, train No. 61.

Fred Witherby, fireman, second engine wild-cat freight.

Henry Polhamus, flagman, train No. 61, badly jarred, left hand torn off; John Loregan, engineer, second engine wild-cat freight, slightly, jumped and escaped; George Motthias, engineer, first engine wild-cat freight, slightly; Charles Miller, Martin Kelly, M. Henrison, trainmen, wild-cat freight, slightly; William Meddick, head flagman on No. 61.

Many of those who were thought to be fatally hurt yesterday recovered from the concussion, and yesterday figured in the list of slightly hurt.

Both trains were completely wrecked. Aside from the damage to railroad property, much minor damage is reported. Nearly every house in the villages of Vestal and Union, which is across the Susquehanna from the wreck, lost more or less of its window glass, while farm houses and barns near the scene were badly shattered. None of the inmates, however, were injured.

A TRANSPORTATION COMMISSION.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Is Spoken of as the First Head of the Concern.

Montreal, June 10.—The latest interesting political rumor in Government circles is to the effect that, very shortly, the whole transportation question of this country will be taken out of the hands of the Government and a commission appointed to deal with all water and railway transportation problems. Said a prominent Liberal at the Windsor Saturday evening: "I have heard that such a step is seriously contemplated by the Government. The appointments are to be for life, and the number of commissioners is to be either three or five. Hon. Mr. Tarte is spoken of as the first president of the commission, and the salary is put down at $25,000 per year."

The Garcinetti Troupe of nine acrobats, direct from Italy, is a big feature with Ringling Brothers' famous big circus this season. The marvelous performance given by these great acrobats has created a universal sensation.

QUEEN AND EMPEROR.

Did Kaiser and Wilhelmina Agree to End Boer War?

VON BUELOW'S STATEMENT.

Britain Has Not Asked the Good Offices of Any Power, Said the Imperial Chancellor of Germany — Boer Forces Reduced by Deaths and Capture — Boer Agents Meeting.

Berlin, June 11.—The Kleines Journal yesterday printed a despatch from The Hague, saying that Queen Wilhelmina's recent visit here was meant to obtain Emperor William's consent to end the South African war, both the Zweibund and the Dreibund being willing to do so, through The Hague Arbitration Court, and that the Emperor consented, and the court began work thereon. The despatch has created a sensation here.

The Associated Press has just obtained the following Foreign Office statement, which is authorized by Count Von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor:

"Neither Great Britain, France nor Russia ever approached Germany to participate in any action aiming at ending the South African war. Germany has all along distinguished between offering her good offices and intervention. To render her good offices, would be possible under certain circumstances, viz., if both parties to the war should request it; but it will be remembered that Great Britain joined The Hague Conference only on condition that the Boer States were excluded. There is no doubt that Mr. Kruger, who is a serious statesman, came to Europe to obtain the good offices of several of the powers to end the war; but there is also no doubt that Great Britain does not want their good offices. At least, it is true that since the South African war began, Great Britain has never, either verbally or in writing, confidentially or officially, broached such an idea. It is quite possible that the Boer side has now formally asked The Hague Arbitration Court to lend its aid to end the war somehow, and that the court has held a session regarding the matter; but that, of course, is entirely different from any serious steps to end the war."

WEARING THEM OUT.

The Boer Forces Reduced by Deaths and Capture.

London, June 11.—Lord Kitchener in a despatch from Pretoria, under yesterday's date, says the number of Boers killed, imprisoned or surrendered during the last month totalled 2,640. From June 1 to June 9, 26 Boers were killed, four were wounded, 409 were made prisoners and 28 surrendered, and 651 rifles, 115,550 rounds of ammunition, 120 wagons and 4,000 horses were captured.

Mrs. Botha to Report.

London, June 11.—The Sun hears that Mrs. Botha will start Wednesday for The Hague, where Mr. Kruger has been summoned to attend a conference of the Boer agents in Europe and the United States to consider the report Mrs. Botha has brought from her husband, in which he advises Mr. Kruger as the constitutional head of the Transvaal to sue for peace on the best terms obtainable.

Kruger and Leyds.

The Hague, June 11.—Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds arrived here yesterday. They drove from the railroad station at Hilversum Junction in a closed carriage, and are staying at the residence of Mr. Wolmarans, one of the Boer peace envoys.

Kruger Is Not Coming

Washington, June 11.—It is understood that former President Kruger of the Transvaal will not visit the United States during the coming summer or fall. At one time there was a prospect that Mr. Kruger might make such a visit, but those having some knowledge of his movements say the visit will not be made, at least for the present.

Canadian Troopers Dead.

Ottawa, June 11.—His Excellency the Governor-General yesterday morning received a cablegram from Lord Strathcona, reporting the deaths of three Canadian members of the South African Constabulary.

Trooper William Hannon, formerly of 27 Corporal H Squad, died of enteric fever at Bloemfontein, May 27. The next of kin is Mrs. Hannon, Kilmeager, Kildare, Ireland.

Trooper Edward Mullins, who enlisted at Halifax, died of enteric at Elandsfontein, May 31. Next of kin, Mrs. Mullins, of Hillsboro, Albert Co., N. B.

Miss Richardson, daughter of Judge Richardson of Regina, who accompanied the Constabulary to South Africa, as a nurse, has gone to Heidelburg, to establish a hospital for the force. Her assistant, Miss Nesbitt, is nursing at Krugersfontein.

Canadian Officer For India.

Kingston, Ont., June 11.—Capt. P. E. Twinning, R. E., a graduate of the Royal Military College, has been appointed to succeed Major Bond, R. E., as superintendent of instruction at Bengal, India. This is one of the best positions that can be offered to an engineer officer of Capt. Twining's rank, and shows that merit tells. The training at the Kingston college produces able men. Capt. Twinning is now in China on special service, and on his return to India will take up his new duties.

ROYALTY IN TORONTO

The Duke's Party Will Be Guests at Government House.

DENIAL OF AN OTTAWA STORY.

It Said That Sir Oliver Mowat Had Been Asked and Had Refused to Give Up Government House to Their Royal Highnesses — Lord and Lady Minto at the Parliament Buildings.

Ottawa, June 11.—The Citizen yesterday morning said that Sir Oliver Mowat was invited to give up Government House for the use of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, but declined to do so.

Toronto, June 11.—Miss Mowat, on behalf of Sir Oliver, stated to The Globe, when asked as to the correctness of this statement, that there was absolutely no truth in it. They had not been asked to give up Government House to the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, but were anxious that their Royal Highnesses should stay with them during the visit to Toronto. It had not been decided, as yet, Miss Mowat said, whether the Royal visitors would be provided for at Government House or the Parliament buildings.

Later in the afternoon it was announced by Premier Ross that their Royal Highnesses would be the guests of Sir Oliver Mowat at Government House, and that their Excellencies Lord and Lady Minto would be the guests of the Government at the Parliament buildings during the period of the distinguished visitors' stay in Toronto.

MR. HARDY'S CONDITION.

Has Had Soothing Rest—Slight Hope Yet Left That He May Recover.

Toronto, June 11.—The condition of the Hon. A. S. Hardy yesterday showed little change. Early in the day a bulletin was sent out from the General Hospital, where he lies, stating that Mr. Hardy was "very, very weak." Later it was announced that he had rested well, and that the danger point was his inability to take nourishment. Toward evening there was a rally in the patient's condition, and at 2.45 o'clock this morning it was stated that the improvement had been maintained, and there was a slight chance of recovery.

Since the operation early on Sunday morning the members of Mr. Hardy's family have been near his bedside. They are Mrs. Hardy, Dr. E. A. Hardy, Toronto, and Arthur C. Hardy, Brantford, sons; Miss Gladys, a daughter, and Judge Hardy of Brantford, a brother.

The great affection of the people of Ontario for the former Premier has been shown in a mass of telegrams of sympathy from all parts of the Province. For these Mr. Hardy and the members of the family are deeply grateful.

MR. BASTEDO BADLY HURT.

Run Down by a Wagon While Wheeling in Toronto.

Toronto, June 11.—David H. Bastedo, the well-known furrier, is in the Emergency Hospital suffering from painful injuries sustained by being run down last evening near Toronto and King streets by a horse and wagon driven by Charles Stevens, a market gardener of Bracondale.

Stevens was arrested and will be held until the result of Mr. Bastedo's injuries is known. The prisoner is charged with wounding, it being alleged by Constable Redford, who witnessed the accident, that Stevens was driving at a rapid rate when Bastedo was run down while wheeling.

A Hunted Negro Surrendered.

Hagerstown, Md., June 11.—Hunted by armed men, who threatened to lynch him for attempting to assault Miss Lizzie Gossard, a young white woman, living across the line in Franklin County, Joseph Powell, colored, gave himself up to the officers yesterday, and escaped the vengeance of his pursuers. He was hurried to Chambersburg and placed in jail, and a strong guard was established about the building to prevent him from being taken out.

U. S. Will Not Join.

Washington, June 11.—The Government has formally communicated to the foreign powers the impossibility of joining in a joint guarantee for the payment of the Chinese indemnity. The difficulties in the way of such an arrangement are set forth in the communication, particularly those relating to the constitutional restrictions on the President in making a joint guarantee of this character.

A Horrible Accident.

New Brunswick, N. J., June 11.—In the handkerchief factory of Hermann, Ankam & Co., at South River, yesterday, Annie Loch, 16 years old, was at work, when her hair caught in the bobbin machine. The rapid revolving shaft literally scalped her. Another employe saved her from decapitation. She cannot recover.

Walsh Failed to Appear.

Belleville, Ont., June 11.—Charles Walsh, who was out on bail of $700 on a charge of criminally assaulting a little girl, failed to appear yesterday, and his bail was estreated.

DOURO COUNCIL.

The council met at the town hall on Monday, May 27th, as a Court of Revision; members all present. Reeve Moloney occupied the chair.

As there were no appeals against the assessment the roll was confirmed and the clerk instructed to attach the necessary certificate and corporation seal thereto.

On motion the council went into session for the transaction of the ordinary business of the township.

The minutes of the previous two meetings were read and confirmed.

Moved by Messrs. Gordon and Allen, that the reeve order the payment of $40.50 to Robert Allen, salary and postage as assessor for the current year.

On motion of Messrs. Condon and Sullivan, the clerk was instructed to assist the assessor in equalising Union S. S. for the next three years, viz., from 1901-03, both inclusive.

On motion of Messrs. Curtis and Sullivan, Bylaw No. 570 authorizing the reeve and treasurer to borrow money to meet current expenses was read the usual number of times and passed.

On motion of Messrs. Condon and Curtis, the Reeve ordered the payment of $35 to the clerk as part of salary for the current year.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Condon, James Anderson, Jas. Leahy, and Thos. Miller were each paid 50c for burying dead animals for which the owners were unknown.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Allen, that the clerk notify the county council that it is the intention of this council to appeal to that body regarding equalized assessment, as this council is of the opinion that the assessment is too high compared with the equalized assessment of adjoining municipalities, and that the reeve, clerk and councillor Allen attend the meeting.

Moved by Messrs. Curtis and Allen that Elias Beavis be paid the sum of $15 for work on road between con. 7 and 8 in front of lots 3 in accordance with a resolution of council passed Dec. 15, 1900, but leaving the grant raised from $10 to $15.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Condon that a resolution of council passed on the 28th of May, 1900, appointing John Quinn a commissioner to expend the sum of $35 in building a bridge over the creek in front of Hugh O'Connor's lot, be rescinded and that Charles Curtis be appointed in his place to expend the said sum or any portion thereof towards the erection of said Bridge.

On motion of Messrs. Curtis and Condon, the sum of $960 was appropriated for the maintenance of roads and bridges, as follows.—In each ward $120; on Dummer road $180; telephone road $40; side road between lots 5 and 6 and the road used in lieu thereof $100; boundary between Douro and Otonabee $100; boundary between Douro and Dummer $20; boundary between Douro and Ashburnham $10; North Douro road $20; Young's Point road $10.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Condon that a resolution of council passed on the 26th of May, 1897, appointing James McCliggott a commissioner to expend the sum of $25 on boundary between Douro and Ashburnham be rescinded and that Charles Curtis be appointed in his place to expend said amount or any unexpended balance of said sum.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Allen, the Reeve ordered the payment of $1.50 to Chas. Beavis for one cord of wood delivered to Widow John Leahy, as charity.

On motion the Council adjourned to meet again at the call of the Reeve.

THE JURY'S VERDICT.

Mrs. McCord Came to Her Death at Robert Fulford's Hands.

HE WAS COOL AND COLLECTED.

Act Was a Most Heartless and Premeditated Murder—His Body, Which the McCord Family Will Not Have Anything to Do With, Will Be Buried by Order of the Coroner.

Arva, Ont., June 11.—The adjourned inquest into the death of Mrs. Robert McCord, who was murdered by Robert Fulford, was held in the Town Hall, St. John's, last night. Several witnesses were examined. William Swarts, the man who drove the unfortunate man to the McCord home; Alfred West, Mr. McCord, his son and two daughters. The evidence all went to show that the man was cool and collected, and the act a most heartless and premeditated murder. The jury returned a verdict in about 15 minutes to the effect:

We, the jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of the death of the late Mrs. Robert McCord, are of the opinion and believe that she came to her death at the hands of one Robert Fulford, on Saturday, June 8, 1901.

The body of the unfortunate man will be buried by order of the coroner. The grip left at the Ilderton Hotel was produced by Constable Paisley. On examination, it contained a complete toilet equipment, laundry and cartridges. There is still another grip left in a restaurant in London.

The Murderer's Body.

London, Ont., June 11.—The body of Robert Fulford, the murderer and suicide, was lying all day yesterday, neatly dressed in black, for burial, in the undertaking warerooms of Clark & Smith. A curious crowd almost constantly filled the house. Men and women were coming and going in a continuous stream, the morbid desire to have a glimpse at the remains of the principal in London Township's latest tragedy apparently possessed people of all classes and both sexes. The undertaker has not enclosed the remains in a casket, having had no orders to do so. The McCord family have not had anything to do with the body. A brother of Fulford is expected here from Chicago.

THE INSURANCE CONSPIRACY.

Dr. August H. Unger and F. Wayland Brown Sentenced to the Penitentiary —How Their Scheme Failed.

Chicago, June 11.—Dr. August H. Unger and F. Wayland Brown, on trial for conspiracy to defraud insurance companies through the death of Miss Marie Defenbach, were last evening found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary under the Indeterminate Act.

Frank H. Smiley, indicted with Unger and Brown, pleaded guilty, and turned State's evidence. It is likely that he will escape with a light sentence.

The evidence in the case showed that Unger, Brown, Smiley and Miss Defenbach entered into a conspiracy, by which Smiley was to appear as the affianced husband of the woman. She was then to be ill and apparently die, leaving the insurance, which included one policy in a stock company and two in fraternal organizations (one of these being the I. O. F. of Canada), the total aggregating $25,000. The woman, in her will, said that she desired her remains to be cremated, and it is thought that it was the intention to hurry her away after her supposed death and cremate another body procured from a hospital.

The woman became ill according to program, but did not rally, and died. Her body was at once cremated. An inquest was held by Assistant Coroner John B. Weckler, without a jury, and Weckler returned to the Coroner's office a verdict that the woman had died of natural causes.

The death of the woman is shrouded in mystery, and physicians on the stand differ widely as to the cause of death. The State, however, declared that the woman was murdered, although it could not be positively proven. It was shown that all the insurance carried by the woman was assigned before her death, and that her will was drawn up after these assignments had been made.

Mr. Fisher spoke very optimistically of Canada's agricultural future.

Three Men Held Up a Canadian Pacific Train Near Summit Camp, But Were Foiled.

Vancouver, B. C., June 11.—A special from Eholt, B. C., tells of a bold attempt at hold-up, three men stopping a Canadian Pacific mixed train on the up grade near Summit Camp. As the train swept round the curve on the approach to the camp three men suddenly appeared and signalled. The train came to a standstill, upon which the would-be bandits flourished revolvers, but luckily there was a large crew in the rear of the cars and on their appearance the intending robbers thought that the odds were against them and decamped without going any further in the bluff.

This is the first act of the sort in the country, and on the train arriving at Eholt an emergency train was sent back over the line and the place scoured for traces of the robbers. Up to the present nothing more has been heard of them.

The True Restorer of Vitality and good Health Is Paine's Celery Compound

There is nothing vague or indefinite about the kind of good health that is promised by Paine's Celery Compound. Among other blessings the great medicine gives strong nerves, healthy circulation, perfect digestive vigour, clear complexion, sweet breath, bright eyes and full mental powers.

Every man and woman whose nervous strength is overtaxed, or whose life is a busy one and full of mental worries will soon feel the invigorating and vitalizing effects of Paine's Celery Compound, and see his or her health improve after the first few doses of nature's health restorer. Mr. R. McMullen, of Camden, N. S., sends in the following unsolicited letter:

"For over four years I have been in poor health and received treatment from two doctors besides using seven kinds of patent medicines. I also went to New York, and got a month's treatment of a special medicine, but no good results came from it. I was run down, suffered terribly, could not rest at night, and every morning had a severe pain in my back, dizziness in my head, and vomited bitter green matter, and had no appetite. I heard of Paine's Celery Compound, and decided to give it a trial, and am happy to report that it worked wonders. The pains are all gone, I rest well at night, my appetite is good and my health is now splendid. Paine's Celery Compound has worked wonders for me. I recommend it to all sick people as the best medicine."

Port Royal, Pa., June 11.—The Pittsburg Coal & Coke Company shaft No. 2 at this place is again on fire, and over 30 men are in the mines, many of whom it is feared will never be heard from again. The names of all those said to be in the mine cannot be learned, but the following are entombed: Jack Peoples, Tony Stickles, Frank Davenport, — Daly, William McCune (superintendent of the district), Dennis Wortley (pit boss), Michael Roy (a foreman of the Euclid mines).

MACHINISTS NEARLY THROUGH.

They Expect to Hear of Action of the Metal Trades Association in New York.

Toronto, June 11.—Another day and the International Association of Machinists will be through with their labors for another two years. To-day's business of importance will be the election of officers, and if the National Metal Trades' Association, which was in session yesterday in New York, takes a stand on the ultimatum issued by their Executive Council in Chicago a week ago, the machinists will be prepared to discuss that action. It was decided to remain in session until the manufacturers get through, and this may possibly mean the convention will not close until to-morrow or next day.

Kingston Strikers Lock-Out.

Kingston, Ont., June 11.—All the street railway motormen and conductors were yesterday morning locked out by the company, but the company, with difficulty, secured non-union men to man the cars, which are running on time. The men demanded an increase of 15 cents a day, which the company refused. The latter heard that the men intended striking Wednesday, and prepared an agreement for the men to sign. The terms were that the men would drop their demand for an increase in wages and give 48 hours' notice of intention to quit. The men offered to sign as a union, but the company demanded individual signatures, which was refused, and the men were discharged.

C.P.R. Trackmen's Plan.

Montreal, June 11.—President Wilson of the Order of Trackmen said last evening that the men will appeal to President Shaughnessy if they fail to come to an agreement with the vice-president.

Fishermen and Canners.

Vancouver, B. C., June 11.—A meeting between the Fraser River salmon canners and fishermen yesterday afternoon failed to produce any agreement as to the price to be paid for fish during the coming season. The fishermen asked for 15 cents, but the canners only offered 12½ cents up to Aug. 3, reserving the power to reduce the price at that date to 10 cents, if fish were running well.

Su Shih Chin May Come In.

VANCOUVER.

Sketch of the Dauntless Navigator Who Sailed the Inland Ocean.

The noble island and flourishing city of British Columbia which bear the name of Vancouver are testimony to the debt of our western seacoast to that dauntless navigator and explorer. Born in 1758, Vancouver was only thirteen years old when he entered the British navy, serving almost immediately after as midshipman in the second and third voyages of Captain Cook to the southern seas. His connection with the northwest coast of America, however, did not begin until 1789, when, having risen rapidly in his profession during the meantime, he was despatched at the head of a small squadron to receive the surrender of Nootka, on the island now known by his name, from the Spanish Government. He was also to make a survey of the coast northward, to ascertain whether the Strait of Juan de Fuca was really a strait, and whether some means of communication did not exist by water between the Pacific and the great lakes of Western Canada. Four years was spent by Vancouver in this work, during which he wintered in the Sandwich Islands and recrossed to the American coast with the spring. In 1795, his mission completed, he returned to England. With characteristic zeal and energy he at once plunged into the work of preparing an elaborate report of his operations and discoveries, but he had not completed his task when on May 10, 1798, he died at Petersham, in Surrey, his end doubtless hastened by the active spirit which led him to bear more perhaps than his full share of the hardships necessarily incidental to his stirring career.

HON. ROBERT BOND.

Sketch of the Premier and Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland.

Hon. Robert Bond, Premier and Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland, is returning from England, after settling with the Colonial Office the French shore question, so far as it can be settled in dealings between the colony and the British Government without consulting France. Though born in St. John's, in 1857, Mr. Bond was educated at Queen's College, Taunton, England. His father, Mr. John Bond, was a native of Torquay, Devonshire, who conducted an extensive business at St. John's as a branch of a Bridport establishment. The present Premier studied law, but before being called to the bar entered politics in 1880. In 1885 he was chosen Speaker of the Assembly, and on the retirement of Sir William Whiteway in 1886 Mr. Bond became leader of his party. On Sir William Whiteway's return to politics in 1889 Mr. Bond entered his Cabinet at Colonial Secretary, which post he held almost continuously until 1897. In 1890 he was one of three delegates to England on the French shore question, and the same year was appointed by both the Colonial and British Governments to visit Washington to arrange a reciprocity treaty. In 1892 he was sent to Halifax to consider the fisheries and other matters with representatives of our own Government. In 1895 he was at the Ottawa Conference. Mr. C. A. Dana wrote of him: "A comparatively young man, but his tact and ability entitle him to rank with the leading statesmen of the day."

MIRAGE ON LAKE HURON.

Surface of Lake Elevated at Angle of Twenty Degrees.

There was a very curious and beautiful mirage on Lake Huron on a recent Saturday. The surface of the lake appeared to be elevated at an angle of about twenty degrees, so that from Front street in Sarnia the ice covered surface of Lake Huron was visible over the top of the buildings in Point Edward. The contour of the shore was plainly visible for many miles, and the uneven surface of the ice fields broken here and there by streaks of open water could be seen stretching away till lost in the distance of the northern horizon. The most singular feature of the phenomenon was the singular manner in which the surface of the lake appeared at intervals to rise and fall. At one time the ice-covered surface of the lake would be barely visible above the lower intervening buildings, and presently, like the raising of a drop scene in a theatre, the landscape would appear to rise till the shore of the lake and the steamers imprisoned in the ice field would be plainly visible high over the summit of Fort Gratiot lighthouse, as if suspended in mid air. The singular phenomenon lasted for several hours, and was viewed with an immense amount of interest by the townspeople of Sarnia.

Didn't Marry for Money.

The Boston man, who lately married a sickly rich young woman, is happy now, for he got Dr. King's New Life Pills, which restored her to perfect health. Infallible for jaundice, biliousness, malaria, fever and ague and all liver and stomach troubles. Gentle, but effective. Only 25c at Jas. Lynch's drug store.

He Told Her.

Housekeeper—You promised that if I'd give you a good meal and a suit of old clothes you'd tell me how to keep the premises free from tramps.

Tramp—Yes, mum, an I'm a man o' me word, mum, an I'll keep me promise, although that meal wasn't no great shakes an this suit of clothes ain't much of a fit. But I'll tell ye.

"Well, what course am I to pursue?"

"Never give 'em anything, mum. Good day, mum."

An Inference.

The Professor—Yes, a caterpillar is the most voracious living thing. In a month it will eat about 600 times its own weight.

Dear Mrs. Hunt—Whose boy did you say he was?

Let a fireman play on your piano with his hose for a few minutes if you want to get all the music possible out of it.

ROBT. NEILL

A Strange Bird Visitor.

A swallow-tailed kite, the only one, so far as is known, that has been captured in Canada, was shot by a local taxidermist at Highland Creek Heights, near Port Union, on Tuesday. The kite proved to be a magnificent specimen, and will be envied by all collectors. It measured 26 inches from the bill to the tip of its long forked tail, and about 40 inches from tip to tip of its huge wings. The kite is a bird of prey belonging to the hawk family, and it is thought that it was driven out of its course by the great storm which raged last week from Georgia north to Ontario. The only record of any previous appearance of a swallow-tailed kite in this Province is to be found in Mackleworth's "Birds of Ontario," in which it is stated that one was observed perching on a flagpole in the City of Ottawa. The bird shot at Highland Heights had a pure white head, black back with metallic reflections, a white breast, and pale pea green legs. Highland Creek Heights, being the highest bluff along the lake, is a favorite landing-place for birds which cross the lakes, and is famous as a stopping point for fish hawks. At the crest of the heights is a riven oak, which is evidently a landmark for the winged travelers.

PETERBORO' COUNTY COURT

And General Sessions of the Peace.

Are Now in Session Before His Honour Judge Weller—The Grand Jury.

The County Court and General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Peterborough, opened at one o'clock this afternoon before His Honour Judge Weller.

The following members of the bar were in attendance,—Messrs. George Edmison, R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney; F. D. Kerr, D. O'Connal, E. B. Stone and A. E. Dixon, Peterborough; Mr. A. A. Smith, Millbrook; and Mr. McMurtry and Mr. Denison, Toronto.

The Grand Jury was empanelled as follows:

W. G. Ferguson, merchant, Peterborough, foreman; Kenneth Burges, farmer, Belmont; W. F. Crough, farmer, Ennismore; Jas. Dewart, farmer, Dummer; John Dickson, farmer, Otonabee; Sam Deyell, farmer, Otonabee; Ben. Hunter, saddler, Lakefield; John Knox, Asphodel; H. LeBrun, merchant, Peterborough; Jas. Taylor, farmer, Smith; Nathen Taylor, farmer, Smith.

His Honour Judge Weller, in addressing the jurors, said that there were seventeen persons confined in the County Jail at the present time but there was not one of that number awaiting trial by the court. The majority were there as being no use to society, and who have no visible means of support. Proceeding, His Honour went on to speak of the hope that before long there will be a place of more comforts provided for such people. Such a scheme had been spoken of and would in the course of time come. Three persons confined in the jail will be tried before the Magistrate, having been placed there on remand whilst two others were insane and would be removed, he hoped, in due time to a proper institution. His Honour then explained the duties of the Grand Jury regarding the Abbott forgery case, which they would have to deliberate on and defined very clearly the meaning of the word forgery. They would have to determine not only whether Abbott signed Mrs. J. Brummell's name to a certain note, but whether he had any authority to do so. In conclusion, he asked them to make the usual inspection of the jail and other public institutions if they so desired.

The Grand Jury then retired to their room.

A case that will come up for hearing is an appeal from the decision of Police Magistrate Dumble some months ago, wherein two Collegiate Institute boys were fined for committing an assault upon Mr. R. Harrison. This will be remembered as the celebrated "Hawn" case, in which a bunch of Whisker Pullers," of the Collegiate Institute, got themselves into trouble.

D. O'Connal is appearing on behalf of the boys and Crown Attorney Wood is looking after the Crown's interests.

The first civil case on the docket is Fee vs. C.P.R. Railroad.

SEND-OFF TO MR. RODGERS.

The Members of St. John's Choir Last Night.

He Was Presented With an Address—An Enjoyable Social Evening—The Remarks.

Mr. F. J. Rodgers, who for the past two years has occupied the position of organist and choir master of St. John's Church, and who is leaving town at the end of the present month, was given a farewell social evening in the Guild room of the Sunday School Hall, last night. The affair was attended by the members of the choir, the rector and Mrs. Davidson, the church wardens, the advisory board, and a few other members of the church. The chair was occupied by Mr. A. P. Poussette, who opened the proceedings in a very happy speech and called upon various members of the choir for musical selections, etc. Amongst those who performed were Messrs. Saunders, Joe Halpany, H. Morphet, Herbert Moore and Master Morphet. The chairman expressed the regret of Mr. Rodgers' many friends at his leaving town and spoke of his ability as an organist.

Mr. Herbert Morphet, "Dean" of the choir, then read the following address:

Chas. J. Rodgers, Esq.:

Dear Mr. Rodgers,—It was with much regret that we learned your decision to sever your connection with the choir of St. John's Church. During the two years in which you have occupied the position of organist and choir master, we have observed with pleasure the constant progress you have made towards increased efficiency, until we now recognize in you attainments of a very high order, as well as an artistic temperament which we believe is barely surpassed. It has been a privilege to have the benefit of your training and we doubt not its effect will long remain with us.

We cannot permit you to leave us without a memento of the esteem in which you are held by all members of your choir; we therefore ask you to accept this token of our regard and hope it will serve to remind you of the happy intercourse which has existed between us.

In bidding you farewell we venture to predict, as we trust will be the case, that your future will be both brilliant and prosperous and we wish both you and Mrs. Rodgers continued happiness in your new home.

CHOIR OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH,
Peterborough.

Guild Room, June 10th, 1901.

Mr. Rodgers replied in a very happy manner, referring to the very cordial relations that had existed between himself and the members of the choir and the great advantage it had been for him to have the privilege of using the organ of St. John's Church. Mr. Rodgers expressed his great regret at leaving Peterborough, particularly in severing his connection with St. John's Church and he bespoke for his successor the same cordial support which he had received, and while it was far from his wish to in anyway belittle Peterborough as a musical centre, the time had come when it seemed desirable that he should endeavour to look up a larger field. He concluded by saying "from the bottom of my heart I thank the members of the choir and all the members of St. John's for their kindness to me while I have been in Peterborough, and I shall ever hold them in grateful remembrance."

The Rector spoke at some length in eulogistic terms of Mr. Rodgers. He referred to his great ability as an organist and the aimable and reverent manner in which he had performed his duties. His musical work had been freely commented on in complimentary terms and he wished Mr. Rodgers and his wife much happiness in their new home.

Mr. Conway, peoples church warden, also spoke a few words of regret at Mr. Rodgers departure from Peterborough and after refreshments were served the affair, which was highly enjoyable, was brought to a close.

It is written by Harold McGrath, and is replete with thrilling situations, involving the adventures of a handsome young American newspaper reporter in the wooing of a princess in the German Empire.

MR. VANDERWATER HONORED

By His Friends at McCallum's Last Night.

Presented With an Address and a Silver Tea Service—A Very Pleasant Time.

McCallum's restaurant was the scene of a very happy gathering last night, it being the occasion of a supper and presentation to Mr. Fred W. Vanderwater, by a few of his most intimate friends, previous to his joining the list of benedicts. Mr. Vanderwater, or "Van" as he is more familiarly known among the boys, has been a resident of Peterborough for about three years, having been for the greater part of that time in the employee of Messrs. J. W. T. Fairweather & Sons and their successor in business, Mr. Thomas Barrie. This spring Mr. Vanderwater entered out in the business world on his own responsibility and opened out a bicycle agency on George street opposite the market hall, and in which he has been most successful. During his three years' residence in Peterborough he has by his jovial manner, his warm heart, and taking disposition in general, won many true and lasting friends and it was the more intimate of these that last night assembled in McCallum's restaurant, to give expression to their hearty good wishes. The affair, until the climax was reached, was carried out entirely without the slightest knowledge of the one in whose honour it was gotten up. The pretty little banquet hall of the restaurant was tastily fitted out for the occasion and the tables were neatly arranged and decked out in profusion with flowers, etc. "Van" was induced to accompany several of the boys to the scene of the event where the remainder of the company was in waiting and in a short while the proceedings were in progress. The chair was occupied by Mr. Daniel J. Divine, one of "Van's" staunchest friends and seated around the tables were,—Messrs. E G Laverdure, F W Seguin, F A Clarke, Charles McClellan, Joe Gibson, O LaBelle, W Bunton, Fred Tully, W J English, Dr. Conroy, John Comstock, L F Moon, C G Graham, F M Hammel, Peter Lang and Dr. King.

An excellent spread by Mine Host McCallum was soon wiped out and then the further surprise of the evening was sprung.

Mr. Divine read the following address to the guest of the evening:

Dear Van, — We have heard you are going to leave us. When we say "us" we mean your bachelor friends with whom you have enjoyed the joys of single blessedness. When we say "leave us" we mean that you are about to say farewell to the aforesaid joys to take up the trials, the burdens and the happiness of a benedict. Few of the former and much of the latter we feel will come your way, for we know you, Van, and we hope that nothing but good will be your portion in the future. Where you got the courage to take the step you now are contemplating we do not know, and do not propose to ask, but we compliment you on possessing it, for there are some of us who are apparently lacking in this regard. But, cheer up, some of us will join the army of the "double marchers" before long, and you will have friends with you.

But, speaking seriously, Van, we wish to extend to you our good wishes, and wish you and the estimable young lady who is to share your fortunes every happiness. Be good, and you will not be lonesome. As a slight indication of our good wishes we ask you to accept this accompanying gift and may you and yours live long to enjoy the comforts that may be dispensed from it.

We again extend congratulations and good wishes and say "so long" for the present.

Signed on behalf of "the bunch."

D. J. DeVine, C. J. Graham, F. A. Clarke, W. J. English, W. Bunton, C. S. McClelland, L. F. Moon, J. Gibson, M. Comstock, J. Comstock, P. Lang, Dr. Conroy, Dr. King, Fred Tully, F. M. Hamel, W. O. LaBelle, E. G. Laverdure.

The present was a beautiful silver tea service, engraved with the words, "To Van, from the bunch."

When "Van" had recovered consciousness, so to speak, he replied, but apologized, saying that he had not words to express the feelings of his heart on such an occasion. He hoped that his change in life would be a change for better and he trusted that those who were his friends now would so continue to be. He assured them that he appreciated their kindness very much and he would look back to the occasion and would think of the address and tea service with the tenderest recollections.

Mr. Wm. Bunton, Dr. King, F W Seguin, E G Laverdure, W J English, Charles McClellan, L Moon, C G Graham, Dr. Conroy, F A Clarke and Oscar LaBelle, all spoke in the kindest terms of Mr. Vanderwater and wished him every success in the future. Many happy references were made to his leaving the "bunch," which is composed of a number of the young bachelors who have for some time past boarded at the National Hotel.

Mr. Vanderwater's wedding is to take place at Parkdale, Toronto, on Wednesday evening.

ON THE WAR PATH.

Writs have been issued and injunctions asked for against certain shoe dealers in Owen Sound, Oshawa and Hensall, Ontario, at the instance of The Slater Shoe Company, of Montreal, the ground for action being the offering or exposing for sale as "The Slater Shoe" goods other than those of their manufacture.

It is understood that writs will shortly be issued against a number of other dealers in Ontario and Quebec, who have disregarded the warning circular issued by The Slater Shoe people and have laid themselves open to have legal proceedings instituted against them.

Starving Children.

Thousands of well fed children are starving, simply because their food is not of the right kind. They are thin, pale and delicate. Scott's Emulsion will change all this. It gives vim and vigour, flesh and force.

FIRST OF JULY CELEBRATION

Meeting to Arrange Details Held Last Night.

The Roman Catholic Picnic and the Town's Day Will not Clash One With the Other—Committees.

A public meeting for the purpose of arranging further details for the 1st of July celebration was held in the Town Council Chamber last night. Great enthusiasm was shown and the prospects are that a successful day will be the result. Amongst those present were,—W B Bamford, Chairman, D H Burritt, Secretary, Peter Campbell, Treasurer, and His Worship Mayor Denne, Ven Archdeacon Casey, W H Robertson, F H Dobbin, Dr. Moher, Myles Henry, Joseph Begley, Reg. Turner, Leslie Scott, J L Knapman, B Shortley, Jos. Maher, H C Winch, and many others including a number of boys.

The Chairman, in opening, said that there were several matters to be considered, amongst them being the raising of more money and to see further regarding the printing. He expressed the hope that the citizens would enter heartily into the work.

His Worship Mayor Denne said that since the last meeting Ven Archdeacon Casey had awaited upon him in reference to the matter of having his picnic, which is always held on July 1st, and the town's celebration work in harmony. Mayor Denne's reference to this matter was greeted with expressions of approval. Continuing, he referred to several matters of a financial interest.

Mr. Peter Campbell presented a report of the finances of the committee, which showed the affairs to be in a very fair state.

A new financial committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. F. H. Dobbin, Mayor Denne, W. B. Bamford, Peter Campbell and T. E. Bradburn.

A printing committee was appointed, composed of Messrs. T. E. Bradburn and W. B. Bamford.

Chairman Bamford then introduced the matter of having the Catholic picnic and the celebration arranged so as not to clash one with the other, and the meeting heartily approved of this suggestion.

Ven Archdeacon Casey said that the picnic had been an annual affair for some time and was for a charitable object. He felt sure that the picnic would be benefited by the celebration. He would like to see the procession start a little earlier in the morning and the sports be put on a little later in the afternoon.

Mr. Benj. Shortley was called upon and promised to assist in anyway he could.

Mr. Bamford suggested that the day be advertised in some manner on the day of the Ringling Brothers' Circus. On motion, Messrs. W. B. Bamford and H. C. Winch were appointed a committee to deal with the matter.

Mayor Denne moved, seconded by Mr. Shortley, that the procession leave the Bridge Works at ten o'clock on the morning of July 1st, rain or shine. This was carried unanimously.

Bandmaster Gliddon, of the 57th Regimental Band, said that his organization had received an offer from out of town, but they had decided to remain in Peterborough on that day and take part in the proceedings providing of course, the committee would deal fairly with them. An arrangement to this effect was made with the band and they will remain in town.

Messrs. H. C. Winch, W. B. Bamford, D. H. Burritt and H. LeBrun were appointed a committee to see the manufacturers and others having floats with a view of having them put on as intended on May 24th.

Ven Archdeacon Casey thanked the committee for their kind consideration towards his picnic and trusted that they would have a successful day.

The team to represent Peterborough in Port Hope to-morrow will be McCabe, Connors, Kehoe, Parnell, Sheridan, Johnston, Earls, and Craig. Davidson and Guerin will be the extra men: Kehoe will play 2nd bag.

Earls' play on Saturday in the first innings is the leading topic of conversation in baseball circles. Everybody admits it to have been a great play, and such an authority as Dan McCabe says he does not believe that in the history of baseball amateur or professional, the play was ever accomplished before. Earls was playing centre field and a beautiful hit over centre bag to deep centre was made. Earls got it on the first bounce and threw his man out at first. It was certainly a great play.

THE TURF.

The Toronto Star in referring to the Hamilton races of Saturday, speaks as follows of a nephew of Mr. Sam Ray of town:

"The feature of the day was the ride of Jockey Nat Ray on Jack Carey in the Gore selling steeplechase. When the horses came to the board fence beyond the water jump the second time Quicksilver jumped sideways and threw Conover and Jack Carey. Mr. Harris apparently never left the saddle, and when Conover got up into view from behind the fence Mr. Harris was on his back. Ray had a harder fall but he remounted at once. The others by this time had a tremendous lead on him, but he cut it down all the way around the field again and amid tremendous excitement he closed until at the hurdle in the stretch he was level with the second horse, Mr. Dunlap, and it took all Arrezzo had to win. Ray was cheered to the echo by the crowd. This clever rider won the hunters' steeplechase in a common canter with Hacklet earlier in the afternoon. Quicksilver ran second in this race."

LITTLE BIG HEROES.

THE PERSONAL APPEARANCE OF SOME GREAT PERSONAGES.

By Far the Larger Part of the Men Who Have Ruled the World, Either Intellectually or With the Sword, Were Small of Stature.

One of the natural instincts of men is that curiosity which all feel regarding the personal appearance of those persons who have stood mentally high above their fellows. Whenever we read or hear of a great man, and especially when we are familiar with his history, we unconsciously form a picture of his looks and stature to which the contrast of the actual man is often very disappointing. Often we refuse to substitute the strange, unsatisfying reality for our own fond creation, especially if the great man is found to be a small one—the intellectual giant a physical dwarf. As a rule we overestimate the height and bulk of our heroes and endow them, if attractive, with superhuman beauty or, if hateful, with ugly and repulsive looks. It was this feeling which made the people at Yarmouth, England, when Nelson, delicate in body and insignificant in appearance, was passing over the quay to take command of his first ship, exclaim, "Why make that little fellow captain?"

During Napoleon's first campaign in Italy, in 1796, the Italians were greatly surprised at his personal appearance. His short stature, his pale face, the sickly thinness of his frail body, which seemed consumed by the fires of his genius, but was in reality made of muscles of steel, seized the imagination of the people by the contrast they presented to his dazzling feats of arms. It was a novel and startling experience to find that direct and penetrating glance, that abrupt, imperious gesture, that laconic speech and peremptory and absolute tone—all which bespoke the man born to command—associated with such a dwarfish and attenuated frame.

It is a singular fact that while nothing would seem to be easier than to ascertain the exact size of great men yet it is really difficult and often impossible to do so. How long did "the grand monarch," Louis XIV, pass for a large man, being described as such by courtiers and historians! Yet the measurement of his skeleton some years after his death revealed that he was under the average size. Napoleon III, while on the throne, was depicted as majestic in figure. We now know that he was very short, little more than five feet high.

Indeed, far the larger part of the men who have ruled the world either intellectually or with the sword have been men of small stature. Aristotle, the Greek philosopher who for 2,000 years maintained despotic sway over the world of thought, was a slender man with spindle shanks, small eyes and a shrill, stammering speech. In the great council of Nice, consisting of 2,000 delegates, the most potent spirit, who, after long and fierce disputes carried the council with him, was Athanasius, a man of very small stature, "a dwarf rather than a man," says Dean Stanley, "but of almost angelic beauty of face and expression." In his little body dwelt a mighty soul. Combining subtlety of thought and power of eloquence with resoluteness of will, intensity of conviction and intrepidity of spirit, he fought single handed and for half a century the great battle of orthodoxy—having "no friend but God and death" and today the creed of Athanasius is substantially the creed of Christendom.

Gregory VII, the mightiest and haughtiest of the Roman pontiffs, who dethroned sovereigns at his will, was a diminutive man, and so were Canute the Great and the great Conde. Voltaire, the literary autocrat of the eighteenth century and the most brilliant wit of the ages, was one of the thinnest and most spectral of human beings. Two of the most potent spirits that directed the storm of the French revolution, Robespierre and Marat, were far below the average stature. The former, an incarnation of will, who by the sheer force of his intellect swayed the multitude and the national assembly at his pleasure, was but five feet two or three inches high, and the latter was less than five feet. Many of the most eminent Frenchmen of the nineteenth century—La Place, Poisson, Fourier, Thiers, Guizot—were small, spare, spiritualized beings, who could distinctly feel their own ribs.

Montaigne, the father of essayists; Dr. Watts, the hymnist; the sickly Scarron, who, in reference to his ill health and insignificant stature, called himself "an abridgment of human miseries;" Alexander Pope, who wore three pairs of stockings to plump out his legs to a decent size and also wore stays; Campbell, the author of "Hohenlinden," "a pretty, little, delicate, ladylike, finical gentleman;" Thomas De Quincey, the "opium eater," were all dwarfish men.

Suwarrow, the greatest of Russian generals; Frederick the Great, David Garrick, the wonderful actor, and Alexander Hamilton, whom Talleyrand pronounced one of the three greatest men he had ever known, were slender and below the middle height. The brave General Marion "was in stature of the smallest size, thin as well as low," and Dr. Kane, who surpassed all his arctic companions in braving torrid heat and polar cold, was but five feet six in height and weighed at his best but 135 pounds.

But more dwarfish than any of these ghostly beings was that phenomenon of the eighteenth century, the Abbe Galiani of Naples. "Personally," says Marmontel, "the abbe—who was but four feet and six inches in stature—was the prettiest little harlequin that Italy ever produced, but upon the shoulders of that harlequin was the head of a Machiavelli." Referring to the frequent and sudden alternations in his conversation, of great, lofty sublime thoughts, which, Sainte Beuve says, were worthy of Vico, if not of Plato, with pleasantries, jests and buffooneries, the abbe said of himself, "You see that I am two different men kneaded together, who, nevertheless, do not entirely occupy the room of one."—William Mathews in Saturday Evening Post.

Bunkoed.

"His name was Alexander, and his weakness was the horses," said the reporter. "Surprising as it may appear, he won sometimes and enjoyed a brief nodding acquaintance with fortune. When the bookmakers got it back again, he took to drink and in the end went about trying to pick out a good place in which to kill himself.

"He bought a drink in a cheap hotel, and the quality of the liquor led him to believe he had found the place. He wished to do no man injury, but any one who sold that sort deserved to find a dead man on the premises. He hired a room, small, bleak, well calculated to make a man willing to blow out the gas, even if he had an aversion to it, which Alexander had not.

"He plugged the apertures, closed the transom, hung his coat over the keyhole, turned out the gas and lay down. Then he lighted it again and wrote a few foolish letters of farewell, so hard is it for even a tired mortal to quit with no word. Then he put out the light, saw that the gas was flowing freely and lay down.

"He noticed that it was ten minutes to 1 o'clock in the morning. He fell asleep, certain it was all over. (Oblivion.)

"He woke. The sun was streaming in. It was high noon. Yes; he was alive. He could not understand it. There was no gas in the room, yet it was still turned on. He finally discovered that in hotels of that sort they turn the gas off at 1 a. m. 'Bunkoed!' he said and went cheerily on his way."

A Joke That Failed.

Professor Rogers and Dr. Dale were once lecturing in England, and at every town which they visited Dr. Dale noticed that his colleague, who always spoke first, made the same speech. In fact, so often did the professor give that speech that the worthy doctor knew it off by heart, and this fact led the latter to think of a way of taking the wind out of his friend's sails.

On their arrival at a town in south Lancashire Dr. Dale asked Dr. Rogers to allow him to speak first, an arrangement to which the latter readily agreed, so Dr. Dale rose and proceeded to deliver the speech of Dr. Rogers, looking every now and then out of the corner of his eye to see how that worthy gentleman was taking this practical joke. Dr. Rogers sat calm and composed, and when at length his turn came to speak he just as calmly rose and delivered, to Dr. Dale's utter astonishment, quite a new speech.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Dale said to his colleague:

"I thought I had taken the wind out of your sails tonight."

Dr. Rogers replied: "Oh, no. I delivered that speech when I was here a month ago."

A Strange Fire.

On the night of March 21, 1676, about three hours after sunset, a monster bright light arose out of the Adriatic sea and passed from east-northeast to the west of southwest, crossing over Italy in a vertical line about half way between Rimini and Legborn. Various estimates as to the height and size of the body were made. One scientist, with amusing exactness, declared that it was 88 miles high at Calmers. At all places near its course a hissing noise like that of a skyrocket was plainly heard. At Legborn the sound is said to have been "like that of a large cannon, quickly dying away until it sounded much like a cart running over cobblestones." Estimates of its size seem to have been as wild as those respecting its height. Some accounts say that it was as "large as a house." Le Cat says that "it was a good half mile in circumference." Bohn, who has written a very readable account of "The great meteor or strange fire of March 21, 1676," estimates that it was "about one-half mile by the smaller diameter," which would surely make it a terrifying object to behold.

The Smithy Settled It.

One of the candidates at an English election was announced to address a meeting in a Yorkshire village well known to horse dealers and breeders as the center of a district noted for its hackneys and roadsters.

The candidate was an eloquent speaker, but for some reason or other he failed to make any great impression on the horse loving farmers.

However, the local blacksmith came to the rescue by summing up the respective merits of the rival candidates in the following laconic little speech:

"Friends," he remarked, "this feller (the candidate) rides a 'oss. T'other feller rides a meaty carl You breeds 'osses, an I shoes 'em, so wot is there to argy about?"

In such a district and before such an audience the brief, businesslike speech of the blacksmith was not without effect, for it touched the pockets as well as the hearts of those present.

The Torture of a Flax Shirt.

The most trying ordeal that Booker T. Washington was forced to endure as a slave boy was the wearing of a flax shirt. In his autobiography, "Up From Slavery," he says:

"In the portion of Virginia where I lived it was common to use flax as part of the clothing for slaves. That part of the flax from which our clothing was made was largely the refuse, which of course was the cheapest and roughest part. I can scarcely imagine any torture except perhaps the pulling of a tooth that is equal to that caused by pulling on a new flax shirt for the first time. It is almost equal to the feeling that one would experience if he had a dozen or more chestnut burs or a hundred small pin points in contact with the flesh. Even to this day I can recall accurately the tortures that I underwent when pulling on one of these garments. The fact that my flesh was soft and tender added to the pain. But I had no choice. I had to wear the flax shirt or none, and had it been left to me to choose I should have chosen to wear no covering.

"In connection with the flax shirt my brother John, who is several years older than I am, performed one of the most generous acts that I ever heard of one slave relative doing for another. On several occasions when I was being forced to wear a new flax shirt he generously agreed to put it on in my stead and wear it for several days till it was 'broken in.' Until I had grown to be quite a youth this single garment was all that I wore."

The Slit in the Pen.

The center slit in a pen is cut by a machine which seems almost to think. It consists of two chisels which barely pass each other when the slit is made, and the exact way in which the pen is poised so as to place the chisels in the proper position for cutting is one of the marvels of penmaking.

"Save the Child!"

That is the heartfelt cry of many a mother who sees her beloved child wasting and fading day by day. Sometimes it's too late for medical aid to help the child. It is so weak, so lacking in stamina that there is no vantage ground of help.

One of the results of the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription preceding maternity is a strong, healthy child. Thousands of mothers testify to this. Frequently mothers write, "I was never able to raise a child before using 'Favorite Prescription,'" or "All my other children are sickly except this one, and I took your 'Favorite Prescription' this time."

All the child's strength comes from the mother. "Favorite Prescription" gives the mother strength to give her child.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription;" it contains neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic. It is a purely vegetable and perfectly harmless medicine in any condition of the female system.

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing "just as good" for woman's ills.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Correspondence confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I am so thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me," writes Mrs. John T. Smith, of Moose, British Columbia (Box 56). "It helped me through the long months of pregnancy and I have a big, strong baby girl, the most healthy of all my three, and it cured me of a disease which was taking away all my strength."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 50 one-cent stamps for the book in cloth binding, or 21 one-cent stamps for paper covered. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WEAKNESS

OF MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental wrecks than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee bond to that effect. We would warn you sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.

Don't Let your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. Our New Method Treatment will Stop all Unnatural Losses, Purify the Blood, Invigorate the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make a man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure Stricture, Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. No cutting or operations. DO PLANTS THINK?

Reasons Why One Man Believes That They Possess Mentality.

Most people look upon a plant as something almost without life. Perhaps this is true when we compare its life energies to those of an animal and the rest of creation, which are high in the scale of life. Nevertheless, year after year, as I look at nature and strive to catch some faint idea of the subtle life power which is everywhere, the more certain I become that even plants have some power which is similar to mind in the higher animals.

I remember distinctly when this first came to my notice. It was early one June, and I was walking through a heavy bit of timber listening to the glorious love songs of our birds and the rustling of the fresh green leaves overhead. Numbers of wild flowers were swaying gently in the light breeze, which came and went through the long aisle of brown tree trunks.

In the dense shade I found a great bed of small green umbrellas, May apples, and under each was an exquisite white flower. I lay down on the soft, dead leaves and looked into the face of one of these blossoms, and it returned my stare with that open, frank look which all flowers have. I noticed that several of the stamens had bent over the pistil and had discharged their pollen. The stamens which had not ripened were back close against the petals. For several days I came to look at this big blossom, and I saw stamen after stamen move forward and discharge its pollen and then fall back to give room for the others.

That summer I planted a five leaf ivy on my coalhouse that it might paint it green every year. The vine grew vigorously and in a few years had almost covered one side of the building. When the vine reached the flat shingle roof, I feared that it would spread over it and rot the shingles, but I had forgotten the lesson I had learned while looking at the May apple blossom.

The tender young ends of my ivy traveled along the edge of the roof, but never ventured out upon it. The vine knew that it could not withstand the hot glare of the sun reflected from the flat surface. But it was a vigorous vine and needed room; so, after traveling along the roof edge and finding no place to grow upward, it threw itself downward and soon covered what space was left on the side.

Is this instinct, or is it something which approximates mentality as we know it among the higher animals?—James Speed in Louisville Post.

ALL SPIDERS SPIN.

But Not the Way That Most Artists Draw Them.

"All spiders spin, but not all of them spin snares, those orbed and radiated webs that we see pictured so many times and every time pictured wrong," says Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's, "but that only goes to show that the lower animals are not the only ones that possess instinct. I think it will be generally agreed that artists may be classed among the higher animals. At any rate, their instinct is to draw a thing not as it is, but as it appears to a man that doesn't know very much about anything in particular. So he lays off his picture of a spider's web with a pair of dividers, and people marvel at the spider's mathematical sense, whereas a spider doesn't bother her head with any such foolishness. She puts her lines where she thinks they will do the most good regardless of their distance apart.

"Here of late, though, I think I have noticed a little improvement in artists. They have begun to notice that the spider always stands head downward in her web, if it be a perpendicular one, and if it is horizonal hangs back downward. Some of these flat web spiders can hardly walk right side up. But the spider of art never has more than six legs, while the real spider has eight, and the spider of art often has three sections of the body, while the real spider never has more than two. The head and chest are in one department, so to speak. There are their eyes, from four to eight in number, and disposed in different patterns according to their political affiliations; their jaws, which work sidewise instead of up and down; their poison bag and a few other arrangements, and in the abdomen, or silk department, are the heart (a banana shaped affair), the liver, the slit and tubes that do duty for lungs and the spinnerets. These last are warty looking affairs that may be spread apart and brought together exactly like the thumb and fingers of the hand. Each wart is covered with hundreds of little hollow hairs through which is expressed a gummy liquid that turns to silk when it dries. Mrs. Spider slaps her spinnerets broad against the wall and sticks fast (I don't know how) many hundreds of fine filaments. Then she pulls away the spinnerets and shuts them up, and all of those fine filaments melt into one rope, in thickness about one five-thousandth of an inch. Insects' silk is a simple thread; spiders' is compound."

A Man Without Tact.

Young Mr. Koupon had been left a great deal of money, but no tact. One day he was introduced to young Mr. Grinder, a newspaper man, who had a great deal of tact under most circumstances and very little money under any circumstances.

Mr. Koupon desired to inspect the newspaper office, and Mr. Grinder courteously spent half an hour conducting his guest from department to department and explaining the work that was done.

Finally they came to the editorial room in which Mr. Grinder toiled six days in a week. It was a very dark day, the room was unusually gloomy, and over each desk an incandescent light made work possible.

Glancing around the room from one to another of the toiling editors, young Mr. Koupon said contemptuously:

"Jove! I'd rather run a trolley car than do that!"

"Every man to his calling," the newspaper man said dryly. "Every man to his calling."

RAINY RIVER DISTRICT.

Sixty Thousand Acres of Free Grant Lands There for a Settlement.

Sixty thousand acres of free grant lands in the Rainy River district are now open for settlement. Any male head of a family or sole female head, having a child, or children, under 18 years of age, may locate 160 acres free, and may also purchase an additional 80 acres at $1 per acre. The homesteader must clear and cultivate at least 15 acres, and in no one year less than two acres, during three years; must build a habitable house at least 16 by 20 feet in size; and must continuously reside on the land for three years after location. If the 80 acres additional is purchased, at least 15 acres of it must be put under cultivation within three years. Patents may issue at the expiration of three years from date of purchase, or sooner if settlement duties have been performed. Minerals and pine timber are reserved to the Government, but the homesteader may use such pine trees as may be needed for building, fencing, and fuel, and may sell such pine trees as may be necessarily removed in the process of clearing, but must pay timber dues on all pine timber sold. All timber remaining on the land when patents issue passes to the patentee. These lands are very fertile and covered by a dense forest, generally of valuable timber. The Ontario and Rainy River Railroad, now nearing completion, runs through this block of land and brings it within easy reach of markets. This railroad is a link of the Canadian Northern system, which within the next six or eight months will have a continuous line from Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, to Winnipeg, and thence 300 miles northwest.

PASTRY PROHIBITED.

Sufferer From Dyspepsia Forced to Eat and Subsist on Plainest of Foods—No Need of That With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets

To many a poor sufferer from Dyspepsia the only possible relief to be found for their distress is by confining themselves to a strictly plain uninviting diet. Tasty, appetising dishes are out of the question.

There is no need of such a sacrifice. Dyspepsia is no longer the all powerful tyrant which compels men and women to conform their lives to its cruel sway.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have revolutionized the treatment of Dyspepsia, providing a boon to thousands of people who, without their help, would never know a day of freedom from pain.

With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets dieting is unnecessary. Any food may be taken into the stomach, and digested surely and painlessly if Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are used.

Gradually, with the help of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the stomach will improve and grow stronger, until at last the time comes when it can do its work alone; when its digestive powers are so perfect that all foods can be assimilated without strain. Then only will the health and vigour of the whole system be at its highest, for, on the stomach depends the condition of the whole body.

Mr. Dan Corlson, of Hamilton, writes thus of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets: "Since I was eighteen years of age I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Heartburn. I could not eat any pastry, for fear of Heartburn.

"Doctors have tried to cure me, but only slight temporary relief would follow. I was advised to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and I gave them a trial. I am delighted to say I not only found them a relief, but a final, permanent cure, for the slightest sign of Dyspepsia has not bothered me since ceasing their use."

A Hard Customer to Sell.

Two drummers were relating the experiences of their last trip. Said one: "I ran across a country storekeeper that broke all records. He is a hard customer, and no one can sell to him but one man. When I got in his town, I made up my mind I'd give him a line of goods—make him a present of them, mind you, just for the satisfaction of selling them in his store. Well, I laid out some samples and gave him a fair price. He hesitated, and I lowered the figures. Presently I told him that he could have them at his own price and pay for them in 30, 60, 90 days or two years. I told him to take the goods, then when he got ready pay for them. He wanted to think of it. That was enough to stun a fellow, but I let it go at that and called in the afternoon.

"'Made up your mind?' I asked.

"'Not exactly,' he answered slowly. 'You will let me have them at my own price and pay for them when I get ready?'

"'That's the proposition.'

"'Is that the best you can do?' he drawled out. Well, I couldn't tell this to the firm, but I slammed the door in his face and ran down the street."—Exchange.

CHASE & SANBORN,

MONTREAL AND BOSTON.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY FOR THE TOWN.

Works for the Manufacture of the Product of the Corundum Mines.

RAW MATERIAL AT OUR DOOR

The Mines in North Peterborough Being Extensively Worked by a Big Syndicate—Canadian Factory Needed.

The Crown Corundum and Mica Company, Limited, own and control the Blue Mountain Mines in Methuen Township in the County of Peterborough, and have commenced operations in the development of the corundum deposits, and have already a large amount of work done this season. Offices and mining camps for their employees have been erected. A considerable amount of rich ore is now on the dump ready for shipment. A number of rich veins have been recently opened up and enough ore is now in sight for permanent shipment to the mills; the ore is in paying quantities almost from the surface and pronounced by the very highest experts in the trade to be of the highest quality of pure corundum; tests made from recent shipments and mill runs have shown the ore to run between 40 and 50 per cent. as taken from vein matter, and the quality 98 per cent. pure corundum. This is the richest deposit of corundum yet found on the continent of America, and the quality is the purest the world has any record of. This mine is destined to be one of the largest producers of corundum in the Dominion and is not to be reckoned among the speculative class of mines at all, as the ore in its purity may be seen right from the surface and does not need to depend on the result of assays yet to be made; but has already been proven by mill tests over and over again, and is away from the ordinary speculative mining altogether. The veins are large, and shipments can be made of pay ore from the surface by quarrying.

The company owns the lands and mineral in fee simple, and are not subject to Government royalties, and have been successful in marketing the product of their mines in advance to the Lavant Emery Co., of New York, the largest manufacturers in the United States trade. This corporation is now the sole agent for the company in the United States abrasive market, which means the certain success of the enterprise. Should Peterborough capitalists show a proper appreciation of the enterprise works will be established here for the manufacture of the product in Canada as well, a thing very much to be desired.

The mines have been recently visited by a number of corundum experts and prominent shareholders of the company, among whom were C. Albert Sandt & Sons, managers of the Jackson Mills Emery Company, Easton, Pa.; Wallace C. Keith, President of the Company, Boston, Mass.; Geo. H. Holden, Esq., Boston, Mass.; Rev. Dr. Merrill, Buffalo, President of the Jackson Mills Emery Co.; J. H. Hathawa, Esq., of North Tonawanda, representing a large manufactory of illuminum, (corundum being some 48 per cent. illuminum), Capt John W. Hutt of Nova Scotia, accompanied by his engineers, Messrs. Crowe and Brown. The party was shown over the mine and operations by the company's head engineer and foreman, and the managing director of the company, Mr. J. Currey, Manning Arcade, Toronto, all of whom were delighted with the prospects and apparent assured success of the enterprise and the amount of development work done to date, and the amount of rich corundum ore now in sight, a great deal of which is of the gem variety. This property having been patented some years ago, before the present regulations as to the exporting of ores were made, they are at liberty to export the product to the American mills to be manufactured till they have mills erected here and the raw ore is allowed to enter the United States free of duty.

This company has come to the front very rapidly, having only been organized last September, and a great deal of credit is due to the management for the opening up so quickly of such a large industry in the County of Peterborough, which is sure to be a great benefit to not only the immediate neighbourhood, giving employment to a large staff of men, but to all those financially interested.

We understand that the secretary of the company is now in Peterborough and Lakefield arranging for the building of scows to carry the ore from the eastern extremity of Stony Lake to Lakefield, where it will be loaded on the train and shipments will commence about the first of July.

The company have a magnificent display of corundum ore in the Canadian Exhibit Department at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, which no one interested in the development of Canadian minerals should fail to see when visiting the Exposition this season. This exhibit has been made at the request and is under the supervision of the Mines Department of the Ontario Government, in consequence of this being the best and purest quality of corundum yet found in Ontario.

We understand another party of capitalists from Western Ontario are visiting the mines this week in company with the secretary of the company, Mr. E. B. Hilborn, Manning Arcade, Toronto.

LOOK AFTER THE CHILD.

That 'the child is father to the man,' physically as well as mentally, is one of those truths that can never be too often insisted upon, and the thoughtful parent will be careful above all to see that her child has the proper nourishment to establish its constitution. A good constitution is a rock on which alone success and strength can be built. Among the various foods that science commends in these days for this purpose, none holds a higher place than Neave's Food for Infants and Invalids. According to the best medical testimony and, what is perhaps better still, the grateful testimony of thousands of happy mothers, this food contains all the essential elements of strength, and while it is pleasant to the taste and eagerly taken by children, it may also be used by persons of all ages with decided benefit. It is a bone-building, health-sustaining product that cannot be too warmly recommended, and we gladly add our word of praise to that of the numerous medical journals and experts that have recommended it. Neave's Food should have a prominent place in the dietary of every house where there are children or invalids.

DR. DOWIE AGAIN.

He Declares That he is Elijah Reappearing on Earth.

Before 5,000 people in Chicago on Sunday, June 3rd, John Alexander Dowie declared that he is Elijah the prophet. The great crowd greeted the declaration with cheers. The "Doctor" tore up and down the stage yelling and throwing his arms, defying law and everything else. He then said:

"I am Elijah, the prophet, who appeared first as Elijah himself, second as John the Baptist, and who now comes in me, the restorer of all things. Elijah was a prophet, John was a preacher, but I combine in myself the attributes of prophet, priest and ruler over men. Gaze on me, then. I say it fearlessly, make the most of it, you wretches in ecclesiastical garb. I am he that is the living physical and spiritual embodiment of Elijah, and my coming to earth a third time has been prophesied by Malachi, by God Himself, by His Son Jesus, by Peter, and 3000 years ago by Moses. All who believe me to be in very truth all of this will stand up." At this the great crowd rose to its feet and cheered.

"Listen to the first message of the prophet," he demanded. "You must pay your tithes and offerings into the storehouse of God. Accursed be ye, if ye would seek to rob His house of its fullness by not obeying this, His will, sent through Elijah."

HOW THE CIRCUS INSTRUCTS.

Military Engineers Get Pointers From American Showmen.

When one of the big American shows first arrived in Europe, appearing now in the cities of England, now in those of Germany, Austria and Hungary, the phase of the American circus which most astonished military men was not so much the show itself as the manner in which it was moved. Two or three incidents will serve to illustrate the curiosity with which the transportation department of the English and continental armies views the organization, discipline and ingenuity shown in moving, without halt or hitch, such a large amount of property and so many persons.

While preparing to open at the Olympia, the Madison Square Garden of London, the building department of that city told the owners of the Olympia that a new proscenium arch of steel must be built. This arch was to frame a stage at one side of the edifice and was 200 feet wide by 70 feet high. The material was brought into the building, and the arch was put together, bit by bit, flat on the ground.

When completed, the British workmen were confronted by the task of lifting the heavy frame into place. Days were spent in futile attempts until at last the show proprietor said that if they would turn the job over to him he would raise the thing of steel. He then called to his 300 American workmen and in three hours had the arch in position and secure, using for the purpose only the circus paraphernalia which he had brought with him from America.

A London newspaper printed an editorial urging the government to detail one or two officers from the engineering corps of the army to travel with the circus and thus acquire knowledge that would be of practical use in moving military material. The government acted upon this advice, and throughout the tour several army officers were always present to witness the loading and unloading of the cars, the transportation to and from the grounds and the erection of the tents.

The reigning monarch of one of the European nations himself came to the show incognito. He did not come to see the performance, but devoted the night to a personal inspection of circus operations, such as the taking down of tents, their movement to the train and their loading on the cars. He said that he regarded this as one of the most important object lessons in the movement of heavy material that he had ever witnessed and that he intended that officers in his army should familiarize themselves with it.

WHY IT IS HELD.

Jones' Body in the Hands of Inspector of Anatomy—Mrs. Black, His Sister, Will Get It.

Toronto, June 11.—The sister of the dead desperado, Thomas Jones, Mrs. Maggie Black, has not yet taken possession of the body of her brother, although Coroner Powell has consented that she should do so.

Yesterday afternoon, the Coroner received a reply to his telegram to Chicago, which satisfied him that the woman was what she claimed to be, and that she was a proper person to legally claim the remains. The telegram positively identified Mrs. Black, but, besides that, the Coroner received an assurance from Col. Sewell, the American Consul here, that he had received word that the identification was correct, and that papers in absolute proof would be received by mail this morning, and that they would be sent on to the Coroner.

Mrs. Black, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Rutledge, went to McCabe's undertaking establishment on East Queen street yesterday afternoon as soon as they had received the order from the coroner, but they were informed that the bill of the inspector of anatomy amounted to $27, and they would have to pay that sum before the body would be handed over to them. They thought the charge was most extortionate, and siad they would consult a lawyer before paying it. Last night they visited Mr. Robinette, who acted for the prisoners, Rutledge, Rice and Jones, in the recent trials, and they will see him again to-day before taking charge of the body.

The fees were eventually reduced from $27 to $22, and this amount will probably be paid this morning.

Count Lautrec, who was brought to this city from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary to testify against Rutledge, Rice and Jones, was taken back to that institution yesterday.

CHANGES IN SUGAR DUTY.

British Chancellor Announces Alterations in Molasses and Glucose.

London, June 11.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in the House of Commons yesterday proposed alterations in the sugar duty as follows:

Molasses and all extracts of sugar which cannot be tested by the polariscope, if containing 70 per cent. and upwards of sweetening matter, two shillings and ninepence per hundredweight; if between 70 and 50 per cent., two shillings; below 50 per cent., one shilling.

The duty on solid glucose is to be two shillings and ninepence per hundredweight, and on liquid glucose two shillings.

A resolution embodying the sugar alterations was passed without a division, to take effect to-day.

RICE RESPONSIBLE.

Coroner's Jury Returns a Verdict of Murder.

OTHER POINTS IN THE DECISION

Frank Rutledge and the Man Who Threw the Revolvers Into the Hack Were Accessories—Stewart and Kohlmeyer Commended for Bravery —Thomas Jones Buried by His Sister, Mrs. Black.

Toronto, June 12.—The jury empanelled to enquire into the death of County Constable William Boyd returned the following verdict last night:

"That, at the City of Toronto, on the 4th day of June, 1901, from a gunshot wound inflicted by Fred Lee Rice, the deceased, William Boyd, came to his death, and the purors aforesaid on their oath all say that the said Fred Lee Rice did unlawfully and of his malice aforethought, murder and kill William Boyd, against the peace of our land, the King, His Crown and dignity. We further say and find that Frank Rutledge, since deceased, thru his own act, and a man to us by name unknown, who supplied firearms to the said Fred Lee Rice, and Frank Rutledge, were parties to the commission of the crime herein charged.

"We commend Walter Stewart and Seldon Kohlmeyer for courage in the face of great personal danger, as well as for the good judgment, which was largely instrumental in preventing the escape of armed convicts.

"We would recommend that, in future, the county provide all constables charge with the duty of conveying prisoners, and that a suitable conveyance be obtained for such transportation to and from the jail."

Many Persons There.

The inquest was resumed in the theatre of the General Hospital, and, as on the opening of the enquiry, attracted a large number, principally medical men. The prisoner Rice was not present, the Crown being satisfied that he had been fully identified on the opening of the inquest by the witnesses who then testified.

Mrs. Black Get the Body.

The energy of Mrs. Maggie Black, who strived so hard to secure from the authorities the possession of the body of her brother, the criminal. Thomas Jones, was rewarded yesterday when the charges against the remains were satisfied, and the interment too place in St. Michael's Cemetery. Mrs. Black did not stay in Toronto long after the funeral. She paid her hotel bill early in the day and left in the evening. There was no service at the grave.

Duke and Duchess of Cornwall Arrive in New Zealand.

Auckland, N. Z., June 12.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, who arrived here Monday from Sydney, N. S. W., on board the steamer Ophir, landed yesterday morning. They were greeted with salutes from the warships in the harbor, and a popular demonstration on land. The town was crowded, among those gathered to greet the Duke and Duchess being many Maoris in native costume. In honor of the royal visitors, the day was observed as a general holiday.

PORT ROYAL MINE EXPLOSION

Caused Death of 16 Men, Most of Whom Leave Wives and Family.

Port Royal, Pa., June 12.—As a result of Monday night's explosion in the Port Royal mines of the Pittsburg Coal Company, 16 persons are dead, seven injured and thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed. The official list of dead and injured, as made public by the coal company's officials last night, shows that most of the men leave wives and children to mourn.

Mr. Murphy Got His Answer.

London, June 12.—In the House of Commons yesterday, John Murphy (Nationalist) asked Mr. Wyndham, the Secretary for Ireland, whether, in view of the boat race and Dublin University, at Killarney, in July, he would not direct the police at Queenstown and elsewhere to desist from asking the names of persons and examining the baggage of American and other visitors, bound for Killarney, on the plea of searching for arms. Mr. Wyndham replied that the police do not search the persons or baggage. Arrivals are politely invited to give their names and destination.

Toronto Anglican Synod.

Toronto, June 12.—The Synod of the Anglican Church in the Diocese of Toronto began its 49th session in St. James' schoolhouse yesterday. LABOR WAR CLOUDS.

Machinists' Strike May Now Be a Protracted One—Convention Brought to a Close—Other Strike News.

Toronto, June 12.—Yesterday afternoon saw the wind-up of the ninth biennial convention of the International Association of Machinists. A number of the delegates got away last night, and some left to-day, but the officials will remain for a day or two longer to wind-up affairs and take some action on the outcome of the meeting of the National Metal Trades' Association in New York. There is a feeling among the officers that the manufacturers will decline to endorse the action of their executive, which met in Chicago a couple of weeks ago, and hurled defiance at the Machinists' Association.

A resolution expressing the thanks of the association to the people of Toronto was adopted.

A resolution was adopted in favor of rendering striking non-union men every assistance in the power of the association. The association will forward money to the lodges where both union and non-union men are out, with instructions to keep the latter out, and such money as will be required for that purpose will be expended.

Officers for the ensuing two years were elected, the chief being: President, James O'Connell, Oil City, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, George Preston, Detroit, Mich. Mr. O'Connell was re-elected by acclamation, as also was Mr. A. W. Holmes of Toronto as second vice-president.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon session was the presentation of a gold watch to A. W. Holmes of Toronto, chairman of the Reception Committee, whose efforts in the direction of providing entertainment for the visitors have been thoroughly appreciated. The watch bears this inscription:

"Presented to Arthur W. Holmes, by the delegates to the 9th Convention of the I. A. of M., Toronto, June 11, 1901."

MACHINISTS' EMPLOYERS FIRM.

Will Stand Together in the Fight Against the Striking Employes.

New York, June 12.—For the purpose of discussing re-organization and to confer as to the strike situation, several hundred men, prominent in the metal trades were gathered in convention at the Gilsey House yesterday. The convention continued in close secret session until 1 o'clock. The officials declined to make any statement as to the proceedings, but it was stated by participants that there had been a unanimous approval of the declaration of principles recently made by the administrative council of the National Metal Trades' Association. Approval of the statement is regarded as a decision to stand together in the fight against the striking machinists.

STRIKE ON MAINE CENTRAL.

Track and Fuel Men Have Gone Out to Enforce Recognition.

Portland, Me., June 12.—The strike of the track and fuel men on all the lines of the Maine Central Railroad was fully under way yesterday, and nearly all of the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen in this State and New Hampshire had turned over their keys to the station agents, notifying their roadmasters that they are no longer responsible for the property heretofore in their charge.

The main purpose of the strike is to obtain recognition for the brotherhood officials. The men demand an increase of pay for the section and coal men from $1.85 per day to $1.50, and for the foremen of $2 instead of $1.75 per day.

General Manager's Statement.

Portland, Me., June 12.—General Manager Evans of the Maine Central Railroad issued the following statement last night:

"About one-third of our section men east of Brunswick and Lewiston have suspended work, but we are arranging to fill the vacancies and in the course of a few days our section force will be complete. There has been no interruption nor delay in train service, and we anticipate no trouble whatever. West of Brunswick and Lewiston all the men are at work."

Lockout at Hyde Park.

Hyde Park, Mass., June 12.—About 235 employes of the American Tool Company, including the machinists, pattern makers, apprentices and blacksmiths, walked from the shop at 9 o'clock a.m. on account of a notice posted by the company, stating that the shop would shut down at 9.30 a.m. The notice was the company's answer to a demand for an increase of 12½ per cent. in wages.

Lockout Threatened.

Newport News, Va., June 12.—A. L. Hopkins, assistant superintendent of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, is authority for the statement that, if the striking machinists do not return to work at once, the immense plant will be closed. Nearly 7,000 men will, in that event, be thrown out of employment.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12, 1901.

OMEMEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The weather is all that could be desired, being favourable in every respect.

Dr. J. N. Thompson has returned to Omemee after a short visit to Hawkestone, where he was requested to go, but being unable to secure a house there has decided to resume his practice at Omemee again.

Those who had the privilege of hearing Hon. Mr. Stratton's address at Lindsay on Saturday last returned home more confident and prouder of the Ontario Government than ever. The big Reform convention there on June 20th will attract crowds.

On Sunday last at the Presbyterian Church Rev. Mr. Kannawin, B. D., gave a very acceptable address on the life of the late Dr. G. L. McKay, of Formoosa, who, the speaker said, at one time attended the Omemee Grammar School. The life and example of the deceased, who had been one of the greatest missionaries the world had ever seen, should prove a great example to all young men.

The concert programme furnished St. Paul's choir here last Tuesday was acknowledged by the appreciative assembly, made up of all denominations, as one of the best ever given.

Mr. Anderson of Peterborough, and a representative of the Y.M.C.A., gave profitable and interesting addresses at the Methodist church on Sunday.

An additional grant of $250 was made to maintain and repair the roads, to be equally divided in the five wards; the Reeve and Councillor Deyell were appointed commissioners to expend what money they think necessary to improve and repair the Ashburnham boundary road. HONOR SIR WILFRID.

Demonstration on His Visit to L'Assomption.

STUDENT DAYS RECALLED.

The College Honors Its Distinguished Old Boy—Tributes by the Way—Graduates Who Reflect Credit on Their Alma Mater—Speeches by the Premier and Hon. J. I. Tarte.

L'Assomption, June 12. — There was a fine demonstration in this pretty village yesterday in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a former pupil of the college, and a native of the county. The authorities, both municipal and scholastic, had been anxious for some time to express their admiration and pride in the position reached by their "old boy," but it was not until yesterday that the Premier's numerous engagements permitted him to be present. The affair was entirely non-political, and former pupils of the college gathered from all quarters to welcome their distinguished fellow-student and renew recollections of their youth. Among them were Lieutenant-Governor Jette; Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Horace Archambault, Attorney-General of Quebec; Mr. Arthur Dansereau, editor of La Presse, and a large number of prominent clergymen. Few colleges can boast of such an array of able graduates, and the authorities took a justifiable pride in the results of their training. Sir Wilfrid himself was, of course, the centre of attraction. En route from Montreal there were demonstrations at various points.

At L'Assomption.

The reception at L'Assomption came as a fitting climax to the previous ones. Representatives of the County Council, of the City Council, of the Agricultural Association of L'Assomption and the college were there in large numbers, and cheered loudly as the Premier was driven to the college, where he was to be a guest. After a few moments' rest Sir Wilfrid appeared on the platform erected on the large lawn facing the institution, and was presented with four different addresses. The address from the County Council read in part as follows: "Canada felt a national pride when she opened the pages of her history before the eyes of the European nations. The eyes of the country were on you, and you were justly the pride of our race. Great Britain saw in you the equal of Gladstone; France acclaimed you as a son; no wonder the County of L'Assomption feels proud of you."

The Premier's Reply.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose, and it was not without a tremor in his voice that he began to speak. "These addresses you have just read to me," he said, "were not to the Prime Minister of Canada in his official capacity. It is as one of yourselves that I like to hear your words of welcome. I put aside my official position, and just now I am again a child of L'Assomption. What touches me most of all I see around me is that noble pile," and here Sir Wilfrid became visibly affected, "the good old college, my alma mater, where I was a student more than forty years ago." Sir Wilfrid went on to speak of his affection for Quebec, part of which city he has represented in Parliament for twenty-three years. He was very deeply attached to the old capital of the County of L'Assomption. Sir Wilfrid said he had been surprised to see the great progress that had been made in agriculture, "I had read the reports," he said, "but I could not realize until I came to see what had been done. There was a time when Quebec was behind in agriculture, but now it was all changed, and Quebec was forging ahead. I have visited Ontario, and I have seen magnificent fields tilled by Scotch farmers, but I am glad to say their lands are not tilled better than these are in the County of L'Assomption to-day." Sir Wilfrid expressed the hope that in the near future L'Assomption would have the North Shore Railway running through the city.

Sir Wilfrid was followed by Hon. J. I. Tarte, who is also a former pupil of L'Assomption College.

MR. HARDY'S CONDITION.

He Passed a Good Day and Hope Is Strengthened.

Toronto, June 12.—Hon. A. S. Hardy was able to take a little nourishment yesterday, and his physicians and friends seem more hopeful than at any time since the operation was performed. Dr. O'Reilly said late last night: "Mr. Hardy has had a pretty good day, and we are all hoping he will have a good night. He is bright and cheerful. He has not given up, and we are not giving him up either."

At 3 o'clock this morning Mr. Hardy was resting easy, and no change from the hopeful conditions of yesterday was noted.

Changes in Bisley Team.

Ottawa, June 12.—Although leave of absence has been obtained to enable the members of the Bisley team to go to England, changes in the personnel are still taking place. Two of the 48th Highlanders—Staff-Sergt. McVittie and Sergt. A. Graham—have fallen out. They are succeeded by Company Sergt.-Major M. Matdougall of the 5th R. C. A., of British Columbia, and Lieut. J. M. Davidson of the Q. O. R., Toronto.

WARM TIMES AT KINGSTON.

Striking Street Car Men Give Non-Unionists and Company Trouble.

Kingston, June 12.—The street railway lockout is assuming alarming proportions. A mob of about 1,500 assembled at the Princess and Bagot streets junction Monday night, stoned the non-union motormen and conductors, turned switch points and interferred with the service. Several store windows were broken by missiles thrown at the street railway men. The police could not disperse the mob. An attempt was made to wreck a car by placing timber on the track at a dark spot, but the obstruction was removed in time. A wire strung across the street beneath the trolley cable threw off all the trolley poles as the cars passed. The cars had to be run in earlier than usual. Several motormen were struck and had their faces and heads cut. Special constables patrolled the tracks in dark places.

Police Checked the Mob.

Rochester, June 12.—The first serious trouble since the inauguration of the general strike of the street and building laborers on June 1, took place on St. Paul street yesterday, when a mob of 500 strikers and sympathizers attacked the non-union men who had returned to work. A patrol wagon load of policemen was rushed to the scene and held the mob at bay for half an hour, when the latter sullenly retreated with threats of returning later in stronger force.

Coal Shovellers on Strike.

Belleville, June 12.—The coal shovellers on the Grand Trunk here, who are hired by a contractor, have struck for $1.50 per day. They are getting $1.25 a day.

PASTRY PROHIBITED.

Sufferer From Dyspepsia Forced to Eat and Subsist on Plainest of Foods—No Need of That With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets

To many a poor sufferer from Dyspepsia the only possible relief to be found for their distress is by confining themselves to a strictly plain uninviting diet. Tasty, appetising dishes are out of the question.

There is no need of such a sacrifice. Dyspepsia is no longer the all powerful tyrant which compels men and women to conform their lives to its cruel sway.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have revolutionized the treatment of Dyspepsia, providing a boon to thousands of people who, without their help, would never know a day of freedom from pain.

With Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets dieting is unnecessary. Any food may be taken into the stomach, and digested surely and painlessly if Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are used.

Gradually, with the help of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the stomach will improve and grow stronger, until at last the time comes when it can do its work alone; when its digestive powers are so perfect that all foods can be assimilated without strain. Then only will the health and vigour of the whole system be at its highest, for, on the stomach depends the condition of the whole body.

Mr. Dan Corlson, of Hamilton, writes thus of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets: "Since I was eighteen years of age I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Heartburn. I could not eat any pastry, for fear of Heartburn.

"Doctors have tried to cure me, but only slight temporary relief would follow. I was advised to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and I gave them a trial. I am delighted to say I not only found them a relief, but a final, permanent cure, for the slightest sign of Dyspepsia has not bothered me since ceasing their use."

In the northern part of China grain food other than rice is the staple. Millet, corn, wheat and buckwheat form the main food grains. Baked corn bread is a common article of diet in this section.

In Hungary there are thousands of villages and hundreds of small towns without a doctor within ten miles.

THE CODLING MOTH.

Many farmers in Ontario appear to be under the impression that recent regulations adopted by the Ontario Government in regard to the destruction of the Codling Moth on apple trees are compulsory upon all persons. These regulations have been made in accordance with the provisions of the Noxious Insects Act passed in 1900. This is a local option act and comes into force only in those municipalities that adopt it by by-law.

Out of Sorts.

Carelessness and neglect, and ofttimes wilful disregard of Nature's laws puts the system out of sorts. Hurried, neglected and irregular meals cause most of the trouble.

No wonder the stomach revolts—goes on strike. It's functions are so necessary to your daily health that when it doesn't act properly your entire body suffers. Bowels clogged, liver inactive, blood impure, bad taste, coated tongue—you feel all petered out—and you look it.

The result is indigestion, biliousness and constipation, followed by more serious complications if the body's natural functions are not restored at once. To all such sufferers there is a sure, safe, economical and palatable cure—that is time-tested, never-failing Abbey's Effervescent Salt. A laxative that never gripes, gentle, but certain. It gets the bowels back to their normal action. Tones up the stomach. Livens up the liver. Makes the entire system right as a trivet.

Brigade, made up of the following regiments: 20th, 37th, 39th, 44th and 77th. Brigade IV. consists of the 12th, 31st, 34th, 35th and 36th regiments. The Cavalry Brigade consists of the Governor-General's Body Guard, the 2nd Dragoons and the Toronto Mounted Rifles. Morris Tube practice begins to-day.

THE CHINESE INDEMNITY.

Prospects for a Settlement Are Brighter —Position of Foreign Ministers.

Pekin, June 11.—A meeting of the Foreign Ministers to-day showed better prospects of their coming to some definite understanding, the majority favoring the acceptance of China's offer of 465,000,000 taels as the amount of the indemnity to be paid to the powers. There was considerable discussion as to how the 4 per cent. interest could be collected. Mr. Rockhill will present at the next meeting an expression of the American desire to finish the business at The Hague. A majority of the Ministers confess themselves against the proposition, thinking that within the next ten days everything can be adjusted.

In the meantime the present military preparations for the departure of the troops and the Chinese intentions regarding the return of the court to Pekin seem premature. The Ministers may force a decision in the matters remaining to be adjusted.

Mr. Rockhill has the translation of an edict by the wording of which it would seem that the library of the forbidden city was intentionally set on fire by orders of the court, and was not struck by lightning, as was reported by the foreign guards. The edict orders the destruction of all the archives. The fire must have happened the day after the receipt of the telegraphic edict, though at the time a rumor of the receipt of the edict was denied by Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang.

The Importance of Shanghai.

Shanghai, June 11.—Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour, British commander-in-chief on the China station, was the principal guest of the China Association at its annual banquet last evening. During the course of a speech protesting against any policy of trade exclusion, the admiral said Great Britain had three powerful rivals, the United States, Russia and Germany. Of the three, the United States was the greatest of her trade rivals, but the rivalry was not in conflict with Great Britain's policy of the open door. Germany was a keen competitor, both as regards trade and sea power. Great Britain, some day, would have to reckon with the latter. Russia was not only extending her territory, but was repressing trade.

Admiral Seymour insisted on the imporatnace of holding and defending Shanghai, in order to preserve the prestige of the foreign nations.

PETERBORO' COUNTY COURT

And General Sessions of the Peace.

Are Now in Session Before His Honour Judge Weller—The Grand Jury's Presentment.

The time at the County Court was taken up all yesterday afternoon with the case of Fee vs. Canadian Pacific Railway.

Peterborough, June 12, 1901.

To His Honour Judge Weller, Presiding at the June Sittings of the Court of Sessions:

May It Please Your Honour,—Your Grand Jurors beg to make presentment as follows:

We have, in accordance with your suggestion, visited the County Jail and made a thorough examination of it and are pleased to be able to report that everything was found in the most satisfactory condition, cleanly, orderly and neat, evidencing most efficient attention to duty on the part of those in charge.

Your Grand Jurors, however, feel called upon to draw attention to what they deem to be a most deplorable state of affairs which continues to allow the unfortunate and aged poor to be incarcerated with the criminal classes in the Jail. One poor unfortunate, helpless from paralysis, who being without means, had to seek shelter in the Jail and there also were two others mentally infirm. These unfortunates we feel should not be in the Jail and we think that this matter should be dealt with in the same practical way by the Councils of the Town and County so as to remove a condition of things that we felt when we saw it, was not in keeping with a Christian Community. We did not think it necessary to visit the Hospitals or other public institutions as they have been so recently inspected by the Grand Jurors of the High Court and will soon be visited by the Grand Jurors of the next Court. In concluding this presentment we desire to thank Your Honour for the manner in which you assisted us in so clearly defining our duties. We also rejoice with you in the law-abiding community in which we reside our freedom from crime being indicated by the absence of Criminal Cases at our Court Sessions. On behalf of the Grand Jury.

WILLIAM G. FERGUSON,
Foreman.

His Honour Judge Weller replied briefly thanking the Grand Jury for their able presentment. Regarding the matter of aged and infirm people being confined in the County Jail, His Honour said that it was a very serious matter and had been frequently referred by Grand Juries in the past. He believed that some move in that direction would be made at an early date, but in any event such a move should be made. Other counties had such institutions as they referred to and there is no reason why in such a prosperous county as Peterborough we should not have the same. His Honour then gave a few figures as to the ages of some of those who are confined in the jail as indigents. One was 82 years of age, another 76 and another 80. On the face of matters it is apparent that some other place than the jail should be provided for them. Continuing he said that he was not surprised at their favourable report as to the condition of the jail, knowing the officials in charge. In concluding he again thanked the jurors and formally dismissed them.

FEE GETS DAMAGES.

In the action of Henry Fee, of Cavan, who claimed damages for $100 against the C.P.R. for the loss, by being killed by an engine, of a cow and a bull, the plaintiff was given judgment for $100 less $17.50, the amount he received for the meat. Mr. Fee is a farmer living in Cavan and his claim was based on the alleged defective fences that were maintained by the Railway Company. The accident occurred in July last.

E. B. Stone for plaintiff, Mr. McMurtry, of Toronto, for defence.

The case of Fowlds vs. Walsh is now on.

The Port Hope Knitting Works are showing this week something extra in Working Shirts for men, in flannelette, derry, black drill, black sateen, and many other makes, at 25c, 35c, 50c, etc. Examine them, and the quality and prices will at once commend themselves to you. The Double Trading Stamp Sale will be continued until 18th of June.

DEATH OF WM. HELM.

He Will be Interred With Masonic Honours To-morrow Afternoon.

Mr. William Helm, one of Peterborough's oldest and most highly respected residents, died at five o'clock this morning, at his residence, No. 658 Bethune street, after a lingering illness of Bright's disease.

The late Mr. Helm was a Canadian by birth, having been born in the County of Northumberland, near Grafton, seventy-eight years ago. He had been a resident of Peterborough for over 35 years, having previously to his coming here conducted a foundry and machine shop at Bowmanville. In Peterborough he also ran a foundry for many years.

For the past fifteen years or more he has lived a retired life.

He married 65 years ago Miss Sophia Monnell, of New York State, who together with one son and two daughters survive him. The son is Mr. Ralph Helm and the daughters are Mrs. Thos. Bradburn of town, and Mrs. Nixon, of Toronto.

Deceased has five sisters and two brothers living, one of the latter being Mr. John Helm, of Port Hope.

He was a charter member of Peterborough Lodge A.F. & A.M., of which he was also a life member. His many sterling qualities gained for him many friends, who held him in the highest esteem.

The service at the house will be held at half-past three to-morrow afternoon, and the funeral will start promptly at four o'clock. The deceased will be interred with Masonic honours in the Little Lake Cemetery.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

Schneider's Jewelry Store on George Street—The Furnishings.

The store of Schneider, the George street optician and jeweller, has recently been fitted up in a very costly and magnificent manner, which makes it now one of the most stylish looking places of this kind in the country.

In addition to the very artistically papered walls and ceiling which have been undergoing considerable attention, the premises of Mr. Schneider have been greatly improved by the addition of a number of very elegant show cases. A couple of very deep wall cases of walnut casing, and several handsome counter show cases by the Dominion Show Case Company, Toronto, are luxuriant in their appearance, particularly when stocked with handsome and neatly arranged wares. The counter cases are of polished oak frames and plate glass. Altogether Schneider's store is particularly up to date in its fixtures, etc.

GONE UP IN SMOKE.

The Brickley Cheese Factory at Noon Yesterday.

The Brickley Cheese Factory between Warkworth and Hastings was burned to the ground at noon yesterday. A portion of the stock was saved but the building is totally destroyed. The cause of the fire is a mystery. Insurance on building was $400.

The Brickley factory was on the board of the Peterborough Cheese Board and was operated by Mr. S. Bailey.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING.

Mr. Wellington Edwards Weds Miss Eva Carlisle of Town.

A quiet though very interesting event took place this afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. H. Anthony, No. 32 Union street, when Miss Eva Carlisle, only daughter of the late David Carlisle, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wellington Edwards, of Toronto, formerly of Carleton Place.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the George street Methodist church, in the presence of only a few invited guests.

The bride was becomingly attired in white organdie, trimmed with lace and chiffon, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. The services of bridesmaid and groomsman were dispensed with, but little Miss Ruth Anthony, sister of the bride, and little Miss Gertrude Bradburn, who were cutely attired, and carried bouquets of pink carnations, performed the duties of maids of honour.

After the interesting ceremony had been performed the newly married couple and their friends sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by Long Bros., and later in the afternoon left to spend their honeymoon at points west, and will on their return take up their residence in Toronto.

The presents to the bride were of an exceptionally costly and useful nature and testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Amongst those in attendance at the wedding was Mr. G. Edwards, of Carleton Place, father of the groom.

Bargains in Shorey's Make of Clothing.

The pre-eminent position which the high-class clothing made by Messrs. H. Shorey & Co., of Montreal, holds with the people of Peterborough, is the reason why so much of it is sold by Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co. The representative of the house made a special visit to Peterborough last week and closed out to H. LeBrun and Co. a very choice selection of Shorey's high-class summer suits for men, young men, boys and children at a reduction of about one-fourth off wholesale prices. Shorey & Co. are preparing for their winter work and made Mr. LeBrun a tempting offer, which the people of Peterborough will get the benefit of. These suits will be sold at one-fourth less than regular prices. They consist of well-tailored garments in fine black worsted, serge and extra tweed. Every suit has a ticket in the pocket of the coat guaranteeing that if anything goes wrong it will be made right. Messrs. LeBrun & Co. also secured a great snap in trousers for working men and for fine wear, which are to be sold at a similar reduction. H. LeBrun & Co.

SOME FINE HORSES.

Great Sale of Western Horses on Saturday June 22nd.

On Saturday, June 22nd, people of Peterborough and surrounding district will have another opportunity of procuring first class horses, Mr. John King, the great Kansas stock man, will offer for sale at Kennedy's stock yards, Peterborough, about thirty well bred western horses.

The magnificent horses are colts from one year upwards, served by Kentucky trotting stallions, amongst them being a lot of well matched pairs and some splendid drivers.

Buyers need be under no misapprehension regarding these animals. They are gentle and docile, and are as easily broken as the native horses.

Mr. King has hundreds of testimonials regarding these horses, from those who bought from him before, amongst whom are Messrs. C. Stapleton, Alex. Elliott, Dr. Robinson, Peterborough; Rev. W. Bell, U. S. Government Veterinary Inspector, Kingston; W. M. Ross, Brockville.

On the day of the sale at three o'clock there will be given an exhibition of lassoing to which the ladies of the town are specially invited.

MUTATION.

Bright, verdant, fragrant, singing June
Spreads out her living charms;
Words, paltry words, are out of tune
And imagery disarms
In utter inability
To paint a single scene
Thrown on her changing screen.

A paradox on every hand!—
This morn I saw a bride;
Life's flow'rets bloom'd, its zephyrs fann'd,
While one, in manly pride
From distant Klondyke's fabled land,
As sacred ties were tied,
Stood proudly by her side.

This afternoon I bow in tears
Amid a sable band
Where radiant bride of other years
Extends the parting hand.
Oppress'd by chilling grief and fears
The children, weeping, stand
Around that father's clay—
Behold him borne away.

The noble man of other days
Is carried to the tomb,
While birds and trees and valleys praise,
And buds burst into bloom;
Yea, nightly, in the azure dome
Fair orbs benignly beam

'Tis not a trifling thing, unseen
By One who ruleth all,
That 'mid the glist'ning June-time's green
His noblest work should fall;
Be hid away, nor heed again
Fond wife and children's call—
Quaint silence answ'ring all.

An enemy hath wrought this ill
That sadd'ns all our race; (1)
Strong the one that thus can form and fill
With woe a vacant place.
One "stronger than the strong one arm'd"
Will wrench from that embrace
Each jewel, by His grace!

When Earth puts on her Eden dress,
And leaves turn seer no more,
Life, lasting life, all things possess
Through Christ, forever more,
No taint, no ill, no pain, no care,
No tears, nor anguish sore
Can touch the lov'd of yore.

Christ paid the wage sin always earns;
So all who follow Him
Are free. The bitter tear-drop burns
The heart in anguish yearns;
But 'tis not final. Foe so grim
Is conquer'd; death must die, (2)
Then fairer than this June-day sky
Become the mists that dim.

Nor winsome bride, nor gallant groom
Wax old and wade away;
But life and never waning bloom
Without one shadow, gray,
(Now coming up the steeps of Time,)
Put out Earth's crimson fray
And crown the Dawning Day!

We're looking now ahead, and, Lo!
The goal appears in sight,
When motly life,—toss'd to and fro—
The leaden clouds of night
Transform'd, gleam evermore with light!

Note.—Witnessing the nuptials of Miss Ruth Warnes and Mr. Wm. McGee in the morning of June [illegible] and attendance at the funeral of Mr. Richard Hudson on the afternoon of the same day, furnish the facts and incidents emphasized in the foregoing recount and reverie.

TOMMY ATKINS ON PARADE.

Another Attack Made on Armour's Hill Last Night.

The Men Carried out the Manoeuvring Successfully—The Orders.

The regular weekly parade of the 57th Regt. was held last night, and attracted the usual large crowd of townspeople. The manoeuvring of one week ago, when an attack was made on Armour's Hill, was repeated and carried out with great spirit.

Headed by the band and followed by a large crowd the Regiment proceeded to Ashburnham until the foot of Armour's Hill was reached, when No. 5 and 6 Companies were told off to perform the attack on the left flank, the remaining companies making a direct frontal attack, all advancing in skirmishing order. The different companies were kept well in hand, so as to be ready for the final charge, which was delivered with great dash. On the return to the armouries Colonel Edwards complimented them on their precision in performing this very important feature of modern warfare, which, he said, will be one of the principal features of the inspection. General O'Grady Haley inspects the 57th this year, sometime early in July, when the Regiment is expected to be in good shape, both in numbers and as regards technical drill.

Col. Edwards also stated that the local corps are expected to take part in the reception to the Duke of York, either in Ottawa or Toronto.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Convention of the Otonabee Sunday School Union on June 3rd.

The annual convention of the Otonabee Sunday School Association was held on Monday, June 3rd, in the Methodist Church, Keene. Owing to the state of the roads and the weather, the attendance was not as large as at former conventions, but it did not detract from the very interesting programme nor lessen the enthusiasm of those who did attend.

The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. Dr. Andrews, and presided over by Miss Ida M. Howson, president of the Association.

Reports were received from the Secretary-Treasurer, Home Class Secretary and Normal Secretary. All of them were encouraging. Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., President of the County Sunday School Council, gave a brief account of the series of conventions which had just been held throughout the county, this one being the last. The Round Table Conference proved intensely interesting and instructive.

Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, Associate Secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association, gave a very pointed and practical address to the children, "Ship Signals," followed by a solo by Rev. Mr. Potter and Mr. Yellowlees, was much appreciated.

The devotional exercises at the opening of the evening session was led by Rev. Mr. McCauley, pastor of the church.

Addresses were given by Mr. Yellowlees on "Encouragements in our Work." A Home Class Conference was conducted by Dr. Harrison.

A very pleasant duet was sung by Miss Humphries and Miss Hope. The officers for the ensuing year are:

President—Miss Ida M. Howson.

Home Class Secretary—Miss Edith Armstrong.
Normal Secretary—Mrs. W. D. Sargent.
Primary Secretary—Miss A. Maude Campbell.

Good Words From Yankeedom.

The following is from The Philadelphia Record, and will be read with interest: "That Canada is developing at a rate which well deserves the attention of the manufacturing interests of this country is set forth in a recent report from Consul-General Bittinger at Montreal, who calls especial attention to Canadian progress in railway building. Canada began railway building about the same time that this country did, and, considering her comparatively meagre population, has made almost as rapid progress. The United States, with approximately eighty million population, have, in round numbers, 180,000 miles of railroad, while Canada, with five million people, has 17,000 miles. This comparison, it will be seen, is one of which our northern neighbor has no reason to be ashamed. There is every reason to rejoice at this evidence of Canadian prosperity. In all that pertains to railway equipment, from fish-plates to rails and vestibule coaches, our Canadian cousins (except in a few minor instances) must at present look to the United States as the base of supplies. It is, therefore, with a redoubled fervor, founded upon self-interest, as well as upon neighborly feeling, that this country will wish Canada continued success in the same direction."

JAPAN IN WINTER.

Colder In Houses of the Rich Man Than In Open Sunshine.

"I suppose that the American people and the Russians are the only western races that really keep warm in winter. Still those who dwell in other countries admit that they have the same ideal by their inefficient effort to attain to it," writes Anna N. Benjamin in Ainslee's. "The Japanese winter is most trying on account of its continual dampness, but the Japanese are content to remain cold. They make almost no effort to overcome it. The old 'bushido' (chivalrous) idea of the 'samurai' (knights) was that it was effeminate to feel cold, and such is their severe training that they do not really feel it as we do. The wearing of some extra 'kimonos' and the use of a 'hibachi,' or brasier, in which are a few tiny sticks of lighted charcoal, are the only concessions to winter weather. With the 'hibachi' they never pretend to heat more than their finger tips, which they hold over the coals. It is used when the house is entirely open.

"The houses, as every one knows, are built of thin, light wood, and the sliding panels which serve for doors and windows have paper panes. They are as apt to be open as closed during the day. When I took my first jinrikisha ride through the streets of Nagasaki, I forgot my own sufferings in my sympathy for this unhappy nation, which as surely as the cold came endured such misery from it. The coolies wear thin blue cotton clothes and are always padding through the mud. The storekeepers sit out in their open booths, and the women go bareheaded about the streets. In the houses of the rich the still cold behind the closed panels is often more intense than that outside in the sunshine, where the air is stirring. The schools and public buildings are equally frigid.

"It seemed to me that the only warm things in Japan were the babies, who looked like bundles of gayly colored crape, their round heads covered by knit caps. They slumber peacefully tucked down their mothers' backs. The attempt to keep warm in winter is not entirely a 'modern improvement,' though it goes with western civilization. The Koreans do it very thoroughly, the Chinese to a certain extent. The Japanese, as a race, continue to scorn it as they always have done, and this is merely one of a hundred examples which prove that the Japanese are still true to their traditions in their daily life and as yet little affected in the ordering of their homes by the ideas adopted from the west."

NOVEL CURES.

Unique Methods Employed to Overcome Certain Diseases.

Freezing, baking, illuminating, torturing, frightening and bruising are among the accepted ways of curing certain diseases, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. For example, the baking cure: When one has a well developed rheumatism, he is placed in a species of stove and the crystals of uric acid are literally melted out of his body.

Another odd cure once tried for rheumatism was burial in damp, warm clay. The first rheumatic burial took place at Menominee, Mich. The treatment was not a success, and this form of cure has been given up.

The freezing cure: This was first introduced by a Swiss doctor, Paul Burdeyront. He placed his patients in sheets immersed in ice water, packing the patient all about with crushed ice. This treatment is today used in typhoid fever cases.

Or the patient is plunged into an ice water bath. The treatment saves many lives. Raging fever above 105 degrees F. has been brought down by these means to normal—98 2-5 degrees—in less than ten minutes.

Neither of these modes of treatment actually freezes one. A physician of Paris, M. Figeau, introduced in 1890 an ammonia vaper method, which really froze the patient. The body was placed in a chamber into which certain chemicals were introduced. Ammonia gas, by sudden evaporation, then produced intense cold, and the blood in the body lost most of its heat.

M. Figeau's method did not meet with success. Some of his patients succumbed to the drastic measures, and the practice was abandoned.

Bronchitis is now Epidemic.

Bronchitis is becoming very prevalent, but is not now incurable for Catarrhozone cures even the worst cases. Catarrhozone Inhaler sends the healing medicated air into every air passage in head, bronchial tubes and lungs; it reaches the germs and destroys them. Catarrhozone soothes and cures the dry cough and feverishness, and the laborious breathing and soreness in the wind-pipe are relieved at once. When Catarrhozone is inhaled, Bronchitis is cured in one to five days. It has been extensively used, and never once failed. Even cases of 5, 10 and 20 years standing that have baffelled the skill of the best physicians, have been cured by Catarrhozone. Your doctor can tell you that Catarrhozone is one of the grandest discoveries of the century, and that he always prescribes it for Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. Get it to-day and be cured. Price $1.00; small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Wheel Problem.

The answer to this question seems simple enough, but probably nine persons out of ten, asked at random, would give the wrong reply. It would appear at first sight that the top and bottom must be moving at the same rate—that is, the speed of the carriage. But by a little thought it will be discovered that the bottom of the wheel is in fact, by the direction of its motion around its axis, moving backward, in an opposite direction to that which the carriage is advancing and is consequently stationary in space, while the point on top of the wheel is moving forward with the double velocity of its own motion around the axis and the speed at which the carriage moves.

Flower Gardens of the Sea.

The sea has its flower gardens, but the blooms are not on plants as they are on the land. It is the animals of the sea that make the gardens, the corals of the tropical waters particularly making a display of floral beauty that fairly rivals the gorgeous coloring and delicate grace presented by land flowers. So closely do they resemble plant blooms that it is hard to believe that they are wholly animal in organization. Dr. Blackford says that among the coral gardens there are fishes of curious forms and dashing colors darting about, just as the birds and butterflies dart about plant gardens on land.

Reassured.

"They claim that women are trying to dominate the entire species," remarked Mr. Meekton.

"Well, femininity is becoming very aggressive."

"It seems so. But when I am at home and Henrietta is out lecturing I get my book of choice selections and read, 'The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world.' And then I feel perfectly content."

ARSENIC EATERS.

Many of Them Found Among the Peasants of Styria and the Tyrol.

White arsenic is the form in which arsenic is eaten by the peasants of Styria and the Tyrol. Professor Schallgrueber of Graets was the first to call attention to this practice, in a report which he made in 1822 to the Austrian government on the cause of the numerous deaths from arsenic poisoning in those districts. He found that arsenic was kept in most of the houses in upper Styria under the name of "hydrach," evidently a corruption of "Hattenrauch," or furnace smoke. His statements were subsequently confirmed from personal observation by a Dr. McClagan of Edinburgh, but for many years afterward the arsenic eaters were generally disbelieved in, and it was not till 1860 that C. Heisch published convincing evidence.

Arsenic is principally eaten by hunters and woodcutters with the object of warding off fatigue and improving their staying powers. Owing to the fact that the sale of arsenic is illegal in Austria without a doctor's certificate it is difficult to obtain definite information of a habit which is kept as secret as possible. According to a Dr. Lorenzo in that district the arsenic is taken fasting, usually in a cup of coffee, the first dose being minute, but increased day by day until it sometimes amounts to the enormous dose of 12 or 15 grains. He found that the arsenic eaters were usually long lived, though liable to sudden death. They have a very fresh, youthful appearance and are seldom attacked by infectious diseases. After the first dose the usual symptoms of slight arsenic poisoning are evident, but these soon disappear on continuing the treatment.

In the arsenic factories in Salzburg it is stated that workmen who are not arsenic eaters soon succumb to the fumes. The manager of one of these works informed Mr. Heisch that he had been medically advised to eat arsenic before taking up his position. He considered that no one should begin the practice before 12 years old nor after 30 and that in any case after 50 years of age the daily dose should be gradually reduced, since otherwise sudden death would ensue. If a confirmed arsenic eater suddenly attempts to do altogether without the drug, he immediately succumbs to the effects of arsenic poisoning. The only way to obviate this is gradually to acclimatise the system by reducing the dose from day to day. As further evidence of the cumulative properties of arsenic, it is interesting to note that when the graveyards in upper Styria are opened the bodies of the arsenic eaters can be distinguished by their almost perfect state of preservation, due to the gradually accumulated arsenic.

An Itinerant Infant.

Going down the road in North Carolina, I accosted a bright looking little colored girl and inquired her name.

"Virginia Alabama Mississippi Benson," she said so hurriedly that I had to ask her to repeat it several times, and I failed to discover how so insignificant an atom in this great universe had received such a tremendous title. Learning that she lived in a little cabin near by, I inquired of her mother.

"So's to 'member th' places we've lived at," was the reply, and further questioning drew out the interesting fact that the child had been made a family record and christened so that her parents might not forget the names of the states in which they had resided.

Thoughtful Husband.

Parting is hard to bear, and the young man who endeavors to soften its pangs for his bride of a month certainly deserves commendation.

"And now that our honeymoon is over and we are settled in our own home must you leave me for three whole days for the sake of business, Henry?" asked the clinging wife in a tone of reproach.

"I must, dear Mabel," said the young husband; "but to make the separation seem less abrupt, I am going on the accommodation train instead of the express."—Youth's Companion.

SUCCESS IN BANKING.

A habit of carefully noting the details of every transaction should be cultivated. Minute observation is essential if costly mistakes are to be prevented. In law a man is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is legally established, but it is not so in banking. Inquiry as to papers, persons, notes and coin is always in order. A spirit of investigation is as necessary to the right kind of bank clerk as it is to the man of science. Slapdash methods are entirely out of place, and system must become second nature. Neatness and order are nowhere more essential than in every department of bank work.

As exactness is a characteristic of banking transactions, so a stricter compliance with habits tending to success in other lines of business is required of bank clerks.

Punctuality is especially to be commended. It is the rule of the New York clearing house to impose severe penalties on banks failing to make prompt settlement of balances, and fines are assessed for tardiness generally. Though a clerk may be but a small part of a bank's machinery, his absence within required hours may possibly disarrange the workings of the whole mechanism. From a disciplinary standpoint, few things are more important in a bank than to be on hand at the appointed time.

Obedience to orders and rules is to be expected as a matter of course, but this does not imply that even a clerk is never to use his discretion and intelligence. "Theirs not to reason why" may be proper enough for soldiers, but the bank clerk who reasons why will be on safe ground. Rules are not inflexible. If a rule does not seem to fit a particular case, it will be prudent to consult a superior before acting. Banking cannot be carried on by automatons.—Success.

Applause Is Prohibited.

The audiences in Russian theaters are strictly forbidden to applaud. The audiences in the theaters of Japan are not permitted to applaud until they receive the cue from the stage, on the prompting of the manager.

The first nighters in the theaters of ancient Rome were much more punctilious in the matter of applause than modern audiences are. When the Roman theater goers were fairly well satisfied with a play, they applauded by snapping with the thumb and middle finger. If they wanted the actors to understand that they were really satisfied with the performance, they clapped loudly by beating the left fingers on the right hand. A more hearty token of approval was given by striking the flat palms of the hands against each other.

At the two imperial theaters in Vienna, the Opera and the Burg, applause is not allowed until the conclusion of an act, and encores are strictly prohibited.

Heart Disease

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Trouble.

Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, is certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores, and which contains valuable, harmless, digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular, persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50c. Little book on stomach troubles sold free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

PERFECTLY HELPLESS.

Probably the most remarkable case of rheumatism known to physicians in Kingston, Ont., was that of Mr. Richard Savage, driver for G. M. Wilkinson & Son. During the past winter this young man was away from his work for no less a time than five weeks. If he attempted to do anything, he was obliged to return home at once, being unable to endure the pain. For two weeks he could not walk a step. "I tried all the cures everybody suggested," said Mr. Savage, "but they were of no use. Finally a friend sent me a bottle of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. I drained the contents of the bottle and was so relieved that I sent for another. I was completely cured by the second bottle, and I have not had a rheumatic pain since. I never felt better in my life, and I heartily recommend Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure to all sufferers from rheumatism."

CHAPTER I.

The first time I met her I was a reporter in the embryonic state and she was a girl in short dresses. It was in a garden surrounded by high red brick walls which were half hidden by clusters of green vines and at the base of which nestled earth beds radiant with roses and poppies and peonies and bushes of lavender lilacs, all spilling their delicate ambrosia on the mild air of passing May. I stood, straw hat in hand, wondering if I had not stumbled into some sweet prison of flowers which, having run disobedient ways in the past, had been placed here by Flora and forever denied their native meadows and wildernesses. And this vision of fresh youth in my path, perhaps she was some guardian nymph. I was only 22, a most impressionable age. Her hair was like that rare October brown, half dun, half gold; her eyes were cool and restful, like the brown pools one sees in the heart of the forests, and her lips and cheeks cozened the warm vermilion of the rose which lay ever so lightly on the bosom of her white dress. Close at hand was a table upon which stood a pitcher of lemonade. She was holding in her hand an empty glass. As my eyes encountered her calm, inquiring gaze my courage fled precipitately, likewise the object of my errand. There was a pause; diffidence and embarrassment on my side, placidity on hers.

"Well, sir?" said she in a voice the tone of which implied that she could readily understand her presence in the garden, but not mine.

As I remember it, I was suddenly seized with a great thirst. "I should like a glass of your lemonade," I answered, bravely laying down the only piece of money I possessed. Her stern lips parted in a smile, and my courage came back cautiously—that is to say, by degrees. She filled a glass for me, and as I gulped it down I could almost detect the flavor of lemon and sugar.

"It is very good," I volunteered, passing back the glass. I held out my hand, smiling.

"There isn't any change," coolly.

I flushed painfully. It was fully four miles to Newspaper row. I was conscious of a sullen pride. Presently the object of my errand returned. Somewhat down the path I saw a gentleman reclining in a canvas swing. "Is that Mr. Wentworth?" I asked.

"Yes. Do you wish to speak to him? Uncle Bob, here is a gentleman who desires to speak to you."

I approached. "Mr. Wentworth," I began, cracking the straw in my hat, "my name is John Winthrop. I am a reporter. I have called to see if it is true that you have declined the Italian portfolio."

"It is true," he replied kindly. "There are any number of reasons for my declining it, but I cannot make them public. Is that all?"

"Yes, sir; thank you," and I backed away.

"Are you a reporter?" asked the girl as I was about to pass by her.

"Yes, I am."

"Do you draw pictures?"

"No, I do not."

"Do you write novels?"

"No," with a nervous laugh.

There is nothing like the process of interrogation to make one person lose interest in another.

"Oh, I thought perhaps you did," she said and turned her back to me. I passed through the darkened halls of the house and into the street. I never expected to see her again, but it was otherwise ordained. We came together three years later at Block Island. She was 18 now, gathering the rosy flowers of her first season. She remembered the incident in the garden, and we laughed over it. A few dances, two or three evenings on the verandas watching the sea, moonlit, as it sprawled among the rocks below us, and the even tenor of my way ceased to be. I appreciated how far she was above me, so I worshiped her silently and from afar. I told her my ambitions, confidences so welcome to feminine ears, and she rewarded me with a small exchange. She, too, was an orphan and lived with her uncle, a rich banker, who as a diversion consented to represent his country at foreign courts. Her given name was Phyllis. I had seen the name a thousand times in print; the poets had idealized it and the novelists had embalmed it in tender phrases.

It was the first time I had ever met a woman of the name of Phyllis. It appealed to my poetic instinct. Perhaps that was the cause of it all. And then she was very beautiful. In the autumn of that year we became great friends, and through her influence I began to see beyond the portals of the mansions of the rich. Matthew Prior's Chloes and Sir John Suckling's Euphelias lost their charms. Henceforth my muse's name became Phyllis. I took her to the opera when I didn't know where I was going to breakfast on the morrow. I sent her roses and went without tobacco, a privation of which woman knows nothing. Often I was plunged into despair at my distressed circumstances. Money to be meant something to spend; to me it meant something to get. Her income bothered her because she could not spend it; my income was mortgaged a week in advance and did not bother me at all. This was the barrier at my lips. But her woman's intuition must have told her that she was a part and parcel of my existence.

I had what is called a forlorn hope—a rich uncle who was a planter in Louisiana. His son and I were his only heirs. But this old planter had a mortal antipathy to my side of the family. When my mother, his sister, married Alfred Winthrop in 1859, at the time when the north and south were approaching the precipice of a civil war, he considered all family ties obliterated. We never worried much about it. When mother died, he softened to the extent of being present at the funeral. He took small notice of my father, but offered to adopt me if I would assume his name. I clasped my father's hand in mine and said nothing. The old man stared at me for a moment, then left the house. That was the first and last time I ever saw him. Sometimes I wondered if he would remember me in his will. This, of course, was only when I had taken Phyllis somwhere or when some creditor had lost patience.
